En 1947, hallé ese motivo en varias versiones de “La condesita” oídas en Villatoro (Ávila) y lo he podido documentar asimismo en otras de San Ciprián de Sanabria, Uña de Quintana (Zamora), Villasimpliz y Porquero (León). En esas varias versiones se dice, más o menos, así:

—Contigo me voy, buen conde, contigo me has de llevar.
—Eso sí que no, condesa, eso me has de perdonar, que hombres que van a la guerra con mujer no han de tratar, que se nos quitan las fuerzas, las ganas de pelear.

Referat II KO Spain
a. Introduction

During the war, Spain was the scene of numerous acts of sabotage committed by Germans and agents of the Germans against Allied shipping and military installations. In addition, the Iberian Peninsula was used as a base from which agents with a wide variety of missions were sent to many parts of the globe. This report is a study of the organization responsible for all these activities.

b. History and Organization of Referat II, KO Spain.

Abwehr II's first representative in Spain, sent there early in 1940, was Sonderfuehrer KRUEGER. KRUEGER was instructed to set up an office in Madrid and to study conditions in general as well as possibilities for II operations in Spain. At the time; headquarters in Berlin had not yet devised a plan for carrying out its insurrection and minority program (J - work) in Spain. No sabotage activities were planned, principally because S and J were still separate departments of Abwehr II, and both KRUEGER and BLAUM who went to Spain in March 1940, were sent there on orders of the J section.

Upon his arrival in Madrid, BLAUM reported to Freg. Kptn. LENZ, CO of KP Spanien. BLAUM was told that his first mission was to make contacts of possible future value. Permission for BLAUM to remain in Spain was obtained by the German Embassy, where he was registered as an employee. Later the entire staff of Referat II was incorporated into the Embassy as a section of KO Spain, Thus LENZ became KRUEGER's and BLAUM's superior. Although matters of II interest were settled with Abwehr II in Berlin, LENZ still influenced II operations, since all general policies had to be approved by him.

In 1941 KRUEGER was transferred to Tangier,where he was put in charge of a small independent KO organization. Major RUDOLF was appointed the new head of II in Spain. The failure of most of the projects initiated under RUDOLF was largely due to his inexperience and lack of initiative.

The appointment of Friedrich HUMMEL, a well known swimmer, to succeed RUDOLF in 1943 paved the way of the most successful period II KO Spain's history. Missions were completed against Gibraltar, Allied orange freighters, and after Italy's surrender, Italian vessels in Spanish harbors. A "cease action" order was received from Berlin in March 1944, and HUMMEL was recalled for more important assignments as head of the Leitstelle II West, FA.

The new chief of Referat II, Hptm. Nauman zu KOENIGSBRUECK, was handcuffed by the order prohibiting S-operations in Spain. He had only begun work on an R - organization (Rueckzugs Organisation - withdrawal plan) when he was ordered to return to Germany. In February 1945, BLAUM was also recalled, and Referat II's remaining activities were entrusted to Werner SCHULZ,a new and and inexperienced man from Berlin.

Following is a list of all personnel assigned to KO Spanien from 1940 , through March 1945:

c. Referat II, KO Spain, At Work
Orders from Berlin

No specific orders concerning the nature of sabotage work were ever given by Berlin headquarters, which merely issued statements of general policy. Changes in policy were frequently necessitated by political or military reverses, the exact nature of which were unknown to the lower echelons. One rule, however, was always emphasized: all sabotage against Allied shipping was to be timed so that the explosion would occur outside Spanish territorial waters, that Spanish neutrality would never be openly violated, and that no proof of German origin would be found at the scene of the sabota.ge. (Proof of German complicity in the explosion of an orange ship at Valencia brought a succession of reprimands from the Foreign Office, the High Command, and Spanish authorities, directed against Abwehr II in Berlin and passed down to HUMMEL in Madrid,)

Only one exception was allowed to this regulation. At the last minute, permission was granted to sabotage Italian ships in Spanish harbors, but again it was emphasized that no clue of German, complicity be found, and that, should the Spanish Government make an official protest, blame be placed on the Italian crews. A last and definite order from Berlin was received in early 1944, prohibiting all S-operations in Spain and ordering the destruction or removal of all remaining S-materials.

Origin of Sabotage Materials

Whenever possible, II KO Spanien used British sabotage equipment. The reason for this was twofold: (a) British material was far superior to, as well as more reliable and safer to handle then, the German equivalent; (b) Its use also prevented detection of German origin in case an action was prematurely discovered. This equipment, sent from BERLIN under diplomatic privileges, had been captured In France, either after the British withdrawal of 1940 or from underground forces, to whom great quantities had been parachuted by the Allies.

Efficiency of Abwehr II

Personnel of Abwehr II was generally ill-suited for its job, according to BLAUM and AMENDE. In most cases tho KO*s* were headed by old reserve officers, intent on keeping their position and rank but lacking intelligence training and knowledge of the country to which they were assigned. Strict adherence to the rigid military hierarchy prevented abler, more experienced subordinates from making their voices heard in the operations of the KOs. As a result, plans were always vague, specific operations had little chance of success, and throughout the war the slogan in Berlin remained, "Something must be done, no matter what." Abwehr II was characterized by a marked tendency to claim tremendou successes and to report constant activity, even when nothing was going on.

The activities of Abwehr II in Spain fall into three separate phases:

First phase, 1940-1941: No large-scale sabotage. Several unsuccessful missions against Gibraltar (see Annex I) and Allied shipping (see Annex II). Important activity in connection with J-work, with Spain used as an intermediary (see Annex IV).
Second phase, 1942-1943: Activity in many fields, especially against Gibraltar (see Annex I) and allied shipping (Annex II), Third phase, 1944 to end of war: All S-activitj.es prohibited by Berlin, Drafting of plans for R-activities (Rueckzugsorganisation). II staff reduced at beginning of 1945.
R -Organization

In late 1942, KO Spain began to fear an Allied invasion of Spain. This attitude, based in part on persistent reports from Berlin pointing to the probability of Allied landings in Spain, prevailed throughout 1943. Shortly after the Allied invasion of North Africa, orders were received to build up an R-organization in the Iberian Peninsula. Referat II's part in the project consisted of burying small quantities of S-materials in south and south east Spain, where the invasion was anticipated. To avoid possible indiscretions, only the German staff was allowed to participate in the burying parties. The plan was to send agents across the front lines or to parachute them in the vicinity of hidden dumps. Thus future Abwehr missions, once arrived behind enemy lines, would be assured of adequate supplies. Approximately thirty small crates were buried at a depth of about twelve inches, at locations easily accessible and close to future sabotage targets. These crates were corrosion-proof and contained five to ten charges of different types and sizes, such as incendiaries, demolitions and camouflage coal, all of British origin. .Instructions for use were attached to each charge. The locations of the dumps'were described in great detail by a series of charts and photographs, of which three sets were made. One set was kept at II headquarters in Berlin, one sent to Ast Paris, and one to the Iberia Abwehr Troop, a unit set up at the same as the R-organization for employment in the event of an Allied invasion of the Peninsula. None of the charts or photographs remained in Spain. The three existing sets were destroyed before the end of the war. The copy in Paris disappeared in 1944, coincident with the rumored desertion of a member of the II staff of Ast Paris.

Also in line with the R-organization, Referat II began in late 1943 to train ten to fifteen Spaniards in the handling of S-materials. These men were to be left behind enemy lines. However, when all S-operations in Spain were discontinued on orders from Berlin in early 1944, this plan had to be abandoned. Of the participants in the sabotage course, BLAUM remembers Francisco BORJABAD, the recruiting agent, and Ricardo GUSAETA / ZUSAETA / SUSAETA and Emilio DIAZ, both students. Since the training had to be suspended in its early stages, the Spanish agents never received any sabotage materials.

KO Spain envisioned another possibility for R-work in the support of a clandestine right-wing Falange group led by Narciso PERALES, one of the earliest Falangists and a sincere idealist. PERALES' political activities were of little interest to Abwehr II, which, despite its new designation, Mil Amt D, had remained a purely military organization.

It was suggested to Berlin, however, that a demonstration of good will that 20,000 Pesetas be alloted to PERALES' organization for its propaganda program. PERALES and his followers were in opposition to FRANCO's foreign policy, which in their opinion was becoming increasingly favorable to the Allies. PERALES was a fanatic Catholic, a rabid opponent of Communism and a thorough Germanophile.

PERALES' group consisted of old Falangists who had supposedly remained honest and had not joined in on the frequent attempts by Falange leaders to enrich themselves. They considered themselves the Falange autentica as opposed to the regular Falange founded by PRIMO DE RIVERA.

PERALES, known as a very secretive person, never divulged more than vague information regarding the composition of his organization. Moreover, it was felt by KO

Spain that his tremendous enthusiasm caused him to exagerate the importance of his group. He claimed that such military leaders as General YOGUE (misspelling for YAGÜE) and MUNEZ GRANDE (misspelling for MUÑOZ GRANDES) supported his movement, and that even SERRANO SUÑER was sympathetic to his cause. It was considered doubtful, however, whether these important figures would openly ally themselves with France's enemies.

Despite suspicions of wishful thinking on the part of PERALES, Referat II was agreed that he could be of value in R-operations in the event that FRANCO should break off diplomatic relations with Germany, or that Spain should be invaded by the Allies. In July 1944 a plan for making use of PERALES was submitted to Berlin. Since approval was not immediately forthcoming and PERALES needed time to round up and brief his collaborators little progress was made in 1944. The project was still in its preliminary states when BLAUM left Spain in February 1945. The first step of this plan was to set up a W/T net which would assure permanent contact with PERALES after a break between Germany and Spain. This net would have been the basis for future II work. The remainder of the plan, including S-training, could not be carried out because of the blanket order prohibiting all S-activities was still in effect. Three W/T stations were to be established at Madrid, Barcelona and Sevilla. The procurement of personnel and appropriate sites for the stations were entrusted to Fernando ALZAGA, head of the anti-communist department of the Falange information service. It had also been decided to turn over to PERALES, a set of the documents revealing the location of S-deposits mentioned above. Since the documeib were not available in Spain, a set was requisitioned from Berlin. They were to be given to PERALES just before the contemplated diplomatic rupture or invasion. In February 1945, this had not been done.

d. Cooperation With Other Sections of KO Spain.

Only a minimum of news and opinion were exchanged between Referat II and the other sub-sections. Information of I and III interest which was gathered along with II material was merely passed on to the interested sections. There were, however, some exceptions to this policy.

In Sevilla, Capt Antonio OJEDA and Patricio DREXEL / DIEPEL, neither of whom were connected with II, were used in sabotage activities. OJEDA, a member of the Spanish intelligence service, volunteered information on maritime traffic to and from Gibraltar. Most of his reports came through Referat I. DIEPEL, a German resident of SEVILLA, contributed reports on the internal political situation, police records, etc., some of which were used by III.

Referat II obtained an especially valuable item of information for I/TLw through DIEPEL. A Spanish air force colonel supplied a complete description of a US four-engined bomber. which had made an emergency landingin southern Spain. Various technical manuals were included in the report. At the time (summer 1943), the Abwehr was looking for such material, and was anxious to obtain data on radar equipment, which was supplied in this report.

Some III F functions were taken over by the II office after all S-operations had been forbidden by Berlin. Perfecto BRIOSO, a Falange information service agent, had contacted BALDWIN, of the US Embassy. BRIOSO, who had been engaged by the Spanish III F service, had offered his services to the II office without the knowledge of III F. Thus BLAUM was able to learn what questions BALDWIN had asked BRIOSO and what cover answers BRIOSO had been furnished by his own intelligence service. In one case, when BALDWIN screened a number of Germans with BRIOSO's aid, BRIOSO's cover answers were supplied by the II office. BRIOSO's activities came to an end when Spain decided to discontinue III connections with the U.S. Embassy and BRIOSO refused to carry on without the shield of his own organization.

Enrique ZABALA, a Spanish friend of a member of the II staff, claimed to have established III F contacts with the British Embassy through certain left-wing and anarchist circles, who in turn claimed to know VARELA, a Spaniard in the service of the British. KO Spain had always been extremely interested in the results of Allied measures to gain support of Spanish leftist parties. ZABALA, however, was arrested by the Spanish police and admitted having worked as a III F agent for the Germans.

Another III F man, FERNANDES FERNANDEZ, was engaged by Referat II. A Spanish police agent in Sevilla, FERNANDEZ worked in a III F capacity with the British Consulate, supplying British intelligence with lists of arrivals and departures of aliens. He had also been asked to investigate suspect German agents. Necessary answers, were, of course, supplied by the II office.

e. Co-operation of Spanish Officials and Firms.

The Spanish secret police had very close ties with the Abwehr and SD. The foreign branch of the Falange submitted reports of various kinds to the Abwehr. Carlos PEREYRA, an agent for the Mexican motion picture industry in Madrid, worked as a liaison agent between the Abwehr and Falange.

ALCAZAR DE VELASCO, a Spanish agent who had been in England as Abwehr businessman was taken to Germany by OBERBEIL in August 1944.

One source of information in the Falange was handled by SS Sturmbannfuehrer MOSIG of RSHA Referat IV B.

Franco's ex-foreign minister, Ramon SUÑER, transmitted to SCHELLENBERG incidental items of intelligence.

f. Liaison With Spanish Officials.

FUCHS, who was stationed at Biarritz for two years, had close contact to the following persons belonging to the Comandancia Militar de la Frontera Norte de España:

(1) Col Julio ORTEGA-TERCERO; handled transit and exit permits.
(2) Major IBANEZ; operated his own net of agents and was suspected of working for both the Germans and Allies.
(3) Capt LINARES; supposedly worked for the British in conjunction with the Family de la SOTA in Biarritz.
(4) Capt SANCHEZ.

Fuchs was also introduced to the following members of the Spanish Intelligence Service:

(1) Lt Col CABANILLAS from Madrid.
(2) Maj GOYCORETA.

FUCHS was acquainted with the following named subjects who worked for the different sections, some pro-German and some pro-Allied:

(1)The Count of ANDES.
(2) The Duke of AGUILAR
(3) The Family de la SOTA.

As these persons were residing at Biarritz between 1942 and 1944.

g. Co-operation Between Spanish Officials and German Intelligence Agencies.

Kapitaen LENZ, head of the KO Spain was able to maintain close relations with the Spanish Army due to his activities in the Civil War.

GIESE was introduced to the chief agent of the Spanish counterintelligence in La Coruña by a letter which he received from Lt Col HUSTON, chief of the forementioned organization. Thus GIESE was able to receive reports of the agents maintained aboard Spanish ships by the Falange and by Spanish intelligence.

h. Relations with Spanish Authorities.

ROHRSCHEIDT, head of Abwehr III in Spain, worked tery closely with Lt Col JUSTE of the Spanish Intelligence Service. One part of the GIS, possibly Amt IV, was in close contact with the Camisas Cruzadas (error: it didn't exist such a group or name. The group alluded was surely the so called Camisas Viejas), a small group in the Falange.

i. GIS Connections with the Spanish Intelligence Service.

Collaboration between the Abwehr and the Spanish IS were very close. CARBE and SANCHEZ RUBIO worked together at Algericas. After the expulsion of the Germans from that area SANCHEZ RUBIO reported activities in Gibraltar directly to the KO in Madrid.

KUEHLENTHAL made daily visits to the SIS office in MADRID. He conferred mainly with Gen MARTINEZ DE CAMPAS and Lt Col PARDO, In autumn 1940, CANARIS held discussions WITH FRANCO concerning an attack upon Gibraltar.

j. Abwehr Spain - Cooperation Between German and Spanish I S. Nest Algericas (error for Algeciras)

The chief of the Nest Algericas (error for Algeciras)was CARBE, alias DON ALBERTO, who was concerned primarily with the Gibraltar area and was assisted by Kapt KELLER, alias BODEGA. KURRER believed that operations were conducted mainly by recruiting agents from among the thousands of Spanish workmen who lived in Algericas and commuted to Gibraltar. CARBE also handled the negotiations with local Spanish authorities for the installation of infra-red equipment across the Straits of Gibraltar for the purpose of recording ship movements through the Straits. At one time these installations were destroyed, possibly by Allied agents. CARBE was assisted in discovering the strength and armaments of Gibraltar by It Col SANCHEZ RUBIO of the SIS. This station, KURRER believes, was closed sometime in 1 044 because of pressure on Spain by the United Stites and Great Britain.

The following persons were considered by AMENDE to be key personalities in the chain of numerous groups and organizations linked with either KO Spain or the SIS:

Emilio LANG
Padre LANG (Pater Agostin Maria LANGE).
(For more detailed information see "Personalities").

AMENDE says that there were relations between Referat II and the SIS. Any project undertaken by Referat II was of necessity kept secret from the German Embassy itself. All sabotage actions on Spanish soil were covered to prevent any proof that these were German inspired. Spanish agents were recruited without the help of any official Spanish government agencies, and sabotage operations were carried on independently of anyother organization in Spain, Spanish or otherwise. Only in planning the R-net against a possible Allied invasion of Spain, did BLAUM recruit the aid of PERALES and his followers.

According to AMENDE it should be possible to establish a net of informants knowledgeable on the activities of the remaining elements of the GIS in Spain. Some of these potential elements were considered neutral, others pro-Allied, and other pro-German. AMENDE is not sure of their exact sumpathies. Nevertheless, he suggests the following as a possile plan of procedure:

First contact with Spaniards across the border from Cerbere might be established with the chief of the frontier police of Port-Ban (error instead of Port-Bou), a certain Mariano LOPEZ VINAULES (error for LOPEZ VIÑUALES)and his assistant SOL could serve as liaison man with agents whose headquarters are in France, bearers of correspondence, and could be helpful in granting entrance and frontier crossing permits. VINAULES then, is the man to contact RUIZ DE VALLE and AMABLE in Figueras. The latter two are members of the SIS, good friends of AMENDE with leads into Barcelona, and are likely to be cooperative. In Barcelona,MORENA (error for MORENO) BRAVO is the key, informant on any subject concerning:
(1) Former members and activities concerning German Consulates.
(2) Abwehr Stelle Barcelona.

(3) Plans and projects of former Referat II, KO Spain.
(4) Shipping during the war.
(5) Dispatching of agents.
(6) The Spanish Intelligence Service.
(7) Leads into Madrid.
From MORENO BRAVO the link to CASANAS may be established. CASANAS, well known in Spanish politics since 1937 has connections with:
(1) Clique of general officers surrounding FRANCO.
(2) Falange and minor parties with similar policies.
(3) Spanish police (for check on aliens and registers
(4) Civil service throughout Spain.
(5) Falange police and SIS in Spanish Morocco, and possibly South America.
(6) SERRANO SUÑER and his immediate environnement (now eclipsed in Oviedo) and has acquaintance with:
(1) LICIMADA JUANA (Luis Ma de Juana?) (member of SIS - alien registration)
(2) AGUILLO (Naval intelligence)
(3) BOMBIN (SIS and Falange police)
(4) Emilio LANG (and through him with former Referat I, KO Spain).
Emilio LANG, the next man in the chain, may be consulted with the purpose of obtaining all information concerning the GIS, especially recent activities of what remained of KO Spain. LANG may also be able to contact Padre LANGE in Bilbao.
Padre LANGE, another key man, would be available or connections with:
(1) Church of Spain (church heads in Madrid).
(2) Nobility
(3) GIS and its past activities in Ireland and South America.
(4) The Basques and his intimate knowledge of conditions in North Spain.

"(...) Ministry of Information
Malet Street
London, W.C.I
22nd March, 1945
Sir,
On the 2nd October, you wrote to the Director General regarding the import of looted works of art into neutral countries, and, in particular, the Iberian Peninsula, As stated by Mr. McCann in his letter to you of the 18th October, we wrote to our Press Attaches in Spain, asking them to let us know if any information came their way, and we have now received from our Press Attache in Barcelona a list of Old Masters now being offered for sale privately in that city. We are unable to state whether they have been in Spain for some time or have been recently imported, but the list may be of some interest to you.
I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient Servant, Joan Lynam, Spanish Section.

The Spanish archives with information about these criminals has been closed to researchers under a Censure Act issued by the Government of Jose Luis RODRÍGUEZ ZAPATERO in 2010.
"Acuerdo sobre política de seguridad de la información del Ministerio de Asuntos Exteriores y de Cooperación por el que se clasifican determinadas materias con arreglo a la Ley de Secretos Oficiales.
El artículo 105 b) de la Constitución Española reconoce el derecho de los ciudadanos al acceso a los archivos y registros informáticos. No obstante, este principio encuentra ciertos límites, como reconoce el propio Artículo 105 b) de la Constitución, "en lo que afecte a la seguridad y defensa del Estado".
En esa misma línea, el Artículo 37 de la Ley 30/1992, de 26 de noviembre, de Régimen Jurídico de las Administraciones Públicas y del Procedimiento Administrativo Común, después de reconocer los distintos supuestos de acceso a los registros y archivos administrativos, excluye ese derecho, no obstante, cuando "contengan información sobre la Defensa Nacional o la Seguridad del Estado".
La Ley 9/1968, de 5 de abril, reguladora de los Secretos Oficiales, modificada por la Ley 48/1978, de 7 de octubre, establece el sometimiento de la actividad de los órganos del Estado al principio de publicidad, al tiempo que reconoce, en el artículo 2, la posibilidad de declarar como materias clasificadas a aquellos asuntos, actos, documentos, informaciones, datos y objetos cuyo conocimiento por personas no autorizadas pueda dañar o poner en riesgo la seguridad y defensa del Estado.
El artículo tercero del Decreto 242/1969, de 20 de febrero, por el que se desarrollan las disposiciones de la Ley 9/1968, sobre Secretos Oficiales, contempla la clasificación de asuntos como secretos o reservados para aquellos cuya revelación no autorizada por la autoridad competente para ello, pudiera dar lugar a riesgos o perjuicios de la seguridad del Estado, o pudiera comprometer los intereses fundamentales de la Nación en materia referente a la defensa nacional, la paz exterior o el orden constitucional.
Teniendo en cuenta dichos preceptos, y con objeto de evitar que asuntos que afectan a la política exterior de España se vean desprotegidos, se hace necesario determinar con mayor precisión las materias que, en el ámbito de la seguridad exterior del Estado y sus relaciones diplomáticas, requieren protección y amparo para la mejor defensa de los intereses de España y de sus aliados y amigos.
Junto a esta necesidad de precisar las materias que pueden ser clasificadas como de carácter secreto o reservado, según la clasificación establecida en el artículo 3 de la citada Ley 9/1968, es preciso igualmente tener en cuenta los compromisos adquiridos por España, tanto a nivel bilateral como multilateral, mediante la suscripción de tratados sobre protección mutua de información clasificada, que requieren de una clara definición de esta materia por nuestro ordenamiento jurídico.
En todo caso, la competencia para declarar materias clasificadas, según el grado de protección que requieran, corresponde, además de a la Junta de Jefes de Estado Mayor, al Consejo de Ministros, en virtud de lo dispuesto en el artículo 4 de la Ley 9/1968, modificado por la Ley 48/1978.
Por todo ello, en su reunión del 15 de octubre de 2010, el Consejo de Ministros, a propuesta del Ministerio de Asuntos Exteriores y de Cooperación, acuerda lo siguiente:
Primero.- Se otorga con carácter genérico la clasificación de secreto a las materias que se relacionan a continuación, así como a los actos, documentos, informaciones, datos y objetos sobre las mismas, cuya revelación no autorizada puede dañar o poner gravemente en riesgo la seguridad y defensa de España o de sus aliados o amigos así como los intereses políticos, sociales, económicos y comerciales y las relaciones diplomáticas con terceros países.

1.- Posiciones básicas de España y estrategias en negociaciones políticas, de seguridad, económicas y comerciales que conciernan a los intereses esenciales del Estado tanto en el ámbito bilateral como en la Unión Europea, la Organización del Tratado del Atlántico Norte, el sistema de Naciones Unidas, la Conferencia Iberoamericana u otras Organizaciones y Conferencias Internacionales.
2.- Información sobre posiciones españolas en conflictos internacionales o internos de naturaleza política, social, económica o comercial que puedan comprometer los intereses españoles o su capacidad de interlocución con terceros países.
3.- Información relativa a la actualización de grupos terroristas y movimientos a ellos asociados, delincuencia organizada y tráfico de drogas, personas y armas con implicaciones o ramificaciones en España o en los países con los que España haya suscrito acuerdos sobre dichas materias o mantenga relaciones de amistad.
4.- Información relativa al despliegue de unidades de las Fuerzas Armadas y Fuerzas y Cuerpos de Seguridad del Estado españolas y aliadas tanto en España como en misiones internacionales.
5.- Negociaciones y buenos oficios sobre secuestros y liberación de ciudadanos españoles o extranjeros así como la información relativa a las extradiciones o traslado de personas condenables.
6.- Contactos de mediación o buenos oficios llevados a cabo por España con terceros países y con grupos y líderes de oposición para facilitar procesos de paz y la promoción o defensa de los derechos humanos.
7.- Protección de Derechos Humanos, con especial incidencia en casos humanitarios especialmente sensibles y las gestiones con terceros países en este ámbito.
8.- Cuestiones de asilo y refugio.
9.- Tramitación de beneplácitos de Jefes de Misión españoles y extranjeros.
10.- Información relativa a las cuestiones que afecten a la soberanía, independencia y a la integridad de España o de países amigos y a las posiciones de España sobre contenciosos de índole territorial inter-estatales o intra-estatales.
11.- Informaciones relativas a la aplicación de Acuerdos bilaterales o multilaterales sobre asuntos de seguridad y defensa suscritos por España, incluidas aquellas relacionadas con sobrevuelos, estancias y escalas de buques y aeronaves.
12.- Asuntos relacionados con los crímenes más graves de trascendencia internacional sobre los que pueda tener jurisdicción la Corte Penal internacional u otros Tribunales Internacionales y aquellos sometidos ante Tribunales españoles.
13.- La información relativa a los preparativos de los viajes de SS.MM. los Reyes y del Presidente del Gobierno y, cuando las circunstancias lo aconsejen, de los Ministros y otras autoridades del Estado.
14.-Las claves y material criptográfico.
Segundo.- A las materias antes reseñadas, así como a los actos, documentos, informaciones, datos y objetos sobre las mismas, se les otorgará el carácter genérico de reservadas cuando su revelación no autorizada pueda dañar o poner en riesgo la seguridad y defensa de España o sus aliados y amigos, los intereses, políticos, sociales, económicos y comerciales y las relaciones diplomáticas con terceros países. Se les otorgará igualmente la clasificación de reservado a las siguientes materias:
1.- Entrevistas con mandatarios o diplomáticos extranjeros con implicaciones para los intereses del Estado o las relaciones internacionales.
2.- Gestiones de apoyo en las licitaciones de empresas españolas en el exterior y en contenciosos de especial gravedad que les afecten.
3.- Candidaturas españolas a puestos en organismos internacionales.
Tercero.- Tendrá la misma clasificación genérica de secreto o reservado, según corresponda, todos aquellos documentos necesarios para el planeamiento, preparación o ejecución de los documentos, acuerdos o convenios a que se refieren los apartados anteriores así como la documentación que los remita, comente o evoque.

Cuarto.- Dichos asuntos y materias podrán tener partes destacadas, informaciones o datos a los que corresponda una clasificación de seguridad inferior a la que se ha otorgado con carácter genérico. Este extremo se hará constar así en el documento que atribuya la calificación, de acuerdo con el requisito c) del artículo once del Decreto 242/1969, de 20 de febrero, por el que se desarrollan las disposiciones de la Ley de Secretos Oficiales.
Quinto.- Las informaciones, asuntos y materias clasificados por Organizaciones Internacionales o por terceros Estados, así como la documentación que los remita, comente o evoque, recibirán una clasificación que asegure un grado de protección equivalente al que recibe la información en su lugar de origen.
Sexto.- El intercambio de información clasificada con organizaciones internacionales o países extranjeros tendrá el tratamiento, protección y limitaciones establecidas en los convenios bilaterales o multilaterales en los que España sea parte y a cuyo amparo haya sido intercambiada dicha información, sin que en ningún caso ésta reciba una protección inferior a la establecida por este Acuerdo y la Ley 9/1968, modificada por la Ley 48/1978, de 7 de octubre, reguladora de los Secretos Oficiales.
Séptimo.- Esta relación de materias clasificadas será objeto de actualización periódica."

Vale.

1934 Went to Algeria with Prof AUGIERAS, an orientalist.
1936 Various caravan trips through the Sahara Desert.

1938 Received amnesty and returned to Germany; took four months' training in the Luftwaffe, then returned to Algeria.
1939 Escaped French internment by fleeing to Spain and became Arabic interpreter for German Consulate in Morocco.
1940 Returned to Berlin. Recruited by the Abwehr, and sent to West Morocco.
October 1944 Expelled from Morocco to Spain and-undertook various trips to Berlin regarding separate peace negotiations.
Nest Morocco 1940-1944

Although Obst/Lt (later Obst) RUDOLPH (alias RECKE), the head of Nest Morocco was already in Tetuan in January 1940, the time of WIEDEMANN'S arrival, actual operations of the Nest did not begin until considerably later. RUDOLPH, who represented Abwehr I, was joined by Sdf Hans KRUEGER, German vice-consul at Tetuan, in the summer of 1940. KRUEGER was the representative of Abwehr II. WIEDEMANN, because of his proficiency in Arabic, became KRUEGER's assistant. In the spring of 1941 the office of Abwehr II moved to Tangier. Late in this year (1941) Hptm GOERING (alias GOERITZ) arrived in Tangier as an Abwehr representative. In early 1942, Kapt Z See KELLER established Abwehr I-M, a naval observation station at Tangier. RUDOLPH was in charge of the supervision of the Nest, but KRUEGER, GOERING, and KELLER were not subordinate to him, and received their orders from superiors in Berlin.

Thus, in 1942, the organisation of Nest Morocco was as follows:

Abwehr I (Tetuan):
- Chief: RUDOLPH.
- Assistant: Uffz BOETGER
- Typist: Frl SCHUETZ
- W/T operator: Oswald LANGENHEIM
- Purser: Name unknown to WIEDEMANN

Mission: To obtain information on strength, intentions, and movements of French (later American) forces in Morocco.

Abwehr I-M (Tangier) :
- Chief: KELLER
- Two or three Navy men served as his assistants, but WIEDEMANN does not know their names.

Mission: to obtain information concerning allied naval movements in the Straits of Gibraltar.

Abwehr II: (Tangier):
- Chief; KRUEGER, Hans
- Assistant: WIEDEMANN, Otto
- W/T Operator: WIEDEMANN does not recall the name, since various people worked in this position.
- Typist: Frl HEFTER
- Purser: KERN

Mission: To influence tne natives for possible resist anee against allied policies.

Abwehr III (Tangier) :
- Chief: GOERING
- Assistant: There were two or three assistants, but WIEDEMANN does not know their names. W/T operator: Abwehr III used the W/T operator of Abwehr II.

Mission: To obtain information concerning Allied inr telligence services and operations in Morocco.

The missions of Nest Morocco were not realized with any degree of success. Perhaps the greatest measure of success was achieved by Abwehr I, which accumulated considerable information about the forthcoming Allied invasion of North Africa, This information- WIEDEMANN does not know what methods were used to acquire this intelligence - was transmitted to Berlin, but apparently it was ignored, since the actual landings came as a surprise. It is possible that I-M was an asset to the Seekriegsfuehrung, but WIEDEMANN knows of no sinkings of allied ships which might be attributed to activity of this organisation. Abwehr II made but little progress, as the Arabs would not forgive tne Germans for their failure to improve the status of Morocco while France was occupied. Finally, as far as WIEDEMANN knows, the activities of Abwehr III were completely insignificant.

By the autumn of 1944, it had become pellucid both to RUDOLPH and KRUEGER that Germany would lose the war. However, WIEDEMANN believes that there were no plans to continue the Nest after the end of the war. In October 1944, when WIEDEMANN left Morocco, the Nest had dwindled to a small unit led by Uffz BOETGER and later he received reports that this remnant had been dissolved towards the end of the year. WIEDEMANN has no information concerning present whereabouts of the personnel of Nest Morocco, with the exception of Oswald LANGENHEIM (w/t operator for Abwehr I), who is in American captivity.

The following German W/T stations in Morocco were known to WIEDEMANN:

Name Location Organization Operator

Thea Tetuan Abwehr Oswald LANGENHEIM

Pantheria Tangier Abwehr Heinz KROLL

? Tangier SD O/Schrf LECHNER (fnu)

? Tangier Auswaertige Amt ? .

? Melilla Abwehr ?

? Casablanca Abwehr Kapt UNDERBERG (fnu)

The above-named W/T stations had fixed operating schedules. No contacts were made with submarines. They sent lists of shipping to Madrid and Berlin daily , but they never contacted ships at sea. It is possible, of course., that there were other stations used for this purpose., but their existence is not known to WIEDEMANN. WIEDEMANN has no knowledge of ship sinkings resulting from W/T activity.

2. The following agents are known to WIEDEMANN:

- HAIK, Abakum: Chief agent for the Abwehr in Tangier. He had several agents, called Mohammed, Abdul, and other common Arab names, who were generally used to bring the "mail" from Casablanca. HAIK was a Russian emigrant of Jewish origin.
- ABD EL AZIZ . Chief agent for the SD. He was married to a German and lived in Tangier, but WIEDEMANN has no further details concerning him.
- HAGGEMACHER, Paul. Agent for Abwehr I. He was a Swiss watch dealer living in Tangier . Served as a message center for agents' letters,reports, and financial transaction. Was on good terms with the British and later went to Gibraltar,
- QADUR ABD ALLAH. He contacted the natives in French Morocco.
- Sdf Hans KRUEGER of Abwehr I I was in charge of the work with the natives, and especially with Arab nationalist groups. Since he could not speak Arabic, KRUEGER used WIEDEMANN as his interpreter and Arabic specialist. KRUEGER was not subordinate to RECKE, but the latter was entitled to receive a copy of all letters, telegrams, and reports which KRUEGER sent to Berlin to Hptm NEIZERT in the OKW Abwehr Abt II.

KRUEGER exploited the Arabs in several ways. At the beginning of the war efforts were made to lower the morale of Moroccan soldiers who were to appear on European fronts. After the fall of France, the Abwehr attempted to maintain order in Morocco by dint of its influence on the nationalist parties. After the American occupation of North Africa, KRUEGER attempted to use the nationalists as agents to incite riots. This met with very little success, since the Arabs had come to realize that Germany had no intention of granting Moroccan independence in the event of victory.

The Germans employed three principal nationalist leaders:
- Abd el Khalaq TORRES, alias STIER, leader of tne Nationalist Reform Party. TORRES had influence mainly in tne Spanish zone, but also had some supporters in French Morocco. At the beginning of the war he worked for the SD., but in 1940 he suggested to KRUEGER and WIEDEMANN that, a network of agents might be established in French Morocco. He received 20,000 Pesetas for this undertaking but actually the network was a complete failure. TORRES also disseminated anti-French propaganda by means of pamphlets and newspaper articles. He owned the most important newspaper in the Spanish zone, El Hurriyah. He gave information to the Germans, but this was always worthless. He would, for example give the "location" of an allied airfield with "thousands of five-engined and eleven-engined planes". Toward the end, TORRES turned more to Spain and away from German activities. He used the code name STIER.
- Brahim WASANI, alias NIVEA, leader of the Nationalist Party, WASANI was introduced to KRUEGER by BEIGBEDER, who was at that time the Spanish High Commissioner. WASANI, whose code name was "NIVEA", had considerable influence in Spanish Morocco. His supporters did the work of agents and disseminated propaganda. At first he was considered important, partly because he had been introduced by BEIGBEDER, and in 1939 WASANI was invited to Berlin. Actually, however, he did nothing of importance for the Germans or at least for the Abwehr. It is possible tnat he was working for the German SD at the same time.
- Ahmed BELAFREJ was an Arab nationalist in French Morocco. He was very cautious and never accepted money from the Germans or Spaniards. He was estimated by the GIS to be a well-informed reliable man but extremely timid and incapable of action. This, however, was an error. He was the only Arab leader to personally start a revolt. In the spring of 1943, he told WIEDEMANN he would no longer work for the Germans. Later., he was exiled by the French to Corsica.

The only Spanish official contacted by WIEDEMANN was one Lt. NAVAS, the assistant Officer of Civilian Control in Tangier. NAVAS signed passes, released agents, and gave occasional bits of information which were rarely of interest. He occasionally received gifts of money from the Germans.. RECKE usually contacted the other Spanish officials himself.

WIEDEMANN also met a number of other Spanish officers at parties and dinners, but never intimately. He remembers Col. de MIGUEL, Col. SEA, Maj. AMADO, and Maj. FONTANA.

The German consular staff was financed by "Free Reichsmark Checks" which were cashed at the French bank in Tangier.

The Abwehr funds were received through the courier mail in bundles of 1000-French franc notes. These were exchanged for Moroccan francs at a general loss of 20-50%.

WIEDEMANN knows nothing of the disposition of these funds, nor of the financial arrangements of the SD.

In a general sense all Moroccans can be regarded as potential contacts for the GIS as long as they aspire for national independence. Many, of course, were deceived by the Germans, but the final breakdown of Germany might have changed this opinion as it did after the first World War.

The only people who would work at the present time for Germany or the GIS again are WASANI and possibly TORRES. However, WIEDEMANN knows of no concrete agreements.

WIEDEMANN doubts very much that there is any stay-behind organization in Morocco. When WIEDEMANN left there was only a very small section under Uffz BOETTGER, and he received reports that this was dissolved shortly afterwards.

Don Joaquin BAU, the first Minister of Public Instruction under the FRANCO regime, attempted to negotiate armistice terms between Germany and the western powers in 1944.

WIEDEMANN who was vacationing in Barcelona with his family in the summer of 1944. received instructions to accompany BAU and SS O/Fuehrer BERNHARD to Berlin. BAU told WIEDEMANN that the proposed negotiattd peace had been encouraged by a Spanish papal nuncio.

While he was in Berlin, BAU had many discussions with representatives of the SS and the RSHA, but WIEDEMANN was not present. BAU was generally taken to these conferences by BERNHARD, who was also the head of the Sofindus in Madrid. Among the points discussed were:

1. Free hand in politics for Britain and the United States west and south of Germany, including the Mediterranean. Free hand for Germany beyond the eastern boundaries of the Reich,
2. Revision of racial and Church policies by Germany.

BAU had his last talk with SCHELLENBERG before returning with WIEDEMANN to Madrid. He (BAU) was disappointed and suspicious over not seeing HIMMLER, and was skeptical of the efficacy of the discussions. He complained that interest in Berlin was slight. "I have given them a real chance, and they don't seem to realize it".

When WIEDEMANN returned to Germany in January 1945, he inquired about the matter, and was told that no one was interested in the plan any more. By that time, apparently, it was obvious that Germany was in no position to discuss a negotiated peace.

Reportedly dead in accident in August 1944.

From OCCPAC Interrogation Transcripts And Related Records › Shellenberg, Walter: "Q. I have two matters for interrogation. The first one is whether you know anything about an agreement between HIMMLER and the Spanish authorities relating to the police in Spain.
A. Yes.
Q. Will you tell us what you know about it?
A. I know that such an agreement was concluded. I do not know any specific details and according to my recollection this agreement was concluded between HIMMLER and the then Chief of Spanish police whose name I do not remember. The intermediary was the Spanish ambassador in Berlin, MAYALDE.*
Q. When was this agreement purportedly negotiated?
A. According to my recollection in 1941. I may be in error about the time, but it was at the time when the Spanish Chief of Police visited Germany and negotiated personally with HIMMLER in regard to this agreement. The entire question of the Spanish Reds played an important role in this agreement. All these negotiations were based upon the close contact which existed already between HIMMLER and the Spanish Chief of Police during the Spanish Civil War.
By virtue of this agreement the incorporation of about 25 to 30 members of the Security Police in Spain within the framework of the German mission in Spain was made possible.
Q. Through what period did these men operate in that fashion?
A. I must take it dependent upon the year during which this agreement was concluded. It may have been 1940 or 1941. Since that year the consent of the Spanish police was granted.
Q. Did these men continue to operate in that capacity until the end?
A. Yes. They have worked in Spain continually since then.
Q. Do you know whether they are still there?
A. Part of them, perhaps.
Q. Do you know any of their names?
A. The Police attache was WINZER. But he is supposed to have been killed by an airplane crash on one of his last trips. Another one was VEY. The third one was in the beginning in Barcelona and was transferred to Madrid after the accident of WINZER. I have stated his name in previous interrogations. "It begins with H-a..." It doesn´t occur to me right now.
Q. Do you recall any other names?
A. Not at this moment, biut I am sure other names will occur to me.
Q. Do you know whether the agreement between HIMMLER and Spanish authorities was written?
A. No, I don't believe so. I believe that this was within the total framework of a large plan according to which pressure was to be exerted upon Spain regarding the march through Spain to Gibraltar. And this was the one of concealed preparations. However, I must add that this is my knowledge only from hearsay.
Q. Do you knou whether the OKW or any military echelon had any interest or participation in negotiation of this agreement?

A. No. I would like to put in this way. OKW had had through the Amt CANARIS, very close ties already with the Spanish General Staff. And what HIMMLER did was only some sort of after-thought. Since the Spanish Civil War and the activities of the Condor Legion, CANARIS had very intimate working relations with Spain..."

"6 November 1945
Subject: KIRSCH, Adolf, or Alfredo (qv)
In MIEDL papers in GOUDSTIKKER house at 458 Heerengracht, Amsterdam, was a list of pictures sold by MIEDL for the account of Alfredo ZANTOP, payment to be made not in Pesetas but in implements in Spain. Also in the correspondence was mention of pictures sold for the account of A. HIRSCH of Berlin and Buenos Aires.
After my return to London, when checking the British files, Alfredo ZANTOP was reported to be an agent of Ast Cologne, running agents in South America. An agent named HIRSCH with no Christian name also appeared in the British files as being from South America and also a member of Ast Cologne. It would seem to be a remarkable coincidence that ZANTOP and HIRSCH, receiving money for pictures belonging to them sold through the medium of GOERING's chief agent in Holland, MIEDL, are not one and the same with the agents of Ast Cologne.(...)
MIEDL sent a report to GOERING on the ZANTOP sale, indicating its importance to GOERING. He also reported on HIRSCH."
From same file: "Subject is reported to be the President of the Gripos S.A. (printers and engravers), which company is located at Avenida Jose Antonio 778 in Barcelona, Spain. A report, dated July 1939 from a W/BC source, stated that the firm was AB/land controlled.
In March 1943 a U/DH submission from BC/land to an AB/land military company commander in AB/land consisted of an order emanating from an anonymous sender in BC/land informing the AB/land military company commander that the presence of Corporal Alfred ZANTOP in BC/land was expedient for the settlement of urgent business matters. The anonymous sender suggested that ZANTOP be granted the necessary leave since the AB/land Consulate in BC/land had sanctioned the proposed visit and had set aside 30 March 1943 as the date of the meeting. At that time Alfred ZANTOP was a member of the AB/land army and subsequent reports indicated that he was immediately dispatched to BC/land as per this request.
On 5 May 1943 information received from W/BC sources indicated that Alfred ZANTOP had been made President of the Gripos S.A. in Barcelona.
Subsequent information reveals that subject was suspected of being an AB/land agent and engaged in activities designed to aid in the hiding of German assets."

Interrogated between February and May 1946. British Reports.

In 1936 the New York Overseas Corporation was founded by the following people: Roy Fraser POTTS: 40%, Wm. ADAMS LITTELL: 5%, James MAXWELL FASSETT: 5%, ZIEGRA: 50%. They were special in dealing with blocked accounts in Germany.

ZIEGRA said that Prodag was taken out of Sofindus in 1939 and made a private company by SIEVERS (Bremen), LUETTEN (Hamburg) and PECHE. He was certain that BERNHARDT was in fact a partner as well. SIEVERS, S.S. Hauptsturmführer, who was head of Karl Heinz SIEVERS, and D. KIESELHORST, both of Bremen, bought up Mannheimer Muhlenwerke of Mannheim which had a number of branches abroad. ZIEGRA said that SIEVERS was inmensely wealthy, having started the war with nothing. SIEVERS returned to Spain in April 1945 after spending 6 months in Germany and he brought with him a considerable quantity of valuables. ZIEGRA said that Erich MEYER (shipbuilding) had a brother in America and that he was hiding capital in San Sebastián through WEBER, born Austrian and naturalized Spanish.

According to MINAMEYER, ZIEGRA was an agent in Spain designed for disposal of looted Jewish jewelery and precious stones, amounting to several millions Pesetas. He was also RWM (Ministry of Economics) official charged with unfreezing German assets in South America via Spain from March, 1943 to May, 1945.

Statement by MINAMAYER, June 26, 1946:

" We have made extensive reports regarding ZIEGRA in Madrid. In social circles he was always regarded as a boaster and obtrusive "Hero of women".

In Berlin he made several Jewish enterprises "Arian" for instance Gerstel.

He made come the German-Columbian HERTZHAUSER and his wife from Germany to Spain through his connections to the SS-Fuehrungsamt. It then was his desire that HERTZHAUSER in Spain work for this authority, what however was refused by HERTZHAUSER. (Witness: HERTZHAUSER to WOTERS the latter being here in camp).

Towards the end of the war he tried to make connections with the United States Embassy and had conversations with Col. HOFFMANN. ZIEGRA offered to give valuable information; however, he than pretended to have been called upon from the American side to form an association of decent Nazi-Ennemies. At this occasion he also called on LINDENBERG, without knowing that the latter was my coworker. LINDENBERG assumed from all this talk that ZIEGRA was selling in Spain and Portugal, as an agent for the Nazis, Jewelry of Jewish ownership in the value of ca. 20 Millions Pesetas.

When we found out all this we warned all our friends so that ZIEGRA in the future found only closed doors. As far as I remember further we made the following observations:

That ZIEGRA together with SIEVERS and other people of the Sofindus tried to bring in contact BERNHARD and other people with the gentlemen of the American Embassy. ZIEGRA furthermore tried to trade in South-American passports - genuine or falsified - (Witness: WOTERS). ZIEGRA attempted through methods of extortion to obtain informations and confessions from other German people, (Example: Dr. SCHWENTZNER).

(The main part of all our informations was passed on already before foundation of office to the Allied commision Madrid, and from there to Col. EBRIGHT -(with the Military Attache)"

Annex to information, dated July 6, 1946:

1) ZIEGRA likes to talk about his banking business in New York. However, his business transactions over there dont seem to have been immaculate. He even mentioned that his partner in New York had been arrested afterhe himself had left. (Witness: WOTERS-Arsenal)

2) ZIEGRA had made Gerstel in Berlin, an Arian, just the same as the well known banking house Gerbueder Arnold, Dresden; of the latter firm he linked to say that he was its president.

3) ZIEGRA was supposed to take over the ill-famed fashion-salon Pombo in Madrid, a pure Gestapo foundation for the purpose of contacting the Spanisn aristocracy. (Witness:Duque de Tetuan - PELICAEUS / Madrid)(i.e Guillermo PELIZAEUS y LANTZ, misspelled RANZ in some documents, Duque de Tetuan and Spanish representative of the German firm Phrix)

4) If further details are of interest, it is recommended to hear Mr. WOTERS, at the present time an internee of this camp, who knows ZIEGRA well and was defrauded by him."

Memorandum by OMGUS, Finance Division, dated 24, April 1946:

"Subject: Hans ZIEGRA, RWM Official, now in Camp 76, Aspberg

Interrogation of Ziegra resulted in the following:

(A) ZIEGRA was dispatched to Spain in March 1943 by the RWM as a foreign exchange expert with the mission of unfreezing German assets in South America.

(B) ZIEGRA stated that there was no German program for safeguarding external assets in South America. In Spain, he named Sofindus and its subsidiary Campagnie Productos Agricola as the largest German operations. Johannes BERNHARDT, of Sofindus, and the Agricola partners, Joachim SIEVERS and Ernest PECHE were named by ZIEGRA as the most active and most dangerous German agents. Edgar MAIER, German shipbuilder, and a German merchant named WEBER in San Sebastian were also German Safehaven men.

(C) ZIEGRA founded the banking firm, New York Overseas Corporation, 60 Wall St.,

New York, and is still head of the firm, although he had no communication with the establishment during his 2 years in Spain.
(D) His appointment as a RWM agent was merely a blind to get him out of Germany, ZIEGRA stated. The appointment was arranged by his friends, Werner MARWEDE, Hanover, and Erwin MECK, Berlin,- RWM officials.
(E) ZIEGRA acquired two dress manufacturing factories in Germany about 1940 and retained them, although sentenced to a labor camp for disloyalty.
(F) Prom March 1943 until 1945, ZIEGRA says, he fooled the German Embassy people concerning his activities. He did nothing for RWM; in fact, he acted as informer to Col. Albert H. HOFFMAN, of the American Embassy, on German economic activities.
(G) ZIEGRA told the interrogator that he had previously made a lengthy statement to Mr. G. M. Robbins, of the Joint Special Financial Detachment.
RECOMMENDATION: Since many of the "facts" recited by ZIEGRA seem contradictory, it is suggested that this office mark his case as "Interested" and obtain more data concerning the New York Overseas Corporation; that we question later German repatriates from Spain about ZIEGRA; that a copy of the Robbins report on ZIEGRA be secured for our file."
From a C.O.I. (Coordinator of Information) report to Audits & Investigation Branch, Finance Division, Berlin, dated January 27, 1947:
"Subject: Hans D. ZIEGRA

Klaus FRANKE, who had previously introduced the above subject to me, called me on the telephone today. In reply to my enquiries he informed me that ZIEGRA's father-in-law lives in Hannover, and that Ziegra obtained his British Travel Order on the recommendations of Colonel BROWN, the U.S. Liaison Officer In Hannover. FRANKE does not believe it likely that ZIEGRA will come back to Berlin, as he said that ZIEGRA had compromised himself somewhat by his former activities, and did not anticipate that he would fare very well if he fell into Russian hands.

ZIEGRA has left Berlin and is at present on the way to Salzburg and Baden Baden. Apparently his object in going down there is to contact the French Authorities as he wishes to open some kind of financial undertaking in Paris, as FRANKE believes, in collaboration with his American friends. ZIEGRA is apparently on very good terms with high ranking and influential American officers, and FRANKE went so far as to say that he even stands very well with General DRAPER himself. FRANKE believes that General DRAPER was formerly connected with Dillon Read & Co., Investment Bankers of New iork$_f$ who, as you know, were very active In the raising of loan* in the U.S. for Germany after the last war. It is also probable that ZIEGRA has many American acquaintances in financial circles as a result of his former position as President of the New York Overseas Corporation.

According to FRANKE, ZIEGRA's intention is to get back into international finance with the help of his American friends. He claims, and probably has, Brazilian nationality, and is consequently always able to avail himself of the protection of the Brazilian Authorities, but FRANKE admits that it is possible that ie still retains his German nationality".
From: U.S. Army. European Command.Intelligence Division, Wartime activities of the German diplomatic and military services during World War II, November 18, 1949: " Born on 8 October 1904 in Hanover. Subject claims to have established and to have been the president of the New York Overseas Corporation, located at 60 Wall Street, New York City.

During his banking career he has no doubt made many contacts and accumulated vast experiences in this field. Subject's arrogant attitude, probably leading back to his Wall Street days, brought out quite clearly his psychological attempt to influence the interrogator to his far reaching influence and importance to the business world. During conversations he frequently clings to the name of Col. HOFMANN of the Military Mission in Madrid for whom he had done certain services. Statements and opinions versed regarding subject by various sources, brand him as a her and unreliable. Subject is dangerous because he possesses the gift to lead people where he wants to, and in the opinion of the interrogator is capable of sordid deeds bordering on the criminal. Subject worked for the SD in Spain, and it is true that later on he also worked for Col HOFMANN. On 23 September 1946 when subject was released, he was placed under the surveillance of security forces. Subject was a member of the NSDAP from 1932 to 1939. ZIMMER, Karl. DOB. Blankenrath, 5 October, 1914. Arrested March 4, 1946. In No 6 CIC Neuengamme. Internee No 609419. Repatriated on SS Haighland Monarch 7 March, 1946. A-574 on Official List. Officer of ZF KO Spanien under Max FRANZBACH. Interrogation dated May 27 1946: ZIMMER was born 5 October 1914 at Blankenrath. He stated that he has been in Madrid, Spain, from October 1941 until he was repatriated in March 1946. He explained that he had gone to Spain as Oberzahlmeister, Inspektor der Abwehr Kasse, (bookkeeper and accountant for the Abwehr), which position he held until the German surrender.

At the time of the final defeat of the German armies Max FRANZBACH, Abwehr chief in Madrid, ordered ZIMMER to release the Abwehr assets to him. To the best of the subject's recollection these assets consisted of the following: $ 40.000; Swiss francs 100.000; French francs 1.000.000. British sterling 9.000 or 10.000; a few thousand Argentine Pesos; a sum in Portuguese escudos; approximately 50 kilo of gold; some opium, and net balance of branch offices of the Abwehr. (all Pesetas on hand had been spent, Pesetas 30.000.000 having been received from the German Embassy in Madrid but having been expended at a rate of Pesetas 3.000.000 a month).

The subject further stated that upon learning that FRANZBACH intended to secret these assets - having,in fact, apportioned them among the agents and begun illegal disposal - he ZIMMER) reported the matter to a "Colonel EBRIGHT" In the American Embassy in Madrid, and furnished the Embassy with a full and detailed list of the Abwehr assets from the Abwehr books and assisted in the recovery of various items.

ZIMMER claimed to have known none of the agents, professing to having only dealt with the chiefs of the Abwehr. He also disclaimed any knowledge of the mechanics of the supply of gold, currencies, etc., to the Abwehr, although he stated that in August 1944 gold was brought into Spain for the Abwehr by diplomatic pouch. The subject also stated at one point that he had drawn on Sofindus for an amount he could not recall. The various currencies and valuables, (e.g. gold, opium), were supplied to Abwehr agents by their chiefs to be used as bribes, establishment of "fronts" for Abwehr activities and other espionage and sabotage work. The subject said that ha had no specific knowledge of any cloaking operations. He added that he had heard rumours of such transactions involving the German Embassy and the German Navy but that he was unable to supply any details as Abwehr funds were kept apart from Embassy funds.

TUERO DE CASTRO / TUERO CASTRO, Jose alias MURATTI. Spanish SD and Abwehr agent. From Wilhelm PAHL's interrogation (OMGUS, External Assets Investigation, Unit, General: Pahl, Wilhelm (Interrogation report):
-"This man was a republican Spaniard who fled from Spain to Belgium in 1937.
- He approached PAHL in May 1942 in order to carry out a Bank clearing transaction for BDDA in Spain with the help of his partner Jose SANZ who lived in Brussels.
- At that time TUERO was also working for Vapor Ltd. (agricultural machines) 48, Rue Lepold II. He complained to PAHL that he did not even earn to pay his secretary, Mlle. Marcelle STROOT. He emphasized that he would carry out any duties in order to earn some money.
- TUERO mentioned that he was working for the SD since the German occupation of Belgium, forwarding information on subversive elements in Brussels.
- PAHL informed PIEPER that SUERO would make a good agent. As a result of this, PIEPER asked PAUL to take to Hamburg in order to have the latter pass a W/T course in June 1942. TUERO was to be used as a W/T operator in case of an Allied occupation.
- TUERO was to receive 6250 Belg. Francs per month which PAHL had to pay from a secret account of 10.000 B. Francs, which he received from PIEPER every month. This account was kept under PAHL's name. (...)
- TUERO received his payments under the cover name of MURATTI.
- In August 1924, TUERO and WEIN, who was a W/T operator from Hamburg, made their first experimental transmission to Hamburg from PAHL's flat at 43, Marie Joselaan, Antwerp, where they had built up their transmitter set. Although their initial transmissions were not received in Hamburg, they succeeded to contact Hamburg at the beginning of September 1942. (...)
- In May 1943, TUERO went to Spain in order to arrange for a W/T set and to recruit agents.
- As TUERO did not return from Spain after one month without giving any news, PAHL agreed to go to Spain in June 1943 for the purpose of finding out the whereabouts of TUERO DE CASTRO and taking back any reports TUERO may have obtained from agents.
- PAHL therefore contacted TUERO's sister-in-law in Madrid who told him that TUERO was suffering from T.B (tuberculosis) and that the was hopelessly ill in a hospital at Pamplona.
- During his last conversation with TUERO, PAHL was given the information that a Spanish Republican ship was due to leave Marseille under the Nationalist flag and that it was a matter of days to prevent this. TUERO had apparently received this information from Republican circles in Spain where he posed as a Republican agent.
- PAHL paid TUERO a last sum of 2,000 Pesetas for this information.
-TUERO died a fortnight later, at the beginning of July 1943."

"Belgian Mission
Restitution Control Branch APO 403 - Karlsruhe US Army
Karlsruhe, 16 February 1948

Memorandum

Subject: Belgian diamonds.

Antwerp and Amsterdam are both centers of the diamond trade in Europe.

Antwerp has about 1.200 factories; while the trade was mostly in hand of Jews before 1940.

1) Immediately after the occupation of Belgium, the Commander in Chief of the Wehrmacht appointed, as custodian and liquidator of Jewish firms: Herr FRENSEL.

His office was called in Antwerp Diamantkontrolle. Jews and non-Jewish diamand traders were arrested and their belongings seized, by the Gestapo, Feldkommandantur 525, Devisenschutz-kommando - (Chief Dr. MÖCKEL) and "Customs".

FRENSEL was delegated by the Diamantkontor Frankfurt, and had to transfer to that office all seized diamonds (1940-41).

Herr FRENSEL was only dealing with cut diamonds.

Names of German involved in the looting were
Dr. AMMERMAMN - Diamantkontrolle
Dr. MÖCKEL - Devisenschutzko
Dr. THOMS - Banker "
Dr. HOLSTEIN- Militärbefehlshaber
Herr LEMBERG - Kriegsvoaltungsrat Feldkommandantur Antwerpen.

Nazi-German diamond dealers came to Antwerp and could "buy" the looted properties from the Diamantbureau sub-office for trade of Diamantkontrolle.

Such selected persons were:
NEUMETZGER (American Zone)
WILM - Hamburg (British Zone)
BOZENHARD Bros. - Hamburg (British Zone)
KRÄMER - Frankfurt (American Zone) for Diamantkontor Frankfurt.

Herr KRÄMER had to contact firms of U.S.A. for export and o Swiss, Spanish and Swedish firms (document 469 - Berlin 5.10.1940 Reichswirtschaftsminister).

In 1942 - 1943 - 1944 mostly Switzerland and Spain became head agency for the export of diamonds.

Herr Ministerrat KADGIEN, actually still in Switzerland, had to provide the German Economy with foreign currency raw-material in exchange of looted diamonds.

In 1943 a "four years plan" was decided and the aim was to exchange looted diamonds, shares and other values seized by Diamantkontrolle. Devisenschutzko, and bought by force (...) in neutral countries to enable Germany to buy main materials for their war-economy.

Bank Sponholz & Cie. - Berlin (Soviet Zone) was dealing with such transaction.

Herr Min. Rat KADGIEN was in Switzerland on special duty, during those years ... and does not intend to return to Germany.

Rough diamonds and industrial diamonds.

The same power of attorney given to FRENSEL to deal with the liquidation of cut diamond firms was given to Joh. C. URBANECK of Frankfurt for rough and industrial diamonds.

The amount taken from Belgium by German’s own statement (annexed) in rough diamonds exceeds the amount of 940.000 cts or a value 1940 of $ 10.500.000

URBANECK has not been selfish and his relatives J. WILHELM URBANECK and FRANZ URBANECK of Neu-Bamberg (American Zone) could also get a part in those very interesting dealings.

Rough diamonds were distributed through Diamantkontor Frankfurt (KRÄMER) to the Pforzheim, Idar, Hanau, diamond merchants and factories. Explanations given to Col. Smith by Pforzheim dealers, on our claims gave all the same result: "Diamonds were shipped for "export" (1944).

J.W. URBANECK, received special congratulations for his seizure of Belgian Congo diamonds on board of Belgian ships, in 1940. This seizure amounted to 290.000 cts.

Industrial diamonds were badly needed by German war-industry.

An important amount was also shipped to foreign neutral countries and also to Min. Rat KADGIEN in Switzerland.

The loss borne by the Belgian Economy on this big scale looting seems to amount to more than 25 million $.

The Belgian Government hopes that the American Rest. Control Branch and O.M.G. Property Control, might be able to help us to recover the claimed amounts and we believe that all above named people is still in possession of looted values.

S.BUQUENNE,
Lt.Colonel
Chief of Mission.

"Brussels, Belgium, April 18, 1946.

Safehaven Report N° 97

Reference le made to Amsterdam's A-61, of March 11 concerning an alleged under-cover diamond polishing industry operating in Idar Oberatein, in the French occupied zone in Germany, and particularly the indication that the diamond firm of Urbanek and Company of Frankfurt might be active in that connection. Reference is also made to Antwerp's A-101 of March 15, pointing out that a German named URBANEK was during the occupation in Belgium, active as a controller for the Antwerp diamond industry for the German occupying authorities.

The Belgian Auditorat General which is in charge of collaboration investigation and trials has advised that John URBANEK, a member of the firm Urbanek and Company of Berlin, W15 Uhlandstrasse, 52, was active in Antwerp during the occupation as a representative of the German government charged with buying rough diamonds under the Vierjahresplan. He was also active in making purchases for his own account, particularly with a Belgian collaborator, BREUGELMANS, who is presently held for trial, and other German buyers such as FRENSEL, who was the head of the diamond control in Antwerp. He was helped by one PLUNDER, who lived in Holland, and was also an agent of the Vierjahresplan, whom the an organisation has not been able to identify further.

According to the information which the Belgian authorities have been able to secure, URBANEK has built at Scheinfeld, Kreis-Sheinfeld-Baviere, a factory for the preparation of industrial diamonds. This was allegedly equipped with the latest and most modern machines, but never attained its full activity because of the rapid advances of the allied armies. About September 1945, under the personal direction of URBANEK, all of these machines were transported to Nurenberg, where with the authorization of the allied authorities, he has bean able to set up a new industry. As of November 1945, he still lived at Nurenberg and may still live there.

The Belgian Auditorat General desires the arrest or at least the detention of URBANEK for questioning by that authority concerning the diamond market in Antwerp during the war. They have made requeats for such arrest or detention since February 1946 without result. They state that he is also well known at Isar-Obenstein in the French zone which is the seat of a cutting industry for diamonds and other precious stones. It is requested that URBANEK be located and held, either for transfer to the Belgian authorities for questioning, or that he be held and the Belgian authorities be allowed to enter the American zone to question him.

It is suggested that the American authorities conduct a simultaneous interrogation to verify the facts set forth in reference airgrams."

From OSS WASH SPDF INT 1 Doc 4902-4925:

"Airgram from Antwerp, Belgium
Date: 15, 1946
Secretary of State
Washington
A-101, March 15, 1946

Reference is made to Consul General DOYLE's secret airgram A-61 to the Department, dated March 11, 1946, file n°. 863.4, concerning alleged undercover diamond polishing operations in Germany and more particularly to the final paragraph thereof.

In this connection it is pointed out that a German named URBANEK, believed locally to be a member of Urbanek & Co, Frankfurt, was for years during the occupation of Belgium active as "controller" for the Antwerp diamond industry. As such he is at least wanted for questioning by Belgian authorities. URBANEK is known to have had several Belgian collaborator associates who are still at large and reported active in the Antwerp Black Market diamond operations.

In as much as Antwerp is referred to as a possible source of supply the above information is forwarded to the Department.

SAKIC, Ljubomir Bilanovic alias Dinko. Ustasha ." Nacido el 1 de octubre de 1921 en Studenci, Croacia. Ex-comandante del campo de concentración de Jasenovac, Sakic fue motivo de pedidos de extradición de Croacia y Yugoslavia, ambos presentados en 1998, luego de gestiones años antes de la B’nai B’rith International ante e! primero de los países arriba mencionados.
Sakic arribó a la Argentina el 22 de diciembre de 1947 a bordo dei vapor "Tucumán, procedente de Genova, portando una identificación dei Comité Internacional de la Cruz Roja, y un permiso de libre desembarco otorgado por la Delegación Argentina de Inmigración en Europa el 3 de diciembre de 1947, que lo identificaba como mecánico. El 3 de febrero de 1956 solicitó pasaporte y certificado de buena conducta para viajar a España. Para esa fecha se presenta como argentino naturalizado, domiciliado en Rosario, y de profesión comerciante. Tres años después, ei Consulado de la República Argentina en Barcelona ordenó la repatriación de Sakic, su esposa e hijos, radicados hasta entonces en Valencia.

El 31 de agosto de 1961 solicitó duplicado de cédula de identidad, declarando ser comerciante domiciliado en San Justo, provincia de Buenos Aires, y cuatro años después documentos para viajar a España y Canadá. También solicitó pasaporte el 24 de abril de 1969 para viajar a ambos países, amén de los EE.UU. En esta última ocasión menciona a Lucas Juric como una de las personas que lo conocen y pueden informar sobre él.

El 13 de octubre de 1971 y el 4 de noviembre de 1972 Sakic solicitó renovación de pasaporte para viajar a España en la primera oportunidad, y a los EE.UU. en la segunda.

De noviembre de 1971 data la primera solicitud de datos de identidad y domicilio sobre Sakic, presentada a la Dirección de Investigaciones de la Policía Federal. El 2 de setiembre de 1976 ante una ulterior requisitoria de información del Banco Provincia de Buenos Aires, sucursal Lomas del Mirador, por una deuda en mora, la Policía Federal respondió que Sakic había revalidado su pasaporte para viajar a los EE.UU.

El 14 de setiembre de 1976 Sakic renovó su pasaporte en España declarándose comerciante domiciliado en Valencia, y seis años más tarde denunció ei extravío del pasaporte expedido por las autoridades consulares argentinas en Valencia.

Entre sus antecedentes registrados en diciembre de 1981 consta que había existido un pedido de captura por estar acusado de ser depositario infiel, causa por la que fue sobreseído definitivamente el 18 de marzo de 1983. Meses antes, en setiembre de 1982, se declaró prescripta la acción penal por los delitos de falsificación de documentos privados y estafa de Sakic.

El 26 de setiembre de 1985 solicitó reválida de pasaporte para viajar a España, entre otros paises, donde fue detenido en el aeropuerto de Barajas el 31 de marzo de 1986*. Sakic figura como conocido "activista croata en Europa, relacionado con grupos terroristas, produciéndose su detención en compañía de Juan Luis Pelikan, este último vinculado a actuaciones sumariales instruidas con relación al tráfico internacional y falsificación de moneda. En el momento de la detención ambos poseían pasajes para viajar a Teherán.

El 16 de febrero de 1990 Interpol Asunción requirió antecedentes sobre Sakic por ser presunto autor de esta millonaria estafa e Interpol Madrid informó que el causante había sido objeto de un control por parte de los servicios Marbelia/Málaga. La inexistencia de otros antecedentes y pedidos de captura en e! orden internacional desembocan en autorización para que se revalide el pasaporte para viajar a España y Alemania.

El 13-03-93 Interpol Ottawa informa que la Oficina de Crímenes de Guerra estaba investigando al sujeto por crímenes durante la 2da. Guerra Mundial.

El 14 de abril de 1998: La Delegación Dolores informa que Sakic no registra antecedentes y que se declara prescripta la acción penal.

16 de abril de.1998: El Poder Judicial de la Nación encomienda investigar la residencia y paradero del causante, ante el pedido del Gobierno de Croacia.

24 de abril de 1998: En la fecha y a requerimiento de Interpol se registró en el sistema de informática el paradero del ciudadano croata DINKO SAKIC.

30 de abril de 1998: Se ordena, a través del Juez Federal Bernasconi, a inmediata detención de Sakic, en el domicilio de la calle 9 N° 258 de Santa Teresita - Buenos Aires, para trasladarlo a Dolores.

Recibida la solicitud de extradición por parte de la República de Croacia, por presuntos delitos contra la humanidad y el derecho internacional (crímenes de guerra contra la población civil) el Juez Bernasconi resuelve: Ordenar la detención de Sakic y liberar oficios a diferentes autoridades.

Hold power of attorney in Kromschroeder, Barcelona and admitted that their total capital was held by Kromschroeder Osnabruck. He had an account in Banco Alemán Trasatlantico, Barcelona.
Interrogation by OMGUS, External Assets Branch, Finance Division, dated May 28, 1946:
"SCHINDLER was born 22 February 1896 in Schwennigen a/Neckar, Germany. He stated that he arrived in Barcelona, Spain, on 15 May 1923, where, except for an absence of six months training with the Condor Legion during the Spanish Civil War, he remained until he was repatriated to Germany in March 1946.
The interrogatee told that he was employed as technical director and "prokurist" for S. A. Kromschroeder, Barcelona, manufacturers of gas meters. SCHINDLER added that the Kromschroeder firm in Barcelona had been established in the years 1908 to 1910 as an affiliate of Kromschroeder A.G., Osnabruck, Germany. The original share capital of S. A. Kromschroeder was said to have been Pesetas 300,000, being increased to Pesetas 600,000. The entire capital of the Barcelona company is owned by Kromschroeder A.G., Germany, SCHINDLER further stated that the physical properties of the Spanish company were worth approximately Pesetas 250,000. Concerning the operating control of S.A. Kromschroeder, the subject asserted that it had been without German interference, except for annual inspections, since 1939.

The capital of the Osnabruck firm was said to amount to approximately RM 1,500,000. This company was founded by four brothers, and Schindler believed that the entire capital has remained in the family.

SCHINDLER said that S.A. Kromschroeder worked in close cooperation with Elster S.A., Madrid, receiving semi-finished parts and other materials from the latter. The Elster firm in kadrid is a branch of a firm in kainz, Germany, which firm Schindler believed to be Elster A.G. He estimated the capital of Elster S.A. to be Pesetas 350,000. According to the subject the Mainz business is owned by Jacob ELSTER and an individual named KRAMER, who is general director. It was SCHINDLER's opinion that the Elster concern had supply agreements with Spain and a contract for operation in Italy.

The Banco Aleman Transatlantico was named as the banking connection for S.A. Kromschroeder in Madrid. The Deutsche Bank was the banking facility for Kromschroeder A.G. Schindler stated that all financial transactions between the firms in Osnabruck and Barcelona were handled through the Deutsche Bank, the "Clearing" and the Banco Aleman Transatlantico.

After the German capitulation the Kromschroeder and Elster companies in Spain continued normal production standards, although their accounts were blocked. SCHINDLER added that the last shipment of materials from Germany had arrived in 1940; after 1940 materials on hand were used.

S.A. Kromschroeder, Barcelona, was said to be now directed by one Pietro HOPP, a German, who Schindler said came to the Spanish firm in 1933. Adolfo DOMINGES, president of Elster S.A., was said to be the present director of that company in Madrid.

SCHINDLER disclaimed knowledge of attempts to conceal the ownership of the Spanish branches. He said that he had heard many rumors of efforts to cloak German interests in Spain, adding that he knew of no specific transactions.

The subject admitted that he was a Nazi Party member and that he held a minor party position. He emphatically denied that he was party head in Barcelona, expressing surprise that he had been indicated to be party head anywhere.

MGAX(l) declaration made by Schindler lists a cash deposit of RM 2,300 in the Gewerbebank, Schwenningen. No explanation was given for the declaration of the bank account in Germany."

SCHULTZ, Werner Michel. DOB. 4 June, 1907. E-92 Official List. Safehaven candidate, reported to be SS man in Marseille, Abwehr and is suspected of Werewolf activities. Repatriated on SS Haighland Monarch 7 March, 1946. Arrested March 4, 1946. In No 6 CIC Neuengamme. Internee No. 609493.

Report on interrogation by OMUGUS, Finance Division, External Assets Branch on May 29, 1946:

"Information from the American Embassy in Madrid indicated that SCHULTZ was a most likely Safehaven candidate as a cloak for von RIBBENTROP, to whom SCHULTZ is related by marriage. The reasonable assumption was that the subject's continuing interests in the cork industry -and operations about the fringes of the wine business - were complementary of von RIBBENTROP's champagne business, Throughout the interrogation SCHULTZ attempted to emphasize his own importance in the cork industry, frequently calling himself a "senior clerk" in firms about which he had unusual knowledge of the capital structure and ownership personality.

Curriculum Vitae:

SCHULTZ was born at Mainz in 1907. So he claimed, his father was of moderate circumstances but of unusual ambition for his children and anxious that they obtain a cosmopolitan experience. The subject first went to Spain in March of 1925, ostensibly to acquire a Spanish culture and to develop a knowledge of a recognized business. Almost by accident SCHULTZ got into the cork industry, remaining in Spain until 1928. He returned to Germany for the year 1929, during which time he was employed by cork interests in Wiesbaden.

Returning to Spain, the subject went to work for the MONTANER family cork interests in Palamos until 1930, then engaged in a similar industry for Francisco SAGRERA in Palafrugell. SCHULTZ again returned to Germany (1936, where, until 1940, he was employed as a 'plant manager ' for Corkfabrik Fr. Bender und Co. at Frankenthal. This concern was said to be a subsidiary of Vereinigte Korkindustrie, Berlin, whose owner is Wickander Cork, Stockholm,Sweden. The owners of the Swedish parent were said to be Carl Gustav WICKANDER and Carl August WICKANDER, who are reputed to be owners of 90% of the German cork industry at an extimated value of RM 3 million.

(Giving some unsolicited estimates, SCHULTZ statad that the three largest cork interests in the world are recognised to be the Wickander, Armstromg and McManus).

Korkfabrik Fr. Bender und Co. is estimated by SCHULTZ to have a total capital of from RM 1 to 3 milliom. While disclosing that there is a cork business known as Bender Ltda. Lisbon, SCHULTZ denied any knowledge of ownership by Bender of Frankenthal, adding that the Lisbon business is owned by a German named Hermann ZUM HINGSTE. The Bender, Frankenthal interests in San Felin, Spain were, so SCHULTZ averred, sold circa 1927-1929 to the Mcmanus (English) interests.

The director general of Vereinigte Korkindustrie was said to be one Paul SCHICK. The company, according to SCHULTZ, owns the Deutsche Linoleum Werke, Bietigheim.

Reverting to the question of the ownership of the Montaner enterprise at Palamos, the subject said that in 1926 (at the time he was associated with it), the capital amounted to Pesetas 1.000. 000, of which 40% of the shares were hold by the MONTANER family; the remaining 60% being held by friends of the family principally a Mr. HABLOT and a Mr. BARRIS. And to further recapitulate, SCHULTZ added that the Francisco Sagrera concern ia also run by two brothers, Carlos and Enrico (spelling error: Enrique) SAGRERA. The business is supposedly pure Spanish.

SCHULTZ is married to Gisela WEIZ, whose mother was a HENCKEL of the champagne family of Wiesbaden. He told tho interrogators that von RIBBENTROP had married Analise HENCKEL, a cousin of SCHULTZ 's wife. A close relationship between von RIBBENTROP and SCHULTZ was denied by the latter, SCHULTZ said that neither himself nor von RIBBENTROP had enjoyed the particular blessings of the elder HENCKELS as they had never wanted in-laws to succeed to the family business.

While at Frankenthal in 1937 SCHULTZ became a member of NSDAP. He made no attempt to conceal this fact from the interrogators, and added that he remained a Party member until the end of the war. SCHULTZ was in the German army from late 1941 until mid-1942. He said that he had been released from service for medical reasons. However, while in the army, SCHULTZ was with the occupation army in France, where ha was in charge of importing for Societe Hamendas da la Petit Kabili (spelling error: Société* des Hamendas et de la *petite Kabylie) which company was owned by Paoetarie de Belem. He denied that, as had been intimated in Madrid Embassy despatch, he was in charge of cork allocation in France.

The subject became attached to the Abwehr and returned to Spain in late 1942 or early 1943. He claimed that his activities in the Abwehr were limited to business in the export of cork.

From the time of his last entry into Spain until the end of the war SCHULTZ was in one or another way connected with Columbia Mercantil S.A., Madrid, and Discos de Corcho S.A. Gerona, both cork concerns. Although SCHULTZ knew the corporate structures of these companies and the personalities involved, he disclaimed any capital participation in them, (It is these companies that other sources have believed served as SCHULTZ's cloak for von RIBBENTROP's money.)

Columbia Mercantil S.A was said to have been formed in 1945 by one Manuel NEIRO and his son-in-law, Jose Maria ORTEGA, in Madrid. Branches were established in Vigo and Barcelona. SCHULTZ said that Columbia Mercantil S.A had had a short life and, so far as he knew, had been liquidated. In reply to a direct question as to the possibility of its successor being a further cloak, SCHULTZ said that this was not at all improbable. While not naming the beneficiary interests, SCHULTZ gave the impression that Columbia had been established as a cloak for German interests. He said that one Gregorio MARAÑÓN, Madrid, was the attorney for the company, and would probably know the story of the organization and dissolution.

Discos de Corcho S.A. had a longer history than Columbia, having been established in 1917. The capital of the company was said to be Pesetas 1.001.000. The present ownership of Discos de Corcho appears to be one CAMOS (first name or initial said to be unknown to SCHULTZ). CAMOS, who seems to also have a holding company by the same name, obtained the business from two individuals, BOMBI and SOLER by name.

SCHULTZ admitted that he had worked for and with these two businesses but minimized his connection there with, claiming that he was never more then a senior clerk, when reminded by the interrogators that his social background , marital connections and general knowledge of the business were such that it was doubtful that he played a minor role in these firms, SCHULTZ attempted to explain that as a senior clerk he had access to certain corporate information in his line of duty. It was also explained that his wife'a family name gave her social entree which he did not enjoy in a business way.

The subject also belonged to the Germam goverament agency Wirtschaftsgruppe Holz His position with this agency was to effect collaboration between the French and German cork industries. In mentioning this activity, SCHULTZ again tried to play-down his part.

Questioned concerning his general knowledge of hidden German assets in Spain, the subject said that he felt sure that much clocking had been done but denied that he had corroborative details. As was answered by other repatriates questioned, SCHULTZ said that Gerhardt KRAMER, German air attache in Madrid, was undoubtedly the leading Safehaven candidate in Spain and had been able to evade repatriation because he was so well entrenched with Spanish government and business interests.

Mention was also made by SCHULTZ of one Willie MUELLER, a German doing business in Spain. the GREINER family of Nurtingen in Wurtenberg was also said to have a factory in San Felin, Spain, and also in Portugal. And in Palamos. A German named Kurt WALTERS has em agency under his own came for Armstrong Cork Company.

SCHULTZ denied any personal fortune outside of Germany, averring that he is "broke". He declared no assets on MGAX(1) form.

Was one of the original members of German IS centre at Villa Leon which spied on Allied shipping from Algeciras. Since his expulsion from Algeciras subject travelled in Southern Spain organizing espionage.

From US Consulate, Sevilla, March 9, 1944: Subject and Wilhelm PATRY (alias PATRICK) hold administrative positions with German concern which formerly had operated rice fields in that vicinity. Subject owned a truck in Coria del Rio or La Puebla del Rio. Left Sevilla under arrest, but on arrival at Madrid, he was released.

From a memo written by Vice Consul Titus: When arrested by Spanish police on March 17, 1944 a portable radio was found in a travelling bag in his house. Spanish witnesses saw the police taking the suitcase radio. When subject was arrested three Germans who were believed to be operating a radio from Emil PLATTE's house, a German, also disappeared.

From a reliable source April 4, 1944: Subject, instead of being sent to the frontier when he arrived at Madrid, got permission to stay in Spain. Possibly returned to Cadiz or Colinas (the German farm near Sevilla) begore going to Sevilla where his wife was living.

From US Consulate, Sevilla, November 2, 1944: Reports on convoys passing Southern coast of Spain. On an island at mouth of Guadalquivir River, facing the ocean, there were four houses, the center two belonging to subject and a swede called PATRICK whose wife is SCHULTZE's mistress. When was necessary to report , the three went went to Sevilla, to the office of Rafael Beca Co., owners of the island. The active director of the company was Mr. CARRANZA who arranged for subject to live on this island, and who was reported for his pro-nazi activities.

CARRANZA, Fernando. Naval Commandar. Acted as assistant to Col. ZEA (Antonio ZEA OTAOLAURRUCHI) in Tetuan, head of the Spanish I.S in Spanish Morocco

From a reliable source November 10, 1944: Subject, together with three other expelled Germans from Sevilla who are still under "libertad condicional" were ordered by the D.G.S to report at Caldas de Malavella to be interned before November 11, 1944. The Sevilla Commisariat reported that one of the D.G.S. men received him.

From a memo to the Embassy from a reliable source dated February 8, 1946: Ernst SCHULTZE arrived from Caldas to Madrid and was interned in Yeserias prison. Subject was among the the first Germans who figured on an Allied list as early back as January or February 1944. He was protected by the German Embassy and managed not to leave the country.

From the same source, April 25, 1946: Ernst SCHULTZE , freed from Yeserias prison by the intervention of Emilio KIECHLE, returned to Sevilla. Subject was close friend of DRAEGER. He continued to live in the Isla, where he owned extensive rice fields, with a huge palace on them, constructed some decades ago by an Englishman. A Swiss or Suede subject was playing a strange part on the Isla, whose name was PATRY or PATRICK (the name may be a pseudonym) was expelled from Spain by the Allies. He was SCHULTZE's first inspector and right-hand man. SCHULTZE's car was in PATRY's name.

One THOMAS (Alfredo THOMAS cover name of GIESE), who was frequently in touch with German Embassy, Madrid, was member. SCHWENZNER is closely connected with Paul FOERSCHLER.

SCHWENZNER was liaison between France, Germany, Spain and Portugal for German agents to whom he gave advice on contacting Falange, local officials or the government. Travelled under cover of vocation. He was rich, cultured and worked through contacts with important people. He had large credits in many countries and would be able to finance his organization locally in the future through export-import houses.

According to US Embassy Report August 1944, subject may be identical with a partner in commercial information firm of Krack and Schwenzner, Hamburg, credit reporter of which was Federico KEMPTER, later head of clandestine radio LIR in Brazil, the firm specializing in market reports to German firms regarding South American countries. The firm requested that KEMPTER also acted as a correspondent for the Hamburg firm Nordisch Durium Aktibolaget, reporting cargo shipments to England, which firm provided the cover for his subsequent espionage activities.

On January 16, 1945 was expedited a Spanish visa to Julio SCHWENZNER, German, passport 1677, exporter, registered at Hotel Ritz November 7-9, 1945. British report of September of September 1945 stated subject arrived in Spain from Hamburg a few days before the German collapse and was in close contact with the known German agent Paul FOERSCHLER, in Agents LI and Second Priority LI.

Special Activities of SKORZENY Group (1943-1944)
From OSS / CIA records declassified under Nazi War Crimes Disclosure Act:
"Station SCI Heidelberg
Report date: 21 May 1945
In December 1943 Untersturmfuehrer Otto SCHWERDT alias PETER organised a special mission including Unterscharfuehrer GFOELLER to go to Copenhagen. They had passport's made out in the names of commercial travellers and were equipped with 9 mm. Colts, with revolvers with English silencers and with blackjacks.
The party left 28 December 1943 for Flensburg and at Flensburg they were joined by KARSTENSEN of the Flensburg Gestapo who acted as interpreter. JENSEN, the head of the Ast at Flensburg, took them across the frontier to Boeterkrug where they took the train to Copenhagen.
At Copenhagen thegroup was receivad by Oberscharfuehrer Ludwig HUF of the SD, a Viennese. They stayed in HUF's flat at Flormemey 6 in the island of Amager. A meeting was held on 29 December at the BdS with two Gestapo chiefs, one the Regierungsrat ZECHENDER, the other a Hauptsturmfuehrer WAESCHE. The meeting was held to decide on activities against the Danish Resistance. It was agreed that the first action was to be taken against a Danish newspaper man Christian DAMM.

On 30 December a party including SCHWERDT, KARSTENSEN and GFOELLER broke into DAMM's office and after a few words with DAMM, SCHWERDT shot him and when DAMM was down,. SCHWERDT shot him again in the temple. The group left thinking that DAMM was dead but it was learned later that he recovered.

On the same night, a group of men belonging to Schallburg attempted to kill a well-known Danish politician Ole Bjoern KRAFFT but the attempt was not successful.

On 1 January 1944 instructions were issued to kill the pastor Kai MUNK, a well-known member of the Resistance. On 2.Januariy SCHWERDT, GFOELLER and KARSTENSEN went to Odensee to meet the chief of the SD of Eiceberg whose name is unknown and whose rank was Untersturmfuehrer. From Odensee the group went on to Ringkoepping and the next night they raided MUNK's house and arrested him. On their return to Aarhus about 60 kms. from the city, SCHWERDT told MUNK to leave the car and when he did, SCHWERDT shot him in the back.

These raids lasted for several months. In addition to killing people, the groups committed acts of sabotage on students' quarters, movies, department stores and cafes. From twenty to thirty people took part in these activities under the command of SCHWERDT who changed his name toward the end to Kriminalkommissar Peter SCHAEFER.

These activities were known to the Danish BdS represented by Standartenfuehrer MILDNER as well as to Standartenfuehrer von BOWEN-SIEPEN and Dr. BEST. SCHWERDT was congratulated by HIMMLER for his part in this work."

From Transcribed interrogation records relate to the prosecution of war criminals in proceedings at Nuernberg, 1945-47: GERHARD, Georg Reinhold:

"Without having been interrogated in the Villa Krehl, I was transferred on 1 Mar 46 to CIE 91 in Darmstadt. There I met Stubaf Karl RADL, who also began to coach me on my conduct during interrogation. The conversations were carried on with the greatest of caution, and were spread over a period of almost nine weeks.(...). The following is a rough approximation of his instructions to me:

«If I, GERHARD, were interrogated about SKORZENY's missions, I should only give such technical details as I could not avoid mentioning. I should make few general statements. The whole SKORZENY affair had been closed and perhaps I would not be called for interrogation, since the purely technical questions on which I alone could give an opinion were no longer of importance.

In general one should explain to an interrogator that SKORZENY was a secret service operator, rather than a terrorist or saboteur. Por instance, he, RADL, and SKORZENY had agreed that VI-S and the Jagd Verbaende were only to carry out tasks behind the enemy's lines. Thus Unternehmen Peter, a defensive mission in occupied Denmark, did not come under the jurisdiction of Amt VI, but of Amt IV.

I soon "became aware of extreme nervousness on RADL 's part whenever Unternehemen Peter was mentioned. When SCHWERDT' s capture (sic) was reported over the radio, RADL was obviously unpleasantly moved by the news. He clearly felt that Unternehemen Peter was the big pitfall for SKORZENY. The activities of the Jagd Verbaende had at least had a certain legal basis, since the opposing forces had been similarly active. Uhternehmen Peter* , however, might be interpreted as sheer crime.

* Uhternehmen Peter was the name given to the brutal terrorist action against the Danish Resistance. The operation was named for one of SKORZENY 's assistants, Peter Otto SCHWERDT, and was carried on under SKORZENY's direction, according to GERHARD. RADL officially claims (see USFET IC CIP. No 4 dtd 23 July 45, Annex IV) that he does not know why the name Peter was chosen, and that actually it was an undertaking of HIMMLER's, with which VI-S had no real connection."

SKORZENY and forgery.
From Transcribed interrogation records relate to the prosecution of war criminals in proceedings at Nuernberg, 1945-47: GERHARD, Georg Reinhold:

"GERHARD considers himself an expert on the subject of forged papers. He attended a number of forgery courses while teaching sabotage at the intelligence school of Lehrregiment Kurfuerst. Later, in his capactity as expert for sabotage equipment under SKORZENY, he came in contact with those offices responsible for forging the papers necessary for sabotage missions. One case with which he is familiar had to do with SKORZENY ’s plan to withdraw to the mountains. H/Stuf (Arno) BESEKOW, whom SKORZENY picked to obtain the necessary forged papers for this undertaking, made great use of the identification papers and civilian clothing of deceased inmates of the concentration camps Oranienburg, Bergen-Belsen and Neuengamme".

SKORZENY and the use of aconite bullets and other poisons in sabotage.
From Transcribed interrogation records relate to the prosecution of war criminals in proceedings at Nuernberg, 1945-47: GERHARD, Georg Reinhold:

"On the subject of toxicology RADL gave me an exact description of what he and SKORZENY had revealed, and at the same time instructed me as to just how much I should know. I should tell the interrogator that the 200 aconite "bullets in SKORZENY ’s possession (no mention was made of the other 200 for the Rabenhuegel mission) had been handed out without my official knowledge. I should know about the suicide ampules, but about nothing else. This was apparently a delicate subject.

Other technical matters could be freely mentioned, except for the secret developments still in progress. In the case of technical matters violating international law I should particularly emphasize that they had been copied from English models: and, in the case of poison bullets, that they had been copied from the Russians".

From Transcribed interrogation records relate to the prosecution of war criminals in proceedings at Nuernberg, 1945-47: TREITE, Percival Karl:

"In his capacity as one of the camp doctors, one day, he was called upon to perform an autopsy on a man who, presumably, had been imported for the occasion. This man, according to a report which Dr. TREITE had from the dentist, not being present at the experiments, was given a vial of poison to determine its affect on him. The results of the experiment were successful. The poison worked. This experiments was witnessed by SKORZENY and some officers from the Kriegsmarine who were said to be interested in the poison for U-boat crews. SKORZENY’s interested was not known".

From Kenneth Rose, Elusive Rothschild, p. 82:

" The most feared German agent of all, Otto Skorzeny, a colonel in the SS, also passed through Victor’s hands, although not until the end of the war.(...). When eventually he was captured, Victor interrogated him about his supposed war crimes and a particular allegation that he had supplied German saboteurs or terrorists with bullets tipped with an excepdonally lethal poison. Botulinus toxin, scientists supposed, would be burnt up by the heat of the bullet, but cyanide would not. Victor, whose German was not good enough to detect nuances of meaning or hesitations, felt handicapped by having to question him through an interpreter. Skorzeny, six foot six inches in height, with a prominent scar across his face — ’a complete thug’ Victor dubbed him — bluntly denied that he had ever broken the conventions of war. Victor was not convinced, but in the absence of evidence the inquiry had to be abandoned. ’Most unsatisfactory,’ he concluded. Skorzeny was charged with war crimes at the Nuremberg trials, but acquitted."

The factual liberation of MUSSOLINI by SKORZENY, according to General DOERR.

Factual Report Concerning Mussolini’s Liberation
1. On 11 Sept 43, the commander of the First ParachuteTraining Battalion, Major Harald MORS, received a message in Frascati from the headquarters of General STUDENT, ordering him to report to the latter immediately.
2. Following his arrival, General STUDENT discussed with Major MORS the following mission and details:
(a) MUSSOLINI was to be liberated on 12 September 1943: Place: Hotel Gran Sasso. Time: 0700 hours.
(b) For the past several weeks SS-Lieutenant-Colonel SKORZENY had had the special mission of determining MUSSOLINI’s whereabouts. The mission as a whole had been entrusted to him (General STUDENT) by HITLER.
(c) SKORZENY had very cleverly found out where MUSSOLINI was. His mission was this accomplished.
(d) The First Parachute Training Battalion was to be committed; one company was to be dropped in the valley of the Gran Sasso massif, and the mountain massif (difference in elevation of 1.000 meters) was to be taken in an attack by the other companies which were to be marched up by land.
(e) Major MORS made a counter-propopsal: a surprise landing of one company by glider in the Gran Sasso, and. support by the other companies, which would be marched up by land. to the valley entrance and would then make surprise use of the cable railroad.
(f) Major MORS’s proposal was accepted.
3. During the period of preparation, on the morming of. 12 September, SKORZENY reported to General STUDENT and asked permission to take part in the operation. General STUDENT agreed, and placed SKORZENY, as well as 17 other SS personnel, for whom SKORZENY had also requested permission, under Major MORS.

4. SKORZENY reported Major MORS who, in accordance with General STUDENT’s order,. treated him as .a subordinate visitor. Note: Any other interpretation is incorrect, for General STUDENT had taken precautions against putting 478 parachutists under SKORZENY.
5. Events on12 September:
(a) Shortly after 1400 hours the approaching ground staff observed the gliders over the Gran Sasso.
(b) At about 1416 hears the ground staff occupied the valley station.
(c) At 1417 hours the flight staff reported by radio to Major MORS that the liberation had .taken place.
(d) . Some of the ground troops reached the mountain hotel by means of the cable railway.
(e) Major MORS reported to MUSSOLINI.
(f) SKORZENY was already at this time playing the role of liberator and had consequently angered the officers of the parachute troops.
(g) It was determined that SKORZENY had himself endangered the operation by having his pilot dive, in spite of the fact that he was only a guest on the flight.
6. SKORZENY flew with MUSSOLINI to East Prussia,. arriving on 13 September. He received, the Knight’s Cross and on 14 September he spoke over the Deutschlandsender (radio), completely distorting the entire event. Note: General STUDENT had asked SKORZENY to accompany MUSSOLINI so that he would not have to spare a parachute troop officer."

"S.S. Sturmbannfuhrer Otto SKORZENY, the man who liberated MUSSOLINI, founded about two months ago a school in which agents received individual training for specific purposes. The school itself is situated in the neighborhood of Berlin, and is under the personal direction of the S.S. Reichfuhrer.The courses, however, are set by HITLER himself. SKORZENY's title in this service is Kommandeur."

SKORZENY and gold and assets looted from Reichsbank and from France.

From Records of the Foreign Exchange Depository Group of the Office of the Finance Adviser, OMGUS, 1944-1950: 940.32 Liaison Visits

"After burying the money at Taxenbach there was still the problem of the disposal of 35-38 million Reichsmarks remaining in the truck and 100 boxes of counterifeit Pound Sterling in a trailer, which Oberstleutnant BOENING of Amt VT-F had turned over to PFEILER at Salzburg. According to SPACIL the truck also contained Italian lire, Lithuanian currency, Russian rubles, German printed Ukrainian karbowanetz and francs. The German money was in 1,000 Reichsmark notes, the British in various denominations, GRAZ seems to be the last area in German hands, so SPACIL sent MENZEL there at 5 May with the money. He doubted whether MENZEL got through and had not heard from him when questioned.

Untersturmfuehrer ERTL, whom SPACIL sent to withdraw R.S.H.A. funds still with the Reichsbank Berlin came back on the 21 April 1945 with gold Pound Sterling, which was not counterfeit, dollars, Swiss francs, Danish crowms etc., totalling approximately 1 million RM.

He reported that the Reichsbank was giving up all its foreign assets and that he had received more than was in the R.S.H.A. account.

Of this money, 3 sacks of gold francs and a large amount of mixed funds, totalling approximately 350.000 RM were given to OHLENDORF for use by Fuehrungsstab Nord. 3 more sacks of gold and assets were taken to Salzburg by SCHIEBEL. SPACIL took the remaining I/3 to Salzburg on the 26 April. SCHIEBEL's and SPACIL's assets were divided among SKORZENY (2-3 sacks of gold), Obergruppenfuehrer FRANK (1 sack of gold and miscellaneous funds), Dr. HUEBER (some gold) and the Befehlshaber Oberdonau and Niederdonau.

Hauptsturmfuehrer SCHULER kept considerable funds of the Amt VI at his office in Innsbruck. These funds were probably given to SKORZENY and consisted of approximately 2 million Reichsmarks and a considerable quantity of dollars".*

* Part of the loot hidden by SPACIL was recovered, but not the gold or assets kept by SKORZENY. The amount estimated is about $ 8.000.000 (about 3.000.000 in 2013)

From Records of the Reparations and Restitutions Branch of the U.S. Allied Commission for Austria (USACA) Section, 1945-1950. French Claims 373.

Excerpt from letter by Chief of the Reparations, Restitutions & Property Control Division, J. Miroux, to James A. Garrison, Chief of the RDR Division, U.S. Element, dated 19 March, 1948:

"SS-Sturmbannfuehrer RADL, assistant of SKORZENY and 22 SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer also belonging to the Sonderverband SKORZENY (most likely SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer BESEKOW and SCHMIEL.) are presumed to have transported, during the first days of May 1945, and on mule back, considerable quantities of gold coins and precious stones contained in leather sacks, and to have buried them in the inmediata neighborhood of the Theodor Kornerhutte, a hut located under the Dachstein (Austria - 55 k, S-SE from Salzburg, presently U.S. Zone).

These gold coins and precious stones, presumably stolen for the main part in France during the occupation, are supposed to have represented the war treasure of the Sonderverband and to have been buried at this spot on the orders of SKORZENY himself and his three lieutenants. A few days later RADL and the 2 Hauptsturmfuehrer were arrested by the American troops, interned in the Ludwigsburg Camp and immediately interrogated by the C.I.C.

As for SKORZENY, he was made prisoner near Laufen (Austria) by the Americans about a week after the German capitulation.

In July-August 1945 the C.I.C. presumably discovered the gold and jewelry at the Obeodor-Korner-Hutte."

About the ignorance of American interrogators (1945)

From Guy LIDDELL's diary, 25 June, 1945:

"I saw Stuart HAMPSHIRE for a moment- He has been at 12th AG briefing the interrogators of KALTENBRUNNER. He was not allowed to see K. neither has Victor (ROTHSCHILD) been allowed to see SKORZENY. Victor of course is hopping mad. The Americans are pathetically ignorant but feel that as the man was captured in their zone they have got to put up a show. They are quite prepared to accept assistance in the matter of briefing which has been freely given. They have tried miking SKORZENY and KALTENBRUNNER together but both of them are clearly well aware of which is going on. Very little has been extracted from KALTENBRUNNER so far. He is taking the line that he is really a lawyer and politician, that he did not know anything about the atrocities committed under the orders of MULLER. He has given a certain amounc of political information which is true but is not being drawn into talking about the SD or about the planning of the underground movement. In due course he is go come back here when we shall be rather put on our mettle."

SKORZENY in Bolivia: the mess of dates in CIA reports (1945-1950)

From OSS / CIA records declassified under Nazi War Crimes Disclosure Act:

Report No: TOP-1351
Date of Information: Current
Date Acquired: 17 January 1950
Date of Report: 24 January 1950
Subject: Otto SKORZENY
Source: Controlled American Source

1, Otto SKORZENY is a former Colonel in the German SS troops. He is a skilled aviation technician and reportedly was at one time an adviser to the head of Germany's Luftwaffe.

2, SKORZENY arrived in Bolivia shortly following Germany's surrender and obtained employment with the Bolivian Government as an aviation technician. He remained in that position until shortly before January 1, 1950, when he left for Buenos Aires to accept a position as aviation technician with the Argentine Government. At the present, SKORZENY is employed at the Palomar Air Field located on the outskirts of Buenos Aires.

3. Source declared that SKORZENY is using an assumed name in . Argentina but that the Argentina Government is aware of his true identity and. background. It is source's belief that, the Argentine Government is not too interested in the background of individuals whom they are now employing at the Palomar Field. Their primary interest in the technicians is whether or not the employees can help Argentina.
4. Subject is residing in the suburb of Martinez, Buenos Aires. His exact address is not as yet known nor is his pseudonym. Any further information developed will be furnished the Buenos Aires station."

Colonel Otto SKORZENY
Ref: TOP-1351 of 24 January 1950.
1. On 14 and 15 February 1950, the local press carried stories concerning the alleged presence in Paris (and later in Rome) of Otto SKORZENY. In December 1949, the Communist paper La Hora of Buenos Aires claimed that SKORZENY was then residing in the United States.
In Octob 1949, the local press reported him in Austria. In June 1949 he was reported en route to Argentina. In addition, frequent rumors (never confirmed) have reached us of his possible presence in Argentina.
2. TOP-135l of 24 January 1950 states that Subject arrived in Bolivia shortly after the war and obtained employment with the Bolivian Government as an aviation technician, a position which he held until late in 1949 when he reportedly left for Buenos Aires to accept a similar post with the Argentine Government. Your report placed Subject in the Buenos Aires suburb of Martinez, and suggested that he may be using a pseudonym.
3. In view of the general confusion which exists concerning Subject's whereabouts, and the high evaluation which on have given your report, this Station would greatly appreciate any additional information you may be able to provide concerning his residence in Bolivia and his transfer to this country. If it is an established fact that Subject in Bolivia until a little more than a month age, we will then have something definite to go on.

4. Note for Headquarters: Since Subject reportedly was in the hands of the U.S. Military authorities in 1947, it is presumed that a photograph would not be difficult to obtain, if Headquarters could supply this station with a good full length photograph and physical description of Subject it would aid us considerably in our investigation."

Otto SKORZENY
Date: 8 October 1948
Ref. Fran-1216 (Out-13939), Wash-2765 (Out-69071)
"1. A report from Frankfurt, Germany, reveals that the subject escaped from Ludwigsberg civilian internment enclosure on the night of July 25, 1947, while awaiting denazification.
2. It is further reported that no letter from SKORZENY has been intercepted by either the Combined Intelligence Service (CIS) or the Counter Intelligence Corps (CIC).

In any case the CIS is the only agency authorized by the United States European Command to censor German mail. This, of course, does not elñiminate the possibility that the letter could have been received in other German zones or European countries from SKORZENY; nor does it eliminate the possibility that such a letter might have been intercepted by other Allied intelligence services."

2 February 1948
Dear M:
With regard to the questions you ask in your last letter I can give you the following information for what it is worth.
The subject "escaped" from our interrogation center in Oberursel, a small town about ten miles from Frankfort on the road to Darmstadt, about three months ago. I would hardly use the term escape, for in reality he was aided and abetted in his desires in order to find out where he wanted to hide out, and who the people were who were willing to keep him. He is now once more with us, although no longer on this continent, and his services are being put to some use. It must be remembered that in spite of all his playacting and posing be still has a very excellent knowledge of intelligence and can be of definite use to our people.

As to the local authorities wanting him, I believe it would be more accurate to say that the Austrians rather than the Germans are interested in his whereabouts. He is, after all, an Austrian, and the majority of his more infamous acts were committed against his own people.
There are undoebtedly several German official’s who would like to have him, but this is mainly from a mercenary point of view, for they would be paid quite handily if they could succeed in turning him over to the gentlmen to the east. If anyone, other than ourselves, is really interested in him, it is undoubtedly the assorted members of the Politburo. My own personal opinion of the man is that we have already played him for what he is worth, but he is too dangerous to let go. He is in a position at the present time, where he would have to sell to the highest, or any bidder, and, being a professional soldier, I doubt whether he would have any scruples as to which political side he sold his services.
Insofar as the document I have already sent you is concerned, I should like to repeat that I sent it mainly for your magazine’s benefit. If it is any use to you as a check against the information you already have, I can assure you that the facts, even though they are somewhat dramatised by the author, are for a very large part correct. I have since talked to various other members of the expedition, and they concur with all the major points in the story. Of course they themtelves live in the reflected glory, but one German or Austrian if you wish, is not too prone to praise another (...)

Many thanks for what you have done in the matter. I’m afraid I can’t be too specific about the subject’s activities at the present :time for obvious reasons, however should the time come when we can give you all the facts without endangering security I shall let you have a detailed account. You can form your own conclusions from what I have already told you in this letter...(...)"

La Policía ha declarado que Otto SKORZENY, autor del sensacional rescate de Mussolini, en el Gran Sásso (Italia), ex coronel de las S. S. alemanas, ha huido a Roma, después de vivir en París durante una. semana con nombre supuesto. Residió en el barrio de San Germán, desde-el 7 de febrero, y se había identificado ante su patrona como Rudolf Stainer (STEINER) , periodista austríaco. Las autoridades alemanas buscan a SKORZENY, acusado de evasión de la cárcel, para, ser juzgado por un Tribunal desnazificador.

En el registro practicado en su habitacion se ha descubierto una serie de documentos y notas sobre sus actividades de tiempo de guerra, como jefe de una unidad especial alemana. Dijo a la patrona eme se iba a Roma, pero que volvería "en breve". La identificación ha sido fácil para la Policía cuando mostró a la patrona un retrato de SKORZENY.—Efe.

I understood that she spent a considerable time in the UK just prior to the outbreak of hostilities in the interest of the intelligence service.

SKORZENY is conducting a business in Madrid chiefly for the development of solar heat for use in heating houses and hot water in Spain. I do not think this is a front, but that he is really in earnest about the business. I believe he also has some agencies for German firms. Note: The signifiance of this report lies not so much in the information contained herein but in the fact that Otto SKORZENY and his aides readily revealed it to a group of German neo-fascists visiting Spain in 1951.
1. After SKORZENY left the U.S. internment camp in Darmstadt, he lived for a short while with C. Ch. HEINZ, then a member of the ultra-rightist Hessish NDP, at 11 Abeggstr., Wiesbaden. From Wiesbaden he went to France and for eight months he was billeted at a safe house by (fnu) BERTEAUX, then director of the Surete. When, after publication of the famous SKORZENY articles in the French Press, BERTEAUX was relieved as Surete chief.

* Misspelling for Pierre BERTAUX.

Countess FINKENSTEIN, SKORZENY's one-time mistress and presently his alleged wife, travelled to Madrid and quickly received a residence permit for SKORZENY after a short conference with the Chief of the Spanish General Staff * (Teniente General Juan VIGÓN). Once in Madrid, SKORZENY was documented as a stateless engineer, one Rolf STEINBAUER and assigned quarters at Lopez de Hoyos 72, Madrid, together with Countess FINKENSTEIN. Since then SKORZENY has produced two plans for international military action against possible Communist agression.

Plan A concerns primarily Western Germany but could be utilized elsewhere. It calls for the activation of alert units among the people of every community in the country. Ostensibly, for the purpose of commitment in case of emergency, such as floods, earthquakes, riots, floods, etc., but the ultimate and hidden purpose is to prepare a militia against the day of Soviet agression. The units are to be known as Katastrophenscutz (catastrophe protection). According to SKORZENY the plan has been summitted to Dr. Robert LEHR, West German Minister of the Interior and the latter agreed to support the enterprise. Hans WEISS, a former Colonel in the German Air Force and one-time Inspector General of the German bomber force (...) is scheduled to head the organization. WEISS was one of the Germans who recently visited SKORZENY in Madrid. He returned to Germany with a complete plan for activation of the militia units.
Plan B is SKORZENY's now well-known plan for activation of coramando type. consisting of 300 anti-Cormunistic men each, from 10 different countries in Europe. The units are to be trained in Spain, financed and equipped by the U.S. and act as a cadre and officer material for guerrilla, partisan, stay-behind and similar units operatinr against the Soviet Army in case of war (...). "In my talk with ADENAUER last night he said he had received information from source of such reliability that ort could not be ignored. According to his informant, FRANCO was utilizing SKORZENY, former Nazi intelligence chief, for purpose of organizing military units in Spain. SKORZENY was said to be recruiting former Nazi officers and specialists among German refugees. What was particularly disturbing to Chancellor was indication this project which was intended primarily for purpose of creating a strong defense on line of Pyrenees had some support and encouragement from US. ADENAUER said that of course if such information was confirmed and became known, it would have most serious effects upon opinion, not only in Germany, but elsewhere in Western Europe, as obviously it would result in creation.of revived Nazi force. I said that I had heard nothing of the scheme and thought most unlikely that it had any US backing. I promised, however, to make inquiry and let him know. I should be grateful for any information which could throw light on this report. MCCLOY

-September 1944: Went to Berlin because of the invasion of Southern France. Assigned to the German Consulate in San Remo, Italy, as an Amt VI Deputy in charge of 30 agents collecting information on Italian internal affairs.

-April 1945: Went to Nice and contacted the French Deuxieme Bureau (French Intelligence Service) as to possible employment with them.
-August 1945: Started to work for the Deuxieme Bureau and was sent to Spain. Arrested at the border and interned.
-Freed by friends and proceeded to Madrid to begin his intelligence work.
-April 1946: Rearrested at the request of the US Embassy in Madrid and flown to Germany.
SOMMER's connection with the Deuxieme Bureau.

"It was October 1941 that SOMMER allegedly first become aware of the narrow'minded of the Nazi regime. He could not grasp why, for having a French fiancee, he was classified as unworthy to hold a responsible job and even jailed. This infringement on his personal liberty and freedom of movement made him realize that something was amiss with what he believed was a just war waged by Germany against the Allies. At the same time he recognized the insincere game Germany was playing with France. Having lived in France and knowing the mentality of the French, he suddenly lamented their short-sightedness in not perceiving how Germany was duping them. He felt obligated to his fiancee and to his concience to make amends and decided to shed his affiliations with GIS and the SS. SOMMER claims that he intended to join the Deuxieme Bureau immediately upon his discharge from prison in April 1942, but, aware of the omniscience of the GIS, he dared not attempt it. His first chance came in February 1945 while he was Amt VI deputy in San Remo, Italy, when a French agent by the name of SOLETTI was arrested by the Germans on the Franco-Italian border. SOMMER succeeded in having SOLETTI released in his custody and dispatched him to Nice with a view to establishing relations for him (SOMMER) with the Deuxieme Bureau. Because of the intervening collapse of the Italian front, nothing further came of this connection. SOMMER withdrew with the German troops from San Remo towards Genoa in April 1945, left the troops at Savona at reached Nice about 1 May 1945. His colleagues of Amt VI, San Remo, Werner NEISSER and Guy DELIOUX, went with him. Once in Nice, SOMMER contacted an old friend, Paul KOEHLER, living at Pagomas, near Cannes, and learned from him that he (KOEHLER) was now a member of the Deuxieme Bureau and could bring SOMMER in if SOMMER so desired. SOMMER agreed, under the stipulation that French citizenship should later be provided for him. KOEHLER indicated that this would be an easy matter. NEISSER and DELIOUX also decided to join the Deuxieme Bureau.

The following day SOMMER met the Deuxieme Bureau of Nice, who was known to everyone only as Le Capitaine. Nothing definitive was decided at this meeting, however, as the Regional Chef at Marseille, Commandant Georges HENRY, was expected momentarily in order to pass on all applicants. SOMMER was approved and was to go to Spain via Toulousse. NEISSER was to go to Italy via Nice and DELIOUX's territory was to be Switzerland, with headquarters in Lyon.

When SOMMER arrived in Toulouse, he was put at the Hotel Terminus, using the false French carte d'identite made out to Hans STEPHAN which had been given to him by the Deuxieme Bureau in Nice. According to plan, SOMMER reported to the Commisaire de la *Securite Militaire where he was told to sit tight until the arrival of Monsieur LEON, the Deuxieme Bureau's Branch Chief at Perpignan. When LEON arrived, accompanied by his deputy, Monsieur MICHEL, SOMMER was taken to Narbonne, put in a hotel, and told to remain there for another four weeks to await further instructions. In case of emergency he was to call Perpignan or get in touch with the Captain of the Gendarmerie, who would notify MICHEL.

Three weeks of idleness passed before SOMMER was ordered to proceed to Carcassone about 1 July 1945. He met LEON and MICHEL in a private house near the RR station. For his immediate task, he was instructed to go to Spain and there to contact old German Abwehr and SD agents. He was to tell them that he had escaped from San Remo and now wished to be of service to them, preferably in France, as the one place intimately known to him. LEON wanted the names and addresses of German and French agents who had formerly operated between Marseille and Bordeaux and were still not arrested by the French.

As LEON was fully convinced of the existance of the remnants GIS agents in Spain, employing French nationals, it was also to be SOMMER's task to uncover them and under some pretext bring them back to France.

The possibility of SOMMER's joining the Spanish Intelligence Service was also touched by LEON. This plan was only to be used if all others failes. LEON told SOMMER not to worry too much about Spanish Intelligence Service, which he termed fumbling and impotent. SOMMER received no schooling on the present Deuxieme Bureau and its methods, but was told to go ahead and operate on the basis of his many years' experience as an Abwehr officer. It was understood that SOMMER was not to be a paid agent, but he did receive 20,000 Pesetas from LEON as expense money. According to SOMMER, his motives for joining the Deuxieme Bureau were personal and not monetary.

LEON informed SOMMER that he could be reached through Paulina ALTUVEZ, calle Villadornat 44, Barcelona. All the letters sent through this address were to bear the signature Juan, but no replies would be sent to SOMMER. On 10 August 1945 LEON drove SOMMER down to the border town of Puigcerda, at which point he was to enter Spain.

LEON, counting on the inefficiency of the Spanish Government, believed that SOMMER, as a former intelligence officer, would encounter no difficulty whatsoever in Spain and should therefore be able to report back to Perpignan with the desired information within six weeks. LEON's miscalculations, however, resulted in the arrest and detention of SOMMER by the Spanish at Camp Miranda from August 1945 until February 1946. It was relatively easy for SOMMER to send letters to LEON through ALTUVEZ, because many people entered and left the camp without being searched.

When SOMMER was finally released from the camp, he went to Madrid to carry out le long-delayed mission for the Deuxieme Bureau.

The alleged New Spanish Intelligence Service.

(...) When he was arrested in Puigcerda, SOMMER revealed his real identity, which LEON had told him to do. It was a necessary step, because SOMMER was known in Spain as a GIS agent and his further plans made it imperative for him to be recognized.

When SOMMER was released from Camp Miranda in February 1946, he went to Madrid. His attention was first called to the matter of a New Spanish Intelligence Service through a meeting with a former agent of the Central Abwehr Agency in France, Raymond HEVRARD, alias ANDRE, alias, GAILARDO, now living in Madrid. HEVRARD had been sent to Italy by Mil Amt in March 1945, had been overtaken there by the defeat of Germany, had infiltrated into Italian Partisans as a Spanish Loyalist, and had then escaped to Spain.

He is married to a Spanish woman and took active part in the Spanish Civil war on FRANCO's side. On his arrival in Spain in February 1946, HEVRARD ran across the Spanish PENA, whom he had known in the Central Abwehr Agency in France.

PENA told HEVRARD that his friend VICENTE was forming a new Spanish Intelligence Agency in agreement with FRANCO. VICENTE is a Falange leader and is in close contact with FRANCO in his capacity as Head of the Falangist Servicio de Investigaciones (e) Informacion, an organization serving internal security. VICENTE proposed to FRANCO that an intelligence service on an entirely new basis be formed. He believed that the Servicio de Informacion Militar, an army information service, had proved a failure, that its officers were corrupt, and that it was regularly penetrated by enemy intelligence. He thought that after the downfall of the Axis powers, Spain was fated to play a leading role in Europe and would therefore need an efficient intelligence service. The sum must have been considerable, since VICENTE paid HEVRARD, who had been hired as an agent, 8000 Pesetas monthly plus expenses and the other agents were receiving 5000 Pesetas, an unheard amount in previous Spanish intelligence circles.

As his first priority project, VICENTE applied himself to building up a net in France and North Africa, together with the establishment of contact with possible German and Italian resistance movements. Aping the methods used by the Germans, he intended to entegrate his people regularly into the Spanish Foreign Service, plant agents in Spanish embassies and consulates, and make use of the Falangists already in the service of the government. He envisioned the use of many former Axis agents of Spanish nationality and made some of his men take diplomatic courses and examinations for future assignments. Juan de ARENZANA, son of the Spanish Consul-General in Marseille, remarked to SOMMER that these future intelligence agents, passing as diplomats in the eyes of the world, would destroy whatever reputation Spain might still have in other countries. VICENTE repeatedly high-pressured the Foreign Office to make the diplomatic examinations easy for his men.

SOMMER had only one interview with VICENTE, shortly before his second arrest in April 1946. He gave SOMMER the impression of being a man of exceptional energy and capability, and a convinced Falangist and idealist who was stubbornly set in his political outlook. VICENTE was unable to recognize the de Gaullist rightist tendency in present-day France, but insisted rather on helping and making use of the French collaborationists now living in exile in Spain. Some of these people were:

- MOYNIER, Yves, alias MAGICIER, Gilbert. Barcelona.
- PUTEAU, Adrien. Barcelona.
- TICHEYRE, Jose. Barcelona.
- FRECHOU, Paul. Madrid.
- VOINEAU, Robert. Madrid.
- GUICHARD, Guido. Madrid.
- DODO, Michel, alias LARA. Miranda.
- TENAILLE, Andre. Madrid.
- AUGUSTINE (fnu). Madrid.

SOMMER believes that AUGUSTINE suceeded in bringing two agents, QUEYRAT and AUMOND, into VICENTE's service.

For the building of the organization in France, HEVRARD was brought forward by PENA and received identity documents bearing the Spanish name of GALIARDO from VICENTE. HEVRARD (...) recruits his agents from the fertile field of French emigres, which he knows very well. He has installed wireless stations in San Sebastian and Barcelona and a net is soon to extend to France, covering Toulouse, Marseille, Bordeaux, Lyon, Paris Rheins and Lille. (...)

When HORCHER (see HORCHER, Otto) informed SOMMER of his intention to go to Argentina, SOMMER sensed immediately that something important was going on. Since Gen. KRAMER, H/Stuf FULMES, Obst/Lt FUCHS, O/Lt MOLL and quite a number of other officers in active service were hiding in Spain (SOMMER claims that he had a list with addresses of hidden officers which he destroyed when arrested by Spanish police) and since SOMMER had found it impossible to contact them at that time, he got in touch with ESCAT, a Frenchman and former member of the Action Française and the editor of the magazine Je suis partout in Paris. ESCAT is known as an active pro-German Frenchman and had close contacts with the German General Staff and with the Foreign Office (...) In December 1944, ESCAT, together with his wife and two of his co-workers (names unknown to SOMMER), were sent to Madrid by plane with a special mission. There was a general rumour to the effect that ESCAT, by order of the German Foreign Office, was to sound out the Allies on the possibilities of a separate peace. Now, however, SOMMER is convinced that ESCAT's true mission was an entirely different one, possibly that of financing the Germans who were already in Spain and those who would have to hide there in the future. ESCAT had allegedly received large sums of money in Berlin for just that purpose. (...)

SOMMER knew ESCAT from France and met him again in Madrid through his intimate friend, Robert VOINEAU, in whom ESCAT had absolute confidence, having known him for many years. Before the planned meeting with ESCAT, VOINEAU informed SOMMER that he had very good news from VICENTE. VICENTE has given VOINEAU the confidential information that now, after PERON's victory in Argentina, the plan concerning the departure of Germans for that country had taken a tangible form. The problem of securing false papers in order to deceive the Allies had already been solved. VOINEAU gave SOMMER estimates that between 150 and 200 Germans were to be shipped from Cadiz to Argentina, a few at a time. The first shipment would start in August or September 1946. SOMMER's presumptions on this were confirmed by HORCHER.

At the meeting with ESCAT (...) in Madrid about 27 March 1946, SOMMER proceed carefully on the subject of Argentina. ESCAT told SOMMER that he had known PERON for many years and that they were close friends (...). SOMMER believed that ESCAT had been in communication with PERON through the Argentine Embassy in Madrid. During the meeting, ESCAT told SOMMER that he himself would undoubtedly leave for Argentina soon. SOMMER does not whether or not he did actually go there. The conversation was interrupted at one point by a phone call for ESCAT. When he returned he said: "Still another one who cannot stay hidingany longer. Everybody is asking when things will get going." This remark confirmed SOMMER's opinion that ESCAT may be leading the departure of Germans for Argentina (...)

SOMMER had arranged another meeting with ESCAT for the coming week, but in the meantime he received a letter from an Abwehr agent, Hans MARTIN, alias Juan MARTIN. He was active in Figueras as a German agent until March 1945, at which time he became the German Red Cross representative. At the end of 1945 he was warned by Spanish friends to go into hiding, because Allies wanted to extradite him. He hid in Barcelona and presumably remained there, since SOMMER was asked to reply to his letter through Antonio RUIZ, Plaza Recomir 6, Barcelona or through a certain KUHN, Letra B, calle Molins Rey Barcelona. In this letter MARTIN informed SOMMER that friends had arrived at his hiding place and that they were all making preparation for a trip to their friend PERON, to start in two months. He also advised SOMMER to hide, as the pressure of the Allies was increasing every day. He therefore proposed that SOMMER join him in Barcelona. A few days after this letter, SOMMER received another one from Jose TICHEYRE, a Frenchman who had been an Abwehr agent in Paris and who was sent to Spain at the beginning of 1944. He worked in Spain together with LOPEZ MORENO, a member of the Spanish Intelligence Service and now of the Spanish General Staff. The last known address of TICHEYRE is 58 Ronda San Antonio, Barcelona. In the letter TICHEYRE also mentioned his intention of going to Argentina.

At the second meeting with ESCAT about 10 April 1946, there was talk about hiding German officers, especially General KRAMER, who, betrayed by a German, had just managed to be brought from his hiding place in Madrid to the rural estate of a Spanish officer. It was mentioned that all those Germans who gave the American authorities information were known to these men in hiding places and to the Spanish and were listed on a black list. It was further stated that proper measures had been taken and that the situation could be regarded as safe (...).

ESCAT's group, consisting of political fanatics joined together by a common bond of friendship extending over many years, is not an easy circle to penetrate. SOMMER feels himself fortunate to have been able, as a newcomer, to gain knowledge, little as it is, on the Argentine question.

This entire group is also closely tied up with Spanish authorities, police and army. Any members of this group wanted by the Allies is being warned ahead of time by the Spanish police, giving him time to go into hiding. SOMMER is firmly convinced that in back of the whole Argentine scheme there is a well considered plan to quietly create a central German intelligence agency with the assistance of the Argentine government. These Fascists circles are of the opinion that the relations between the Allies will grow steadily worse and that anotherv war is inevitable (...).

SOMMER could not attend the proposed third meeting with ESCAT because he was arrested. In the prision of Carabanchel he met Standf Miquel ESQUERRA (* misspelling for SS-Obersturmbannführer Miguel EZQUERRA), Spanish citizen in the Waffen SS who had seen action with the Blue Division which fought on the Eastern Front. ESQUERRA also mentioned Argentina, having heard something on the subject through his wife when she had visited him.

French Collaborationist now in Italy

During his work with GIS in Marseille and later in San Remo, SOMMER has many opportunities to observe the infiltration of former French collaborationists into Italy. This observation was augmented by information received by him from SS-Stubaf GOHL, Amt VI Chief in Milan.

In August 1944, during the German evacuation of France, many leading figures in the French collaborationist groups, together with a great number of other members, withdrew to Germany with the retrating German troops. An estimate 5,000 (Militia) members, 6,000 PPF (Parti Populaire Français) members and several smaller groups boosted the agregate figure to 15,000. These so-called French refugees constituted a much sought-after reservoir of potential material for the Abwehr and Amt VI.

DORIOT, Chief of the PPF, Joseph DARNAND of the Milice, Marcel BUCARD, leader of the Fascist Franciste, and Marcel DEAT of the RNP (Rassemblement National Populaire) were approached by Abwehr officers, who had already made plans for the use of this Frenchmen. They were to return to their native land and engage in intelligence work for the Germans. The party chiefs agreed to the plan with the proviso that transportation was to be assured by the GIS and, once the agents were back in France, that they should be permitted to take up the reorganization of their respective parties. The plan was approved by SCHELLENBERG, Chief of Amt VI. SOMMER claims that the 15,000 Frenchmen in Germany did not comprise 10% of the Fascist-minded open collaborationist still living in France. It would have been an easy matter to undertake reorganization with a receptive body of such magnitude, especially since countless other French people were not too enthusiastic over losing their homes and other possessions as their price of liberation. In Germany it was decided to send agents back to France via Italy, through Innsbruck, Verona and Milan, instead through Alsace-Lorraine, thereby reducing the chances of apprehension. The Amt VI offices in Milan, Turin and San Remo were instructed to look out for these agents and assist them in every way possible. SOMMER met some of them in September 1944 and April 1945.

The Milice, possessing the most capable men of all collaborationist groups, had an agency in Wiesbaden under the leadership of two former French officers, DEGANS and FILIOL, who selected prospectives candidates and instructed them in future work. Both DEGANS and FILIOL had formerly acted as liaison officers with Amt VI. Another office of the Milice was established in Milan under KNIPPING.

The PPF mantained an office and wireless school near Constance on Lake Constance in charge of BARTHOLEMY, who also had a small office in Milan. Still another office was in San Remo operated by the former PPF Chief, Pierre PETIER. The office in San Remo was equipped with wireless devices.

At the end of the war in May 1945, BARTHOLEMY, had about 40 or 50 finished agents in Italy who never had a chance to be set up in France. Among these agents were leaders of the PPF, many of them chagrined at being estranded in Italy. Some of them were equipped with radios and all of them had automatic weapons and large sums of money.

In addition-to the aforementioned agents, more than 400 other members of the party were brought to Italy during January 1945. Practically all of the above—mentioned 15,000 Frenchmen in Germany were living on the German economy, already taxed to its capacity, so it was convenient and expedient to relieve the burden by dumping these people on their relatives in Italy, after establishing the fact that relatives in Italy did exist. They were not schooled in intelligence and were to play subordinate roles in France. It is SOMMER's opinion that because of their Fascist-minded political outlook, their knowledge of the Italian language, and connections gained through their relatives, the continued presence of these men in Italy constitutes a perpetual hazard to an orderly peace.

The same situation is true with the Milice. In February 1945, DARNAND and 800 of his followers arrived in Milan with the idea of establishing an independent brown maquis group to fight alongside the Brigada Nera against the Italian Partisan groups, Later on, the same group was to fight the Allies in France, with special attention paid to sabotage and the disruption of oil lines between Marseille and the front. That no more than 800 came to Italy out of the 5,000 who entered France was due to the fact that 3,000 of them joined the SS Infantry Division Charlemagne and another 1,000 were put in war plants.

No more than approximately 15 agents succeeded in reaching France. They were transported under cover of darkness in small speedboats from San Remo to their destination, San Raphael. According to SOMMER, the other agents are still in hiding in Italy. Because DEGANS, FILIOL and GOMBERT, a good friend of DARNARD and a regional chief of the Milice, were former members. of Eugene DELONCLE's Cagoulards (former pro-Fascist French party) and as such were in contact with the Italian Intelligence Service in 1936 and 1937, specifically with BARANCO and PETINATTI, SOMMER assumes that these contacts are now being renewed.

Marcel DEAT with his entire steff is supposed to be in Italy still.

Joseph GARETTE, leader of the Jeunesse Europenne, a collaborationist youth movement, is known to be in Italy, as well as about 15 of his staff, all of whom were trained by two Amt VI agents (names unknown to SOMMER). GARETTE 's main mission in France was to reorganize the youth group and fight the Allies in the area around the Pyrenees.

PALMIERI, a former agent of the Paris Abwehr office, came to Italy about the first week in March 1945, accompanied by five men, including a certain COTY, a restaurateur in Paris. This small group is of Corsicen descent, speaks fluent Italien,and arrived in Milan with false Swiss papers. Their last address was Milan.

SOMMER estimates the number of trained French agents now hiding in Italy to be about 100, with approximately another 1,400 active political collaborationists scattered throughout Northern Italy. Knowing the mentality of these people, SOMMER convinced that their work did not end with the cessation of hostilities and that some clandestine activity must be going on.

Conclusions

SOMMER came to this Center under the name Herbert SENNER and the interrogation proceeded according to the knowledge brief, with SOMMER seemingly co-operating 100%. It was not possible at this Center to check the veracity of his information. Even now, although in possession of the French data on SOMMER, which hardly differs at all from our version on the general intelligence aspect, although it shows discrepancies in SOMMER's real name, birthplace and other pre-GIS data, it should be borne in mind that he still may be witholding information from us.

When confronted with the new evidence, SOMMER readily admitted that the name SENNER, as well as all the other details of hid pre-GIS career, were given to him by Amt VI at the time he joined them. He was told to forget his real name completely and to be known only under the name SENNER.

When SOMMER joined the Deuxieme Bureau, he revealed his family name, but at CIE 76, allegedly because of harsh treatment, he decided to withold the truth. At this Center, in spite of self-admitted satisfaction with the treatment, he still concealed the true facts. SOMMER claimed that he feared complications, solitary confinement, and a prolonged stay in this Center, if he revealed his real name.

SOMMER as a personality is not to be considered reliable, but his information as given in this report is seemingly genuine. He is shwred, calculating and opportunistic. He is ready to work for his former enemies and at the same time professes to be nationalist. At all time he is ready to hunt with the hounds and run with the hare. (...) Signed John Heinig, Capt AUS Chief, CI Section."

"La documentación consultada en el Archivo del Ejército del Aire se detiene en el manuscrito que el ministro Jordana presentó al Consejo de Ministros. Combinando este material con el que nos proporcionó la CHANA procedente de los servicios secretos norteamericanos, las acciones del coronel Vélez quedan en gran parte aclaradas. Como se sabe según este ultimo material, Vélez se reunió con Reinhard SPITZY, representante de la fábrica de armas alemana Waffen Union Skoda-Brunn, en Lisboa a fines de diciembre de 1943 (Embassy of the United States of America, Despatch 1902, Madrid January 17 1944 y Pangerm May 10 1946). La conversación giró sobre la posibilidad de que Argentina pudiera comprar a Alemania material de guerra (artillería antiaérea, artillería antitanque, etc.). SPITZY se ofrece únicamente a mediar en las negociaciones. Así lo hace al informar primero al Embajador de Alemania en España, Walter DIECKHOFF, de lo que VÉLEZ le ha propuesto (29 de diciembre de 1943). Dieckhoff, quien consulta el caso con Walter BECKER, Consejero de la Embajada Alemana, cree que la posibilidad de transportar armas hacia la Argentina sería difícil, a pesar de que dicho negocio sería una garantía para mantener la neutralidad de este país sudamericano. SPITZY dirige una última comunicación aparentemente al presidente de la Waffen-Union en Berlín (30 de diciembre de 1943), en la que expresa la conveniencia militar y política de vender armas a Argentina. Mientras tanto, VÉLEZ ha regresado a Madrid, reiniciando las conversaciones con las autoridades militares españolas del modo como ha sido relatado en los párrafos anteriores, según la fuente consultada por esta unidad en el Archivo del Ejercito del Aire."

"At 1030 hours Force K received a sighting report from a Junkers Ju 86Z of 15 Sqd SAAFof a suspicious vessel in the area south of Cape Agulhas, 74 miles, 167i from Cape of Good Hope. Approximate position 35-44S, 18-47E. Force K then steered for the position of the suspicious vessel.

The vessel sighted by the Ju 86Z of 15 Sqd piloted by Captain Boshoff, was the German liner the SS WATUSSI 9521grt. The WATUSSI had sailed from Lourenco Marques, Mozambique, on 22/11/39. She had on board 43 passengers and 155crew, and was believed to be attempting to return to Germany.

Force H comprising the SUSSEX and SHROPSHIRE had recently completed fuel at Simonstown and were returning to the patrol area. When Force H received the sighting report they also steered for the poison of the suspicious vessel and being nearer they arrived first. On the approach of SUSSEX, Captain Stamer, the master of the WATUSSI set his vessel on fire and set the scuttling charges and the crew and passengers abandoned ship. The 155crew and 42 passengers were picked up by SUSSEX." Lt Cdr Geoffrey B Mason. Service histories of royal navy warships in World War 2, December 2, 1939.

Duties and tasks of the branch I-M

- Ship Interrogation Service.

The duties of this branch were to obtain reports on enemy convoys, scattered freighters and warships at sea, and conditions and activities in foreign ports.o implement these missions, I-M recruited Spanish sailors as agents. (These men, at the various ports of call, would contact an agent or hand the German consulate a report of what had been observed at route. These reports were then forwarded to the German Embassy in Madrid in an envelope marked "Fuer SOMMER" or "Fuer SOMOZA", both cover names for KO Spain.) The placing of these agents on board was gratly facilitated by the willing cooperation of the ship-board and harbor police of the Spanish Brigada Movil. The agents were paid for each report according to its value, the highest amount paid was 1,000 Pesetas. The withdrawal of Allied certificates for Spanish sailors reduced the number of agents considerably.

- Observation of the Straits of Gibraltar.

On the northern side of the Straits an observation port was installed at Algeciras for night and day operation. It was manned buy German seamen, who had a radio link with Madrid. On the other side there was one post at Ceuta, Morocco, run by Kurt MEYER, alias MOVA and another at Tangier run by KRUEGER, alias KRUSE. These men were commanded by Ost/Lt. RUDOLF, who was in charge of all Abt I activities in Morocco. He was responsible to Obst KIEKEBUSCH, I-Leiter KO Spain. MEYER and KRUEGER sent their reports by radio to Tetuan, capital of Spanish Morocco, from where they were sent to Madrid. In addition, RUDOLF stationed observers at the approaches to the Straits, the Western one at Cabo Spartel near Tangier, and the eastern one at Cape Tres Forcas near Melilla.

The Straits were further observed by agents of the Bureau Felipe of Sdf KUEHLENTHAL. This Bureau came under Abt I, KO Spain, and was used by KIEKEBUSCH for special and secret missions, which he did not see fit to entrust to I-M, I-H or I-L. The observations of the Straits by KUEHLENTHAL's men was known as Operation Cosmos, and observation post were maintained at Algeciras and Tarifa. Cosmos used part of the Network of Sirene, Servicio de Informaciones Militares, SIM (the Spanish Intelligence Service), because KUEHLENTHAL had excellent connections with the SIM. Reports were sent from Algeciras by Lt. alias CHICO, a Spanish staff officer, to alias JUAN, a radio operator located in the calle Reina Victoria 16, Madrid. Lt. Col. SANCHEZ RUBIO, a SIM officer at Algeciras, also had a hand in the Cosmos reports.

Later I-M established a special post, Caesar, Algeciras, to recruit agents to observe the Rock and Basta, the harbor of Gibraltar. However, I-M was not satisfied with the results of any of its posts or agents, and early in 1942 the entire onservation system of the Straits was reorganized and the new system was called Gruppe Bodden. This gruppe had more efficient personnel, better equipment and was under the constant supervision of a I-M officer.

Bodden stations were set up in Algeciras, Ceuta and Tangier, under the cover names of Bodega, Leopard and Luchs respectively. Bodega was equipped with three telescopic cameras, with which pictures were taken of convoys passing throug the Straits and, with assistance of Spanish authorities in Algeciras, of the Rock of Gibraltar. Some of these pictures were made available to the Spaniards. The film used was not sensitive to infrared radiations.

Leopard was housed in a special building constructed for the Germans by the Spaniards within the Spanish military zone at Punta Leona near Ceuta. The arrangements for this were made by Obst/Lt RUDOLF with Gen ORGAZ, High Commissioner of Spanish Morocco, and the construction was directed by the Spanish staff officers Maj. ARENAS and Capt GABARON. Transportation of building materials and furnishing of passes to the military zone were effected by tho Spanish Lt Col DIAZ-FERNANDEZ. The German personnel of Leopard vas assigned to the Spanish Foreign Legion (Legion Extranjera), and this organization furnished the station with food and supplies. The equipment for the station vas brought by Spanish military transport. Despite these elaborate deceptive arrangements, radio communication could, not be established with Madrid because the Allies had discovered the existence of the post. So Leonard was moved to a private house on the beach near Ceuta, Playa Benitez, outside the Spanish military zone, and from here radio communication with Madrid was established.

Both Bodega and Leopard were equipped with telescopes, large searchlights with infrared filters and special telescopes sensitive to infrared radiations. They also had an apparatus known as Elle which was a direction finder for ships, revealing their location by recording the heat radiations. Fog and other heat-dissipating atmosphereic conditions reduced the efficiency of Elle.

In Autumn 1943 the Spaniards, acting under pressure from the Allies, forbade the use of these dovices, and tho Bodden stations were closed. The filters, telescopes and Elle were sent to Germany and the searchlights were given to the Spaniards. However, some of the equipment destined for Germany from Leopard was held by the Spanish authorities upon its arrival in Algeciras, and they refused to give it up in spite of the intervention of KIEKEBUSCH.

After the closing of tho Bodden stations, the bulk of the Straits observation was made by Comos, although I-M set up a new group of posts. KRUEGER fron Bodega was sent to Malaga. MEYER and a Spanish W/T operator alias MENDOZA were set up at Ceuta, where another post was also established manned by four Spanish recruited by V-Mann OLIVARES alias LISTO from Cadiz. This station remained in contact with Madrid until the end of the war. In Tangier there were three posts; the first, established by Korv/Kpt KELLER and three Spaniards, was active until the end, but the second, under an architect fron Tangier, RUIZ alias GURUGU, was a failure, and the third, organized by OLIVARES, was started too late to show any results. KELLER left his post shortly after setting it up. The posts in Ceuta and Tangier were supervised by Ernesto BRAVO alias CAMPEON, a V-Mann of O/Fw SICK in Madrid. BRAVO came to Madrid once a month to make a personal report and settle the financial accounts. MEYER, the only German remaining in the Moroccan stations, was naturally not supervised by BRAVO; he reported directly to KIEKEUSCH.

Observation of the Straits under the Gruppe Bodden produced excellent results, principally because it was done by Germans with good equipment. Both day and night observations were conducted at all times, and were exceptionally successful under good atmospheric conditions. After the dissolution of the Bodden stations, however, the observation was done by Spaniards, who had neither interest nor experience in the work. Their incentive was purely monetary. Their observation was inaccurate during the day, and they made no attempt at night operations. For this reason, the observation done by Cosmos was always both better and ampler.

Ruecksugs Netz (Stay-Behind Network)

Toward the end of I943 Berlin ordered all Nests of KO Spain to set up an R-Net, in order to be prepared for a possible Allied occupation of the country. This operation was directed from Madrid by Korv Kapt GELDERN alias GABERS and O/Fw SICK. The net consisted of agents and W/T operators. The agents were to collect the information normally collected by I-M and give it to the operators, who were to wire it to Germany. GELDERN went to Sigmaringen and set up a message center called Sonja, which was to be the central station of the net. Those stations in Spain not capable of communicating with Sonja were to transmit to MK's in Spain, which would relay the information. STUBBS set up an MK in Madrid manned by R-Mann alias TIBURON and W/T operator alias TIEMPO.

The K-Maenner hired were paid by the Nests out of funds supplied by FRANZBACH alias PAGO, the paymaster of KO Spain. Certain sums were also set aside to establish caches of money with which to pay the net after a German withdrawal. Receipts for the money thus expended by the Nests were sent to tho paymaster so that an accurate check could be kept. I-M established no caches of sabotage equipment or weapons. Its net was to be an agency purely for the collection and dissemination of information. 17 transmitters were sent fron Paris and distributed. At the end of the war I-M discharged all its R-Maenner and the Nests returned to FRANZBACH the remainder of the money allotted for the maintenance of the net.

Missions to Foreign Countries

Most of the missions abroad were entrusted to KUEHLENTHAL's agents, members of the Bureau Felipe. The operations of the Bureau were secret, and the maintenance of security was so effective that the other sections of KO Spain seldom knew anything about them. One instance of a break in the security occurred at the end of 1944. A Felipe agent, a Madrid radio announcer called Bobby d'ELGLANE, sent news of his safe arrival in Buenos Aires to KUEHLENTHAL through the cover address used by one of STUBBS' agents. STUBBS complained to KUEHLENTHAL, who gave him an explanation and promised that such a thing would not occur again.

Missions to foreign countries sponsored by I-M were conducted hy FOCK, STUBBS and MOLDENHAUER, and they were invariably unsuccessful. STUBBS accounts for this by the fact that KUEHLENTHAL had all the fine agents. (The latter built up his Bureau in the first days of KO Spain and was greatly assisted in his work by connections made when he was serving in the Condor Legion, as well as by his friendship with influential persons in the Spanish Intelligence Service.)

Typical I-M cases are as follows:

V-Mann Joaquin BATICON alias BALTOS of Madrid was camouflaged as a waiter on a Spanish steamer bound for South America. Once there he was to make his way to the US nothing was heard from hin after his departure, and it is presumed that he was discovered and nrrested in Trinidad.

V-Mann ESPINA, a Uruguayan consul, was to go to the US by the same route. It is known that he was apprehended at Trinidad.

V-Mann GOMA was sent as a telegrapher to Santa Isabel on the island Fernando Po, off the coast of Spanish Guinea (Central West Africa). He was instructed to report on passing convoys. No reports were ever received from him and he was dismissed. (...)

Assistance from the Spanish authorities

The aid received from Spanish authorities ranged from their active participation in the construction of the Leopard house to the granting of permission to photograph the Rock of Gibraltar from the restricted zone of Algeciras. Through Eloy PENA of the Brigada Movil it was possible to check at any time on the entry of all foreigners into Spain and their movements within the country. A direct use of the Spanish Intelligence Service occurred in the case of the alias CHICO and alias JUAN link in the operation Cosmos. Good relations were mantained with all Spanish ministries either through influential V-Maenner or through friends of the German veterans of the Condor Legion. The ministries sent many reports to I-M, and those which did not concern I-M (mainly foreign and domestic politics) were sent through KIEKEBUSCH to the German Embassy in Madrid. Towards the end of the war, when relations with the ministries were cooling, STUBBS claims that no attempts were made to penetrate them. I-M was not permitted to penetrate the Spanish Naval Ministry; that privilege was reserved to the German Naval Attache.

Conclusions

According to STUBBS and BUGGE the outstanding succes of I-M, KO Spain was the operation of Gruppe Boddien, which ironically, the Spaniards were forced to dissolve at the sime time that they were giving the Germans enthusiastic support. The subordinate positions of the prisioners apparently prevented them from having any extensive knowledge of the activities of the Bureau Felipe, which seems to have conducted the more interesting cases. Also conected with TOMAS, aliases Charles BOYER, Manfred KATZ, Marcel BERGER or Thomas ALFRED.
Apparently SKOLNIKOW was murdered in Spain, near Buitrago, Madrid, 9 June, 1945 in uncleared circumstances:
Safehaven report, OSS Washington Secret Intelligence Special Funds Records 1942-1946. dated August 3, 1945:
"The report that Szkolnikoff had been murdered was subsequently denied by reports in the British press to the effect that the murdered man was not Szkolnikoff, but an unknown person whose body was so disguised as to make it appear that it was Szkolnikoff's. No official confirmation of this latter report has been received by MEWFO.
According to Roger Faligot and Pascal Krop, La Piscine. The French Secret Service since 1944, p. 29: " In January 1945 four DGER men, one of them an immediate assistant of Colonel Passy, executed 'Monsieur Michel' in Spain. The Civil Guard discovered that the body was that of Michel Szkolnikoff, and were informed of his lurid past through the press: a dealer in cheapjack goods before the War, particularly in clothes, he had made his fortune by re-selling to the German Army. This was done under the egregious protection of the Gestapo' to whom he passed information concerning Resistance 'terrorists'. Szkolnikoff had been betrayed by his Gestapo friend Rudy von Merode, also exiled in Spain."

REMER, Otto Ernst. Generalmajor. Wehrmacht. Born in Neubrandenburg on 18 August 1912. Died in Marbella, Spain, 4 October 1997. Captured by American troops, and remained a prisoner until 1947. After the war he co-founded the Sozialistische Reichspartei (SRP), advancing Holocaust denial, and is considered the "Godfather" of the post-war Nazi underground. Remer's Socialist Reich Party, which he had co-founded in 1950, was banned in 1952. With the party banned, Remer faced criminal charges from the German government as being the successor party to the Nazis. He was hidden in the chalet of Countess Faber-Castell, an early supporter of the party, before he fled to Egypt. He returned to Germany in the 1980s, creating the German Freedom Movement which advocated a reunified country and the expulsion of NATO. It was an umbrella organisation for 23 underground Nazi organisations and allowed Remer the opportunity to create a new generation of followers.

From 1991 to 1994, Remer put out his own publication, the Remer-Depesche. Remer was sentenced to 22 months of imprisonment in October 1992, for writing and publishing a number of articles that were said to incite "racial hatred", through their questioning of the Holocaust. The political impact of this case upon the government is discussed in Searle's Wehrmacht Generals. His complaint over alleged violations of fairness of trial and freedom of speech was unanimously rejected by the European Commission on Human Rights. In February 1994, Remer went into exile in Spain, in a successful effort to avoid imprisonment for his controversial public statements about the Holocaust. (Information from Wiki)

ROGELIO (alias). From Nuernberg Interrogation Records › ... OCCPAC Interrogation Transcripts And Related Records › Dernbach, Friedrich:

Under the PETAIN government ROGELIO had been the warden of La Sante prison in Paris, and then had become an agent of Alst Paris working for NIEBURR. He was a native Frenchman but his parents and wife lived in Barcelona, where his father owned a paper factory and a. printing press. As he had these Spanish connections, he was assigned to the FAK for long-range missions. In January 1945 it was planned to parachute him near Barcelona with the following missions:
(1) To contact his father in Barcelona and have him print French identification papers and food stamps for the use of ROGELIO and future agents.
(2) To proceed to Chalon sur Saone, in the vicinity of which he owned a small estate with a stone quarry, and select a parachute landing site and provide it with light signals.
(3) To set up a transmitter in the stone quarry.
(4) To continue on to Paris and find his friend BARTOLOMÉ, who was active with enemy intelligence. Through him .ROGELIO was to penetrate the service and arrange to have agents parachuted near Kreuznach, so that they could be caught by FAK 313 and played back.
(5) To collect information concerning the Allied front from Switzerland to Luxemburg.
(6) To discover Germans working for Allied intelligence.
(7) To ascertain the political and economic conditions in France.

It was impossible to put this operation into effect because neither a plane nor sufficient gasoline were procurable. Later an attempt was made to get a plane to parachute him near Chalon, but this also proved impossible. It was then decided to start ROGELIO from Italy, but here again new difficulties had arisen (...)From Italy there were also difficulties. ROGELIO was not strong enough to uss the land route into France, and there were no submarines to transport him by sea, so he use to go to Barcelona by the water route that FLIC was supposed to have established. From Spain it was intended that he go to France(...).
ROGGENBAU-LAAS Karl / Carlos. Interpreter in German Ministry of Labour in Madrid. NSDAP.

ROGER, Pierre. Information of OSS, Art Unit, dated 1sy May, 1945, Individuals involved in suspicious Art activities, Iberian Peninsula: "A well known gangster" A short time ago a Frenchman named Pierre ROGER was offering For sale in Barcelona, through an intermediary, a painting on wood, measuring 70 x 50 cms, attributed to Montecelli and depicting two girls seated on a bench in a garden. The price asked was Ptas. 25,000 but no sale materialised as the prospective buyer offered a considerably lower figure and demanded at the same time a clean bill from the British or American authorities.

It is suggested that the picture may at one time have been in the possession of an American consul in Nice, named GOULD."

ROGGEWEEN Margarita ChrIiana Gertrud misspelled: ROGGEWEHN, Gertrud, alias Tutas ROGGEWEEN, alias also PUTTHAS / TUTTHAS in German passport. cover-name:TANJA . Female agent working for Abwehr VI / SD.

Information from agent ARNOLD, her handler: "ROGGEWEHN had been married to a Dutch citizen, but had separated from him before the war. She was living in Paris when the Germans marched in, and assumed contact with SD there. SS-Sturmbannfuehrer and Kriminaldirector SCHMIDTZ sent her to Spain to work as an agent, forwarding several thousands Pesetas to ARNOLD to give to her and asking him to stand by her with counsel and aid. Mme. ROGGEWEHN arrived in Madrid in early 1944; during the first months she made several trips to Berlin and Paris, establishing the business which was to serve her cover."

This was a beauty salon. She had also the Spanish representations rights of the French perfumery Worth. Her connection in Worth was a certain M. BLANCHET (or similar name. ARNOLD was not sure about it). ROGGEWEHN had lived for a time with her her, who was married to a German physician named SCHRADER in Nuñez de Balboa, 44.

When Karl HERTEL arrived in Spain, he and ROGGEWEHN rented a house at an address in General Mola street, whereupon ARNOLD pass the handling to HERTEL and advised Berlin to that effect. ROGGEWEHN had a valid German passport in the name of PUTTHAS or TUTTHAS and used this passport for her travels to Berlin And Paris. She had also a Dutch passport in her own name. ROGGEWEHN had countless acquaintances among Germans living in Madrid.

She was also in touch with Ernst ALISCH, of the SD Paris. ROGGEWEHN and HERTEL continued living together after the war.

ROHRBACH, Hans Bernard Joseph. SD agent. 1.75m, 43 years, brown hair, thin face, heavy built, green eyes. From Art Looting Investigation Unit Final Report:"Director of Cosmos firm. Jewelry smuggler, active in Belgium, Spain and Portugal."

From Roberts Commission, Subject file: Menten:

"German, born Witten (Ruhr) 5 September 1903. Passport No. 337142 issued Antwerp 13 April 1942.

Lived since 1927 in Antwerp where he was considered active German propagandist. Married to Eugenie Gertrud Elizabeth PETERS. Is director-general of Cosmos, long established shipping agency of moderate size which underwent considerable expansion during German occupation. Head office is at 50 Quai Kipdorp, Antwerp, branches in Brussels, Hamburg. Paris. Firm used to ship from Antwerp to Germany in barges large quantities of metal.

Subject was arrested by Portuguese police at Lisbon, 5 June 1944, on charge of smuggling industrial diamonds from Belgium. Diamonds were found in his luggage and he was imprisoned but early in July he was removed to Santa Marta Hospital in Lisbon from which he escaped in Sept.

In Oct. 1944 Karl SCHWARZ VOK BERG was authorized by Berlin to attach subject to his SD organization. British report of 16 November says Spanish police are trying to hasten his departure; may be given a mission in Switzerland."

From Wilhelm PAHL's interrogation (*OMGUS, External Assets Investigation, Unit, Genera*l: Pahl, Wilhelm (Interrogation report):

"ROHRBACH was a client of Westbank Ltd. since 1941. He was the owner of Cosmos Transport Kontor Ltd, Antwerp, with branches in Paris, Brussels and Manheim.
- ROHRBACH used to sell diamonds and jewellry for the S.D in Spain and Portugal and, according to PAHL, he worked as a S.D agent in those countries.
- PAHL knows ROHRBACH only from his business connections with Westbank. ROHRBACH used to carry out large-escale compensation transactions between Spain, Portugal and Germany whereby Westbank procured the necessary financial credits and advances.
- ROHRBACH told PAHL on one occasion in 1942 that he was given a responsible post in the S.D., in the liquidation of Belgium Jewry.
- PAHL states that, while smuggling jewellry into Portugal, ROHRBACH was arrested in Lisbon in April 1943 and sentenced to 9 years imprisonment. In 1944 ROHRBACH succeeded in being released on grounds of ill-health and is still supposed to be in Lisbon at present."

According to Roberts Commission, Subject file: Menten and Loot miscellaneous: in contact with Charles Georg KONINCKX: "Further information received on KONINCK indicates that he had connections with Hans ROHRBACH, a diamond smuggler, who was arrested by the Portuguese Police on'«Sine 5, 1943 and later escaped. He was carrying looted diamonds from Belgium, which he had orders to exchange for foreign currency. KONINCK was also connected with a certain Adrian Otlot, of San Sebastian and Madrid. Qtlet and Rohrbach are included in the Statutory and the Proclaimed Lists.

ROHRBACH 's connections with GOERING (OMGUS, Interrogations Of All Close Friends Of Nazi Big Wigs Gisela Limberger:

A. No, never. He always sent me.
Q. And you went only a few times?
A. Yes, but I often went to the Thyssen Bank.
Q. Can you remember the name of the man in the Deutsche Bank?
A. He was a director of the Deutsche Bank, Bayrischer Platz, (ROHRBACH?).

Q. Was he the only person who handled the GOERING account in the Deutsche Bank?
A. The only one I saw.
Q. Did any particular man in the Deutsche Bank have charge of the GOERING account?
A. I do not know. No.
Q. How was it that you talked to this man each time?
A. When I became Goering's secretary, I went to the Deutsche Bank and GOERING had written a letter that I was in charge of his money. I went there just to introduce myself. I talked to the director and when I brought a check or letter,he was very friendly.
Q. You saw the same man each time?
A. Yes."

Diamonds smuggler: " La connexion ibérique. Ici, il est clair qu'il ne s'agissait plus de diamants 'vendus' après avoir été dérobés entre juin et septembre 1941 dans les patrimoines abandonnés par les diamantaires en fuite, mais bien de marchandises confisquées. Dans une phase initiale, les pierres saisies, principalement des diamants bruts, mais aussi des diamants taillés de 290 carats, furent vendues à Frans VAN ELSEN, alors président du Diamantclub. Mais cela n'arriva qu'exceptionnellement. Au fur et à mesure que l'industrie était réorganisée par LEMBERG et que des canaux de distribution étaient mis en place, les diamants taillés, qui représentaient quelque 13.000 carats au total, furent essentiellement mis à la disposition du service du Vierjahresplan à La Haye. La destination de ces pierres ne peut être établie que pour quelques lots seulement. Selon des estimations approximatives, quelque 40 % des 13.000 carats, soit environ 5.000 carats, devraient avoir été acheminés jusqu'à la firme Westen GmbH de La Haye, une société de blanchiment sous le contrôle du Vierjahresplan. Westen devait trouver acquéreur pour les diamants dérobés sans éveiller les soupçons des acheteurs potentiels (ou des Alliés). Les diamants furent vendus à l'étranger contre des devises et de l'or sur ordre de Hermann GÖRING, par l'intermédiaire d'une personne ou d'une société allemande. Les acheteurs se trouvaient en Suisse, au Portugal, en Espagne, en Grèce, en Turquie et en Suède.334 Cependant, les échanges ne s'organisèrent que lentement et en 1944, la majeure partie des diamants étaient toujours en Allemagne. Début 1943, une partie du Treuhandgut fut vendue par PLÜMER, et donc par la firme Westen, à Breugelmans afin d'être échangée contre des devises fortes. BREUGELMANS fit intervenir l'agent allemand Hans ROHRBACH pour écouler les diamants à l'étranger. La marchandise représentait au moins 3.500 carats pour une valeur d'environ 11.000.000 BEF, et fut proposée à la vente par Rohrbach lors de divers voyages en Espagne et au Portugal. La masse de diamants vendue par ROHRBACH sur ordre de PLÜMER et consorts était donc supérieure à 3.500 carats; le poids exact ne put être déterminé avec précision. ROHRBACH fut finalement capturé par les autorités portugaises et mis sous les verrous. Comme nous le précisons plus haut, les diamants restants furent confisqués par les autorités portugaises.

[335] Les destinataires furent les suivants : le Suisse Albert PLAJET / Jerez de la Frontera : 850.000 BEF ; le Français Armenac HAMPARZUMIAN (originaire d'Anvers): 6.250.000 BEF ; les sociétés Armando Halpern et Nunes Pinheiro (Portugal) : 482 carats pour 1.250.000 BEF ; saisis par les autorités portugaises : 562,13 carats pour 2.500.000 BEF. Des lots encore plus importants furent vendus à HAMPARZUMIAN (probablement pour 2.000.000 CHF) et un certain "X" dont ROHRBACH refusa de révéler le nom, même après la guerre. Les archives mentionnent cependant un certain KÖSSLER sur lequel, toutefois, aucune information ne fut retrouvée. PLAJET est probablement l'administrateur de la société Vda. de E. Plaget (? probably Piaget) , Primo de Rivera 20, Jerez de la Frontera (W. RUDOLF. alias RECKE, alias MORUNO. Obst/Lt. I-M, KO Spanien, Spanish Morocco (named in STUBBS and BUGGE's report on I-M Spain). " The Leiter of Nest Tetuan was Obst RUDOLF, alias RECKE, who was considered the best operator in North Africa. He used a great number of agents, mostly Arab and Moroccan traders. Each one supplied him with a small bit of reliable information, and because of the multitude of his agents RUDOLF was able to piece together a reasonably comprehensive picture of what was going on in the area under observation. The bulk of the intelligence secured by this Nest was concerned with French Morocco and Algeria. From reading RUDOLF's reports, KURRER is fairly sure that he never sent any agents to the US or England. In 1944, under Allied pressure, Spain forced Germany to close down this station, and RUDOLF was sent to KdM Stuttgart as Leiter I." (See KURRER, Otto)

Subject's antecedents.
-Apprentice at Deutsch-Sudamerikanische Bank 1922-1924. Head of the Commercial Department at Anglo-South-American Bank, Hamburg from 1925 till 1936. Employee at Deutsche Bank, Hamburg 1936-1938.
- In April 1938 he emigrated to Spain in order to work for Compañia Vasco-Africana Ltd., Madrid and San Sebastian.
- In January 1939 he became Administrative Manager of Vasco-Africana at Kogo, Spanish Guinea, there he remained until September 1941 when he fell sick and returned to France by plane.
- The German authorities returned him to Hamburg, where he reported to the Bank der Deutschen Arbeit.
- In January 1942 he was first sent to Brussels where he remained for one month and then to Antwerp by the Bank der Deutschen Arbeit in order to work as a manager at the Antwerp and Brussels branches of Westbank which was sponsored by the Bank der Deutschen Arbeit.
- PAHL remained in Antwerp until the German retreat in September 1944, when he returned first to Cologne and after 10 days to Hamburg,
- In December 1944 he was called up and joined an Interpreter company of Werhkreis X, Hamburg, to which he belonged to surrender of Hamburg on 3 May 1945.
Connection with Ast. X.

- When subject returned to Hamburg from Spanish Guinea via Marseille in September 1942 he was contacted by a representative of the Ruckwanderer Amt, Herr GOPPELT, who was an official of NSDAP.
- GOPPELT introduced PAHL at the Beginning of October 1941 (sic) to a member of the Abwehr Ast Bremen with the name of Regierungsrat FRISCHMUTH who requested from PAHL a detailed report on conditions in Spanish Guinea and observations he had made during his journey via Cotenou, French Daome, Gao-Sahara and Algiers.
- PAHL submitted a detailed written report to FRISCHMUTH giving information on economical, political and military observations. PAHL received from FRISCHMUTH 300 Marks as payment for his report.
- PAHL turned to the manager of the Bank der Deutschen Arbeit , GRAMKE, for employment and was accepted as manager of Westbank, which was sponsored by BDDA.
- In December 1941, PAHL passed a superficial training as Bank manager at BDDA in Hamburg. At that time he was granted exemption from military service through GRAMKE who had informed Major PIEPER of PAHL's subsequent employment in Belgium.
- GRAMKE introduced PAHL to Major PIEPER who gave his name as Dr. FRITZ. Fraulein LEWERENZ, GRAMKE's secretary, told PAHL that this was merely a cover name for Major PIEPER. Fraulein LEWERENZ knew this because of GRAMKE's relations to the Abwehr and SD.
- PIEPER requested PAHL to look out for potential Abwehr agents during his work in Belgium. These were to be used as informants and W/T operators. PAHL agreed.

Agents recruited

Jose TUERO DE CASTRO (see TUERO DE CASTRO, Jose)
Hans ROHRBACH (see ROHRBACH, Hans)
Pablo MITJANS DE CASTANY (see MITJANS DE CASTANY, Pablo)

- PAHL's second and last journey to Spain took place in February 1944. He spent three weeks in Spain on a holiday. On his return, he summited PIEPER another report on the economical and political position in Spain etc.

Secret account.

In July 1942 GRAMKE requested PAHL to open a secret account in PAHL's name from which Abwehr agents should be paid.

PIEPER would credit this account with a monthly sum of Bfrs. 10,000.

All correspondance between PAHL and PIEPER was to go via GRAMKE.

In June 1943 PIEPER informed PAHL that he could be contacted through an employee of Dr. KOCH by the name of Joseph MEYER, who, together with SERRIEN was in W/T communication with PIEPER.

PIEPER instructed PAHL to pay in Bfrs. to the u/m out of the secret Abwehr account:

PAVELIC, Ante, alias Antonio SERDAR, alias GIUSEPPE, alias Pablo ARANJOS, alias Pale ARANIOS, alias Pedro GONNER. "The world's most wanted—yet least pursued—war criminal" (Cali Ruchala). Leader of Ustasha. Born Bradina (Konjic) Bosnia-Herzegovina; 14 July 1889. Died Madrid, Spain 28 December 1959. Wife: Maria PAVELIC nee LAVRENZI. Children: Mirjana, Visnja and Velimir.

As the leader of the Ustasha, he directly ordered, organized and conducted a campaign of terror and genocide directed against Serbs, Jews, Roma, and Orthodox Christians.

In May 1945, Pavelic and his entourage fled to Austria and then to Italy where he was shielded by the Vatican from extradition to Yugoslavia for war crimes. From 1948 PAVELIC lived in Argentina protected by PERÓN. After the war, Pavelic continued to exercise control over many of the Ustasha exiles and fugitives until his death in 1959 in Spain. An attempt on his life in 1957 left him injured and he fled to Franco's Spain where he was protected by the FRANCO's regime and died in Hospital Alemán , Madrid. The cause of his death was related to his injuries received in Buenos Aires. Dr Rudolf SAJITZ was the physician who attended PAVELIC. PAVELIC was buried in the Cementerio de San Isidro, Madrid.

Wikipedia (english) contains a very good survey of the subject. But the most accurate documental evidence can be found in the excellent research project The Pavelic Papers, edited by Cali RUCHALA and Sinisa DJURIC:

"Poglavnik ("leader"; in German, "fuehrer") of the Independent State of Croatia, founder of the Ustase movement and mastermind of the Holocaust in Croatia in which an estimated 600,000 to 1 million Serbs, Jews, Roma and political prisoners perished between 1941 and 1945. Leader of the extreme right, or "Frankist" faction of Croat Party of Rights after World War I. Following the assassination of Croat Peasant Party leader Stjepan RADIC and the imposition of the Royal Dictatorship in Yugoslavia on January 6, 1929, PAVELIC went abroad, first to Austria and then to Italy, where the nascent Ustase were provided training camps and afforded protection from the Fascist Italian government. Following the Nazi invasion and dismemberment of Yugoslavia on April 6, 1941, proclaimed poglavnik of the Independent State of Croatia (NDH by its Serbo-Croat acronym), but only after RADIC's successor, Vladko MACEK, declined to lead the puppet state himself. Immediately implemented the Ustase plan for the "purification" of the NDH using the formula coined by his deputy Mile BUDAK: "kill a third, expel a third, and convert a third" of the Serbian population to Catholicism.

Concentration camps such as Jasenovac were established as the Ustase Black Legion swept through Serbian villages and arrested Jews and Roma wherever they could be found.

After the collapse of the NDH, PAVELIC escaped to Austria and then to Italy, where he linked up with Vatican operatives of the "Ratline," dedicated to shielding accused war criminals from arrest and shuttling them out of Europe. Escaped to Argentina with the help of Catholic priest, Ustase officer and Ratline operative Krunoslav DRAGANOVIC. Immediately upon arrival in Buenos Aires, formed a successor movement to the Ustase with other NDH fugitives and accused war criminals, and later the Croatian Liberation Movement, which still exists today as a miniscule political party in Zagreb. Acted as security advisor to Argentine dictator Juan PERON. After an attempt on his life on April 9, 1957, fled to FRANCO's Spain where he died on December 28, 1959."

1. The Ratline (1946-1955)
"(...) Following the collapse of the Independent State of Croatia in May of 1945, the leadership of the Ustase fled for the Austrian border. The Croatian refugees they fled with were handed back to the Yugoslav government, but an incredible number of the Ustase ringleaders managed to escape. Poglavnik Ante PAVELIC remained in Austria for a short while before proceeding to Rome. There he and several of his underlings concealed themselves on Vatican property while former Ustase officer and priest Fr. Krunoslav Draganovic masterminded their escape to South America. Agent William Gowen of the CIC was assigned to the case, conducted surveillance of Pavelic's Vatican refuge and was prepared to make an arrest when his superiors intervened. Draganovic had been contacted at the same time and offered a quid pro quo by American agents stationed in Austria to smuggle their own assets - among them Gestapo Chief of Lyon Klaus Barbie - in return for their assistance to "persons of interest" to him. Pavelic remained in Rome for more than a year before departing for Buenos Aires, where he joined a dozen other officials from the Independent State of Croatia and began the resurrection of the Ustase movement in exile.":

22 January 1947
Memorandum For The Officer In Charge:
Subject: PAVELIC, Dr. Ante.
RE: Summary of Information.
1. Reports coming from many informants indicated that PAVELIC, Dr. Ante, the Croat Ustascia Chief, has been in Rome at various times since the war ended and might be in Rome at the present time. Pursuant to instructions from the Supervising Agent of this detachment, an investigation was initiated.

2. Information having its source in reliable informants indicates that subject is at the present time in the extra-territorial walled-in compound on the left bank of the Tiber, at Lungo Tevere Aventino, Rome. This compound has within its walls five Catholic organizations, a public wine shop, a public garage, a shop of one of the organizations, but open to the public, and one private residence.
3. The five religious organizations are: 1) The Monastery of St. Sabina of the Dominican Order; 2) The St. Alessio School for Roman Studies; 3) The Cavaliers of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta; 4) The Benedictine Monastery of St. Anselmo; 5) A children's school run by Nuns. The compound itself is situated on top of the Aventine Hill which has been built on since Roman times. As a result a conglomeration of buildings old and new now stands. The Hill itself is reputedly honeycombed with subterranean tunnels which link the individual building.

4. The area of the compound has been as carefully checked by this Agent as legal methods permit. The informants of this office have been unable to enter the compound but add that once inside, finding PAVELIC would be a very difficult problem if he lives underground inside an old construction which has long since been built on top of St. Alessio was [page break: one or more lines appears by context to be missing, or the single sentence is a run-on which should be broken after "inside"] relatively easy to enter and one could move about rather freely. Due to the large number of Italian civilians who come and go and the easy entrance it seems somewhat doubtful that PAVELIC would use this spot as a hiding place. The Villa of the Knights of Malta was inspected too. Special permission is required from the Grand Master of the Order, Prince CHIGI himself who lives there 3 months of the year. Italian gardeners are at present the only inhabitants besides an Italian Monsignor who takes care of the Chapel, St. Maria delle Priorita. This too, would seem an unlikely location for the Subject's hiding place as would the convent. The relatively new (1900) Benedictine Monastery St. Anselmo is very hard to enter. True, one can look at the Chapel and the Chapel Crypt and even the library by special appointment, but beyond that one can see nothing. Monks in this monastery are of all nationalities, American included. For this reason and also for the reason that a clandestine entry and exit, the building and walls being new, would seem not to be present. If PAVELIC is really in the compound, it would seem more likely that he would be in St. Sabina. lll St. Sabina is right on the Tiber river from the Church and the Monastery to the street level is a drop of about 150 feet which is enclosed by a 7-8 ft. wall. While checking this wall, this Agent noted at one spot two holes had been knocked laterally into it and two stones had been placed below them to serve as a step. On the stones, in the holes, and on top of the walls were what appeared to be recent footprints. At another place about 75 yards away a similar arrangement was noted. While checking this wall, this Agent further noted a civilian in the ruins on top of which the monastery was built.

Later, while this Agent was at several hundred yards distance said civilian descended from the Monastery, walked up and down twice along the wall as if finding the easiest place to jump from, and finally came down at the above-mentioned spot. This individual later walked down the road and passed this Agent; he was dressed very badly and seemed to be in search of rags and junk. However, his walking up and down the wall in apparent hesitation might indicate that he was not the regular frequenter. St. Sabina, it should be added, has the only Chapel open to the public.

5. The public wine shop was checked and found to be run by a modest Italian family.

The garage set up in tunnels under the hill facing the Tiber was also checked; the tunnels are all apparently sealed off from any others leading deeper into the Aventine. The shop of the Order of Malta was also checked and found to be run by an Italian in the uniform of the Red Cross. Joined to the private residence is a garage which is apparently involved in a trucking building. Nothing suspicious was discovered in any of the above locations.

6. Other information from reliable informants tends to show that the tram line running beneath the Aventine Hill along the Tiber and thence to the Circus Maximus, the Colosseum and Via Cavour is the connecting link between PAVELIC and Via Cavour, 210 int. 3, which is an Ustascia base well known in Rome. (See attached diagram).

7. Every Friday night sometime after 9 PM an Ustascia meeting supposedly takes place at this Via Cavour dwelling. As a result this Agent checked the house on Friday, 10 January 1947 at about 9:30 PM. The train (tram) line had already been watched at a shop near the compound with no untoward activity noted. No suspicious activity was noted around the dwelling upon approach, however, a few moments later an individual made observations in the hall and immediately returned and bolted the main door of the residence. About five minutes later all the first floor shutters were closed by the same person.

Agent's remarks:
8. The informants in question cannot enter the extra-territorial compound and not being Croatians cannot enter the various known Ustascia addresses in Rome. On the other hand it is virtually impossible to get Croats to work against PAVELIC since they are either scared or they think it unpatriotic. While the informants in this case are considered reliable it is difficult to evaluate their reliability in relation to PAVELIC who has been dodging around Europe as his own master for about 15 years. All the information seems plausible and paints a plausible picture when it is taken as a whole. However, it would seem that only direct action against the Via Cavour house, illegal entry into extra-territorial territory or action against such known PAVELIC contacts as DRAGANOVIC, KRUNOSLAV can ultimately reveal the hiding place of PAVELIC and lead to his apprehension. Observation continues.

Summary Of Information
Subject: Present whereabouts and past background of Ante PAVELIC, Croat Quisling
1. From a usually reliable source the following information has been obtained concerning the present whereabouts of Ante PAVELIC, Croat Quisling.
2. With the collapse of German resistance in the Balkans and the subsequent withdrawal of support of the puppet Croat government on the part of the Germans, Ante PAVELIC, fearing for his personal safety at the hands of the Partisans fled from Jugoslavia into Austria where he took refuge in the small village of Celovac near the Austrian-Jugoslav frontier. PAVELIC had an apartment and a villa there.

3. In April of 1946 PAVELIC left Austria and came to Rome accompanied only by an Ustasa Lieutenant named DOCHSEN. Both were dressed as Roman Catholic priests. They took refuge in a college there in Via Giavomo Belli, 3, which is the only college in Rome enjoying complete extra-territoriality, and which can be entered only by presenting the proper credentials. (Presumably the Papal seal is needed because it is said that this is the only college in Rome directly under the administration of the Pope.)

4. This informant further states that a short time ago PAVELIC obtained at the Spanish Consulate in Milano a passport under the name of Don Pedro GONNER. This passport is ready for Spain and has a visa either for South America or Canada. Three other members of the Ustashi are being taken care of in this same fashion but the only one so far identified is General Vlado KREN, Chief of the Croat Air Force under PAVELIC. KREN is an old-time Yugoslav officer who at the outset of the war deserted to the Germans taking with him as much loot and money as he could. He was decorated by the Germans after a lengthy inspection tour of the Craot [sic] Air Force on the Eastern Front.
5. This informant, directed by this Agent to try to penetrate the Ustashi intelligence network in Italy and Jugoslavia, has managed to do so and it has been determined that the network runs from Grumo-Rome-Venice-Trieste-Ljubljana-Zagreb. The whole affair is run under cover of the Roman Catholic clergy whose priests in these monasteries are nearly all of Croat extraction. Complete penetration of this organization is a rather lengthy process but efforts are being continued in that direction. There is no doubt that Ustashi elements in Italy communicate with one another, and that the focal point of all intelligence and activity is the Monastery of Saint Jerome [NB - Anglicized San Girolamo], Via Tomacelli, 132, Rome.
Background:
6. Ante PAVELIC was born in 1896 in Ivan Planina in Bosnia and practiced law in Zagreb. An extremist even in his youth he became a member of the arch-terrorist organization known as the Frankovci whose founder, Dr. Josip FRANK, was a Jew and the father-in-law of Slavko KVATERNIK, the first Croat to be elevated to the rank of Field Marshall. KVATERNIK had long been a strong advocate of Croat separatism and the German ideas on a separate Croat state found in him a reday [sic] tool.
7. The quarrelsome nature of PAVELIC became more and more apparent in the years immediately after the first war when he became involved in one dispute after another with the Centralist Party and the Croat Peasant Party of RADIC. He was the sole representative of his Party in the Skupstina (Jugoslav Parliament) but rarely attended sessions and when he did he sulked in his seat and only occasionally indulged in a long harangue in protest against some measure which he did not approve.

8. In the early 1920's, PAVELIC began to establish his contacts with Croat emigrees in Vienna and Budapest and later on he established a close accord with the Macedonian terrorist society, Imro. In 1927 he acted as counsel for the defense of the Macedonian terrorists at the Skoplje trials.

9. Shortly after the proclamation of the establishment of the dictatorship of King ALEKSANDAR in January 1929, PAVELIC fled abroad and was subsequently condemned to death in absentia at Belgrade for his part in anti-Serb demonstrations organized at Sofia by Bulgarian and Macedonian terrorists.

10. From 1930 onwards while living abroad, a great part of the time in Italy, he became the leader of a terrorist organization eventually to be known as the Ustasha. This organization was financed by Rome and Budapest and given moral encouragement by the Germans. Together with [Branko] JELIC, ARTUKOVIC, and the younger [Eugen-Dido] KVATERNIK and others he was responsible for a serious flurry of bomb outrages, the weapons and explosives all supplied by Italy. This occurred in the period between 1930 and 1935.
11. Camps for training terrorists and saboteurs were set up in Italy and Hungary, chiefly at Brescia and Borgotaro in Italy and Janka Puszta in Hungary and an armed insurrection was attempted in 1933 when the Ustashi, armed by the Italians, attempted to invade the country by crossing the Adriatic in motorboats. This was unsuccessful but its lack of success probably was instrumental in the decision to assassinate King ALEKSANDAR. Two attempts were made, the last one successful and ALEKSANDAR was slain at Marseilles 14 October, 1943 along with the French Minister of the Interior, Jean BARTHOU. The singular lack of armed protection afforded by the Jugoslav monarch, and the general laxity of security precautions when it was well-known that one attempt had already been made on ALEKSANDAR'S life are rather ghastly tributes to the organizational ability of PAVELIC, who apparently had been able to bribe some high official in the Surete General. The Prefect of Police of Marseilles, JOUHANNAUD, was subsequently removed from office.

12. Yugoslavia took her case to the League of Nations offering evidence that Italy and Hungary had openly conspired against her sovereignty. However, for some strange reason Italy's role in the affair was never considered and Hungary bore the brunt of the charges. Italy, furthermore, stubbornly refused to extradite PAVELIC who, along with the younger KVATERNIK, was placed under the permanent supervision of the Italian police until sometime in 1941. During the course of his "house arrest" he was subsidized by the Italians and he conferred long and often with Count Galeazzo CIANO on the prospective coup d'etat in Croatia.

13. In April of 1941 he arrived in Zagreb and proclaimed the Free and Independent State of Croatia with himself as the head of the government. What prompted the Axis powers to put a man like PAVELIC at the head of a puppet government is not too well-known for it was an established fact that he was an ardent extremist of the worse sort and an international gangster. Perhaps it was the fact that the Nazis and Fascists were not looking for leadership. The only thing that they needed was a fanatic, an ultra-chauvinist, who could and would do what they suggested and do it with a vengeance. At any rate in June and July, 1941 PAVELIC and his Croatian nationalists, representing the lunatic fringe of Balkan life, slaughtered in a few weeks tens of thousands of Serbians living in his "independent state" and along its peripheries.

14. PAVELIC remained as head of the "Free and Independent State of Croatia" until early 1945 when he disappeared from the limelight and little trace of him has been found since.

15. PAVELIC'S name tops the list of quislings whom the State Department and the Foreign Office have agreed to hand over to the Yugoslavs for trial. At the present time this Agent is expending every effort to try to trace PAVELIC and his wife. One source yet unconfirmed states that she is living in Venice under an assumed name while yet another says that she is living somewhere in Rome. Agents comments and recommendations: In view of the fact that this man, while generally considered a criminal, is not a criminal in just the ordinary sense but a political criminal as well, and in view of the fact that the Yugoslav Government through its controlled press has on several occasions accused the Anglo- Americans of hiding PAVELIC to further their own aims, this Agent recommends that every effort should be made to apprehend him and ship him back to the Jugoslav Government for trial. In so doing not only would the Yugoslav propaganda guns be silenced and the people of Jugoslavia forced to admit that their previous propaganda was all false, but also a serious threat to security would be removed and the position of the Anglo-Americans strengthened with regard to those south Slav elements who were pro-Allied before the war. The Ustashi organization in Italy is at the present moment a tightly-knit group still maintaining its "cell" organization, still publishing its papers, and still interested in the same aims that they professed before and during the war. The center of this organization is the Monastery of St. Jerome, Via Tomacelli, 132, Rome.

"From the US Army File on Ante Pavelic: This document confirms the information given in Agent William Gowen's previous report, right down to the room number. This appears to have been prepared in final preparation for enforcing an arrest on Pavelic, on Vatican property if need be. The list of "other Ustasha personalities" is only a handful of the high-ranking officials who would escape from justice, contrary to claims made elsewhere that only Pavelic and one or two other Ustase escaped justice after the war. Within the next 18 months, nearly the entire cabinet of the Independent State of Croatia will have relocated to Buenos Aires." (Comment by Sinisa Djuric, Ante Pavelic Papers)

Subject: Ante PAVELIC and other Ustasha personalities
1. Ante PAVELIC is in hiding as an ex-Hungarian General under the name of "Giuseppe". He wears a small pointed beard and has his hair cut short at the sides after the fashion of a German Army officer.
2. Hi [sic] is living on Church property under the protection of the Vatican, at Via Giacomo Venezian No. 17-C, second floor. On entering the building you go along a long and dark corridor. At the end of the corridor there are two stairways, one to the left and one to the right. You must take the right. On the right the rooms are numbered 1,2,3, etc. If you knock once or twice at door No. 3 an unimportant person will come out. But if you knock three times at door No. 3, door No. 2 will open. It leads to the room where PAVELIC lives, together with the famous Bulgarian terrorist Vancia MIKOILOFF and two other persons.

3. About twelve other men live in the building. They are all Ustasha and make up PAVELIC's bodyguard.
4. When PAVELIC goes out he uses a car with a Vatican (SCV) number-plate.
5. The following persons visit the convent occasionally:
- Ivica FRKOVIC, editor of the Ustasha Paper Hrvatski Narod;
- Dr. Feliks POLJANIC, Asst. chief of police Sarajevo;
- Ciro KUDUIA, Ustasha Colonel;

Re: Summary of Information
1. According to a usually reliable source, information regarding Subject was submitted to these Agents and subsequently passed on for guidance and consideration.
2. Until a few months ago Ante PAVELIC, the ex-Poglavnik of Croatia was hidden in Carinzia (Austria) in the American Occupational Zone. Since his sojourn in that region has become always more dangerous, PAVELIC, it appears, has taken advantage of the strong protection of a high prelate and provided with false documents was able to reach Rome in November 1946. In Rome PAVELIC took refuge in a religious institution which enjoys the privilege of diplomatic immunity since it is under the jurisdiction of the Holy See.

This Institute is the "COLLEGIO PIO PONTIFICIO IN PRATI" (Via Giocchino Belli, No. 3) whose director should be a prelate of Croatian or Slavic origin who is probably aware of Poglavnik's escape from Austria. With PAVELIC in the same seminary an intimate associate has taken refuge, a Certain Prof. SAIC, his former secretary and helper. PAVELIC and his secretary, provided with false passports, should soon be leaving for Spain where they would find refuge under the protection of the Spanish phalance (sic).

PAVELIC is being frantically sought by the OZNA [the Yugoslav equivalent of the KGB] and elements of the Soviet GHEPEU. They are offering large sums for his capture or information regarding the exact place of his refuge. In Rome, at the Croat Convent of S. Girolamo degli Illirici, can be found (or at least until a few days ago) PAVELIC's wife, LOVRENCIC, Maria with her two children. They arrived from Tuscany and in Florence they had contacts with ZANNONI, Olga. Another son, Ivan, born in 1908 in Zagabriais is presently in Switzerland at Lausanne (Avenue de Rumines 5) and leads a happy life. Members of OZNA, it is reported, should be going soon to Lausanne, Switzerland and their assignment is to capture him or to force him to return to Yugoslavia.**

3. Additional information pending results of investigation now being carried out, will be forwarded as soon as available.

* According to documents in USACA Property Released from Salzburg S4 8010 Sa Marie Pavelic and USACA Records of Property Released from Salzburg, the PAVELIC family was living in St. Gilgen (Salzburg), in a boarding house, Villa Helene, chez Frau Fanny ELLMAUER till 9 April 1946. They left behind 18 pices of lugagge. This property, plus another three of Ante PAVELIC was released 21 May was turned over Vladimir VRANCOVIC, who was provideded with a power of attorney by Mrs. PAVELIC. (note by E. Meyer)

G-2 Rome report dated 19 May 1947
File 610-3D folio (60).
G-2 Rome received the following information dated 15 May 1947 from I.A.I.-RAAC.
Reliable Vatican source reports Subject still living in Rome in a religious institute located in the Prati District, with extra territorial rights and in possession of a passport made out to a Minister of Religion Subject soon will leave for Spain from Genoa with no intentions of going to the Argentine.
G-2 Rome report dated 20 June 1947...Ref; P/4/AM File: 610-3D (63).

Reference CIC report Summary No. 5109: The report from the usually reliable source has been received stating that PAVELIC, Marja, wife of subject, now living with her daughter (in) Cecina (Grosseto) will shortly be moving to Florence. Address in Florence is expected to be Via Sedirapino 6.

Information received from a Vatican source on 3 June stated that subject is living in the Religious Institute and holds a passport made out to Padre GOMEZ, a Spanish Minister of religion; that subject is shortly to leave for Spain and that his trip has been arranged for by some Jesuits in the Vatican."

PAVELIC and Ustasha Treasury
"Facts Pertaining To The Ustasha Treasury
"133. The Ustasha Regime's looting of Serbs, Jews, Romas, and others was systematic and kept under tight control of the Ustasha Regime until 1944 when Pavelic took personal control of all liquid assets of the Ustasha Regime for the purpose of relocating them outside Croatia for safekeeping. DRAGANOVIC and BABIC were tasked with preparing the way in Rome and the Vatican for the Ustasha Treasury's delivery.

134. During the Second World War the Swiss National Bank and other banks in Switzerland, as well as facilities in Croatia, acted as depositories for some of the Ustasha Treasury.

66 500 kilograms of gold were deposited by the Croatians in the Swiss National Bank along with 2.5 million francs during the Second World War. In early 1946 an additional 12 to 16 million francs in gold deposits were still controlled by the Ustasha in various other private Swiss bank accounts.

135. The Independent Commission of Experts - Switzerland - Second World War, known as the Bergier Commission, linked Swiss banks with Croatian wartime gold transactions (p. 25 of their report).

136. With the fall of the Ustasha Regime imminent in 1945, an effort was made by PAVELIC to move the remaining Ustasha Treasury outside the borders of the Ustasha Regime. In late May 1945 Ustasha Regime agents were found at the British-occupied Austro-Swiss border with gold, currency and other assets valued at 350 million Swiss francs. Over 200 million Swiss francs value of this particular hoard were eventually transferred to the Croatian Confraternity at Saint Jerome, MANDIC and DRAGANOVIC and then to the Vatican City financial system and elsewhere for conversion. One portion of the horde contained in two chests of gold was personally brought from Austria by DRAGANOVIC for the use of the Croatian Confraternity in late 1945. The larger portion of the Ustasha Treasury consisting of a ten truck convoy was commanded by Ustasha Colonel Ivan BABIC and trucked from Northern Italy to the Croatian Confraternity in 1946 by BABIC and Ustasha confederates wearing British uniforms. Other remnants of the Ustasha treasury arrived in similar fashion 1946-1948, first to MANDIC, DRAGANOVIC and the Croatian Confraternity and then dispersed though either Vatican City, Vatican extraterritorial properties in Italy, or OFM accounts.

137. In 1948 a tranche of 2,400 kilograms of Ustasha Treasury gold was moved from accounts in Vatican City to Swiss bank accounts.

138. In 1952 the Ustasha leader PAVELIC transferred 5 million Swiss francs from the Ustasha Treasury horde from Switzerland to Argentina.

139. PAVELIC and other exiled Ustasha war criminals, in order to bank and transfer assets from the Ustasha Treasury, depended upon the intermediation and cooperation of OFM and its agents.

140. A significant portion of the post war Ustasha Treasury was in the form of jewels and non monetary valuables that required either conversion by OFM or was retained by OFM and its agents to used to promote the Ustasha cause and Croatian nationalism. In 2008 it was revealed after the arrest of a former Croatian Ministry of Defense official, General Vladimir ZAGOREC, that in 1991 diamonds worth up to million with their origin in the Ustasha Treasury were in the possession of Cardinal KUHARIC of Zagreb who provided the diamonds to the Croatian Defense Ministry to purchase arms to be used in the war with Yugoslavia.

141. Ustasha Treasury assets were banked and converted by OFM using its accounts in the Vatican and elsewhere for use in Argentina, Brazil, Spain, Portugal the United States, and Italy by the exiled Ustasha and Dominik MANDIC-OFM controlled enterprises in Chicago.

XVI. Facts Pertaining To Post War Beneficiaries Of The Ustasha Treasury

142. In 1956 the overt successor to the Ustasha, the Croatian Liberation Movement (Hrvatski oslobodila…ki pokret, HOP), was founded by Ante PAVELIC in Buenos Aires as a beneficiary of the Ustasha Treasury along with its terrorist front group - the Croatian Revolutionary Brotherhood (HRB) and related organizations. When Pavelic died in 1959, HOP leadership passed to former Ustasha Minister Stepan HEFER, then to Ante BONIFACIC who moved the headquarters to Chicago and then to Pavelic’s son in law, Srecko PSENICNIK in 1981. The HOP operates in Argentina, the United States, Australia, Europe and Canada and is a minor political party in Croatia. Funds from the Ustasha Treasury banked and converted by OFM and Dominik MANDIC helped fund these organizations through 1991 when Croatia seceded from Yugoslavia and HOP relocated to Croatia.

143. The Croatian Custody of the Holy Family of Chicago and OFM have continued to use the funds derived from the Ustasha treasury to set up, facilitate, and coordinate the OFM operations at Medjugorje, Bosnia and to support financially Croatian paramilitary formations like the Croatian Defense Council (Hrvatsko Vijeƒe Obrane, HVO), who often used Ustasha indicia in their ethnic cleansing battles against Bosnian Serbs, Muslims, and Roma in Bosnia-Hercegovina and Serbian Krajina in the 1990’s and to support the Croatian nationalist shrine of Medjugorje in Herzegovina." Living in Hotel Gaylord, Madrid. Born about 1900, small, very dark, clever and unscrupulous. Reported in February 1944 as a Falange exterior agent in Argentina. In April 1945 it was reported that during subject's employment with the Bilbao firm Importacion de Minerales, he supplied the Germans with wolfram and other minerals and made a number of trips to Galicia on behalf of German authorities. A May report shows that between July 1942 and August 1943, subject sold large quantities of fluorspar to the USCC. Rather than renew this contract with the USCC, he sold to the Germans. He reportedly gained control of a wolfram mine in Leon or Asturias by unethical means and resold it to the Germans for a large sum. During the Spanish Civil War, subject belonged to S.I.M. and is now thought to belong to the Gestapo. It is believed that he has assisted the Germans in hiding capital. Apparently subject has made or stolen a large sum of money, or has has large sums entrusted to him by Germans interests for placing in Argentina or other South American countries. On June 23, 1945 it was reported that subject is the head of a company known as Sociedad Americana de Fomentos Comercial e Industrial, which is also known as the Grupo Financiero de la Safoci, with offices in Madrid and Buenos Aires. Information from D.P.Medalie's office: Home address in Berlin. He was there beween August 19 and 29 August 1944 receiving instructions, talking about reduction of his staff and carrying out mobilization orders. He informed ELAUSER (probably misspelled), prominent nazi and intimate friend, that UFA's (Universum Film AG) propaganda office was to continue its work in Spain.

A British report dated October, 1944 quoted a Gestapo official as stating that PETERSEN had been under close vigilance for some time, had been permitted to resume his work on September 15, had been summoned by charge von BIBRA September 29 and told he was again to go to Germany on order of former Ambassador DIECKHOFF, then reported to be in conference with HIMMLER, von RIBBENTROP and others. Subject did nor return to Germany and apparently continued his work.

Information from London: PETERSEN was probably of Ministry of Foreign Affairs, SI, Kurfurstenstr. 137, Berlin. Reported by reliable German source in 1943 that false American bank notes were distributed by his section. Ambassador Eberhard Von STOHRER (misspelled STEURER in some documents) in 1940 insisted on a new Embassy Cultural Section. PETERSEN was drafted and made Embassy Secretary under Foreign Office Cultural Section; named counsellor and in charge of the Embassy Cultural Section and Cultural Institute 1942. OBORIL / OBERAL, Anton / Antonio. German agent classified B. Listed as A249. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. In Barcelona, but formerly in Sevilla. Repatriated from Spain by air (dates from January 29 to February 25, 1946). Po. No. 0782. Mentioned as interned in Camp 76, Asperg on March 27, 1946.With camouflage firm:
From: U.S. Army. European Command. Intelligence Division, Wartime activities of the German diplomatic and military services during World War II, November 18, 1949:

"Teletype Operator. Born on 22 July 1911 in Vienna. From 1938 to 1939 subject was with the Legion Condor in Spain and from 1944 to 1946 with the Bureau Plankert as a teletype operator. Subject released to Vienna.

In his MGAX declaration to MEWFO(Economic Warfare Department of the Foreign Office), 1946, OBORIL listed two accounts with a minimum cash balance and no property or assets (General Records Pertaining to External Assets Investigations, compiled 1948 - 1950, documenting the period 1939 - 1950 Category: Spain (Interrogations)) but in 1947, once returned to Spain, he founded a firm in Barcelona, Audisord, (import of German hearing aids).

Mentioned by Hans BRANDES as PAUL's goon (OMGUS, External Assets Investigation Unit, Abwehr):

"I should like to add that Mr. PAUL lately addressed to me some letters In which he tried by way of extortion to obtain from me a certain amount of Swiss Francs. He threatened me with publications in the press concerning a "previous activity» of mine, and also with an action through the Public Prosecutor's office. I left all these letters unanswered. Some 5 or 6 weeks ago, a confidential man of Mr. PAUL 's named OBORIL, an Austrian national, made his appearance coming from London and allegedly working with British Military Government. He brought me a proposition by Mr. PAUL according to which I was to pay him (OBORIL) a certain amount of DM so that the 100,000 Pesetas matter be liquidated. I rejected this demand. Mr. OBORIL told me that

Mr. PAUL is active in the British Secret Service in Spain and that he has far reaching connections in London which were liable to bring severe damage to me. This was his last threat which I left also unheeded.

I did not inform Mr. PAUL or Mr. OBORIL of the transaction in Lisbon 1945, as to my mind a return of Official or State's moneys was involved which were no longer Mr. PAUL 's nor Mr. OBORIL's business. Wiesbaden, the 26th of April 1949.

ÖRTZEN / OERTZEN , Irene von. Baroness. Listed as repatriated from Bilbao August 21, 1946 to Bremerhaven on SS Marine Marlin. B-318 and IV Priority List. . First priority to be interrogated.

From the office of Attache D.P. Medalie . February 8, 1944:

Subject is involved in the Countess LAMSDORFF case. Lives in Madrid. She works for a Japanese newspaper in the afternoons; seems so enthusiastic that she is going to study Japanese. She is a very good friend of Jose MIERA , who was head of the Spanish workers in Germany; also a friend of CRON , Minister of Labor. MIERA brought subject to Spain and introduced her to his friends here. Subject told source that an American called METZ and his wife , Princess of CROY (German) are her best friends. She has said , in granting permission to remain in Spain, that the Germans wanted her for espionage work , but claims to have refused. She is keeping Countess LAMSDORFF's clothes for her but claims to be convinced that the Countess is an Allied spy. Now subject is having an affair with a monarchist aviator, LEZAMA, who lives next door to her.

From a reliable source , March 23, 1944: At present works from 7 to 8 PM , translating at Spanish Ministry of Education. Subject told informant that her real fiance was a German born in Hamburg who is now in Lisbon. This man went to Lisbon and will inherit an English earldom after the war, according to subject, informant thinks it may be John JEPSEN. All subject's friends seem to be in the Spanish Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

From a reliable source , March 25, 1944: Obviously working for German IS. Tried to pull wool by saying that the German Embassy had requested her to leave Spain , and also that she wanted to become Spanish and break with German Embassy. Subject says she gets 2,000 Pesetas a month from the Hamburg German in Lisbon. (John JEPSEN).

From Embassy . Lisbon June 19,1944: JEPSEN is said to be a fairly important Gestapo agent and the money he sends subject is presumably for work in his behalf.

From reliable source, July 12 , 1944: Sunject has left the hotel Ram and gone to live in the apartment of J.M. GARCIA BRIZ. Source says real reason behind her leaving the Ham is that she had heard of German women and children being repatriated . and as she did not wish to return to Germany , thought it better to go into hiding, she left a huge bill unpaid in the Ram.

From same source July 24. 1944: GARCIA BRIZ had a meeting with the Gestapo chief in the German Embassy here to disccuss subject's remaining in Spain. Gestapo man said subject had to return to Germany and had to stop seeing source as she was American, The Gestapo chief is going to GARCIA BRIZ' apartment to make subject sign a paper for visa to leave Spain for Germany but Argentine Consul said he would give subject a visa for Argentina. Gestapo consider subject dangerous as they have given her until the 24th to decide.

From the same source , August 8, 1944: Roman BLANES has given subject 4,500 Pesetas for her bill at the Ram, is making her his "secretary" and is paying for her vacation in Malaga. The Bolivian passport BLANES offered her is out because someone told him she was not the type to be given such passport. Subject still living with GARCIA BRIZ and will go to Malaga when he goes to Argentina. Both the German Embassy and Consulate have told the Ram bill collector that they have no record of Irene.

From a source considered reliable , May 9, 1945: Vittorio LIEBMAN is subjects lover and has promised to get her a visa for Italy.
Spanish Primer from the office of Attache D.P. Medalie:

German: born in Rostock, February 13, 1923. Arrived in Madrid from Berlin probably in the autumn of 1943. Reported in January 1944 to be employed as a secretary at the Manchukuoan Legation in Madrid , and to translate documents from German into French for Kuninosuki MATSUO of the Japanese IS. In that same month she was planning to visit the Italian Gonsuls at Barcelona , Valencia, Sevilla, Cadiz and Jerez , and was also reported to have been requested by Eugenio MORREALE to organize an Italian fascist Intelligence Service in Portugal , but apparently neither of these projects materialized. Reported in August 1944 to be working in Madrid for the German IS , and to have been ordered to return to Germany by Heinz SINGER of the Sipo and SD , but this order was apparently cancelled or postponed through the intercession of her lover , Jose GARCIA BRIZ, with whom she lived. Posed as pro-Ally. Tall , rather plump figure , fair hair, well dressed. Address in Aug. 1944: Calle Nicasio Gallego 4, Madrid (tel: 32654).

OTLET / OTELET, Adrien / Adrian. Madrid and San Sebastian. Belgian partner of KONINCKX. On Black List. Acted as DUVAL's intermediary in selling French pictures (a NATTIER, two GAUGIN and others). From Information of OSS, Art Unit, dated 20 August, 1945, Individuals involved in suspicious Art activities, Iberian Peninsula:

"Belgian smuggler and black market operator. On the Proclaimed List. Reported to have stolen works of art from France."

From Roberts Commission, Subject file: Menten:

"Subject is married to a Frenchwomen from Biarritz. KOKINECKX (see MIEDL dossier) considered subject his best friend, but maintained they had no business dealings.

Subject is reported by Belgian source to be founder of the firm Ximex, Plaza de las Cortes 4, Madrid, and Avenida del Gen. Franco, 32, San Sebastian. Company handles exchange of goods on a compensation basis between Belgium and the Iberian Peninsula, and appears to be connected, in some manner not yet clear, with the firm Cosmos of which Hans ROHRBACH is director general. Subject wes introduced to ROHRBACH by KONINECKX.

Subject and the firm Ximex are both on the Black List, but British report of 14 October 1944 states that he has recently been awarded food supply contract by the French Govt,, Commercial Section for fruits and provisions to the amount or five million Pesetas. Agent of Otto BRANDEL. Classified A. Listed as A226. San Sebastian and Madrid. Probably with French and German papers. May claim French nationality.
From Synthesis of the Organization of the German Special Services and their Activities in France, 1940-1944 (compiled by French CI section and BCRA):

"Born 28 December I905, Silly-sur-Neid (Moselle). French nationality. Engineer in ministry of Public Works. About 1.70 m; light chestnut hair, slightly wary; grey-blue eyes; fairly stout; slightly bald. Sentenced lo October 1936 by military Tribunal, Strasbourg, to ten years’ imprisonment and 20 years’ residence exclusion, for espionage. Freed by the Germans, appeared in Paris end 1940 working for their services. Cover function seems to have been within the OTTO organization. In reality, in 1943-4 appears as head of agent network tracking down Resistance elements and committing large-scale theft at their expense, in liaison with Section III of Alst or with Gestapo".

From Wikipedia, Rudy de Merode:" During the debacle of the Battle of France, hundreds of thousands of prisoners roamed the roads of France. On 14 June, at Bar-sur-

Aube, a group of prisoners was evacuated from the central prison at Claivaux, including Rudy de Mérode and other spies, who all took advantage of the anarchy to escape and request help from the Germans.

In July 1940, he returned to Paris and set himself up at German military intelligence's HQ in the Hôtel Lutetia. Attached to a supply office at 18 rue Pétrarque in Paris as a cover, he spied for the Abwehr alongside another SD agent, the Dutchman Gédéon van Houten (called the baron d'Humières). At first, he gathered intelligence via a team of thiry, under his orders, who he trained himself. Most of them were fugitives from justice, and he used them to gather equipment and buildings. His team requisitioned several apartments and hôtels particuliers under the cover of being French or (more often) German policemen. His speciality was bank convoys, of money gathered from different sources or in the form of gold, jewels, art objects or ingots. In 1941, he set himself up at 70 boulevard Maurice Barrès in Neuilly-sur-Seine, but van Houten and de Mérode separated after a disagreement in 1942. With the aid of the DSK (Devisen Schütz Kommando) he opened bank vaults, buying gold and silver objects from their owners at a debased price or, if they refused to cooperate, having them deported. If the property belonged to Jews, it was entirely confiscated and the Gestapo had the owner imprisoned and often deported. The "gestapo de Neuilly" team confiscated over 4 tonnes of gold, and de Mérode's network accumulated enormous sums of silver and had over 500 people arrested and deported.

Escape to Spain

At the start of 1944, the Abwehr charged him with secretly setting up an office in Spain. At first setting himself up in Saint-Jean-de-Luz, in mid 1945 he was initially to be found in San Sebastián before reaching Madrid, where he dubbed himself "the prince de Mérode". In 1953, he was still living in Spain, now 60km north of Madrid in a brick-manufacturer. He was never brought to justice, and the date of his death remains unknown to this day.

According to Faligot and Crop he betrayed his Gestapo friend Szkolnikoff, who would be executed allegedly by four DGER men in January 1945. See SZKOLNIKOFF card file.

MARTIN, Hans. Born: 1904 1.78m balding dark blond hair robust appearance. German agent classified A. Listed as A219. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. Living in Figueras. Cork expert. From Hans SOMMER's interrogation (see SOMMER, Hans):" SOMMER had arranged another meeting with ESCAT for the coming week, but in the meantime he received a letter from an Abwehr agent, Hans MARTIN, alias Juan MARTIN. He was active in Figueras as a German agent until March 1945, at which time he became the German Red Cross representative. At the end of 1945 he was warned by Spanish friends to go into hiding, because Allies wanted to extradite him. He hid in Barcelona and presumably remained there, since SOMMER was asked to reply to his letter through Antonio RUIZ, Plaza Recomir 6, Barcelona or through a certain KUHN, Letra B, calle Molins Rey Barcelona. In this letter MARTIN informed SOMMER that friends had arrived at his hiding place and that they were all making preparation for a trip to their friend PERON, to start in two months."

In No 6 CIC Neuengamme. Internee No. 609521

Report of Interrogation by External Assets Branch, Finance Division, OMGUS. 29 May 1946:

"MESSNER was born 6 June 1885 at Nuremburg. He stated that although retaining German citizenship, he has resided outside of Germany for 40 years. He left Germany in 1907, spent five years in France, and lived in Spain for the last 35 years. In reply to the question as to why he had been repatriated, MESSNER stated that he had become a Free Mason in 1926; in 1943 a Spanish law was promulgated which would sentence all Free Masons to a prison term of 12 years. MESSNER claims that he was put on probation and the sentence commuted to expulsion from Spain. He added that he had been required to report his whereabouts to the police every two weeks. The subject was arrested perfunctorily in 1945 by the Spanish police, taken from his sickbed in Bilbao on a few hours notice to Madrid and held for repatriation.

According to the interrogatee, at the time of his arrest in I945 his salary was stopped and, with the exception of some furniture owned by his wife, he has no property in Spain. MESSNER's declaration on MGAX (1) form included Pesetas 3.000 and Portuguese escudos 1,020 in currency surrendered to the officials at the Neuengamme internment camp, and a cash balance of Netherlands Guilders 650 on deposit in the Rotterdamsche Bankveereningung. He also declared the ownership of a mortgage, (Hypotheken Pfandbriel), valued at Hfls. 1,000, said to have been bought through and held by the same bank.

In 1925 MESSNER bought equipment for Deposito de Carbones de Tenerife, Madrid, valued at approximately Pesetas 60,000. He said that the equipment consisted principally.of a truck, a tugboat and lighters, which equipment constituted the coal import and shipping agency Deposito de Carbones de Tenerife, Bilbao, of which MESSNER became manager, He stated that the main office of the company is in Madrid, and was of the opinion that the capital of the Spanish company is Pesetas 1,000,000. To the best of RESSNER's knowledge, Christoph JANSEN is general manager; the Board of Directors consisted of Don Luis DIAZ PINEDO, chairman, and Srs. LAVINA, BALACIOS and Emiliano BARDO. MESSNER denied the allegation that the company is 100% German owned (alleged to have been owned as to 50% by the Deutsches Kohlen Depot$_f$ Hamburg$_f$ and as to 50% by John T. Essberger and Company, Hamburg). He was of the belief that the Madrid company was owned as to 75% by Spanish interest, and as to 25% by German. He admitted to the probability that the Deutsches Kohlen Depot had an interest in the Madrid company. The only names MESSNER mentioned in connection with the German ownership were an individual named GODAFFROY, connected with the Deutsches Kohlen Depot in Spain and one ESSBERGER, owner of a fishing and shipping interest in Spain and considered an ardent Nazi Party member.

The subject denied any agent activity in Spain, explaining the allegation as having a possible reference to his activities as an insurance agent in Bilbao for determining shipping losses.

"German, born 1902 Rosenheim, Bavaria, or 3.3.03, Munich. Lived in Holland before 1939. During the early part of the war, served as German administrative official in Amsterdam. (Address: Tesselschadestradt). Represented the German banker HOFFMANN and was connected with following firms:
1. In Germany: Shantung Handels. A.G., Berlin. (Railways) Kaoko Land und Minen, Ges., Berlin. Moritz Ribbert, A.G., Munich.
2. In Holland: Veland Import, Export, M.V., Amsterdam Buitenland. Bankerversenizing, N.V., Amsterdam, Mijnbour Mij Hedjang Lebong, Amsterdam, Bookieskarrtoor Lisser Hosenkranz, N.V., Amsterdam.

Acted as agent for GOERING, "commissioner" with a credit of 10 million gulden for the purchase of valuable paintings in Holland. In 1941 he bought the Goudstikker collection. Later, he is reported to have travelled extensively throughout occupied Europe in connection with this business. He is said to have been in contact with Professor Max FRIEDLANDER, and to have bought his "expertises."

MIEDL is first known to have been in Madrid in May, 1944, when he went there with his family to establish "a financial basis'" for GOERING 's interests in the peninsula through 'the purchase of various types of assets. Basic capital at his disposal for these operations was to be 10 million marks.

He crossed the frontier with two American cars, one of which was stolen by DUVAL. In Spain he travelled between San Sebastian and Madrid, staying at the Continental Hotel. Pensión Ursula, and Hotel Londres in San Sebastian, and at the Ritz and Gaylord's in Madrid."
" I Statement of Case

In May, 1944, Alois MIEDL was reported to have come to Spain with a certain number of pictures by Old Masters which he intended to sell. These pictures are believed to have been looted from the Goudstikker collection in Nienrode Castle, Holland. MIEDL, judging from reports, appears to have kept some of the pictures with him, and to have sent a group of 22 to the Free Port of Bilbao. He is in contact with a well-known group of smugglers and with members of the German Embassy, either of whom may have helped him to pass his pictures over the frontier.

This case naturally depends on the answer to one question: Were the Goudstikker paintings looted? Unfortunately, this cannot be properly ascertained from the information available in Madrid; and so, considering the potential importance of the case if the answer should prove to be in the affirmative, it has been considered advisable to proceed with the investigation which is described in the following pages.

II Sources

The first source for this report is the interrogation on 7.10.44 in Bayonne of Georg KONINCKX, a Belgian who was arrested in France on 21.8.44. He had known MIEDL since May, 1944, and at one time acted as intermediary in an effort to contact the Director of the Prado to negotiate either a sale or a temporary exposition of the pictures. However, other reliable sources consider KONINCKX most suspect. He was formerly associated with a well-known ring of smugglers and black market operators, and he has since been released by the French border authorities under rather shady circumstances. His information, therefore, cannot be evaluated very highly.

The other sources are various agents working for the British and American services whose statements will be evaluated as far as possible as they are quoted below. The Dutch Legation has also supplied some information; this is impossible to evaluate accurately.

Ill Chronological Development

1944 May (Eval: D (KONINCKX)): MIEDL meets KONINCKX in the Bar Basque, San Sebastian, describes the pictures, and asks KONINCKX to put him in contact with someone who knows the Director of the Prado, MIEDL goes from San Sebastian to Madrid.

Through KONINCKX's intervention, MIEDL has a conversation with a friend of the Prado Director, one José UYARTE. On being asked whether he could prove that the pictures were not confiscated Jewish property, MIEDL answered that he had documents showing the origin of the pictures, UYARTE later told KONINCKX that he was not interested, apparently because MIEDL revealed to him that he had a German passport.

June (Eval: D (KONINCKX)): MIEDL returns to San Sebastian and tells KONINCKX that he has succeeded in passing the pictures over the frontier into Spain, through the firm Baquera, Kusche y Martin, which has deposited them in the Free Port of Bilbao.

MIEDL moves from Hotel Continental to Pensión Ursula, in San Sebastian

July 24 (Eval: D (KONINCKX)): Three cases containing 22 paintings officially enter the Free Port of Bilbao. They are consigned in transit by the firm Baquera, Kusche y Martin in the name of Alois MIEDL. Ramón TALASAC is the local agent.

Aug 21 (Eval: D (KONINCKX)): MIEDL seen at the Franco-Spanish frontier post at Irun in the company of DUVAL and GRAEBNER. They brought two American cars (Mercury I940) with Dutch number plates, into Spain. DUVAL drove one of these.

MIEDL returned to France, reportedly to fetch a missing case of paintings.

(Eval: C): MIEDL is released, reportedly through the intervention of Lt Col ORTEGA, Spanish frontier commandante, and returns to San Sebastian. (British: 10.44)

Sept (Eval: D): MIEDL is in San Sebastian. The Prado Museum is reported interested in one of the pictures.

Oct 26 (Eval: D): MIEDL is in Madrid. Has two GOYA pictures "stolen by Reds during Spanish Civil War." (Britisht: 26.10.44)

(Eval: B): German pirate radio station Atlantik reports MIEDL as having entered Spain with valuable pictures stolen from Dutch dealer in Amsterdam.

November (Eval: B): MIEDL still in Madrid. He issues a catalogue of the paintings. General KRAMER, the German Air Attache, warns him to withdraw this because a copy is said to have reached the British Embassy, (it has been impossible to confirm this).

(Eval: D): There are some indications that KRAMER may have taken over the problem of disposing of the pictures. (British: 13.11.44)

Spanish police reported to have issued an order for MIEDL's arrest. (British: 29.11.44)

November 23 (Eval: C): MIEDL returns to San Sebastian. stays in Hotel Londres. (British: 12.12.44)

November 26 (Eval: C): MIEDL in Madrid. (British: 29.11.44)

December (Eval: A):The Dutch Legation in Madrid initiates diplomatic action concerning the pictures in Bilbao. The Spanish Foreign Office answers the Legation favorably, stating that the matter is under investigation and Spanish government undertakes to forbid the entry of the pictures into Spain. (British:14.12.44)

(Eval: A):The Dutch subsequently indicate that they do not desire American or British support in the matter and that they do not wish to insist with the Spanish Foreign Office because they fear that MIEDL may have some pseudo-legal documents proving his title to the pictures. (British)

December 19 (Eval: A): KONINCKX is released from prison in Bayonne through intervention of the Belgian Ambassador in Paris (a friend of OTELET) and of Antonio LOPEZ, Commissaire special at Hendaye. He returns to San Sebastian. (British: 3.1.45)

December 24 (Eval: B): LOPEZ and two companions arrested for the attempted kidnapping of Heinrich BAUER in San Sebastian. OTELET reported connected with the plot.

January 1945 (Eval: B): MIEDL's catalogue of the pictures is withdrawn, he is reported to have quarrelled with GOERING over a question involving gold jewelry and to have broken contact with the German Embassy. He is said to have contact with a certain RAHN, owner of the Bar Erika, in Madrid, whom he is said to have originally met through GRAEBNER. (British: 8.1.45)

IV Description of the pictures

The pictures under investigation are divided into two groups:

1. The first group is definitely located in the Free Port of Bilbao. There are 22 pictures packed in three wooden cases, marked Aduana Central Paris . Enclosure A to this report is the Spanish Customs List describing these pictures and from it the following facts can be deduced: Eleven pictures are definitely labeled as coming from private collections, one from the M van Valkenburg collection, Larne, Holland; and ten from the Goudstikker collection, Amsterdam. All of these have the original collection numbers. Of the others, four have torn labels with numbers resembling those on the Goudstikker labels, and so they may also belong to the collection. One bears the name "de WILD", and another is labeled "Gemente Museum von Amsterdam." (Commercial Museum, Amsterdam.)

 There are indications that Spanish authorities or German agents opened the cases before the Allied could examinate them: Aduana Central Paris is a Spanish term for Douane Centrale Paris or Douane Centrale Exportation Paris, which were the usual labels. It seems that French seals and labels were broken or disappeared: " Each one has a label of the Free Port stating that it has been deposited there by the customs agent, Ramon TALASAC, for the firm Baquera Kusche y Martin of Irun, in the name of Alois MIEDL on 24 July 1944. There was no sign of the markings of the Paris customs as had been previously reported.". Besides " Within the cases most of the pictures were wrapped in coarse brown paper of the type current In Spain"(Roberts Commission. Subject File: MENTEN Report No. 2 Identification and Description of the Pictures Deposited by Alois MIEDL in the Free Port of Bilbao.). The labels show also the interference of some illiterate Spanish "paw": the non-existant José PORCELLIS instead of Jan PORCELLIS (Juan is the Spanish version for Jan) (Note by E. Meyer).

The following artists' names are listed as appearing either on the labels or on the wrappings of the pictures:

José PORCELLIS
PERRONNEAU
Sir Thomas LAWRENCE
Van DYCK
Cornelis BUYE
F. BOLS
EL GRECO
PALMA VECCHIO
Thomas CRESWICK
DAVID

Two of the pictures are definitely identifiable: the PORCELLIS (sea-scape) which is labeled as having been in the National Sea-scape Exposition at Luick in 1939, and the PERRONNEAU, Portrait of a Lady, which was number 93 of the Exposition Quentin de la Tour et des Pastellistes Français des 17ième et 18ième siècle, Hotel Jean Charpentier, 1927.

2. The information concerning the second group is still very confused. The number of pictures in it are variously reported as nine (Radio Atlantik); sixty (KONINCKX's statement); one hundred and two hundred (British). There is no definite information as to their location. Some are reported in Madrid in the German Embassy (British); others in MIEDL,s apartment (Dutch); others as having been confiscated in France before the 21st of August (British, 5.10.44): and some in the possession of DUVAL, who is said to have stolen them from MIEDL (British). The following artists' names are mentioned in connection with this group:

REMBRANDT RUBENS
Van DYCK
Jan STEEN
TERBORCH
BROUWER (a landscape)
VERMEER (a Magdalene (?))
CRANACH
GOYA (two pictures, "stolen by Reds during Civil War")
VAN GOGH CEZANNE.

The pictures are reported to be the property of GOERING and valued from 100 to 500 thousand Pesetas, and in some cased, even more. The Prado is reported to be interested in the VERMEER "Magdalene" for two million Pesetas".

"1. Entry of Pictures into Spain

In the case of the Bilbao group, this is not a problem. We know that the pictures came into the country legally and are registered in transit in the Free Port. It would be interesting, however, to know who in the Irun Aduana and in the firm Baquera, Kusche y Martin would handle such a matter.

The second group offers two possibilities:

a. A diplomatic entry under the auspices of General KRAMER and the German Embassy. In this case their arrival into the country would be quite normal.

b. The smuggling of the pictures by DUVAL or by some member of the OTELET organization. DUVAL would probably have done this with the automobiles which he helped MIEDL to bring through the customs. The OTELET group was also well equipped to carry this out through their smuggling gang. Various aspects of the case seem to suggest the possibility of OTELET 's and KONINCKX's having carried it off in connection with some sort of German smuggling gang, headed, perhaps, by Heinrich BAUER. MIEDL's early contact with KONINCKX; the latter's failure in his statement to the French police to mention any pictures other than those which had gone to Bilbao; the curious Commissionnaire Special at Hendaye, Antonio LOPEZ, who asked for and was instrumental in obtaining KONINCKX's release and who later was arrested in the attempt to kidnap Heinrich BAUER under circumstances resembling more a gang vengeance than a political or secret intelligence operation. It may well be LOPEZ rather than Col. ORTEGA, who freed MIEDL on 22.8.44. The unconfirmed FFI report that 50,000 Pesetas were offered for GRAEBNER's release might suggest a tie-up with the Germans. Both OTELET and KONINCKX are well known to have worked with the Germans in black market operations. This whole situation might be cleared up by contacting KONINCKX or OTELET, both of whom may now be in difficult financial straits because of the Ximex's company's being on the black list and therefore anxious to alter their position as regards the Allies. A contact with the police who were questioning LOPEZ in San Sebastian might also bring out interesting new facts on this man's personality. A contact with DUVAL, who is known to be seeking some way of approaching the Allies, might also shed further light on the question.

2. Disposal

There is really no market in Spain for top-price works of art. However, as in Portugal and in most other countries today, medium-priced art objects are at a premium. Thus there is a real danger that pictures such as these brought into the country by MIEDL might easily be sold and become very difficult to trace.

As far as can be judged from the description at our disposal, the 22 pictures in Bilbao are certainly medium-priced art objects, and thus perfectly salable today. In their case a public sale or exhibition will probably not be possible because of the Spanish note to the Dutch Legation which has been referred to above. However, there are two other possibilities. They can be smuggled into Spain to be sold under cover, or they can be removed officially from the Free Port and either sent on to Portugal or smuggled to South America. Considering the extreme facility with which a picture can be disguised and hidden, a careful watch should be kept to prevent this. However, such a watch can never be completely sure and the only way in which we can be certain to insure ajainst the disappearance of the pictures is to identify them positively either by examination by an expert—or even better— by having them photographed with the least possible delay, such a positive identification will not only go a long way to facilitate the restitution of the pictures to their original owners, but should also serve as a valuable weapon in any discussion which we may have with the Spanish government on the question of harboring the looted property. The various methods of achieving this end will be discussed in the conclusion to this report.

The second group of paintings presents a much more difficult problem, since none of them has even been located so far. Only after this has been done through a careful study of the present activities of MIEDL, KONINCKX, DUVAL, etc., will it be possible to begin to look into the question of their disposal by the Germans. Whether they entered the country as diplomatic property or as smuggled goods makes little difference in the long run, since their sale will always be illegal unless they are first cleared through Spanish customs authorities, as a result of this, it is almost certain that they will be bought secretly and given away or smuggled out of the country. Since it is impossible to predict how soon any of this may happen, it is essential to investigate the matter with the least possible delay. The fact that the sale must almost surely be illegal might make it possible to enlist the help of the Spanish authorities in the case.

VII Conclusion And Recommendations For Action

There follow a number of recommendations derived from the study of the facts as presented above:

1. The most important and immediate problem is the identification of the Bilbao group of paintings. Their location in a room adjoining the office of the Customs Director and the fact that they are enclosed in three cases make an official or secret examination practically impossible. It has therefore been decided to try to obtain official permission from the Spanish government to see the pictures. To do this, it was naturally necessary to act through the Dutch Legation. The Dutch minister, although, as we have seen, formerly reluctant to go into the matter any further, proved most agreeable and helpful on this occasion, showing the writer the official Dutch memorandum to the Spanish Foreign Office and the answer of the Spaniards, and then promising first, to take the matter up verbally with the Spanish Ministry of Foreign Affairs. and second, to present a note with the support of the U.S. Embassy, in case more forceful methods became necessary. He also agreed to have a representative of this project accompany him when and if he did go to see the pictures. He has promised to inform Mr Butterworth of the progress of events and the latter will transmit such information to a representative of this branch. Considering the importance of this case, it is considered advisable, if events allow, that the writer return to Madrid to see the pictures himselr. Should this not prove possible, it is hoped that his place can be taken by Lt. James Ford of the Naval Attache’s office. Meantime, study of the Goudstikker catalogue, if one can be located in London or in the United States. should provide us with a much more definite idea of what lies ahead.

In case this official approach through the Dutch Legation should prove unsuccessful, another plan has been evolved which, considering the Spanish character and its fondness for settling matters on a personal basis, may well prove more successful. This consists in persuading two childhood friends of LEQUERICA. the Foreign Minister, who happens to be a native of Bilbao, to request a private showing of the pictures as a personal favor, A representative of the project would also be present at this showing. The two friends of the Minister are CARIAGA and AZNAR, both wealthy citizens of Bilbao who have the additional advantage in this case of being interested in the construction of the new Bilbao museum and the building up of its collections. AZNAR ’t mother, the Marquesa de MACMAHON, has known LEQUERICA since he was a child and is said to have some influence on him. All these people are friends of a British resident of Bilbao who has undertaken to begin preparing the ground at once.

2. The second most important problem is to ascertain whether or not there are other pictures which are already circulating in Spain. This can be done by a thorough investigation of the following elements:

MIEDL, Alois. MIEDL’s present activities and whereabouts.

Renewed questioning of the source of the original British report which mentioned the catalogue brought out in Madrid, along the following lines:

Why did MIEDL return to France?

Were there any pictures left there? If so, where? Were any pictures confiscated in France? Through whose intervention was he released? If through ORTEGA| then what was the quid pro quo; was it an exchange between ORTEGA and CHARLIER (the military commissioner on the French side of the frontier)? Or did LOPEZ have something to do with it?

Has MIEDL any pictures with him now? If not, where are the pictures -which were formerly reported to be in Madrid? (In his rooms there.)

What is MIEDL's present relationship to the German Embassy and in particular to General KRAMER?

How does he communicate with GOERING?

Were any pictures confiscated in France?

DUVAL, Jean. He is known to be in Madrid in difficulties and seeking to approach the Allies. If it is considered advisable to question him, the following points could be cleared up. (E.O.T. handles his contact)

What was his relationship to MIEDL, to OTELET, to KONINCKX? What was his last contact with MIEDL? Did he ever carry pictures for MIEDL? Did he refuse to return the pictures to MIEDL?

Does he know if any pictures failed to cross the frontier on August 21?
Does he know any details concerning the pictures?

Does he know of MIEDL's being engaged in the smuggling of anything else besides pictures?

KONINCKX, OTELET, Ximex Company

Both OTELET and the Ximex Company are at present on the Proclaimed List. It is, therefore, interesting to know how KONINCKX has carried on his connection with them since his return to San Sebastian. The following questions are of interest in this connection:

Is KONINCKX still working in the Ximex Company? (in December he gave his business address as the Ximex office in San Sebastian). What is his present relationship with OTELET to whom he admits owing a considerable debt as far as his liberation from France is concerned? Is he in any way acting as a cover for Ximex business?

Does he still live with Miss HOEBACH?

What is the present Belgian official attitude to KONINCKX? His letters, written after his liberation from France, reveal that the Belgian Ambassador in Paris, Count ROMREE, intervened on his behalf.

The question of KONINCKX or OTELET's present relationship with MIEDL is also important. Does either of them still see or have dealings with him? If they do not, when did they cease to do so? Do they know anything about MIEDL's present activities?

A report considered reliable on the BAUER kidnapping speaks of funds hidden in France. Both OTELET and KONINCKX are linked with this kidnapping. Do they know anything about such funds, their whereabouts and if by any chance there are any pictures connected with this cache? Further details on the BAUER question might be obtained from these sources. For instance, what part does the Spanish police agent FUERTES, who is reported to have allowed the passage into Spain of LOPEZ and his companions, play in their original smuggling set-up?

LOPEZ, Antonio

Now located in San Sebastian (or Ondarreta?) jail. The source of our reports offers to contact this man. If this is done, the following questions are of interest:

All details on the reasons for the kidnapping. What is the exact connection of KONINCKX and OTELET with the kidnapping? Did MIEDL have any connection with BAUER?

What part did FUERTES play in the smuggling organization in the past?

Are other French officials in Hendaye connected with the smuggling ring in the same way as LOPEZ? If so, who are they? Has LOPEZ any information on the cache of hidden assets in France already referred to?

If LOPEZ proves unwilling to answer these questions, an effort might be made to obtain answers from his two companions, LATSAQUE and BEGUE (BEC?). Further details on their identity are of interest.

TREIBER, bank director, and SMITS von (of?) FOKKER, Amsterdam

Both these men are at the Hotel Esplanada, San Sebastian, but report of 30.1.45, considered reliable, states them to be in contact with MIEDL. If the source can be contacted again, he should be pressed for further information on the present activities of MIEDL. These two men sound as though they might be an interesting new line into the whole case."

Recent Activities.

Was in San Sebastian, Spain, May 1944, attempting to make contact with the director of the Prado regarding sale of 60-odd Dutch and Flemish paintings of great value. Jose UYARTE, former secretary. to Gen. BEIGBEBER and acquaintance of the director, to whom subject was introduced by the Belgian Georges Charles KONINECKX. (Interrogated 7 Oct. at Bayonne) refused to deal with subject, apparently because of his German passport (2). Reported in June to K. that he had got his pictures into Spain through Irun Branch of Baquera Kutsche y Martin S.A., Paseo Colón 931 which had deposited them in the "Free Port" (Bilbao probably). Subject lived at Hotel Continental at first but after returning from Madrid (June) moved with family to Hotel or Pensión Ursula. 21 Aug. KONINECKX saw subject on Spanish side of International Bridge at Irun with Jean DUVAL (q.v) and a German (Otto GRAEBNER (4)) trying to sell or get through customs two Dutch-registered Mercury cars. Same day K. was arrested at Hendaye and said subject was arrested that night and brought to Hendaye. Reported released, through intervention of Col. ORTEGA an. Spanish official in charge of frontier admissions, and in Madrid, having moved from the Ritz to Gaylord’s Hotel, Calle Alfonso XI 3 on 22 Oct.

A list of paintings consigned to subject, now in the Free Port of Bilbao has been given by Ramon TALASAC in "strict confidence". TALASAC is on British Statutory List for acting as cloak for German concerns but his rase is being reconsidered and he may be removed from list. His list and descriptions filed in MIEDL dossier (5).

In Oct. 16, 1944 was reported at the Ritz Hotel, Madrid, "recently" . Source, Baron Hans Wolf von GOLDAMMER, was asked by Baron von DINKLAGE to meet subject as GOERING's representative in Paris. Subject said he was sent to sell paintings and jewels for GOERING - about 200 paintings of note, stolen from Jews. Has just bought a castle surrounded by a moat, near .Amsterdam (6)

Six looted pictures are reported being held for subject by Dr. Arthur WIEDERKEHR, (qv) in Switzerland, five of which are from ROSENBERG Collection (4 CEZANNES and a VAN GOGH); the sixth a Jan STEEN marked GOUDSTIKKER (7)

Subject has unknown connections with Hans ZIEGRA, a German whose activities in Spain have resulted in his name being placed on an expulsion list now in preparation by the British Embassy (8).

According to Director RECO of Deutschesbank, Berlin, through Helmuth MAURER in Stockholm, one Alois MUTHEL is in Spain to sell paintings for GOERING; same source says paintings in the Muhlhausen mine are GOERING's personal property (9).

Dr. Arthur WIEDERKEHR of Zurich has deposited in his name in the Volksbank Zurich, six pictures from looted collections given to him by MIEDL. For list of pictures and details of transaction, see Swiss Report from Cooper, 22 Match 45, Appendix A (10).

Late in 1943 Dr. WIEDERKEHR asked Nathan KATZ (qv) to go to Zurich to inspect 11 paintings deposited with Schwizeriche Bank Gesellschaft for MIEDL. These consisted of 6 by VAN GOGH 3 by CEZANNE and 2 by Jan STEEN, one of which was a wedding scene he had seen at /Amsterdam and which must have been stolen (11). (...)

Enclosure No. 2 to despatch No. 19,750 of Dec. 8, 1944, from the Embassy at London, England.
Dated December 4, 1944.

Alois MIEDEL

With reference to our memorandum of November 24th, we have received the following further information from Secret Intelligence Sources:

(a) A report dated October 14th stated that MIEDEL arrived in Spain with two large .American cars, and a large number of paintings from Holland (Rubens, Van Dyck etc). The Prado Museum was said to be interested in one of them for two million Pesetas. It was suggested that MIEDEL was acting under order from GOERING to sell the paintings and keep the proceeds for him.

(b) A report dated October 16th stated that there was in existence a catalogue of some two hundred paintings which had been imported into Spain from France, most of the paintings were valued at from 100,000 to 500,000 Pesetas, but there were five or six of even greater value. All the paintings were alleged to be the property of GOERING. It was stated that when they crossed the Franco-Spanish border, the paintings were detained by the Spanish authorities, but were later released on the insistence of General KRAMER, who was thought to be in charge of the convoy.

(c) A report dated November 13th stated that after D-day GOERING had commissioned MIEDEL to convoy 200 paintings to Spain in two cars. MIEDEL crossed the Franco-Spanish border with the paintings just before it was closed. Difficulties were raised about the paintings on the Spanish side, and the German Air Attache, General KRAMER, had in the end to acknowledge them as GOERING's personal property. The paintings were, at the date of the report, in Madrid, where they were going to be offered for sale, MIEDEL had distributed catalogues of them (see (b) above). He had boasted of his connection with GOERING and of the commission he would receive upon the sale of the paintings; German circles in Madrid believed his boasting to be justified.

It was also stated that after he had crossed the Franco-Spanish border with the paintings, MIEDEL recrossed it again into France in order to pick up a box. He, and a companion named Otto GRAEBENER, alleged to be a Gestapo Agent, were arrested by the Maquis, but MIEDEL escaped the next day (see end of paragraph 1 (d) of report under reference).

All this information has been made available to His Majesty's Embassy, Madrid."

Spanish Government denied the extradition of Alois MIEDL to Holland or to Allies. The works of art and assets were unfrozen in 1949. The number of works and whereabouts are still unknown.

In 1949, the Dutch Government lost interest in Miedl's crimes. He is invited to the Netherlands to give evidence in the trial against the art dealers DE VRIES and KATZ:

"Various witnesses were heard in the following years, including the German Alois Miedl, who had fled to Spain just before the liberation. At the request of the Dutch authorities, who provided him with a letter of safe-conduct and a reimbursement of expenses, Miedl visited the Netherlands from the end of August to mid-September 1949 in order to give evidence against De Vries and Katz"."Advies inzake kunsthandel Katz (zaaknummer RC 1.90B)" (Restitutions Committee's recommendation to the Minister for Education, Culture and Science on a claim by X.X. and Y.Y., also on behalf of other family members, to 189 works of art from the National Art Collection.)

MITJANS DE CASTANY / CASTANI, Pablo. SD and Abwehr agent. Owner of firm Mari & Mitjans, Antwerp, Rubenslei 13. Barcelona, Arenys del Mar. Las seen June in Antwerp. 1.63m, 47 years, brown hair, round face, blue eyes. Smuggler connected with ROHRBACH and Wilhelm PAHL.

From From OMGUS, External Assets Investigation, Unit, General: Pahl, Wilhelm (Interrogation report): "ROHRBACH asked PAHL in June 1942, whether Westbank would agree to advance 7 million Belg. Francs to a friend of his with the name of MITJANS, for the purpose of importing spirits from France. He, ROHRBACH, would provide the necessary security.

MITJANS was the owner of an import and export firm Mari and Mitjans. As MITJANS used to export food from Belgium to the Spanish Republican Forces, he lost all his claims in Spain after FRANCO's victory, compelling him to declare it a failure. MARI, MITJANS's partner, commited suicide in London in 1939.

PAHL agreed to credit MITJANS with the required sum on ROHRBACH's security.

From 1942-1943, PAHL had only business connections with MITJANS arising from Westbank's loan on 7 million Bfrancs and the subsequent imports of spirits from France.

In August 1943, MITJANS asked PAHL whether he could help him to obtain a German exit visa for Spain as he had twice been refused this on the grounds of his connections with Republican Spain. MITJANS has twice been held by the S.D. for questioning and has been warned "not to return to Spain", although he was able to obtain a Spanish entry-visa at Paris.

MITJANS was willing to work for any German Department and asked PAHL to forward the following information to the German authority concerned:

A Dominion priest in Paris had received information via Spain from Free-Mason circles in England, that he should forward an offer from London to the German Government, provided the latter would abstain from any territorial claims outside Germany.

PAHL agreed to meet the priest in MITJANS’ presence at Hotel Monsigny in Paris at the beginning of September 1943. During their conversation, the priest, whose name PAHL does not remember, asked to see a high German authority as he was talking as a representative of the Catholic Church in Spain.

PAHL informed PIEPER immediately of the issue, who, again, informed Dr. KOCH who should contact the S.D., as PIEPER thought that the S.D. was the competent authority to deal with the matter.

According to PAHL, Dr. KOCH had been authorized by the S.D to send his employee EDLER (cover name BIFFY) to Paris in order to extract more information from the priest. As EDLER’s journey to Paris took place six weeks after the initial talks in October 1943, he was told by the priest that it was too late now and "that Germany had lost her last chance".

As a result of MITJANS’ information PAHL suggested to GROGER that MITJANS may be useful as an agent if granted a visa to Spain and Morocco.

GROGER agreed to provide an exit visa for MITJANS and his wife in Paris and obtained it in March 1944. MITJANS was supposed to look out for information regarding British Navy, troop movements in North Africa and French Morocco.

On his return from Spain one month later, MITJANS stated that he was not able to mobtain any information for GROGER who considered MITJANS to be a failure from Abwehr viewpoint.

MITJANS left Belgium for Spain again in July 1944. This was the last PAHL has heard about him.

He left his firm, Mari-Mitjans, at Antwerp, with an employee of his at 13 Rubens-Ley, Antwerp."

Partner and confident of BERNHARDT. Held rank of Colonel or Lt. Colonel in SS Guards. Belonged to RSHA VI of the Gestapo in Berlin. Chief of SS with Condor Legion during the Spanish Civil War.

One of the 19 cases considered of the utmost importance for repatriation. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. SD/ Gestapo. Born about 1907. 1930-1931 Spain and Argentina; 1936-1938 in Spain; 1943-1946 Spain. Since 1935 in NSDAP. SS Sturmbannfuehrer in SD since 1939. Kriminaldirektor in the Prussian Landespolizei and in Referat Amt VI in RSHA. Head of department in Sofindus and commissioned in Sabotage-Abwehr. Connected with ARNOLD, KALLAB, THOMSEN. Address in Germany Fritzlar Bez Kassel Staedtsiches Forsthaus.

From the office of Attache D.P. Medalie: "From a source considered reliable, November 5, 1945: MOSIG of Sofindus is identical with SCHMIDT of the Gestapo. His job is checking up on doubtful Germans, keeping an eye on the German colony and liquidating "traitors". Subject is known by the British to be very dangerous. "

From a report dated January 27, 1944: German SS official, recently arrived in Spain (about November 1943). Agent of Sofindus working in furs. Was in Spain during Civil War, reportedly as a Gestapo leader. Said to be close to HITLER.

From a reliable source dated June 9, 1944: One group of SD in Spain under joint direction of subject and Theo ARNOLD. Subject seemed to direct operational side. Source under orders of subject and ARNOLD. Subject seemed to be quite friendly with clergy.

From a memo from Military Attache dated November 28, 1944: Subject has control over all Gestapo money in Spain.

Information from a memo by OMGUS Financial Division, extracted from the interrogation of MOSIG about his connection with the sale of Banco Hispano Suizo S.A. Madrid to a German investment group headed by Johannes BERNHARDT: The purchasing group consisted of ZISCHE (misspelled ZCHIECHE or CHIECHE in some documents), Sofindus director and cashier, Ernest PECHE and Joachim SIEVERS, partners in Productos *Agricolas (PRODAG), and included one Spaniard, CARUNCHO. In additon, MOSIG stated that the former owner of Banco Hispano Suizo (a Swiss) retained an unknown amount of stock in the bank. Subsequently, a disagreement arose between BERNHARDT and SIEVERS over the former's desire to make the bank an adjunct of Sofindus. The result was BERNHARDT sold part of his shares.

The Spaniard CARUNCHO was propietor of Hispano Export-Import, S.A., Gran Via 50, Madrid and a partner in Vinagre Vinicola S.A. (VIVISA). Export-Import, S.A. during the war, bought Spanish Pesetas in the Lisbon black market, to buy fruits and vegetables in Spain fopr shipment to France. CARUNCHO also was the middleman between SERRANO SUÑER and Sofindus in wolfram transactions. MOSIG recalled that on three, possibly four, occasions he had made delivery to CARUNCHO of funds received from the courier section of the German Embassy. The amounts totalled about 3.000.000 Pesetas and were channeled through Heinz SINGER, German Police Attache, to MOSIG who made the actual payments.

Another tie-up of CARUNCHO with Sofindus was through his brother, a police official in Bilbao, who was actively engaged in wolfram purchases for the German firm.

From a British report dated February 3, 1945: "Kriminal Kommisar. Works for Gestapo in German Consulate building and is very powerful. Subject is also in smuggling business, both of commodities and foreign exchange from German occupied countries. Subject is reported to be working with a Dutch girl, who is sister-in-law of Roberto SCHRADER. Subject got her permission to come to Spain after invasion had begun (probably Madame Tutas ROGGEWEEN).

On September 4, 1944, The British Embassy sent a Note Verbal to the Spanish Ministery of Foreign Affairs stating that apprehension and internment was regarded by His Majesty's Government as a matter of utmost importance and urgency.

From a British report of March 26, 1945: "According to source subject is traying to get a Spanish passport. Described as tall and handsome, age about 40 and of high SS rank. He is a friend of the mining engineer, Georg BUERG.

From a reliable source, September 7, 1945: Gestapo man and one of the leaders of the Georgi group.

According to Washington and London reports August 24, 1945, MOSIG and TENSAMANI may be guilty of complicity in the money affair and orders for their arrest were issued.

 TENSAMANI: Sidi Larbi TENSAMANI / TEMSAMANI Pasha of the Caliph in Tanger, promoted and protected by Spanish Government after Spanish troops occupied Tangier on June 14, 1940.

"Roger Mouraille, qui retrouva la liberté dans des conditions mal éclaircies avant le transfert a Largentiére, entra dans le service de renseignements de Hans SENNER á Marseille où il retrouva probablement son homonyme Annie Mouraille. Lui-meme donnera une version légérement différente et un peu plus flatteuse de son engagement aupres des occupants en declarant qu'il avait « travaillé » avec les services de presse allemands, avenue du Prado á Marseille, de mars á janvier 1944 et qu'il recueillait « des renseignements politiques ». Il se specialise dans le pillage des biens juifs, a Marseille, Cannes et Pau où il est condamné par contumace, le 25 juillet 1945, ā cinq ans d'emprisonnement.

Se sentant menace par la Resistance, Mouraille quitte Marseille en août 1944, passe en Espagne par Hendaye « avec un passeport régulier » et se fixe á Barcelone où il aurait retrouvé Moynier et Annie Mouraille ä 1'hotel Regina. Mais moins chanceux qu'eux et que beaucoup d'autres, il est arreté debut avril 1945 par la police franquiste et se fracture la jambe en tentant de sauter du train en marche pres de Bilbao, au moment où il allait être remis aux autorites americaines. Affecté á un convoi de rapatries allemands, il est embarqué sur le Marin-Perch. Trois jours plus tard, il debarque á Bremerhaven, avant-port de Bréme, puis est envoyé au centre d'internement d'Asperg, prés de Ludwigsburg, où il est place a I'infirmerie. Deux inspecteurs des services de la police judiciaire a Paris viennent l'y arréter le 8 juillet 194652 pour donner suite ä un mandat d'arret du juge d'instruction de Pau, d'un second arret du juge destruction de la cour de justice de Marseille pour « atteinte ä la Surete extérieure de PÉtat, vol, complicité, recel », d'un mandat d'amener de Robert Levy, juge d'instruction au tribunal de la Seine, « pour recel malfaiteur, complicité d'assassinal ». Arreté pour la deuxiéme fois, done, il est conduit á Baden-Baden, siége des troupes franchises d'occupation, avant d'etre transiere a Paris." (Philippe Bourdrel,Les Cagoulards dans la guerre).

" La Cagoule sur la sellette pour des faits vieux de 12 ans

Lundi s'est ouvert à Paris le procès de La Cagoule, le plus grand procès qu'ait eu à connaître la Cour d'assises de la Seine depuis l'affaire Stavisky, en 1935. La durée du procès est prévue pour un mois et demi. Quarante-neuf inculpés sont présents, douze d'entre eux sont libres, n'étant poursuivis que pour des délits bénins. Parmi les accusés présents trois sont déjà condamnés à mort par les Cours de justice , Harispe, Gaudiot et Mouraille. Quelques autres sont frappés pour faits de collaboration notamment Méténier et Gabriel Jeantet. Mais dans ce grand procès, où sont évoqué des faits vieux de 11 ou 12 ans, ne comparaissent pas les grands chefs : seize sont morts, parmi lesquels Eugène Deloncle, Moreau de la Meuse, le général Duseigneur, et quatorze en fuite.

MUÑOZ-VARGAS Y HERREROS DE TEJADA, Enrique. Conde de BULNES from 1976. Commercial attache to Spanish Embassy in Buenos Aires (BOE, 16 June, 1943).

From Records of the External Assets Investigation Section of the Property Division, OMGUS, 1945-1949: Jurges HEYNRICH.

"Dr. MEYNEN, who is today living in Portugal (added: where he originaly went) on orders of the German Foreign Office, was given the task of quietly smuggling Nazi property held in Spain and Portugal out of Portugal into Argentina. This task he performed in collaboration with the last naval attache of the German Embassy in Spain, Captain Kurt MEYER-DORNER, with the added assistance of some Spanish helpers, to whom I shall refer in more detail later.

In his secret report to the German Foreign Office dated January 1943 Dr. MEYNEN already spoke of enormous sums which were smuggled through certain channels into Argentina. One of these channels involved the Spanish Embassy at Buenos Aires. The smuggling was organised by the Spaniard Enrique MUÑOZ VARGAS, son of the Spanish ambassador to Argentina, Conde de BULNES.

This smuggling route was being used with particular frequency by General Wilhelm FAUPEL, President of the Ibero-Amerikanisches Institut, Berlin, during most of the war, for getting property from Germany via Spain into Argentina, by making use of the Spanish Cabo and Monte ships. The following two facts will prove that this smuggling flourished even before the U.S. entered the war, and continued for a long time after the collapse of the HITLER regime In Germany:

On the 9th of October 1941, the author of this report personally watched the unloading of two large trucks (belonging to the firm Thyssen-Lametal) from the Spanish vessel Cabo de Buena Esperanza , both loaded with Persian carpets, as well as several large boxes. These were brought by German Nazis, accompanied by Argentine customs officials, from the harbor to the hotel Viena in Lavalle street. The owner of this hotel, Willi SCHECKENBACH, was one of the most active Nazi agents in Argentina and a confidential man-of-business for the German Embassy.

Seven months after the end of the war, 9 December 1945, the above mentioned Spanish vessel again sailed into the harbor of Buenos Aires. On board was Mr. Enrique Muñoz Vargas, back from a "private" trip to Spain and Portugal. Upon his arrival he was welcomed by Colonel Artur BRINKMANN, of the Argentine Army, as well as by Mr. Hjalmar SCHACHT's confidential agent in South America, Mr. Heinrich DORGE, to whom VARGAS delivered one large and two middle-sized trunks, as well as two small but heavy boxes. This luggage was loaded on a military truck which stood ready at the quay. The front seat was occupied by the former director of the Banco Aleman Transatlantico in Buenos Aires. Mr. Alfred HERRMANN. It was impossible to find out where he took the load. The mere presence of DORGE and HERRMANN, however, precludes all doubts as to the particular importance or value of the smuggled contents of the luggage. The presence of Colonel BRINKMANN was explained by the fact that as early as March 1944, immediately after the overthrow of the RAMIREZ Government, he was given a special order by President PERON to provide military protection for the Nazi smuggling of property.

Up to June 1944 it was repeatedly noticed that Enrique MUÑOZ VARGAS, sometimes accompanied by high officials of the German Embassy at Buenos Aires (e.g. the Prince Stephen zu SCHAUMBURG-LIPPE, Wilhelm von POCHHAMMER, Bernhard von WOLFERSDORFF), went on board Spanish vessels in the Buenos Aires harbor to pick up smuggled items which had been brought over. These were then taken to the Spanish Embassy (in the Embassy's car bearing the insignia of the Diplomatic Corps). After nightfall it was taken through the garden of the Embassy to Dr. Erich Otto MEYNEN's house (2848 Rufino de Elizalde Street), which is located not far away, in rear of the Embassy.

To complete the picture I must insert here the following confidential information which I received, while in Internment Camp 76, from a former high official of the German Embassy in Madrid. I was unable, however, to verify the correctness of this information myself or through other persons; therefore it is offered for what it may be worth. According to this information, General FAUPEL, Captain MEYER-DORNER. and, later on, Dr. HEYNEN, used a house at 63 Goya street, Madrid, as headquarters. The owners or occupants of this house, known to the informant only by the names of Don Manuel and Don Martin are reported to have taken an active part in the smuggling of property by the Nazis, and to have made extended trips to South America.

To this story, I am able to add that, according to a report from Buenos Aires, which I received in Montevideo in April 1944, the arch Nazi, Ludwig FREUDE, had been vesited twice by a certain Don Manuel of Spain. I don't know whether or not this Don Manuel of Spain is the same Don Manuel who was living 63 Goya street, Madrid."

MUÑOZ-VARGAS, Jose, conde de BULNES. Spanish ambassador in Buenos Aires, Argentina from 1943 to 1947. Falangist Camisa Vieja. During his period as diplomat, the Spanish Embassy apparently offered the ways and means to Nazi smuggling.

Hay que tomar un poco de cuidado con esta lista - o sea no todos los alemanes repatriados desde Espana fueron nazis - p. ej. Rudolf Michaelis fue un anarquista aleman que habia acabado encarcelado en Espana (Barcelona) desde 1939 hasta 1944 (luego estuvo una temporada en libertad condicional en Carabanchel, Madrid, y luego la repatriacion a Berlin.) La vida posterior de Michaelis esta bastante bien documentada - y nazi no lo era.

Sra. Graham:
Las listas y documentos de los que sale esta compilación no son repatriados, sino repatriados considerados por los aliados "indeseables" por sus relaciones con el régimen nazi. Es su calificación, no la mía, que es más dura.
Ser anarquista no da carnet de antinazi. Repase las amistades de una santa del anarquismo como Federica Montseny con Maurice Papon.
Si está elaborando el estatuto de limpieza de sangre del Sr.Michaelis, explique qué hacía en 1949 en el SED, partido que recogió a todos los nazis reciclables de la República Democrática Alemana.
Saludos cordiales

LA GASSE / LAGASSE, Maurice. OSS Secret Intelligence Special Funds Records 1942 1946 226:

(German flight of capital and assets in France, Belgium & Spain):" LAGASSE, stockbroker for the Bank of France, who had bought the Chateau Pontchartain (misspelling for Chateau de Pontchartrain), came to Spain in about July 1944. Source considered him to be the best informed of anyone in France on what had occurred regarding gold, jewels and platinum. LAGASSE, who might have worked for the Germans, is said to have become frightened as to what would occur in France and wished to remain in Spain for several months.

LAGASSE, expert on gold transactions of the Bank of France, has made 20 to 30 visits to Spain and Portugal on questions of exchange. In Portugal treated with the Bank of Espiritu Santo and the other principal bank; was involved in endeavour to obtain from Amsterdam certain French gold, which was, however, seized by the Germans upon their arrival and believed to have been removed to Germany. (LAGASSE is stated also to have been involved in transfer of French gold from Dakar after the armistice to Spain, where the Spanish Government, subjected to pressure from De Gaulle and Vichy, blocked the gold. He is regarded by the French to be a collaborationist.

LAGASSE is self/made, a bank messenger who rose to large financial and international gold transactions before the war (...). He has reportedly come to Irun with two sons because of fear of personal enemies and because he has property in Spain (...)

Paul REYNAUD made his personal gold purchases through LAGASSE. He transferred 18,000,000 francs, paper, into gold deposited at Amsterdam, which was seized by the Germans, the vessel Siroco sent to get it being sunk by the Germans on their arrival, at the same time at Amsterdam.

LAGASSE handled the negotiations above described with Spain to unblock the gold from Dakar which was intended to pay the French diplomats abroad. LAGASSE is the person best informed on gold transactions in the black market in France and also knows the Portuguese and Swiss situations.

Maurice LAGASSE has been at Madrid and inl’ortted source that he was in contact with GREY of American Embassy, Lisbon. He gave the folliowing account of the gold transaction: The Bank of France had sold to Internatio, LAGASSE ’s own bank at Lisbon, 700 kilos of gold which was in the Bank of Morocco at Tangier. This was sold with security of 30 million francs of Bank of France share owned by LAGASSE. On Feb. 7th, the State Bank of Morocco advised the ultramarino Bank of Portugal that, in accordance with instructions of the Bank of France, the gold was being deposited to the account of Ultramarino, the banker of the LAGASSE bank, Internatio. Source described the transaction as an official purchase of gold by LAGASSE, to pay on delivery. The gold is still blocked.

Source stated that LAGASSE had also acted in silver transactions for Vichy contrary to German interests, but that LAGASSE had been black-listed for the above gold transactions - obviously being in the allies’ bad graces. LAGASSE had also bought old Hungarian loans for the Germen government.

LAGASSE as stock broker had his main office at Place de la Madeleine, Paris, and many branches, source termed him as only interested in cash, very clever but not interested in politics»

LAGASSE had called on the British Commercial Attache at Madrid but apparently without result, he may also know one Monseigneur BOYER-MAS.

ENGE, EINHARDT and LAGASSE were supposed to be involved with the man who acted as Hermann Goering’s front in the transactions to acquire Suez Canal stock, value 50 million RM (deposited at the Bank of Monaco).

LANG, Emilio. Intelligence Agent. Subject was born in Germany but became a Spanish subject a good many years ago (date unknown). He had excellent connections with the Direction General de Seguridad as well as with the Servicio Informationes Militares. In 1940 he and his father-in-law were employed by KO Spain to carry out a mission in defeated France. Subject became KUEHLENTHAL's assistant and took care of most of the work, including liaison between Referat I and III and the Spanish Intelligence Service. He interviewed and hired agents, briefed and dispatched them on missions, and provided them with the necessary documents and finances for their particular missions. All the agents were required to report their activities to him. Subject was in constant contact with other agencies of Referat I and was often consulted by Referat III-F, where a certain HAUBERT was in charge of agents. Toward the end of 1941 he moved to Bilbao to open an Aust of Referat KUEHLENTHAL, where he could supervise agents more closely. It seems from this time on he did not enjoy KUEHLENTHAL's confidence. Subject was active during 1944 and it is assumed by AMENDE that: he remained in Spain. AMENDE believes that subject possesses all the information necessary to uncover the activities of the German underground in Spain.
Subject has connections with the following:
(a) Sr. FINAT, Conde de MAYALDE, Spanish Chief of Police. (Through subject's father-in-law, who was employed in the Direction General de Seguridad)
(b) German SD and agents. (Through Adolf STEIN, a German school teacher in Madrid)
(c) GENSEROWSKY, an Abwehr agent and member of the German Consulate at Bilbao.
(d) Padre LANGE
(e) KUEHLENTHAL. (For connection with the KO and the SIS).
(f) Spanish government agencies in charge of issuing passports and visas, booking offices securing passage on boats for Abwehr agents, and other maritime services.
(g) Referat I-g for secret codes and inks.

LANG, Willi / Willi. Agent classified IV-B in OSS records. Manager of German Automobile Club of Spain (N.S.K.K.). Managing director of Lacemo S.A. Born about 1904, Litzmannstadt, Germany. Of Russian origin. In Madrid since 1939. Address: Jose Antonio 15, Madrid and Plaza de Chamberi 10, Madrid, and San Lorenzo del Escorial (villa).
LANGE, Augustin Clemens or Agustin Maria (Padre LANG / LANGE) . From OSS Secret Intelligence Special Funds Record 9409: Agent classified III-B in OSS records. Still In Spain in December 19 1946. In files of the Office of Political Affairs, American Embassy, Madrid.
From: U.S. Army. European Command.Intelligence Division, Wartime activities of the German diplomatic and military services during World War II, November 18, 1949:

"Intelligence Agent. Subject is considered by AMENDE to be a key figure in the Spanish Intelligence Service. He is German by birth, who, although completely given to the church, has not given up his love for and allegiance to Germany. During 1943 and 1944 when the GIS was very active in the Iberian Peninsula, subject was a principal link between the leaders of KO Spain and those Spaniards who were willing to do sabotage and counter intelligence work for the Germans. Subject is known to have last lived in the Pyrenees region where he often travelled from one country to another, keeping in touch with the Basque peasantry whose welfare he had at heart. His pro-Basque attitude and convictions alienated him from more nationalist -minded northern Spaniards. It is believed that he was never sympathetic to the Nazis because their views conflicted with his uncompromising Catholicism. His activities on behalf of the Abwehr are explained as stemming from his love of Germany. He was politically unfriendly to FRANCO. Subject was closely connected with the Basques living on the French and Spanish border, the people there having complete confidence in him as a spiritual leader and helping him with frontier crossings and related intelligence activities. AMENDE states that subject was able to maintain liaison with the church in Ireland and does not know whether priests were sent on missions to Ireland by the Abwehr or Spanish Intelligence Service. AMENDE believes that subject's position as a member of the Missioneros del Sagrado Corazon de Jesus, a member of the order of the Society of Jesus with extensive missions in South America and Central Africa, may have been used to secure assistance for Abwehr agents on missions. Little is known of his influence in Italy other than that he was in contact with his superiors in Rome. Despite subject's lack of popularity with certain Spanish nationalist groups, he was on excellent terms with the Spanish Intelligence Service and was always kept completely informed about internal and external matters. In addition, subject operated his own private intelligence net, which enabled him to provide the SIS with important information. Both the SIS.and the GIS considered subject's net of agents to be invaluable, although he was never taken into complete confidence of the Abwehr. AMENDE states that KO Spain never made as full use of subject as mighthave been made. Subject's whereabouts at present unknown; but it is believed that he is still in Spain and could be easily located. His last known residence was in a boarding school in Bilbao, where he was an instructor for sons of the Spanish nobility. Professor at Colegio de San Agustin of Las Arenas, Bilbao.

LANGENBACHER, Alberto / Albert. Listed as repatriated from Bilbao August 21, 1946 to Bremerhaven on SS Marine Marlin. DOB. Sulgen, 10 December, 1901.
LANGENHEIM, Adolf Paul Johannes / Adolfo, alias BOU CHARTA (’scarface’) among Moslems. German agent classified A. Listed as A198. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. Listed as B-247 and II Priority List. Agent classified I-B and II-B in OSS records. German Consul in Tetuan. Expelled from Tetuan to Spain February 1945. Ordered to Malaga for internment, March 1945.

From Spanish Primer of Attache D. P. MEDALIE’s office: Born in Furstenberg, 11 April, 1872 or 12 August, 1872; business man in Tetuan, where he is said to have lived since about 1905; reported in 1941 to be chief of propaganda at the German Consulate. Employee of KO Spanien in Tetuan since at least April 1941, running a number of agents, chiefly natives. Made frequent clandestine trips to French Morocco, after the Allied landings in North Africa in November, 1942, in order to establish and mantain contact with native agents engaged in the creation of border "incidents". Reported in March, 1944 to have established branch headquarters in Xauen (Spanish Morocco), where he frequently met Germans and natives working for the German I.S. Expelled from Spanish Morocco on 6 February, 1945 and went to Madrid, thence about April to Malaga, where he was last reported in June, 1945. Father of Heinrich LANGENHEIM and three other sons, one of whom was killed in Russian front in April 1942, another was probably killed in action, and the fourth, Oskar, was last reported as an agent of Grupe II in France. Scar on right cheek. Speaks fluent Arabic. Passports: (1) No. 23, issued Tetuan, 16 November, 1937 and (2) No. 9/43. Address (1944): Puerta Saida, Tetuan. Tel. 92. June 1945, a new pension, Paseo de Limonar, La Caleta, Malaga.
From a report by American Militare Attache at Tangier:

LANGENHEIM, Adolf P, known in the Arab wold as BOU CHARTA. German National. Born 12 May 1872 in Furstenberg, Germany. A resident of, and engaged in business in Tetuan for decades, originally having come to Morocco to settle, and owner of considerable colonial real estate and other commercial property and interests therein. Listed on the P.L (Priority List) of the Spanish Zone of Morocco. Speaks Arab fluently, and wielded considerable influence among the local Moslems in this area. Because of a prominent scar on his face, the right cheek, familiarly known as BOU CHARTA (scarface) to the Arabs. Married to Margarita, nee GENTILE (sister of Elena LIKATSCHEFF, Tangier, also on the P.L. of the Tangier zone of Morocco), of Italo-Anglo origin, born November 20, 1888. Of three children, a son Henrich (...) is the most important. Both father and son were actively engaged in propaganda and all possible activities detrimental to the United Nations, and were of grat assistance and a source of invaluable information, atc. to the Germans when they were established diplomatically in Tangier by the invitation of Spanish authorities in 1941. The LANGENHEIM colonial and commercial dinasty, like the similar RENSCHAUSEN dinasty in Larache, Spanish Morocco, were the native twin German pillars upon which rested most of the German intelligence and espionage estructure in Morocco between 1914 and 1944. Granted aircart without return by American section of Allied Control. (Both father and son are dangerous individuals and subject to extreme caution).

From his CV: From 1896 til 1906 worked as a mining and consulting engineer South America, USA, India. From 1907 to 1909 worked in Tangier as representative and mining engineer of the Union des Mines Marocaines, an international corcern in Paris and in 1910 he worked for Wm. H. Muller & Co, The Hague. Expelled from Tangier in 1914. Returned to Tetuan in 1921. From 1921 till February 1945 his cover firm was Sindicato de Exploracion Minera, a Spanish mining company in Madrid. Property named by LANGENHEIM to Allies: El Kataa el Mers, Rio Martin, Tetuan, Trust company in New Jersey, properties in England, Holland and Germany (Berlin).

Condecorated by FRANCO "Caballero de la Orden Imperial del Yugo y las Flechas con Encomienda" (BOE, 11 Septiembre de 1940). In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. Press Attache. Still in Spain in September 1946. Connected with Apolinar SANCHEZ. LAZAR was considered one of the most dangerous Nazi-leaders in Madrid. He was in posesion of large means and values by:
- His high income of circa 40.000 pts/month.
-He received high payments at the end of the war.
- He received high subsidies for the Spanish press: for instance the newspaper Informaciones.
-He bought a most luxurious building in El Escorial for the director of this newspaper, Victor de la SERNA, etc.
- LAZAR bought in Spain antique furniture and artIic values. All these were highly insured and their value amount to at least 3 or 5 millions pts.

LAZAR tried to escape the eviction by all kind of manipulations, for instance: he referred to his Turquish nationality due to his Armenian descent. He claimed to be an Austrian. When these excuses failed, he went to a clinic and asked to be operated. He never was extradited from Spain.

According to MINAMEYER, LAZAR began his career at the time of the Austrian events.

LAZAR se casó con Elena PETRINO BORKOWSKA, una baronesa de Transilvania. LAZAR había estudiado derecho, y fue a partir de 1915 y 1918 soldado en la Primera Guerra Mundial, más recientemente como primer teniente. A causa de una herida LAZAR se convirtió en un adicto a la morfina. Desde 1920 fue corresponsal de la Neue Freie Presse Viena en Turquía. En julio de 1927, fue corresponsal de la agencia de noticias Alemána en Bucarest. [1] Durante la Guerra Civil Española LAZAR trabajó como corresponsal de la agencia de noticias Transocean, que estaba bajo el Ministerio de Propaganda del Reich alemán bajo Joseph GOEBBELS.

A 12 03 1938 fue Lazar Balcanes corresponsal del Neue Freie Presse y Agregado de Prensa de la República de Austria en Berlín. En la noche del 12 a 13 03 1938 fue llamado a Viena y fue nombrado Jefe de la Oficina de Prensa. Su única tarea era el 13 de marzo a las 20:00 el texto de la ley para la conexión de leer los corresponsales de la prensa extranjera en Viena. [1] En junio de 1938, Lazar se trasladó a España y se reunió el 5 de 07 1939 en el Servicio de Relaciones Exteriores de Alemánia y se convirtió en agregado de prensa de la embajada Alemána en Madrid, donde se convirtió en la eminencia gris. Como jefe del departamento de prensa de la embajada fue capaz de controlar numerosos periódicos locales, con una tirada de hasta 170.000 ejemplares, que se financiaan mediante Sofindus y en el que hacía propaganda a favor del Imperio Alemán Nazi. El Skoda representante Reinhard SPITZY recordó: Adolf Hitler no confiaba en Lazar, quería que lo sustituyera, pero no pudo. Lazar se instaló como una araña en su red en España. Controló 200 publicaciones comunitarias en toda España. ¿Tendrían su propio periódico le preguntó al sacerdote? Se financia a través de las empresas Alemánas de publicidad, tales como Siemens, Mercedes o Merck, que son pagados por Sofindus.

Lazar 1942 comenzó una campaña de propaganda sofisticada, el plan de El Gran, en la que trabajó con cientos de la Falange y de la Autoridad Postal española en 28 ciudades, la distribución de folletos y un mensaje de Hitler extendió de boca en oreja. Influyó en la opinión pública en la España fascista a favor del Nacional Socialismo alemán del Reich. [2]
Su villa lujosa atrajo no sólo aviones de reconocimiento estadounidenses y británicos, que lo estaban vigilando, pero también alentó la sospecha de winemaker Paul, el representante de la Gestapo en el mensaje.
A partir de 1950, Lazar fue director general de una empresa comercial en Madrid. En 1956 emigró a Brasil y más tarde regresó a Austria.

LESCAT / L'ESCAT / ESCAT CHARLES (CARLOS HIPOLITO SARALEGUI LESCA)
"Antecedentes personales:

Charles LESCAT, nace en Buenos Aires el 19 de febrero de 1887. Con posterioridad hace sus estudios en Francia y en 1914 se enrola como voluntario en la guerra. Fue amigo personal de Charles MAURRAS. En las décadas de 1930 y 1940, hasta 1944, LESCAT milita en l´Action Française y preside el Consejo de Administración de la revista Je suis partout., Además es redactor en jefe y cronista de esta publicación. Cuando se produce la Liberación de Paris LESCAT se refugia en Alemania: Ese mismo año viaja a España. En 1946 inmigra primero al Uruguay y luego se establece en la Argentina, desde donde coordina una de las rutas que utilizan los prófugos y fugitivos –en su mayoría franceses y belgas- que buscan refugio en el país. Pierre DAYE es una de las personas que ingresa a la Argentina ayudado por Lescat. (Véase a continuación la documentación de este caso.)

En mayo de 1947 LESCAT es condenado a muerte por Corte de Justicia de Paris. Muere en la Argentina en 1948.

Acerca de los trámites de extradición de Charles LESCAT:

El día 26 de septiembre de 1946 la Embajada de Francia pone en conocimiento del Ministerio de Relaciones Exteriores que el día 10 de Setiembre de ese año el colaboracionista francés Charles LESCAT se habría embarcado en Barcelona, España, en el barco "Cabo de la Buena Esperanza", con destino a Buenos Aires.

El 30 de septiembre del mismo año, el Director General de Asuntos Políticos del Ministerio, Pascual LA ROSA, se dirige a la Oficina de Enlace con el Ministerio del Interior y la Policía Federal Argentina para informar que la nota recibida precisa que LESCAT viaja "portador de una considerable suma de oro y piedras preciosas". Como lo indica la documentación que se publica seguidamente , los bultos que le pertenecían no fueron revisados al llegar a puerto.

El día 20 de Enero de 1947, la República de Francia requirió su arresto y proporcionó su domicilio. [1] Esta solicitud fue girada al Ministerio de Interior que, a su vez, lo giró a la Policía Federal Argentina.

Según consta en el informe del Director de Investigaciones Alfonso IBARBAORDE, fechado el 25 de Febrero de 1947, se identifica con exactitud al matrimonio y su domicilio. Ibarbaorde también consignó donde se encontraba el matrimonio veraneando, así como la circunstancia de que LESCAT/SARALEGUI era nacional argentino.

Con posterioridad, el expediente pasó a dictamen de la Asesoría Letrada delMinisterio del Interior, que aconsejó girarlo al Ministerio de Relaciones Exteriores; luego quedó sujeto al dictamen de Pascual LA ROSA. Este afirmó el 5 de mayo de 1947 que, atento tratarse de un simple "Pedido de informe", el expediente debía girarse a la Dirección en lo Contencioso-Administrativo del mismo Ministerio. La extradición nunca se concretó el pedido y el expediente fue archivado en el año 1950, dos años después de su muerte.

Nota 121-R-1946

Constituido a las 15.00 del día anterior a la fecha en el Desembarcadero de la Dársena Norte, a la llegada del vapor de bandera española Cabo de Buena Esperanza, comprobé que en la lista de pasajeros del mismo figuran Carlos Hipólito SARALEGUI LESCA y su esposa María Emilia LEVRAY, pero, ambos no llegaron en razón de haber desembarcado en el Puerto de Montevideo, según constancias establecidas en la documentación de a bordo.

A estar a la noticia procedente del citado país, publicada en el diario La Razón de esta Ciudad en su edición de ayer, cuyo recorte me permito acompañar, el nombrado SARALEGUI LESCA, habría sido detenido por las autoridades respectivas de ese país, a solicitud de la Embajada de Francia, siendo de presumir en virtud de ello, que se trataría de la misma persona aludida en la nota de fojas 2, aunque de acuerdo a los términos de ésta, resulta llamarse en cambio, Carlos SARRALEGUI.

Ambos pasajeros conducían en bodega, un cajón y dos baúles, además de trece bultos en cabina, equipaje que en su totalidad aparece también desembarcado conjuntamente con los pasajeros citados.

No obstante lo expuesto, he considerado conveniente impartir instrucciones a los Jefes de los Aeródromos Presidente Rivadavia y de Puerto Nuevo, a si como también al del Desembarcadero de la Dársena Sud, a fin de que a la llegada de todo avión o vapor que conduzcan pasajeros desde Montevideo, examinen las listas respectivas para comprobar si viajan cualquiera de las personas indicadas, debiendo en caso afirmativo poner de inmediato el hecho en conocimiento del suscripto, a efectos de ser sometidos a una prolija revisación.

Listed in the Madrid phone book as Francisco LIESAU Oficina Técnica, Calle de Alcalá 52, Madrid. Tel. 21531

LIESAU had two secret German patents in operation. One ZIMMER was involved in the deal and was reportedly a Gestapo agent.

From a reliable source. May 17, 1945: Subject came to Spain ten years before as a commercial traveler representing German machines companies. He fought on the side of FRANCO during Spanish Civil War, thus earning the friendship of many influential Spaniards. In 1939 he became the owner and head of a large office, Oficina Técnica Francisco Liesau. Subject returned to Germany for military service and was back in Spain in 1944, where he was living wealthily in 1945. He was still German and member of the Nazi Party , but was applying for Spanish citizenship.

According to another reliable source of B-2 evaluation, August 7, 1945, LIESAU had secured Spanish nationality through the Barcelona courts. He was engineer and technician by profesion and reputedly great scientific ability. In July 30, 1945 he regIered at the Hotel Ritz Barcelona as German, age 37 with German Passport Nº 678/43.

LIESAU was on the Consolidated List for repatriation to Germany. Affidavit and curriculum by deportee in American Embassy Madrid, dated January 30, 1946.

(1) "The German Embassy reserved five places for return trip to Germany before 21 April ban on travel between Spain and Germany takes effect. These were for subject, FUHR, LUCHT, ZELLER, and SCHADE. According to source, subject will not depart but has gone on a trip without leaving any address." (Files of the Military Attaché, April 17, 1945").

From OSS reports:

1. Dr. Franz LIESAU (also known as Francisco LIESAU) came to Spain about ten years ago as a commercial traveller representing German machine companies. He was in Spain during the Spanish Civil War and fought on the side of the Nationalists, thus earning the friendship of many influential Spaniards.

2. In 1939 Liesau established the firm of Oficina Tecnica Francisco Liesau, Alcala 52, which at times has represented as many as ninety German machine and machine tool firms, as well as some Swiss concerns. LIESAU transacted business principally with the Ministry of War, Ministry of Air, Ministry of Agriculture, Astilleros de Bilbao, Altos Hornos de Vizcaya, and Siemens.

3. In anticipation of his entrance into the German army, and in order to camouflage his interests, LIESAU in May 1943 transferred title to all of his possessions to the following three Spaniardst Manuel de BOFARULL Y ROMANO, a lawyer; a certain LLOPIS and Jose GARCIA, formerly a poorly-paid mechanic and at present a partner in the company. In May 1944 Dr.

LIESAU re-appeared in Spain and transformed his firm into a Spanish "Sociedad Anonima". Since no German machines were obtainable, he had the models copied and manufactured in Spain, and even expanded his business. He has often said that business was going as well as ever and that he planned to extend his activities to Portugal. After the company was reorganized, its principal business was that of manufacturing machine tools. Aocording to LIESAU -the latest establishment he has set up is an Eisengiesserei, or pattern-making and foundry establishment*

5. The following persons constitute the office staff of the Oficina Tecnica

Francisco LIESAU,

Luis CAMARA

Leopoldina PROELL, a German who is the private secretary of Liesau and a veteran employee of the office

Jose GARCIA, a technician, who has been made a partner.

Dolores AGUDO, a Spaniard, who is private secretary and a veteran employee in the office.

MUNOZ a salesman

MOHRING, a German salesclerk who has been with the firm since 1943. He escaped having to do military service because of his Jewish ancestry.

From SSU Report No Q 657 (OSS Records), 26 September 1945

"All the machinery of the Oficina Técnica Liesau has been secreted at Calle Jordan 11, Madrid, which is a furniture warehouse belonging to a certain Gonzalez, whose central office is situated at Alcala 41.The machinery was transported by trucks owned by Baquera, Kusche y Martin".

Post-activities in Spain:

El Mundo 13 March 1997:MADRID.- Un presunto agente del espionaje nazi era el presidente de la empresa que suministró al Cesid todos los equipos para la realización de escuchas.

Franz Liesau Zacharias fue presidente de la empresa Sociedad para Investigaciones y Aplicaciones Industriales (SIAISA) hasta su fallecimiento en diciembre de 1992. Desde entonces la empresa la preside su hijo Christian Liesau Von Lettow y el vicepresidente es su otro hijo Francisco Gerardo. También consta en el registro como administradora la hija del presunto nazi, Corina, y su viuda Sitta Von Lettow Vorbeck.

El nombre de Franz Liesau Zacharias aparece en una lista de agentes nazis protegidos por el régimen de Franco que figura en el Archivo General del Ministerio de Asuntos Exteriores y que fue desvelado recientemente por El País.

Su ficha señala que era un agente de la Abwehr, el servicio de contraespionaje nazi. Añade que «este hombre se hace llamar doctor. Involucrado en la compra de animales del Marruecos español y de la Guinea española para fines experimentales en Alemania, entre ellos la propagación de horribles enfermedades, como la peste, en los campos de concentración».

Al acabar la Segunda Guerra Mundial el régimen de Franco le protegió y denegó su entrega a los aliados. Ahora, EL MUNDO dispone de documentación que demuestra que, durante los años 80, mantuvo su relación con los servicios secretos españoles. En concreto, su empresa fue el principal proveedor de equipos de escuchas del Cesid y mantenía magníficas relaciones con el entonces jefe de los servicios secretos españoles, el general Alonso Manglano. En la ficha del presunto agente, elaborada en 1945, consta como domicilio el mismo de la actual sede de la empresa, oficialmente dedicada a «servicios técnicos de precisión». La oficina de la empresa está también en el número 52 de la calle Alcalá de Madrid, en un edificio propiedad de la familia Liesau desde los años 40.

Este periódico ha tenido acceso a la documentación que demuestra que esta empresa fue proveedora durante años del Cesid y fue la que instaló en 1992 el sofisticado equipo de escuchas con que cuentan los servicios secretos españoles. Así, obran en poder de EL MUNDO las complejas especificaciones técnicas de los equipos instalados. Los documentos llevan el epígrafe «Pliego de prescripciones técnicas para la adquisición de un sistema de supervisión de líneas telefónicas».

Entre las características técnicas del equipo figura un sistema para duplicar la capacidad de las cintas en las que se graban las escuchas o un sistema automático de búsqueda. En años anteriores y posteriores esta empresa también contrató con el Cesid y con organismos relacionados con la seguridad. Así, en 1994 estuvo a punto de participar en un proyecto multimillonario para la construcción de un gran gabinete de escuchas en la Dirección General de la Guardia Civil. En poder de este periódico obra un estudio denominado «Proyecto de creación de un gabinete central de intervenciones e interceptaciones».

Este Gabinete iba a instalarse en la sede de la Guardia Civil de Madrid, según el proyecto de la jefatura de Investigación e Información. Finalmente, el plan, que contaba con el visto bueno oficial, fue paralizado por la destitución del entonces director general de la Guardia Civil Luis Roldán.

Según la declaración anual de operaciones de la empresa del año 95, en ese ejercicio recibió 3.177.240 Pesetas por el mantenimiento de los equipos de escuchas del Cesid.

También ese año SIAISA recibió 22.137.847 Pesetas del Ministerio de la Presidencia por la instalación de diversos equipos de seguridad. Además, esta empresa es la principal suministradora de equipos de seguridad a otras administraciones públicas y la Ertzaintza y los Mossos d'Esquadra. Igualmente, es la empresa fabricante de los radares móviles de la Guardia Civil.

Las mentiras al juez Baltasar Garzón

Christian Liesau Von Lettow Vorbeck, hijo del presunto agente nazi y actual presidente de Siaisa, tuvo que declarar ante el juez Baltasar Garzón en 1989. Y según la documentación que ahora obra en poder de EL MUNDO no dijo la verdad.

Christian Liesau se encontraba la noche del 20 de noviembre de 1989 en el restaurante Basque de la calle Alcalá de Madrid. Mientras cenaba con unos amigos, a escasos metros de la sede de la empresa que entonces presidía su padre, presunto agente nazi, dos individuos dispararon contra varios parlamentarios electos de Herri Batasuna, resultando muerto Josu Muguruza y herido grave Iñaki Esnaola.

Baltasar Garzón, instructor del sumario, tomó declaración a todos los testigos presenciales del atentado, entre ellos Christian Liesau y sus acompañantes en la cena.

El empresario declaró entonces que estaba casualmente en el local y que su empresa se dedicaba a fabricar relojes, omitiendo que, en realidad, la sociedad era proveedora de equipos para los servicios secretos españoles y las Fuerzas de Seguridad del Estado, entre otros organismos públicos. En todas las declaraciones de ingresos de la empresa constan cantidades millonarias procedentes de distintos organismos públicos, especialmente del Ministerio del Interior, como la Policía Nacional y la Guardia Civil. FERNANDO GAREA y FERNANDO LAZARO*.*

LINDENBERG, Gerhard Johann Kaspar. Col. In Marine Perch file. DOB. Lubeck, 15 October, 1895. A-325 on Official List and III Priority List. Deported on SS Haighland Monarch 7 March, 1946. Arrested April 4, 1946. In No 6 CIC (British Civilian Internment Camp) Neuengamme (Hamburg). Former chief of Lufthansa in Madrid. Repatriated on the Highland Monarch. In British Zone at Uetersen (Hamburg) for interrogation. Connected with Wolgang MINAMEYER. Interrogated by OMGUS Finance Division May 25, 1946. After the German defeat he provided to Allies valuable but incomplete information about German and cloaking activities in Spain and supplied names of persons engaged in cloaking activities in Spain.

LINDENBERG was born in Lubeck in 1895. At the time of the defeat of German armies in 1945, he was director for Deutsche Lufthansa A.G. in Spain. He gave information about:

- Lufthansa and its relations with Spanish Iberia.
- Cloak activities:

Sofindus. LINDENBERG believed a bookeeper for the concern, one Kurt ROHE (still in Spain in May 1946) could have made good a boast of beign able to marshal cloaked assets of the company amounting to Pesetas 80.000.000.

Eckhardt KRAMER (German Air Attache), Madrid and BERNHARDT, director of Sofindus, had been very busy cloaking German assets since May 1945. According to LINDENBERG, BERNHARDT had been the top man in Spain during war, with more power and influence than the Ambassador. He was a pastmaster at cloaking, with some of his operations running through four or five companies. Concerning Sofindus, subject added that the company dominated German-Spanish arms and munitions traffic and was the controlling factor in the Montana Mining interest in Spain. It had grown out of a base of the Hisma, which had been founded by BERNHARDT. The latter came to Spain from Hamburg as a penniless bankrupt in 1936 or 1937. Intending to go to South America, he was delayed in Spain through a meager acquaintanceship with FRANCO. By one or another intrigue BERNHARDT secured GOERING's promise of German aid to FRANCO and thus began operations which grew into Sofindus. LINDENBERG said that probably both BERNHARDT and KRAMER were able to evade repatriation through intrigue with officials in the Spanish Foreign Office.

Sofindus was wholly owned by Germans. It received a percentage of all clearing funds and it was most active in operations involving arms, munitions and in mines through the Montana interests. German Consul in Tetuan LANGENHEIM and BETHKE of the Reichschaftministerium (RWM), were BERNHARDT's chief collaborators. All transactions in arms were centralized in KRAMER's office. A Lt. Col. GOLDENBERG and one SEELEG were also important figures in arms traffic.

Additionals Sofindus connections were: ZIESCHE, German in Spain particularly well informed on cloaking operations; Handelrat ENGE; BECKER; Major BREY, German who worked closely with KRAMER; Johann STURM, representative of the Heinkel aircraft people in Spain; KIECHLE; MOLLET, Dr. VOLLHARDT, technical advisor in the German Embassy, Madrid.

Spanish collaborators with BERNHARDT and KRAMER were: General ROA, Lt. Col. NUÑEZ (misspelled NUNES); GALLARZA of the Spanish Air Ministry; NAVASQÜÉS (misspelled NAVASQUEZ), Economic expert with Spanish Foreign Office.

Other safehaven candidates in Spain named by LINDENBERG were:

ALBRECHT, AEG official in Spain, was believed to have had Pesetas 20.000.000 on hand which were intended for German schools. The ownership of these Pesetas had probably been cloaked.

Kurt MEYER-DOEHMER (misspelled OEHMER in some documents), German Naval Attache, also collaborated with KRAMER and BERNHARDT.

LAZAR, German Press Attache in Madrid, had access to millions of Pesetas from German funds which he avowed he would keep for himself, hence he cloaked them.

Dr. LIESAU, technical representative of an office machine company, was also a cloaking artist.

Information about relations between Lufthansa and Iberia: According to a Statement made by LINDENBERG in Spain, Lufhansa held a participation up to August 1943 of 49%, 25% in compliance with Spanish law and 24% un the names of nominees. The participation was acquired in August 1943 by the Instituto Nacional de Industria, Madrid. On the confidential files of the Berlin Devisenstelle, a letter, dated 22 September, 1939, from Lufthansa, Berlin to Reichminister of air, reveals that Lufthansa owned a Spanish subsidiary, Iberia. Iberia owed large sums to Lufthansa and discharged these obligations in part by making monthly remittances of Pesetas to the German Meterological Station in Madrid.

LUBURIĆ, Vjekoslav / Vickoslaw LUBURIZ SOLDO, alias Maks, aka Vicente PEREZ GARCIA, aka Ladislao CERNOSKY SNOVODA aka Wieko LUBARICH aka Maximiliano LUBARICH aka DRINIANIN. Born June 13 / 20, 1913 in Humac, Ljubuški, (Western Herzegovina). Died 1969 in Spain. War criminal. Commander-in-chief of all the NDH (Free State of Croatia) concentration camps, under Ustasha terror. Commander-in-chief of Ustasha Defence Brigades. Commander-in-chief of Križari (Croatian anti-communist guerrilla army). Ante PAVELIC gave him the rank of General.

Guilty of the following crimes:
1. Gudovac massacre (April, 1941). Murder of 196 civilian Serbs in retaliation for the killing of a Croatian soldier by an unknown person.
1. Veljun massacre. Mass killing of 400 Serbs by members of the Ustaše in the village of Veljun in the Kordun region
2. Second massacre in Glina. 30 July 700–1,200 Serbs were massacred by a group of Ustaše led by Vjekoslav Luburić after being invited to celebrate a mass conversion to Roman Catholicism.
3. Jasenovac concentration camp. A range between 300.000 to 700.000 immates (Serbian, Jews and Romas) were murdered with the most atrociuos methods: cremation of living immates, gas poisoning, executions with hammers, knifes or saws. Jasenovac has been considered the worst concentration camp in WWII. LUBURIC ordered all and every murder and often he participate in the killing of prisoners.
From Crimes in the Jasenovac Camp. Zagreb 1946, report of the State Commission of Croatia for the Investigation of the Crimes of the Occupation Forces and their Collaborators from 1946. Translated by Sinisa Djuric:
"The Poglavnik entrusted supreme control over all of Jasenovac's camps to LUBURIC MAKS. In all of his duties, LUBURIC was responsible only to him.
Before the war, LUBURIC was a common criminal and had been sentenced to prison for a variety of criminal offenses. From the original police reports found in the files of the Zagreb police, we can see that LUBURIC, by the sentence of 7 September 1929 No. 104.761, was punished with two days in prison for roaming the streets, and by the sentence of the District Court in Mostar of 5 December 1931 No. Kzp. 719/31, with five months hard labor for the embezzlement of 8,305 dinars belonging to the public stock exchange in Mostar. He was arrested again for a second act of embezzlement.
His real name isn't MAKS, the nickname he was given by his Ustase colleagues, but Vjekoslav. LUBURIC was a common rambler, despising all honest labor. When PAVELIC left the country, he went after him and refined his brutality in various Ustase camps in Hungary and Italy. PAVELIC so highly appreciated these Ustase abilities that he eventually named him an Ustase general.

This monster, of an almost dwarf-like height and a face bearing strong traces of infantilism and the characteristics of a criminal, represented the supreme and only authority in the camps.
LUBURIC came to Jasenovac two or three times per month. He stayed only a few days at a time, but even during that short period he committed so many atrocities that the prisoners were terrified when they would hear that he had "stopped by" Jasenovac.
Knowing when new transports of prisoners arrived at Jasenovac, he wanted to hear why individual prisoners had been sentenced. He only heard and understood what his hatred, his base passions, and his most bestial instincts dictated.
His first "reports" were terrible, characterized by his ranting and curses, and followed up by fists, rifle butts, bullets from his revolver and his knife across their throats. He constantly patrolled the camp, looking to discover any violation of "camp discipline," to catch a prisoner slackening from weakness, old age or illness, to catch a hungry prisoner rummaging through the trash for food or not greeting him with a proper Ustase salute. His eyes would glisten, and a revolver or a knife would go into action.
On 9 October 1942, LUBURIC arranged for a ceremony in Jasenovac and distributed gold and silver medals to his subordinates, sent to them by PAVELIC as a reward for "merit."

At the banquet, LUBURIC, as drunk as the rest, held a speech and according to the testimony of one witness stated, "And thus in one year here in Jasenovac we have slaughtered more people than the Ottoman Empire was able to do during the entire stay of the Turks in Europe."

" Around 15 November (1941), LUBURIC ordered that all prisoners who were physically unable to move to the new camp were to be executed. On that occasion, 600 to 700 prisoners were murdered.

The same day, LUBURIC ordered another eighty-five prisoners to be killed, because they had dared to appeal to him to improve the quality of the food received by the inmates."
"Near the end of the Summer of 1942, LUBURIC noticed the children in the attics of workshops and in the barracks, and he ordered the Ustase to search the whole camp.

Thus it was discovered that there were over four hundred boys and girls in the camp, ranging from four to fourteen years of age. LUBURIC consulted with his officers and—to the inmates' surprise—had the children registered and placed in special rooms. He identified several male and female teachers among the inmates, and ordered them to teach the children to read, write and sing. This little "kindergarten" became the sole joy of the inmates in the camp.
Their happiness didn't last long. MATKOVIC IVICA, KAPETANOVIC and SLISKOVIC IVAN weren't satisfied with the results; it seemed to them that the children's upbringing didn't emphasize enough the Ustase spirit. Aside from that, they had established that these children were mostly Serbian and Jewish. When LUBURIC returned to Jasenovac, they reported their findings to him. He ordered that they be killed, particularly as they had become a burden to the supply budget."

"I remember seeing another incident involving several other prisoners. In December 1944, LUBURIC, MATKOVIC, LJUBO MILOS, STOJCIC and KORDIC amused themselves by knocking down a 19-year old girl, LONCAREVIC MARICA from Plesma. She was nude on the ground, they spread her legs and then crucified her on a table and burned her genitals with cigarettes, they shook off the ashes from their cigarettes. (Witness Duzemlic Milan's Statement).

"On a Sunday just before Christmas of 1944, I saw at 11 o'clock about forty naked women and children herded out of the camp to the Granik, where LUBURIC cut their throats and PRPIC cut open their bellies and dumped them into the Sava. (Witness Kosina Franjo's Statement).
"The Ustase realized that the end of their reign of terror was near, so LUBURIC, BOBAN and other "knights" suggested slaughtering everyone who was not a part of the Ustase. Thus the Ustase from October 1944 until the last days of the war committed mass liquidations of all hostile elements.

Again, transports began to arrive to Jasenovac from unliberated parts of the country. Whole prisons and camps were evacuated and their inmates transferred to Jasenovac. Throughout the Winter of 1944 and '45 blood flowed from the "Granik" and from Gradina.
At the end of war LUBURIC he escaped to Hungary, Austria, France and Spain. The Spanish authorities gave him protection and provided him with new identity papers with the name of Vicente PEREZ GARCIA. This protection needed the acquiescence (besides FRANCO's) of the following ministers: Alberto MARTÍN-ARTAJO (Ministerio de Asuntos Exteriores), Agustín MUÑOZ GRANDES, whose friend was (Ministerio del Ejercito), Blas PÉREZ GONZÁLEZ (Ministerio de la Gobernacion), and Antonio ITURMENDI BAÑALES (Ministerio de Justicia). In Spain LUBURIC founded in 1955 HNO ( Hrvatski narodni odpor or Croatian National Resistance). The HNO was a terrorist gang, faithful to Ustasha principles, involved in racketeering, murder, extortion, hijacking and bombing. According to Spanish press, LUBURIC lived in Madrid, Bilbao (where he married) and Valencia. He bought a farm Beniganim and in 1957 he went to live to Carcaxent or Carcagente. In Carcagente he opened a printing house named Drina, where he edited the HNO review Drina) and met his subordinates. LUBURIC was murdered 20 April, 1969, by Ilija STANIC.

Married the Spaniard Isabel HERNAIZ SANTISTEBAN, according some Spanish press).

They had 4 children Domagoj, known as Dronchi , born in 1954, Drina, born in 1956, Vjekoslav, born in 1957 and Miroslava Maria del Carmen LUBURIC HERNAIZ, known as Mirica or Mirka.

Spanish. Address: Hotel Albert Ier, Place Rogier, Brussels; 77 rue Bosnie, St. Gilles, Brussels (wife). Reported to have left for Switzerland via Germany, 31 Aug 44

Background: Born Ginesta, Tarragona, 20 Feb. 1903. Married to Renee BAUDELET, Belgian; one son, Francois. Arrived in Belgium from St. Etienne, 16 Mar. 1921 .Occupation professed: hairdresser Left for Switzerland via Germany, 31 Aug 44. Attached to Abt. VI. Falangiste and Germanophile.

From Roberts Commission reports, Art Project m-z. British memorandum dated 29 December 1944:

Subject: Possible Connection between S.D. and Stolen Art Treasures:

SWEERTS, the Sipo and S.D. character now in 020, as you will recall, made a trip to Spain in July-august 1944 with one CHERUY who is now imprisoned in Belgium as an S.D. collaborator. CHERUY was recently interrogated primarily to check SWEERTS' version of the Spanish trip. Generally their stories coincided.

However both SWEERTS and CHERUY knew one SOLA Francisco (or Pietro) who was given by SWEERTS as an agent of Abt. VI, Sipo and S.D. Other 020 characters of S.D. fame who informed on SOLA are COLLET and GARITTE. In the course of his interrogation CHERUY gives the following information on SOLA which may be of interest to those persons in our organization interested in stolen art treasures.

"It was SWEERTS who introduced CHERUY to Pietro SOLA and Francisco JORDA. These two eminent figures of the racketeering world were described as buyers for the wine importing firm of WEIDEMANN in Antwerp. However, they were catholic in their business interests, and willing to engage in any transaction which offered a quick return. They were Spanish subjects and lived in the Hotel Albert Premier, place Rogier, Brussels. CHERUY is unaware of any connection they may have had with the SD. When CHERUY met them they were proposing a deal whereby SWEERTS would arrange for their wine to be brought across the Belgian frontier in German military lorries to avoid customs duty. He does not know whether SWEERTS was able to follow up this proposition. They were also interested in the commercial aspect of Old Masters, and once asked CHERUY to sell a Rambrandt for them. He saw them in the company of a German Doctor (name unknown) and of a well-known Belgian art expert. Sometime between May and July they went with the latter to Monaco with a collection of pictures. They sometimes asked him to sell French francs. On one occasion JORDA asked him to change a hundred thousand French francs at the Brussels Bourse. He saw them for the last time sitting in a car outside the Bourse some four or five days before the arrival of the Allies. They told him that they were off to Switzerland."

From Roberts Commission reports, Art Project m-z. British memorandum dated 6 January 1945:
Subject: Possible Connection between S.D. and Stolen Art Treasures
Reference: Memorandum to V/48 this same subject, 29 December 1944
An XB report of 3I December 1944 from Brussels gives additional confirmation that Pietro SOLA and Francisco JORDA, very possibly an S.D. team trafficing in famous paintings, may now be in Switzerland having arrived there from Belgium via Germany."

KESSLER, Alfred Christian Friedrich. Repatriated on SS Highland Monarch 7 March, 1946 . Arrested April 4, 1946. B-222 Official List and III Priority List. In No 6 CIC Neuengamme. Internee No 609624. B-222 on Official List. Brought to repatriation center under police escort. Report of Interrogation by OMGUS, External Assets Branch, dated May 28, 1946: The subject was born at Hagen/Westphalia, Germany, on 21 December 1898, and went to Spain in 1928, remaining there until the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War. He married the daughter of Maria SEMINARIO, a Peruvian citizen with a personal fortune in Spain estimated to be Pesetas 400,000. She and KEESLER's wife, Anna Luisa HILBEK / HILBCK, are living at the Lima Country Club, Lima, Peru.

Upon leaving Spain at the beginning of the Civil War, KEESLER made a visit to Germany which lasted some four weeks. Without returning to Spain the subject and his family went to Peru, passing through Switzerland, France, Argentine and Chile. KESSLER claimed he spent the years of the Spenish Civil War in Argentine and Peru, remaining in the latter place until 1939.

On 14 August 1939 the interrogatee returned to Spain from Peru. He insisted that his only occupation was assisting in the management of a chicken farm, the Avicola Peruana Sociedad Ltda", near Alcala de Henares/ Madrid. He added that he had returned to Spain to determine the condition of the chicken farm, and that he had a round trip ticket. This farm was the property of KESSLER's mother-in-law. He alleged that she had provided him with .000 or .000, English pound sterling 1,600, and a letter of credit to the Banco Aleman Transatlantico for 0.

KESSLER claimed that he sold the farm, shortly after his return to Spain, for Pesetas 100,000. He added that the outbreak of war prevented his return to Peru. He used the funds provided by his mother-in-law and acquired from the sale of the farm to pay living expenses in Spain up to the time of his repatriation to Germany on the SS Highland Monarch in March 1946. The subject's declaration on MGAX(1) form indicated the following assets: Pesetas 353 and Peruvian Soles 300, on deposit in the Internment Camp; approximately Swiss francs 400 on deposit at the Schweizerische Bankgesellschaft Zurich, (stated to be funds transmitted by his mother-in-law for his subsistence), and approximately Pesos 15.000 credit at the Banco Aleman Transatlantico, Madrid, (also funds extended by his mother-in-law for subsistence).

The advances by his mother-in-law were, according to the subject, the only funds he had in Spain. He denied having engaged in any business other than the sale of the farm in Spain. During the interrogation KESSLER made reference to the Swiss francs 400 - declared on MGAX(1) -claiming them to be funds sent by his family in Peru and intended solely for his upkeep. He explained that his family had telegraphed the Banco Aleman Transatlantico, Madrid, through the Lima branch authorizing his use of the Pesetas paid in for the farm and extending him credit.

Confronted with the charge of working for German financial and commercial intelligence in close contact with the Banco Aleman Transatlantico, Kessler denied this, insisting that a mistake had been made in identity of the Kessler accused. He added that a man named KESSLER, (no relation), had purchased the farm.

The subject said that he believed that one Pablo KESSLER, son of a Conrado KESSLER, connected with the Ritz Hotel, Madrid, is the agent referred to in information available to the interrogators. Pablo KESSLER was thought to be an Abwehr agent.

The farm in Spain was purchased from the subject by Conrado KESSLER through his lawyer, one Jose SOTO REGUERA, Madrid. The purchase price was paid to the Banco Aleman Transatlantico, Madrid.

The subject has a brother, Alfredo KESSLER, who is a naturalized citizen of the United states, residing at 551 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Alfredo is engaged in the purchase and sale of stamps.

Repatriated by air from Spain between 29 January to 25 february 1946. Po. No. 0762. Interrogated between February and May 1946. British Reports. Born 1890 or 1895, Hamburg, Germany. In Spain during Civil War. Address: Av. Gen. Franco 520, Barcelona.

His father was partner in the firm A.G Meukow & Cie. in Cognac with an Englishman named SHEPPARD. During the war SHEPPARD took over whole company.

In October 1943 KLAEBISCH, on instructions of the German Government, bought his father's share in Meukow i. e. 68% of the capital and 40% of the trade marks. Down payment of 1.350.000 francs from a total of 6.000.000. This purchase was back/dated to June 1941 and the money paid into SHEPPARD's account in France. KLAEBISCH had already drawn in 1946 from this company 2.000.000 francs.

His partner, a friend of the family, named Harold BUTLER was French. In 1944, a firm was founded in Barcelona, called Dentichlor which was in the name of KLAEBISCH's son-in-law, Jaime NIN-LLENAS. KLAEBISCH himself owned shares in the name of his wife, Gertrude BURCKHARDT and was owed 60.000 pts. by de company.

KLAEBISCH stated that he put Jose Maria GOMEZ REVERA / RIBERA / RIVERA into the firm Dentichlor as a "cloak", giving him 65.000 pts. to come in. He then retired from active interest in the company and his son-in-law NIN LLENAS took over. The money he gave GOMEZ was never repaid.

In March 1945 the firm A. Klaebisch, which he set up in Barcelona, was given to his daughter NIN-KLAEBISCH, but he was still on the books as a creditor for 62.000 pts. KLAEBISCH was connected with a Greek DRACOPOULOS in London.

KLEYENSTUBER / KLEINSTUBER / KLEYENSTUEBER / KLEUENSTUEBER, Ernst Arno Paul, alias Arnold KLAMBE / KLAMKE, alias TORRE. Oberstleutnant . German agent classified A. Listed as A172. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. Born February 15, 1912, Kiel, Germany. Travelled in Balkans, Athens, Sofia, Lisbon, France and Stockholm.Assistant air attache of the German Embassy in Madrid. Head of the Abwehr KO Spanien in Spain since 1 July 1944. Interrogated at CIC 76 near Asperg on February 7, 1946. British Reports. Repatriated January 31 1946.

Subject claimed to have been sent to Spain with the specific mission of smoothing strained relations between the Secret Service and the German Embassy in Madrid and consolidating intelligence activities in Spain. He was assisted by six officers of the German Wehrmacht:

(1) Max FRANZBACH, in charge of administration.
(2) Karl ZIMMER, assistant to FRANZBACH.
(3) Lt. Col. Eberhard KICKEBUSCH / KIECKEBUSCH, in charge of information.
(4) Col. ROHRSCHEID, in charge of counter-intelligence.
(5) Lt. Comdr. OBERMÜLLER /OBERMUELLER, assistant to KICKEBUSCH.
(6) Capt. Dr. SCHÖNE / SCHOENE, in charge of liaison with intelligence agents operating in Spain but not under control of the Madrid office.

Subject declared that financial affairs were handled by FRANZBACH and ZIMMER. Normally the funds would be turned over to the Secret Service in Madrid by a courier from Berlin or by HEYDENRYNCH of the German Embassy in Madrid (...). The following assets remained and were turned to the proper authorities: (1) 5 boxes, each containing 5-10 Kg of gold, turned over to the Spanish police in May 1945; (2) 100.000 Pesetas and some foreign currency, turned over to the Spanish Foreign Office in May or June 1945; (3) 130.000 Pesetas turned over to the Allied Commission for Spain in December 1945 (...).

Subject further stated that the Secret Service in Spain spent an amount averaging three to five million Pesetas per month. (Note by the interrogator: "It should be noted that this estimate of the organization’s monthly expenditures is more than thirty times higher than that given by Georg DÜSTERBERG, head of the Administration Section of the German Secret Service in Berlin until July 1944.")

He mantained that when he took over, total monthly Abwehr expenses were between 2 and 5 million, normal expenses being 3 million Pesetas.

"Even earlier, in December 1939, an official of the German Foreign Institute mentioned the connection between poverty and the desirability of destruction in a report about his trip through occupied Poland. This official, Dr. Eduard KONEKAMP*, reported his observations on the first mass resettlements from the annexed western part of Poland to the eastern edge of the newly formed General Government:*

Many Germans probably see Jews in such masses for the first time.... [The ghettos] are among the filthiest things imaginable. Here the Jews vegetate in quarters that are sometimes as much as four flights underground. The prevailing hygienic and moral conditions here are ghastly.

The kinds of "criminal Jewish types" milling about, his report continued, far surpassed the ones depicted by the Sturmer. But now "they are most vigorously enlisted to do labor, [and] those who do not appear for work are shot." The latter assertion, however, corresponded to Konekamp's imagined desires rather than the reality at the time.

Konekamp, who after World War II was appointed Deputy Mayor of Stuttgart by the Allies, described in his 1939 report what were no doubt common German reactions when confronted with the poverty, exacerbated by wartime, of the Polish-Jewish residential quarters:

The destruction of this sub-humanity (Untermenschentum) would serve the interests of the entire world. But this destruction poses an extraordinarily difficult problem. Executions will not work. Also, one cannot allow women and children to be shot. Here and there one can also count on the losses incurred during evacuations, and 450 are said to have perished during a transport of 1,000 Jews from Lublin.... All the agencies concerned with the Jewish question recognize the inadequacy of these measures. But a solution to this complicated problem has not yet been found.

It took two more years until such visionary schemes of destruction, conceived by mid-level bureaucrats, were implemented. During this time German administrative practices produced conditions that made genocide appear reasonable and useful". KURRER, Otto. Hptm. Acting Leiter I-H KO Spain from April 1941 to May 1942.
Counter Intelligence Intermediate Interrogation Report, dated 27 September, 1945 (Interrogation Records Prepared for War Crimes Proceedings at Nuernberg, 1945-1947 ccpa INTERR. OTTO KURRER). Information given about personnel and activities Abwehr Spain up to May 1942:

Abwehr I-H Spain: Nests had been set up in Madrid, Barcelona, San Sebastian, Algeciras and Tetuan (Spanish Morocco) to gather information, and it was the function of the Abwehr I-H Leiter in KO Spain to extract all the military information contained in the Nests' reports, collate it, edit it, and send it on to Berlin. (Before KURRER went to Spain, Nest reports had been routed directly from Madrid to Berlin without preliminary processing. Consequently, the I-H Office in Berlin was forced to wade through a great deal of useless information to glean the intelligence it was interested in.) KURRER, besides screening reports to make sure only military,naval, and air intelligence would he forwarded to Berlin, also briefed the Nests on the type of information they were to seek. Hitherto each Nestleiter had granted his agente considerable latitude in carrying out their assignments, and this absence of centralized control led to unsatisfactory results. It was not unusual for reports to come in stating that on a given dry a certain ship had arrived at Gibraltar and had departed at some later dato but failing to describe the activities or identify the passangers aboard ship. Once KURRER had oriented his Nestleiters, however, Berlin began to learn of Allied notables arriving in or leaving Spain and of troop movements probable destinations, and the number and types of weapons and supplies going to the British armies in the Eastern Mediterranean.
Communications: The Nests sent their reports to Madrid once or twice a week, and in addition the stations at Algeciras, Barcelona, San Sebastian, and Tetuan had radio communication with the KO. Written reports were sent to Berlin by diplomatic pouch. Each report was put into an envelope marked with the code name of the section or individual for whom it was intended. This was then put into a larger envelope, marked Ausland Abwehr, which in turn was put in the pouch addressed to the Legations Rat. Thus the Embassy had no opportunity to read or censor the reports. Later, however in 1944, the RSHA began to intercept the reporta in Berlin, and the Abwehr could do no more than determine whether a given report had been read (by using sealing wax on the envelope or by placing a piece of thread under the flap); they could not prevent the RSHA from reading them. In most cases the courier taking the pouch from Spain to Germany was a German officer, business man, official, or any other reputable person who happened to be going at the time. Messages sent to Berlin by radio were confined to short or urgent ones.
The man in charge of radio communication for Abw I in Spain was O/Lt von BAHRFELD, alias von BENTHEIM, who came to MADRID at the beginning of 1942.
Nest Madrid: KUEHLENTHAL was the head of the Nest in Madrid. His assistant and complete confidant was a man named KNAPPE. They ran all the agents who were recruited from Madrid and supplied information for Abw I-H, M, and L. KURRER knows that KUEHLENTHAL had placed at least one steward on each of the Spanish ships Cabo de Hornos and Cabo de Buena Esperanza plying between Spain and the US, but he does not know if these men were active agents or go-betweens. One of the press attaches in the Spanish Legation in London was working for KUEHLENTHAL who had supplied him with a radio, but KURRER dees not know anything of its use. At times KUEHLENTHAL would tell KURRER he had an agent going to England, but would not reveal the agent's name nor what type of information he was best qualified to get. As a result KURRER was unable to draw up a list of specific questions for the agent's guidance and had to be content with information of general military value. Nevertheless, KUEHLENTHAL did supply more information than most of the people in Spain and was properly regarded by his superiors in Madrid and Berlin as a valuable Nestleiter. His reputation for efficiency remained intact even when the RSHA took control in 1944.

Nest Barcelona: Nest Barcelona was run by PAUL, alias don PABLO, a lazy individual who relied on his assistant KOEPKE to handle most of the agents. KOEPKE, therefore$_t$ would be more familiar with the activities of that Nest. Both of these men were assigned to Barcelona, at the outbreak of the war and presumably are still there, or at least somewhere in Spain. KURRER heard that in 1941 PAUL had considered sending a Spanish officer to South Africa as an agent in the guise of a monk. The officer was to go to Rome for an interview with the Pope and then proceed to South Africa. The objectives of the interview and mission are not known.

Nest San Sebastian: FURCH, alias PUENTE, was the heed of Nest San Sebastian. His primary duty was expediting the passage of persons and materiel across the border, usually in close cooperation with FUCHS, Leiter of Nest Biarritz, Besides helping agents cross the border without excessive interference from the Spanish police, FURCH facilitated the travel of GIS personnel and helped them smuggle whatever they wished out of Spain. (KO Spain frequently had no jurisdiction over some of these agents who had been hired by an Ast or Nest, yet FURCH was called upon to aid these people in crossing the frontier, too.) The major portion of this traffic was routed through the frontier town of IRUN. FURCH's job was not too difficult as there was a working arrangement between the Spaniards and the Germans whereby either could cross the border, bag and baggage, without being subject to inspection by the controlling party.

Nest Algeciras: The chief of Nest Algeciras was CARBE, alias don ALBERTO, who was concerned primarily with the Gibraltar area and was assisted by a Kptn KELLER, alias BODEGA. KURRER believes that operations were conducted mainly by recruiting agents from among the thousands of Spanish workmen who lived in Algeciras and conmuted to Gibraltar. CARBE also handled the negotiations with local Spanish authorities for the installation of infra-red equipment across the Straits of Gibraltar for the purpose of recording ship movements through the Straits. At one time these installations were destroyed, possibly by Allied agents. CARBE was assisted in discovering the strength and armament of Gibraltar by Lt Col SANCHEZ RUBIO of the Spanish Intelligence Service. This station, KURRER believes, was closed sometime in 1944 because of pressure on Spain by the United States and Great Britain.

Nest Tetuan: The Leiter of Nest Tetuan was Obst RUDOLF, alias RECKE, who was considered the best operator in North Africa. He used a great number of agents, mostly Arab and Moroccan traders. Each one supplied him with a small bit of reliable information, and because of the multitude of his agents RUDOLF was able to piece together a reasonably comprehensive picture of what was going on in the area under observation. The bulk of the intelligence secured by this Nest was concerned with French Morocco and Algeria. From reading RUDOLF's reports, KURRER is fairly sure that he never sent any agents to the US or England. In 1944, under Allied pressure, Spain forced Germany to close down this station, and RUDOLF was sent to KdM Stuttgart as Leiter I.

GIS Connections with the Spanish IS: Collaboration between the Abwehr and the Spanish Intelligence Service was very close. CARBE and SANCHEZ RUBIO worked together at Algeciras and after the expulsion of the Germans from that area, SANCHEZ RUBIO reported activities in Gibraltar to the KO in Madrid. KUEHLENTHAL made daily visits to the SIS office in Madrid which was across the street from the German Embassy. He conferred mainly with Gen MARTINEZ DE CAMPOS and Lt Col PARDO on subjects unknown. In autumn of 1940 CANARIS held discussions . with FRANCO concerning an attack upon Gibraltar. In the next few months, on Spanish orders, airfields were built, fuel dumps were constructed, and artillery was placed in Algeciras. During this period two German divisions were brought down to the Spanish frontier and, in addition, two squadrons of the Luftwaffe were allocated to the operation. However, in March 1941, Hitler canceled the plan because he had decided to attack Russia.

Conclusions: Although KURRER's information does not supply a completo picture, it furnishes a pattern of the activities of Abwehr I in Spain and, more important, shows the extent to which the Spaniards collaborated with the Germans. (See diagram in explanatory notes about Abwehr).

Repatriated by air 23 August 1946. Flight X. Ex-Kriminal Kommisar, Blankenburg Harz and former Gestapo chief at Bordeaux who escaped to Spain, August 1944, where the German Embassy demanded his internment, having been imprisioned at San Sebastián after having refused to return voluntarily by air to Germany.

From a British report dated September 11, 1944: Subject arrived at Hotel Alameda, Zarauz, near San Sebastián on September 1st, 1944. Carried with him at all times a large and apparently heavy leather suitcase. Left September 5, 1944, in his car, plus enough luggage for several years: 7 suitcases of various sizes and a small black case which looked like a grammophone or radio. Card attached to one of the cases read: "Walter KUTSCHMANN. Kriminal Kommissar, Blankenberg, Harz, Herzogstrasse 17". Description: Medium height and build; about 33 in 1944; fair hair; rather square face with straight nose; brisk military walk. Car. Nº 4814, AEI.

From a British report dated October 26, 1944: "In Spain and is hiding from the Germans. He is a gangster of the worst type and boasts that he was personally responsible for the death of 15.000 Jews in Russia and Poland

A letter from the American Consulate, San Sebastián, dated December 1st, 1944, says that subject has been in Ondarreta jail for two months.

A memo from Vice Consul N.O. Titus dated February 15, 1945 said KUTSCHMANN had been transferred to concentration camp at Miranda de Ebro in the section reserved for those who had been denounced as nazis. Designated as Hauptmann KUTSCHMANN of the Abwehr on order for transfer. But on February 14, from information received from a secret source it was learned that Foreign Office informed that Spanish DGS (Direccion General de Seguridad) had given him restricted liberty.

On January 9, 1945, from a reliable source, it was learned that Spanish Minister of War (Juan VIGON) denied German petition for extradition of subject who is accused by them (Germans) of misuse of funds during the time he was a customs employee in France.

From a memo to the US Embassy dated April 15, 1945: Subject was in a special section of Miranda reserved for deserters from German Army. This apparently was subject's "pose" to hide from Allied search.

From the Jewish Agency for Palestine. Records of War Criminals dated 1 May 1945: "KUTSCHMANN. Untersturmfuehrer S.S., commanded the S.S. detachment carrying out the extermination action against Jews in Lwow on the 5th January 1943. Many thousands of Jews were killed during the proceedings. Houses in the ghetto were set on fire and Jews trying to escape were killed on the spot. Many Jews were lived alive. Those who were not murdered in the ghetto were driven to the Janowska camp and killed by machine/guns on the sand-hills behind the camp. (Ref. Mat. File N^{o} L/1. Item:23)".

Muy estimado senor, Acabo de publicar una investigacion sobre los hermanos Sassen. Willem (Guilermo) Sassen ya se conoce por su vinculacion con A. Eichmann, poco se sabe del hermano menor Alfons Sassen. Quien se fugo a España en 1948. Dos anos mas tarde abordo un barco con destino Ecuador.
Si se interesa, el libro se llama Nazis to the Core, The Sassen brothers and their anti Bolshevik crusade in Latin America (Editor Aspekt 2015).
la investigacion se trata sobre las lineas ratas, la reunion con los Nazis en Latina America y la venta de armas. Alfons Sassen fue ayudado por el general Moscardò.
Le saludo muy atentamente,
J. Botman

Ernst HAMMES was born 8 Nov 11 at Trier/Mosel. He received his early education in Trier and later attended the Humanistische Kaiser Wilhelm Gymnasium there. He attended the University of Cologne, but left in l934, before graduation, because of pecuniary difficulties. HAMMES made an attempt to obtain employment with the NS Studentenbund but was unsuccessful. He was rejected for officers' candidate school of the Wehrmacht, officer in the regular police (Schupo), and even as an ordinary employee of the criminal police (Kripo), for reasons ranging from the fact that he wore glasses to his church affiliations and lack of party membership. Finally, through the efforts of an acquaintance who was a police official, he was permitted to take the examinations of the Gestapo and was finally accepted as a Krim Kom candidate in July 1935. Further police training followed and he was appointed Sturmmann (Pfc) in the SD at the end of that year.
1936 Transferred to economic section of the State Police (Staatspolizelstelle) in Trier.

"Prisoner: HAMMES, Ernst, Kriminalkomnmissar, Police Attache Digest of Report: This report concerns the Office of Police Attache in Spain from 1939 until May 1945. The organization was attached to the German Embassy in Madrid and was directly responsible to the Attache Group of the Chief of the Sipo and SD in Berlin. The Office of Police Attache concerned itself mainly with police matters, although there was a certain amount of observation of general trends in Spain. Cooperation with the Spanish police was essentially limited to combatting Communism, other contact with it being chiefly of a social nature. The Office of Police Attache also reported on political trends in Spain, the status and activities of racial and political German refugees in Spain, and made security checks on the employees of German firms and other holders of passports. The routine police work of the Embassy was handled by the Office. Cooperation with members of other German agencies in Spain, such as the representatives of Amts IV and VI, did not always go smoothly. Exchange of information on a high level was kept secret, and HAMMES is not aware of the extent of such exchange. Subversive German elements in Spain, such as the Free Germany Committee, were small and ineffective. So far as HAMMES knows, there was not a great influx of Germans to Spain upon the collapse of Germany."

1. Biography. See supra Personal Data.

2. History and Organization of the Office of Police Attache in Spain: The Office of Police Attache was established at the end of the Spanish Civil War. Germany gave considerable aid to Franco during that war in the way of materials and a force of men known as the Condor Legion, which consisted of soldiers, technicians, administrative personnel, and a number of police officials. This force was withdrawn after Franco's victory, but a number of its key personnel either remained or soon returned to Spain to further German interests in that country.

Toward the end of 1939 the police chiefs of Germany and Spain, HIMMLER and MARTINEZ-ANIDO, concluded a police agreement whereby police representatives were to be exchanged between the two countries to effect and further the tasks and objects of the IKPK (International Criminal Police Commission). The German and Spanish police representatives were officially attached to the corresponding embassies and given the title of Police Attache.

Soon afterwards, Spain .joined the Anti-Comintern Pact, which resulted in additional, duties for the Police Attache. The work consisted of supporting and facilitating bilateral cooperations in fighting international law breakers and Comintern agents which both countries considered dangerous to their existence and aims.

The Office of Police Attache was officially attached to the German Embassy in Madrid and was directly responsible to the Attache Group of the Chief of the Sipo and SD in Berlin. The Attache Group in turn, was the liaison agency for all higher police authorities and other German central offices in Berlin. All requests and orders for the Police Attache in Madrid came through the Attache Group. All communications and reports transmitted to Berlin by the Police Attache were always addressed to the Attache Group. Since Embassy mail channels were used, however, correspondence from the Office of Police Attache first reached the Foreign Office in Berlin, from where it was forwarded to the Attache Group. With the exception of the Attache Group, direct contact with police or other offices in Berlin did not exist. Several copies of reports from the Police Attache were usually written so that the Attache Group in Berlin could distribute copies to interested agencies. In urgent matters, the teletype equipment of the German Embassy was used.

The following offices were in operation when HAMMES arrived in Spain in January 1942. Madrid: Chief from 1939 until August 1944*, Krim Rat* WINZER; assistants: Krim

Kom HAMMES, Pol O/Insp VEY, Krim Sek GUTBIER, Krim Sek SCHMIT, Krim Sek KOENEKE, Krim O/Asst BAALK, Krim Kom KRUEGER, chief clerk VIONSEK.

HAMMES served as chief in Madrid from October 1944 to May 1945. Hptm. von KOSCHINSKY, a representative of Amt Ordnungspolizei, was also in Madrid.

Krim Kom HAMMES from beginning 1943 to September 1944, Krim Sek HAMFLER, Krim Sek POCK. San Sebastian: Krim Asst DENKAR.

Krim Rat WINZER had already been in Madrid, attached to the Embassy since 1939, when HAMMES arrived there in January 1942. WINZER was at that time Kriminallkommissar and had been sent to Spain, with one secretary, as observer of Spanish police activities. After the signing of the Spanish-German Police Agreement late in 1939 WINZER was promoted to Kriminalrat and appointed Police Attache at the German Embassy in Madrid. One or two commissioners and five or six minor officials were assigned to the Madrid office. A number of officials were sent to cities where there were large Spanish police organizations as well as German consulates, and were attached to the latter. Shortly after HAMMES' arrival, the representatives in Bilbao, Valencia, and Badagoz were withdrawn, since the remaining agencies were considered sufficient, and the extra personnel was either employed at Madrid or returned to Germany. At that time, there were only one or two officials in Barcelona, San Sebastian, and Tangier. Late in I943 the Spanish Government, through Allied pressure, ordered the German consulate in Tangier closed, and WINZER's representatives were ordered back to Germany.

Although the Office of Police Attache was originally established to develop professional relationships between the Gorman and Spanish police organizations, the outbreak of the European war caused a considerable drop in the amount of police work performed. Instead, the gathering of information on Spanish domestic and foreign policies became the major activity of German police officials.

In October 1944, while HAMMES was still in Barcelona, WINZER was reported missing while on a flight to Berlin. Although Hammes HAMMES never found out what happened to WINZER, various rumors had it that WINZER had fallen into Allied hands, and that the plane had power dived into the Mediterranean since all radio contact with the plane was broken the next day. HAMMES was ordered to Madrid to conduct affairs there until further notice. As early as March 1945, HAMMES issued his first orders to destroy a part of the records because threats from the The Germany Committee through anonymous letters to German agencies were becoming more and more numerous and it was feared that the consulates in which the offices of the Police Attache were located would be occupied suddenly by members of this group. Then word came that Berlin had fallen, the rest of the records were destroyed and the officials given a final payment according to their needs.

On 8 Kay 1945, the Office of Police Attache was disbanded.

3. Finances:

Funds for the operation of the Office of Police Attache were transmitted from the Deutsche Bank, Berlin, to the Banco Aleman in Madrid. Every official had an account and two check books for Berlin and Madrid. A check for a specified sum was sent to the Attache Group in Berlin, and the desired sum transmitted to the Banco Aleman in Madrid. WINZER had two accounts, his personal account and an account for running expenses covering all branches of the Office of Police Attache in Spain. Monthly expense accounts were submitted to the Attache Group in Berlin. HAMMES is unable to give figures„

In May 1944 the Banco Aleman blocked all German assets and the Office of Police Attache was forced to borrow from the German consulate. Shortly before WINZER left for Berlin$_f$ the Barcelona branch received back payments, but HAMMES does not know from where Madrid got the money.

When in October 1944 HAMMES arrived in Madrid to take over after WINZER's disappearance, he, VIONSEK, administrative official, and an interpreter found 3,000,000 Pesetas in the safe of the Madrid office. WINZER had left nothing indicating the origin of the money nor for what purposes it was to be used, HAMMES states that the fund was probably stored for WINZER to dispose of as he saw fit, perhaps to pay his own agents as well as for Amt VI purposes. Berlin instructed HAMMES to use the fund for salaries and operating expenses and also for Amt VI when requested. In April 1945 HAMMES paid SINGER and KRUEGER of Amt VI 300,000 Pesetas each.

From August 1944 to 8 May 1945, HAMMES paid all expenses from the 3.000,000 Pesetas. Since this sum proved insufficient, he procured an additional 4,000,000 Pesetas from the German Embassy.

HAMMES lists approximate expenses from August 1944 to May 1945 as follows:
Salaries, personnel of all branches, August 1944- May 1945 1,000,000 Pts
Salaries for 1,200 customs officials*from France, January 1945 - August 1945 1,000,000 Pts
Final payment and aid to women and children (exclusive of Barcelona) 700,000 "
For Amt VI (request) 600,000 "
Barcelona branch 200,000 "
Emergency fund for interned German nationals (later stolen) 200,000 "
Operating and maintenance expenses October 1944 - May 1945 300,000 " Total 7,000,000 "

Shortly before his internment, HAMMES gave 200,000 Pesetas, which were to serve as an emergency fund for interned German nationals in Spain, to a certain personal friend, Maria ANDILLA-PERASNEA (/ ANDILLA-PERASNAU, misspellings of ANDILLA PERARNAU), Barcelona, 188, Calle Valencia, for safekeeping. HAMMES claims that this amount was later stolen, since PERASNEA was nowhere to be found when he attempted to contact her from the internment camp through a Spaniard.

HAMMES claims that he did not make payments to agents in Madrid. A police commissioner in Barcelona who had been transferred from Figueras because of alleged too-close cooperation with the Germans frequently received payments of 500 Pesetas. Most of HAMMES' expenses were for gifts. HAMFLER in Barcelona made more cash payments. The running expenses of the Barcelona branch of the Office of Police Attache ran to 30,000 Pesetas monthly.

 With the disintegration of German forces in France approximately 1,200 German customs officials and members of foreign exchange tracing units (Devisenfahndungskomraandos) fled into Spain. These people were interned in three camps and were unofficially supported by German agencies in Spain. Not until the beginning of 1945 did HAMMES learn that these officials had been placed under the jurisdiction of the chief of the German police in July 1944 and that his office was the responsible administrative agency.

4. Duties and Activities: The following were the duties and activities of the Office of Police Attache.

a. To Develop Professional Relationship With the Spanish Police: Official contact was maintained with all Spanish police officials. Some of the leading police officials, however, particularly those who were members of the Spanish General Staff (Alto Estado Mayor), HAMMES met only at courtesy or social calls. Still, HAMMES at one time or other during his stay in Spain met or talked to all of the Spanish police officials. HAMMES maintains that he did not personnally have regular contacts with the Spanish General Staff. Pol O/lnsp VEY and Krim Sek KOENEKE were unofficially assigned to maintain close contact with the chief of the Criminal Police Commissariat (Brigada Criminal), EAGOAGA and his staff. HAMMES and VEY, apart from this connection, were in contact with the officers of the Foreign Division of the Spanish Political Police (Comisaria General Politico-Social) Lisardo ALVAREZ and Tomas CONSUEGRA.

Work in connection with the last mentioned office consisted of combatting communism and the activities of Comintern agents. Contact with the chief of the entire Spanish police (Direccion General de Seguridad) Francisco RODRIGUEZ had been only of a social and courtesy nature. However, WINZER, until his death, had been on close personal terms with RODRIGUEZ and his family. This was also true of the members of the Secretariat-General of the Spanish police (Secretaria General) LOPEZ-BARON and SUAREZ, where contact consisted of social and courtesy calls. Because of CONSUEGRA's position as director of the Foreign Division of the Spanish Political Police, contact with HAMMES on such matters as the issuance of passports, travel permits, residence permits, was close. CONSUEGRA is supposed to have been equally cooperative with the Allies also. HAMMES disclaims any knowledge of German agents receiving Spanish identity papers from CONSUEGRA.. Such papers would have been prepared in Berlin. HAMMES did not maintain relations with Lt Col Manuel CHAMORRO of the Spanish General Staff and the Spanish Intelligence Service. CHAMORRO worked with the German Abwehr in Barcelona, and attempted to contact the Barcelona branch of the Office of Police Attache in order to get a lead into France. CHAMORRO occasionally contacted Krim Sek HAMFLER of the Barcelona police office. Maj Carlos MARISTANY also worked with the GIS in Barcelona, but was found to be working for the Allies as well when one of his agents was arrested in France with pictures of bombed German factories, HAMMES had no relations with MARISTANY, HAMMES also met Lt Col CORES of the SIS once at the German Embassy,

The Barcelona office of the Police Attache worked in liaison with Antonio LOPEZ-MORENO of the Spanish General Staff in connection with frontier problems, with HAMFLER as chief contact man. While HAMMES was in Barcelona, he, as well as HAMFLER, was in contact with POLO, Police Commissioner with the Barcelona branch of the Spanish Political Police. Their cooperation consisted of an exchange of information on Communist activities and the activities of the Red Spanish Maquis. POLO received copies of reports concerning Spanish Communist activities, which the Office of Police Attache received from Berlin, and from France through the border police station at Perpignan.

In connection with the above activities, HAMMES during his service in Barcelona made nine or ten trips to Perpignan. Most of these trips were made with Krim Sek POCK. A few were made by HAMMES accompanied by a Spanish customs or police official. The purpose of those trips was as follows: familiarization with the border stations, their personnel, and activities; conferences with border officials at Perpignan concerning the situation at the border; inquiries about illegal border crossings and smuggling; checking of statements made by Spaniards and others who tried to cross the border, and checking with Spanish police files, if necessary; filing complaints with German posts on the French side concerning members of their staffs or alleged SD or police officials who made it a practice to cross the border into Spain often for personal reasons; arranging of border crossings into France for agents of the Spanish police or General Staff who were to observe the activities of the Spanish Maquis and whose reports were made available to the Office of Police Attache.

Specialized police literature constituted a wide scope of activity and was exchanged freely. HAMMES was given access to most Spanish police files, but never had access to Spanish Intelligence Service records and bulletins. The only intelligence bulletin which HAMMES had access to was one from the Direccion General de Seguridad. This was a low-level type of situation report giving not only police information but also material of a political nature.

Occasionally the Spanish police issued orders demanding the expulsion of German nationals suspected of espionage activities (usually at the request of Allied agencies), and the Office of Police Attache made arrangments for their departure.

Cooperation with the Spanish Safety and Traffic Police (Policia Armada y del Trafico) existed chiefly in an advisory capacity. Hptm von KOSCHINSKY, successor to Obst/Lt HARTMANN, was the representative of the Ordnungspolizei on the staff of the Police Attache. He worked independently, however, and was not subordinate to the Police Attache. Von KOSCHINSKY worked in close liaison with the inspector of the Policia Armada, Col CHINCHILLA, as well as with the chief of the Spanish Traffic Police, Lt Col OSLE.

b. To Observe Spanish Domestic Conditions and Political Trends: Initially HAMMES was not clear about the origin of this particular project,and he does not know whether WINZER began to submit such reports of his own accord or whether he was prompted to do so by Berlin.

To accomplish this task German police officials made use not only of the many official contacts which they had established, but also of the numerous unofficial connections in Spanish government, political, social, and private circles, as well as with persons from the German colony and Germans firms. Agents were frequently employed. Since direct payments were not often made to these informers, German decorations as well as gifts were handed out. Subordinate, poorly paid Spanish officials were sometimes given sums of money under the pretext of covering their "expenses". As late as January 1945, LETEL, a Frenchman, approached HAMMES in Madrid, demanding payment of a sum which WINZER had promised to him. LETEL told HAMMES that he had been in contact with members of the French Resistance and that he had agreed with WINZER, apparently before 20 July 1944, to furnish him with information on proposed plots against high German leaders, LETEL was to receive twenty thousand Pesetas for information of that nature. HAMMES was unable to check on the veracity of LETEL's story, but paid him the twenty thousand Pesetas in January 1945.

The Office of Police Attache observed and reported on the following Spanish trends: Monarchist (both trends-Juan III and Carlos VIII); Falangist; Separatist (Catalonian, Basque); Anarchist; Communist; Freemasonry; Church vs State.

WINZER, until his death, formulated reports on the above subjects from material supplied by his subordinates, the press, literature, personal contacts, and agents. HAMMES' sources were similar, and while in Barcelona he was in contact with Spanish student organizations, the Falange of which he knew a local leader, RAMIREZ, and members of Spanish workers' syndicates. Confidential intimations in Spanish quarters regarding the incrossing activities of agents after the alleged dissolution of the Comintern were considered especially valuable in Berlin. HAMMES recalls one incident which tended to substantiate tho belief that there was an increase in the activities of agents. A foreigner (HAMMES does not recall his name) was arrested by the Spanish police while crossing tho Spanish-Portuguese border into Spain. The individual carried English papers, apparently forged, had come from South America, and had stopped over in Portugal to take care of some business for the Spanish Republican Government in Mexico. He was on his way to report in Madrid.

The experiences of the Spanish Civil War enabled the Spanish Political Police to devise and organize an excellent index, not only of Spaniards, but also of foreign agents who still maintained contacts with various illegal groups existing in Spain. These groups worked more against one smother than with each other. The Spanish intelligence agencies succeeded, in most cases very quickly, in penetrating these groups through betrayals resulting from jealousy, the desire to show off, or through political rivalry. According to HAMMES, the expenditures of the Spanish section of the Comintern, which was directed by the well-known Communist, Dolores IBARURRI (LA PASIONARIA), were exceptionally high, and although no conspicuous successes were realized the anti-Falangist groups wore gaining potential strength.

Exact data on the movements of these illegal groups was never to be had officially from the Spanish police. Even information bulletins issued by the Spanish police for the Government chiefs did not give a true picture of the activities of the various illegal groups.

c. To Report the Status of Racial and Political Refugees From Germany: The great influx of German racial and political refugees over the French border into Spain after the fall of France in 1940 had already taken place when HAMMES arrived in Spain. Since the large majority of them had left Spain for Portugal and overseas destinations, HAMMES' office wat not concerned with them.

After the end of the Civil War, however, a group of Germans and Austrians, former members of the International Brigade, remained in Spain and were interned in a camp at Miranda del Ebro under the administration of the Spanish Army. After the end of the Civil War, German officials received permission from Spanish authorities to enter the camp to interview tho German internees for repatriation to Germany. HAMMES claims that approximately eighty Germans were repatriated to Germany, supposedly on a voluntary basis as requested by the Spanish Government. HAMMES states that he was personally, in 1942, in charge of a group of approximately thirty Germans whom he conducted to San Sebastian for passage to Germany. HAMMES also statos that he visited Miranda del Ebro only once, but that German consular officials had conducted interviews there, as well as DENKER and KOENEKE of the Office of Police Attache. HAMMES insists that to his knowlodge no forcible repatriations were conducted.

There were approximately one hundred Germans and Austrians left in Miranda del Ebro who refused repatriation to Germany. Most of these internees, who were living under assumed names and nationalities, were able to contact Allied Red Cross and Jewish aid committees and thereby effect their release. Some of then went to North Africa to DE GAULLE's forces, others were trained in Allied sabotage schools and others, who desired to remain in Spain, associated themselves with the illegal Communist movement.

4. To Observe Germans in Spain and to Make Security Checks on Employees and on German Passports: In this connection, HAMMES reported Goering, alias GOERITZ, vice-consul at Barcelona and chief of Referat III Barcelona KO Spain to Berlin in 1944. GOERING had been associating very openly with a Frenchwoman. HAMMES wrote to FOERSTER at Perpignan requesting any available information. The German collapse in France broke this investigation off and GOERING was drafted into the German Army but did not leave Spain,

In another instance, HEBERLEIN, who was first councilor of the German Embassy under Ambassador STOHRER, refused orders to leave Spain for Germany after STOHRER had already been recalled. In May 1944, under the pretext that HEBERLEIN's son was ill in Berlin, WINZER got HEBERLEIN to make the flight to Berlin in the plane of the German Air Attache, KRAMER. HEBERLEIN was then interned. Since HAMMES was in Barcelona at that time, he does not know any details of the matter. Later, Dr KEMPE, legation councilor of the German Embassy, on his way through Barcelona told HAMMES that WINZER had acted in accordance with instructions from Ambassador BIECKHOFF. Whether these instructions came from Berlin or not, KEMPE did not say. Nevertheless, WINZER requested Berlin to send a fictitious telegram stating that HEBERLEIN's son was seriously ill in Berlin,

On request from the KO the Office of Police Attache initiated steps for mail censorship in Germany of mail for German nationals in Spain, and approved or disapproved visas and passports. The Office of Police Attache was further concerned with the investigation of all German nationals who violated the German penal code or specific provisions thereof applicable to residence in Spain.

5. Cooperation with Other German Agencies in Spain

a. All specific police work connected with the functional duties of the German Embassy was carried out, and included the following: screening of personnel to be employed, both German and Spanish; handling of passport and visa matters; permits for relatives of Embassy members to leave Germany; matters pertaining to Germans returning home. The Embassy usually had access to the reports which the Office of Police Attache submitted to Berlin, since Embassy mail channels were used.

b. Cooperation with KO Spain took place only in cases where direct requests for police assistance were submitted. The type of assistance given, often in collaboration with the Spanish police, generally consisted of the following: forwarding results of inquiries concerning the reputation or character of persons which the KO intended to employ; tracing and locating individuals, mostly Spaniards and employees of the KO, who disappeared suddenly; dealing with passport matters; procuring various information from tho files of the Police Attache. Reports received from the KO concerning political conditions in Spain were passed on to the representative of Amt VI attached to tho Office of Police Attache for transmission to Berlin,

c. Some contact was maintained with the NSDAP in Spain. Inquiries of a personal nature, concerning prospective Party members, for instance, were occasionally handled, similarly to those made for the KO. The NSDAP also effected the return to Germany of some German nationals, residents of Spain for a number of years, who had managed to make only a meager existence for themselves. They were told about more favorable working prospects and conditions in Germany and were forced to leave Spain. On pressure from the Allies, several Kreisleiters of the NSDAP, scattered in cities throughout Spain, wore ordered to leave Spain. The Office of Police Attache arranged for travel clearance and the necessary papers.

d. HAMMES does not know to what extent WINZER cooperated with SINGER , the Amt VI representative in Madrid, except for the fact that Amt VI was interested in the political reports which the Office of Police Attache submitted to Berlin. In this connection, in 1943 a dispute between WINZER and the head of the Barcelona branch, Krim Kom JOHN, resulted in the latter's recall and HAMMES' transfer to Barcelona, The events leading up to this dispute began in January 1943 when Krim Rat MOSIG, who was working for the Sofindus firm, but was actually a representative of Amt VI came to Barcelona on his way to Madrid. He requested that JOHN send reports that were of interest to Amt VI directly to that office from Barcelona instead, of having all reports take the long devious route through WINZER in Madrid and then to the Attache Group, which resulted in the reports being almost continually antiquated by the time they reached the interested office When WINZER heard of this procedure in the summer of 1943 he immediately roported the facts to Berlin. This resulted in a somewhat lengthy dispute between the chiefs of Aemter IV and VI, MUELLER and SCHELLENBERG, and JOHN's transfer to Germany, charged with infidelity to Amt IV.

6. Liaison With German Agencies in France: Liaison maintained by the Office of Police Attache in Spain with German stations in France seemod to be mostly with those located on the French-Spanish border. As previously stated, HAMMES during his tour of duty at Barcelona, maintained contacts with FOERSTER at Perpignan. Krim Asst DENKER at San Sebastian probably worked in liaison with Krim Sek SCHMITT at Hendaye. HAMMES does not know to what degree SCHMITT and DENKER, if at all, cooperated with representatives of other German agencies, such as the KO covering the area San Sebastian-Hendaye. It is possible that DENKER and SCHMITT cooperated with KO men like FURCH and GENSOROWSKY and with KALLAB of Sofindus, During HAMMES'stay in Spain, he heard of KALLAB's connections with Sofindus and assumed that he was engaged in the export business in under takings to broak the blockade, and in the shipping of tungsten. HAMMES met KALLAB for the first time at Camp 76, Asperg, Germany and learned that the latter had been working for Amt VI all the time. When HAMMES took over in Madrid in October 1944, he discovered that a great deal of correspondence from WINZER to KNOCHON, military governor of Franco in Paris, consisted of complaints regarding the frequent unauthorized crossings of German personnel stationed near the border into Spain for short trips, usually unofficial in nature.

7. Method for Securing Spanish Naturalization: HAMMES is not familiar with cases of this nature. There were, however, several German nationals, commercial men and persons working for Amt VI, who succeeded in obtaining Spanish naturalization. Because of the foreign political implications involved, the Spanish government did not favor this method with its obvious ulterior motives. Through adoption by a Spaniard plus the payment of a substantial sum, however, an individual was able to secure Spanish naturalization. One German is said to have paid thwenty thousand Pesetas for this service. In 1944 the Spanish Government issued a decree nullifying the legality of all such naturalizations.

8. Arrival of German Nationals in Spain Shortly Beforo V-Day: During tho last few months before V-Day, air traffic between Spain and Germany had become increasingly sporadic. Seats were allotted on a priority basis, and only individuals considored most important were able to make reservations. Furthermore, passengor lists pf these last minute flights had to be cleared by the RSHA. On one of the last flights the following Germans were among those who entered Spain: KRUEGER, FULDNER, and Obst/Lt WILHELMY.

KRUEGER was a representative of Amt VI, Berlin, and had been working in the Spanish section of that office, From a teletype communication from Berlin to the German Embassy at Madrid, HAMMES learned that KRUEGER was sent to Spain under the cover title of consular secretary to take care of certain short-term, tasks. SINGER, Amt VI representative in Madrid, was also notified from Berlin and instructed that KRUEGER was to work independently and he responsible only to Berlin. HAMMES disclaims knowledge of KRUEGER's special mission, but assumes that he was in liaison with agents in France.

A member of the Kultur section of the German Embassy at Madrid, who was a co-passenger of FULDNER on the plane from Germany to Madrid, reported to the German Embassy that FULDNER had told him that he (FULDNER) was a representative of the SD. HAMMES had never heard of FULDNER before, nor did he discover the reason for FULDNER's presence in Spain.

Obst/Lt WILHELMY, formerly an aide to the German Military Attache at the German Embassy in Madrid, managed to return to Spain against the wishes of the Military Attache of the German Embassy who had requested the Office of Police Attache to disapprove WILHELMY's entry visa. WILHELMY, as former aide to the German Military Attache and with hopes of obtaining the position of his superior, had denounced German officials in Spain to Berlin. These denunciations reached Embassy circles in Madrid. WILHELMY was subsequently called up for active military service.Through his connections in Berlin, possibly through bribes, WILHELMY, nevertheless, was able to effect his return to Spain on one of the last flights of a Lufthansa plane. It was later mentioned in the German Embassy at Madrid that an SS officer had escorted WILHELMY to the plane either at Berlin or Stuttgart and that the SS officer handed a package to WILHELMY. HAMMES reported this to the Attache Group in Berlin, but never received a reply.

According to a report which HAMMES received from a Spanish police official, SS H/Stuf and former commander of the Sipo and SD in France, ALISCH, spent a few days in Spain. ALISCH is supposed to have made attempts to round up his former agents who fled to Spain after the German withdrawal from France, possibly for new tasks in France. HAMMES was not in touch with ALISCH. According to the Spanish police official, the Spanish Government demanded that ALISCH quit Spain immediately.

9. Werwolf Activities: HAMMES denies any knowledge of plans for or the existence of a Werwolf organization in Spain during his incumbency there. He does not believe that any German organization in Spain was instructed to form an underground movement. German agencies were instructed to carry on their operations in the event of an Allied invasion of Spain or to take precautions should relations with Spain be broken. In Madrid, two Germans claimed to have been threatened by the Werwolf. HAMMES believes that those threats were invented by the Germans in order to secure protection of the Allies.

10. The Free Germany Committee: Shortly after the German generals PAULUS and SEYDLITZ had, under Soviet sponsorship, established a Free Germany Committee in Russia, similar trends began to make themselves felt in Spain, particularly among German refagee circles.

Since Germany was losing the war, some of those Germans felt that the time had come to take a stand similar to the Stalingrad declaration. The endeavors to form a Free Germany group in Spain originated from the Spanish concentration camp, Miranda del Ebro, where some sixty to a hundred Germans, mostly under assumed names and nationalities, were held. Some of those were former members of communistic and an-archistic organizations dating back to the Spanish Civil War, and others were German deserters and criminals. Since these men were able to assume French, Czechoslovak, or Polish nationality, they were able to get out of Miranda del Ebro either with the help of the International Red Cross or on recognition by their claimed consulatos. A number of these left Spain, mostly in French collective transports to North Africa, while others remained in Spain and were supported by aid committoes. The Spanish police soon became aware of the fact that some of the Germans who remained in Spain were in contact with communistic under-cover movements. Some of them were arrested as German nationals and the German police asked to supply information regarding the true identity of the individuals and records of provious convictions, so that the Spanish police would have material to remonstrate with the aid committees.

After France was evacuated, these relatively small groups grew through the influx of customs officials and deserters from the Wehrmacht, The German Consulate and German officials began to roceive anonymous threatening letters, some of which Spanish postal authorities had seized, German officials were threatened with hangings and the occupation of German offices. Spanish authorities offered very little aid, suggesting that the Germans take special precautions. In tho Spring of 1945 the Spanish police discovered a secret printing press in Madrid, Several Germans were arrested, and HAMMES recalls only one name, Ernst BAYER. Evidence was given by tho prisoners to the effect that members of the German colony, of the diplomatic and consular staffs, and of German firms had attempted to establish contact with the movement, but that they were turned down bocause they were doomed opportunists. Others broke their contacts almost immediately, when they thought they recognized Communist motives behind the movement. It also became known that a Free Austria Committee had been established, and that Prince HOHENLOHE and Count SEYFRIED were to represent the new Austrian govemmont sanctioned by the Allies, notwithstanding the fact that the latter were supposed to have supported the allegedly Communist Free Austria Committee.

On the whole, HAMMES claims, these movements were not taken too seriously. Much of the evidence was based on rumors which Spaniards had often inflated before passing on to the Germans.

HAMMES states that Krim Sek GUTBIER attempted to penetrate the Free Germany Committee, but that results proved negative owing to the failure to establish the identity of the persons involved. The Committee remained obscure to the Office of Police Attache. As late as March 1945 GUTBIER was in Berlin, and in connection with this movement visited the Kriminal Technische Institut in an attempt to have some of the anonymous correspondence analyzed and traced to its source. Results proved negative,

11. Answers to Specific Briefs:

a. Jorge ESTRADA HAMMES does not recall ever having met anyone by that name. He recollects vaguely that ESTRADA was a man against whom his office was once warned by the Abwehr in Madrid, He claims that in any event the Office of Police Attache had no connections whatsoever with Argentina, or any other part of South America,

He is certain that agents of Amt VI maintained communication with Argentina. HAMMES recalls having heard the name THEO mentioned in this connection, but prosumes that Krim Kom SINGER, as representative of Amt VI, can give more satisfactory information on the matter,

b. GAITX FIOL was the Spanish housekeeper and general handy man employed by Krim Kom JOHN in Barcelona, When HAMMES succeeded JOHN in 1943 FIOL remained, in the some capacity under HAMMES, FIOL's duties consisted of general messenger duties, buying supplies, paying the bills, and delivering mail. He also undertook various trips to the French-Spanish border at Porthus to deliver and get mail. FIOL vas paid three hundred Pesetas per month and expenses. When the office was dissolved in 1945, he was given six months pay and an additional bonus of two thousand Pesetas for faithful service. HAMMES states that FIOL's activities were restricted to the aforementioned, and that he was un-suited for work of a more serious or important nature.

c. Arthur GEBAUER, alias GOLD BAUER Apparently coming from France, GEBAUER appeared in 1943 at the German Consulate in Barcelona and was referred to HAMMES at the Office of Police Attache in Barcelona. GEBAUER explained to HAMMES that he was engaged in a secret mission for Berlin with instructions not to contact any German agency in Spain, but that he needed funds and a passport. HAMMES distrusted GEBAUER and turned him away. A short time later GEBAUER again appeared in HAMMES's office, accompanied by a Spanish police official, who supposedly arrested GEBAUER for the latter's failure to have in his possession the required papers. GEBAUER is supposed to have bribed the police official so that the latter agreed to take him back to HAMMES. HAMMES contacted his Madrid headquarters and was told to send GEBAUER on to Madrid since SINGER of Amt VI had instructions regarding GEBAUER. It was never clear to HAMMES what particular mission HAMMES was to perform nor for whom he was working. HAMMES later heard that GEBAUER had been arrested by the Spanish police.

Comments and Recommendations: Although the Office of Police Attache in Spain was established ostensibly for the purpose of effecting police cooperation between Germany and Spain, its roots and missions originally planned go much deeper.

In this connection it is of interest and importance to quote Walter SCHELLENBERG regarding his interpretation of the Office of Police Attache in Madrid. Under interrogation SCHELLENBERG stated as follows:

"This (office) can be explained historically. A close relationship between Germany and Spain had already grown out of the war in l935/36, Condor Legion, etc. It was during that time that the first contacts between the Spanish IS and the old Abwehr were made. These connections were continued socially after 1936 They were intensified in 1940 when the German General Staff planned a Gibraltar move. At that time conferences between the Spanish military and the German General Staff were considering plans concerning certain areas to be occupied in Spain. In conjunction with this plan, it was considered, through Ambassador Count MARIALDO (misspelling of Conde de MAYALDE) in Berlin, who served as intermediary,what role the police should play.

I assume that within the limits of this general plan it was decidad -whether SERANO SUNNER (misspelling of SERRANO SUÑER) took part I do not know- that certain advance police commands of tho SD were to be active in Spain. These police commands left for Spain and were stationed in various cities. Since there was practically no work of an executive nature, these people, whether they were schooled or not, began to submit intelligence reports. Naturally, nothing came of this, and it was mostly a failure.

When I took over the political intelligence branch of tho Intelligence Service, I found conditions in the Amt VI sector very poor. I considered then, since I always had difficulties with the Foreign Office, that it would probably be of value to recall to Berlin a few of these people from the police commands, in order to train and exploit them. Counteracting these efforts, which I planned very carefully, since these people were already marked men, were the strivings of WINZER, a clever person, who had been in Spain with the Condor Legion and who desired to establish an official department within the bounds of the German Embassy, by consolidating these police commands under his leadership as Police Attache. This suited MUELLER's ideas since he wanted to place police attaches everywhere. He wanted to abolish Amt VI and to place everything under his command. After a comparatively short time he was able, with the aid of HEYDRICH, to make an agreement with the Foreign Office establishing police attache offices in certain European countries.

One of the first ones was set up in Madrid under WINZER, unquestionably a close confidant of MUELLER, I then attempted for two reasons to make the police attache useful to myself. Firstly, to eliminates this man as a competitive factor from the undercover controversy raging between myself and MUELLER, since nothing is more dangerous than an organization in a foreign country which operates against one's own office, i.e., through the observation of expenditures, the private lives of individuals, etc. Secondly, it is without doubt a duty of the members of an organization within an intelligence service, who have the time and opportunity, to gather intelligence information. Since WINZER considered himself an official of the criminal police, and, at the most, received only foreign exchange from me, his decisions and opinions were always hinged on those of MUELLER. I watched this for a while, and then went my own way, I had eliminated them as trouble makers since I controlled foreign exchange funds. Professionally, I shortly became convinced that they didn't moan anything to me, I, therefore, did not fight for their position. I recognized them as a group which should not be allowed to have anything to do with intelligence work, since they were marked men who carried their labels over into the intelligence service. Nevertheless, in the course of daily activities, I had to employ these people -some ten to fifteen who were concentrated there- so that they would not disturb me. To this extent, I accepted intelligence information from them, as well as giving them certain counterespionage tasks. But I can state with certainty that I placed, since the beginning of 1943 no importance whatsoever on the police attaches."

HAMMES was Police Attache in Madrid only from October 1944 to May 1945. He is able to furnish very little information on the activities of his predecessor and chief, Krim Rat WINZER, who served as Police Attache in Spain from 1940 to 1944. The interrogation reveals that HAMMES' comparative youth and inexperience, in contrast to his predecessor WINZER, as well as lack of sufficient rank as Police Attache, failed to gain him the confidence and insight that other more experienced representatives of German agencies in Spain enjoyed. HAMMES as Kriminalkommissar, held the equivalent rank of O/Stuf in the SS, although he was never officially a member of that organization. It is recommended that he be evacuated to an internment camp for disposition in accordance with current directives."

HEINZ, Edmond, alias SINGER, Heinz Edmund, alias SCHMUICK, Heinz, alias MANOLI, alias FINK. Repatriated from Spain by air (dates from January 29 to February 25, 1946). Po. No. 0760. Interrogated July 8, 1946. Referred to an ALTERSHEIM b/ SCHLESIEN. HEINZ belonged to Amt 6 (Sicherheits-Dienst im Ausland), previously in Sttaats-Polizei.

He went to Spain 15 January 1937, in the Legion Condor (knowing Spanish and having worked for the J. G. White Engineering Corporation in Central America. He stayed in Spain until May 1938, when he took leave in Germany and finally returned from Spain in June, 1939. He then did duty at Dusseldorf in Abt 3, but was sent to Spain in Political and Economic Intelligence (Amt 6) early in 1940, where he stayed until April 1941. April, 1941 Nine month's course in Berlin. After that, he left the Staatspolizei but took up further Amt 6 work in Spain, where he was, officially, at the Madrid Consulate (i/c Briefstelle). He had no chief in Spain, coming directly under Brigade Führer Schellenberg and Gruppenleiter Steremberg, Berlin, who sent him orders by diplomatic courier.

Interrogated about:
- Engelbert SCHMIDT. In Madrid as a member of the Spanish-German Police Exchange Agreement.
- OTSUP. SINGER meets him at Rotfritz.
- SCHLUETER made SINGER 's acquaintance owing to a demand by the former to use the Post Office facilities, which Berlin approved. Singer thought that Schueter worked for Amt 6 (Economic Sub-section) which was directly under Berlin, just as was his sub-section (Amt 6-Political).
- SINGER met CLOTH finally only, al Caldas Internment Camp, prior to be sent to Germany. Schlueter seems to have told Singer in June-July 1944 that he was acting as an intermediary in the transmission of Allied peace proposals to Berlin. Once Schlueter came with a man who seemed to work for USA, but appeared German, who spoke of a frenchman LECOINT and who wanted to "get a line" on Singer. Singer described Schlueter as dark haired, German looking, perhaps from Black Forest region, a good an adaptable business, smart but not a big man. He visited Singer's house and spoke of wanting to go back to Germany a to a Russian occupied part.
- BERNHARDT: SINGER described BERNHARDT as a business man, ruthles, without ideals or prejudices who would be prepared to fit in to any body in order to conduct business, for which he was so suitable owing to his excellent Spanish connections.
SINGER wanted to go back to South America with his family, preferably Nicaragua or Chile.

"El Partido Nazi, incluso no siendo legal en España durante la República, dispuso en Barcelona de una sede en una chalet del barrio de Sant Gervasi, concretamente en el número 16 de la calle Ferran Puig, donde se editaba el Deutsche Vorposlen, el semanario del Partido. Gracias a la abundante documentación consultada, se puede ratificar que desde inicios del 1934 el Jefe del Partido Nazi en Barcelona fue Hans Hellermann, nacido en Schwelm (Wesfalia) en 1909. Hellermann se afilió al Partido Nazi con el número de carné 186.721. A finales de 1933, por órdenes directas de la organización en el extranjero del Partido, la German Auslandorganisation (AO), fue enviada a Barcelona para extender y propagar la idea del nuevo orden europeo entre los alemanes. Cabe mencionar que los catalanes y españoles no podían afiliarse al partido de Hitler.

En Barcelona, Hellermann se instaló en el quinto piso del número 6 de la calle Jesús, en el barrio de Gràcia, y después, en la calle Aribau, 124 1º, 3ª.

Junto con Otto Philippi, un personaje de origen sudamericano educado en Alemania, abrió una sociedad mercantil en la calle Avinyó que nunca actuó como tal. La primera orden del Jefe del nazismo en Cataluña fue la utilización de códigos en las circulares que se enviaban a Berlín. Así, sabemos que cuando los nazis se referían a los arios habían de utilizar la denominación "grupo I"; para el partido nazi, "grupo 50"; para los masones, "grupo M", y para los judíos "grupo U". Por si sus enemigos accedían a esta información, Hellermann estableció la aplicación de frases comerciales en los documentos más comprometidos. Se han encontrado las claves en documentos reservados, hecho que hoy permite saber que cuando una situación había empeorado para sus intereses, se había de decir "preparado viaje"; conspiración, en clave, era "vendido automóvil"; situación aclarada, "descuento concedido"; los revólveres eran "naranjas"; las ametralladoras "olivas"; los cañones "plátanos", etc.

El astuto Hellermann esquivó los problemas con las autoridades locales resguardando al Partido Nazi, bajo el paraguas legal de la Asociación Nacional Alemana de Dependientes de Comercio, posteriormente denominada Frente del Trabajo Alemán, con sede en la calle Ferran Puig, 49, curiosamente al lado de las oficinas del Partido Nacionalsocialista. El jefe de ese organismo era Anton Leistert, un individuo controvertido, sadomasoquista practicante, según se desprende de los documentos y cartas personales encontradas en sus domicilios, en la calle Muntaner y al passeig de Pujades. Con la victoria del Partido Nazi, Leistert ordenó la sustitución de todos los miembros de la antigua junta directiva de la entidad por nuevos individuos con el carné del Partido. De hecho, solo podían ser directivos de los organismos oficiales alemanes en Cataluña los afiliados al NSDAP. Quien se negó, fue depurado, expulsado y hasta amenazado con la pérdida de la nacionalidad alemana.

Leistert también se ocupaba de las finanzas del Partido en Barcelona y controlaba que todo el mundo, particulares y empresas, pagaran la cuota de militancia. Además, exigió que todas las firmas comerciales alemanas presentaran un informe de los trabajadores clasificados en grupos, según si eran, "alemanes puros", "descendientes de alemanes", "otras nacionalidades" o del "grupo U", es decir judíos.

Con Hellermann y Leistert, la tela de araña nazi se extendió rápidamente por todo el país. Si en noviembre de 1934 existían 25 grupos locales del Partido en la Península, dos años más tarde ya eran 163, según un documento de fecha 6 de julio de 1936. En Cataluña había 21 repartidos entre las siguientes poblaciones: Barcelona, Bellaterra, Cornellà del Llobregat, Gavà, Montcada i Reixac, Navàs, Sallent, Santa Coloma de Gramanet, Terrassa, Balsareny, Castellà del Vallès, Espulgues del Llobregat, El Masnou, Premià de Mar, Sant Cugat del Vallès, Súria, Tortosa, Flix, Sant feliu de Guíxols, Palafrugell i Palamós.¨ (Sapiens)

HEYMANN, Ernst / Ernesto, alias Ernesto HEYMANN CERF alias Martius MEINERT, alias Martin MEYWALD (misspelled MAYWAID in some documents) alias BACH. Subject included in the 19 cases considered to be of utmost importance for repatriation. Listed as A151. Repatriated from Madrid by army airtransport on 23 August 1946. P. W., Born about 1913. Since 1942 in Spain. NSDAP member since 1933.

Information from the office of Attache D.P. Medalie, dated June 9 , 1944: German SD agent. Source worked as liaison (verbindungsmann) to subject, whose real name was Martin MAYWAID. (A person called Ernesto HEYMANN had exIed but had died abroad) Subject went to Spain with source who had Honduran passport prepared for him in Paris through Rosendo MARTINEZ FERRERA, early in 1943 for the sum of 1 million francs. SD suggested source and subject shoul have German passports to enter Spain. Subject's passport was issued in the name of BACH. Upon arrival MARTINEZ FERRERA, then in Barcelona, arranged for Honduran passports of both to be regularized by Spanish police in Madrid. From a reliable source January 2, 1945: Honduran passport N^{o} 230 issued at Vichy December 1st, 1942 valid to December 1st, 1945. Wife Alicia STERN, born in Leipzig, Germany, September 30, 1908. Subject also held a French identity card issued in Monaco in the name of Martius MEINERT.

Subject worked under orders of MOSIG and ARNOLD. He also had one Pablo SANCHEZ (misspelled SANCHES) LARQUE running small organisation. (Pablo SANCHEZ LARQUE was nominally "Teniente provisional de Caballería, del Regimiento Cazadores de Los Castillejos" , wounded in Spanish Civil war fighting with FRANCO. He was in S.I.M).

From a reliable source, November, 1944: Through SANCHEZ LARQUE of the S.I.M. with whom source was working in IS concerning the Allies and Italians, he met subject in 1944. At that time subject and SANCHEZ LARQUE were preparing sabotage of italian ship Orsa in Mallorca for which job they enlIed FERRETI's help. Others involved in this plan were Lt. MARTINEZ ANIDO (misspelled AMIDO in some documents) of Tanger and one MENDOZA.

Source met subject and SANCHEZ LARQUE almost daily and supplied them with C.E material. Some time in August subject paid FERRETTI for his services 170 sterling pounds which he stated had been left behind at Dunkirk and later withdrawn from circulation by the British. In September Arnin SCHMIDT was found by the Spanish police in possession of 850.000 pts worth of the same type of pound sterling notes which he was going to sell to two Portuguese he was expecting. Subject told FERRETTI that proceeds of this sale was to be for German IS expenses in Spain. Subject was arrested by Spanish police for his complicity in this affair and detained from September 11 to September 16, 1944. He was freed through intervention of SANCHEZ LARQUE and Comandante TOLEDO. The pounds received from subject by FERRETTI were given to latter in Ana de POMBO's dress shop in name of SANCHEZ LARQUE. Source reported that this shop served as a cloack for clandestine activities of subject and his accomplices.

The Spanish Foreign Office, in Note Verbale to British on Nov. 1944, stated the arrest of subject but did not mention his subsequent release.

Information from Austrian Embassy, Lisbon, to Madrid, October 10, 1944: Both subject and Willy LANGE had for some years been buying for the German armament industry large quantities of raw industrial diamonds. It was suggested that more could be found cut about from a Jewish refugee diamond expert named Leon STERN. On November 21, 1944, Embassy Madrid informed Lisbon STERN was in Palestine and could be contacted there.

From a British report dated September 18, 1945: Ernesto HEYMANN CERF and Karl ARNOLD VOLLE, believed implicated in the forgery of Bank of England notes, were detained and placed at the disposal of the judicial authorities.

According to a Spanish Primer from Attache D.P. Medalie's office, subject was a German Jew, officer of the Sipo and SD, probably of Amt VI, in Spain since at least November 1943, under cover of various commercial enterprises including deals in factory machinery and synthetic glycerine, as well as acting as financial backer of a dress making establishment in Madrid run by a certain Ana de POMBO. HEYMANN was head of the SD counter/espionage and sabotage service in Spain. Engaged in illicit currency ands diamond transaction on a large scale. Went about June 1944 to Tangier, where he was assisted by Pablo SANCHEZ LARQUE and Hamed ben Omar TEMSAMANI to dispose of 20.000 in notes counterfeit by the SD. Reported in December 1944 to be in contact with Geral D. LANE and Dr. Erich.

HONNEBOLD, Walter. In 1945 listed as German customs official refugee in Spain (OSS records).
HONSIK, Gerd. (From Wikipedia) : Honsik was a functionary in the Austrian "Volksbewegung"[2] ("People's Movement"), also known as "Volksbewegung gegen Überfremdung" ("People's Movement against Foreign Infiltration") and "Ausländer-Halt-Bewegung" ("No More Foreigners Movement"),[3] as well as in Austria's far-right NDP party.[2] He was the founder of a militia group, the Nationale Front, which according to its manifesto carried out activities to effect "the abolition of the system".[4][5]

He has also appeared under the pseudonym "Gerhon Endsik",[6] an anagram of the syllables of his name extended by two letters, intended to allude to the (politically charged) German term Endsieg ("final victory").

Honsik has been fined and sentenced to jail in several Austrian court cases due to his activities as a Holocaust denier.[2] He evaded his most recent sentence by fleeing the country,[7] and residing in Spain until 24 August 2007[8] when he was arrested in Málaga[9] after a recent change in Spanish legislation. On the 4th of October 2007[10] Honsik was extradited to Austria to serve out an 18-month prison sentence stemming from a 1992 conviction for Holocaust denial.[7] Spain had previously refused requests to extradite Honsik because Holocaust denial and neo-Nazi propaganda were not illegal in that country. Honsik was only extradited after two European-wide arrest warrants were issued at Austria's request.[11]

While in Spain Honsik contributed to the magazine Halt ("Stop") at irregular intervals.[12] The magazine publishes Holocaust-denying and anti-Semitic articles. Honsik also wrote a book, "Hitler Innocent?",[13] in which he attempts to justify some Nazi-era crimes.

On 27 April 2009, Honsik was sentenced to five years in prison in Austria for propagating Holocaust denial,[14] later reduced to four years.[15] The prosecutor argued that Honsik is "one of the ideological leaders" of Europe’s neo-Nazi movement and that his distribution of "hate magazines" at schools violated Austrian law. During the trial, Honsik called himself "a social democrat" and stated that he only "rejected the textbook wisdom that demonizes National Socialism" and he only denied the existence of the gas chambers used in concentration camps "wherever I had not verified the (facts) myself". At one point, Honsik began screaming and pounding his fists after the judge denied his requests to introduce evidence which the court had deemed irrelevant.[11]

Honsik denied the charges and said he would appeal the verdict; the prosecutor stated that he also would appeal to seek a longer jail-term of up to 20 years.

HORN, Edgar. Still in Spain in September 1946. Brother in law of Rudolf Hess. With Luftwaffe machine/tools business. According to MINAMEYER: He was co-worker of the staff of SPEER and had to purchase in Spain large quantities of machine-tools for the account of the Luftwaffe. Whe the transportation of the machines were not possible via France, HORN appeared again in Spain with the power of attorney to have the purchase made undone and cash the money returned. He stated that he should use the returned money for urgent secret purchases in Spain. One of the suppliers of machines was Dr. LIESAU, Madrid ; another one was MINAMEYER, who tried to pospone the repaine following instructions from Col. EBRIGHT (US Embassy) but HORN got in touch with General KRAHMER and the following settlement was made: The ready machines were transferred with the title of ownership to the Banco Germanico. On the total value of the repayment, amounting circa 1.900.000 pts, the bank (Director was WEDEKIND) issued a credit of 1.000.000 Pesetas. This sum was deposited in the German Embassy in the safe of KRAHMER. Several months after the end of the war, WEDEKIND gave to HORN a second credit amounting to 500.000 pts. HORN and WEDEKIND were living in grand style. They were listed in the eviction list, but remained in Spain in July 1946.

The following persons had to account for this money belonging to the German State: 1) General KRAHMER for the deposit of 1.000.000 Pesetas. He had several more of these deposits in his safe; 2) HORN, regarding the second credit of 500.000 pts., as well as regarding the use of the expenses cashed in the amount of 30-50.000 pts. 3) WEDEKIND for having granted a credit without justification. In the same line he had granted credits to the enterprises of SALVICHES; 5) Dr. LIESAU and a firm in Barcelona.

G) THE FACTUAL LIST OF NAZIS PROTECTED BY SPAIN

GABISON GHEZ / CHEZ, Andre. French jew, reported to be engaged in the sale of French art treasures in Spain. Born Paris, March 12, 1907. Passport 03755 describe him as a "comerciante" from Tunisia, showed seven trips between Paris and Hendaye in July 1943.

Believed to be a Gestapo agent. Has a mistress named Yolanda RODRIGUEZ (misspelled Jolanda RODRIQUEZ in some files). By November 1943 subject had made about twenty trips between Spain and France, working for a German service operating under the orders of one PAT, from Avenue Hoche 53, Paris and Villa Chapultepec, San Sebastian. Activities include smuggling of wolfram, jewelry, furs. Is reported to be amasing enormous funds in Spain for postwar Gestapo use.

Subject is married to one Kate LIEGFRED.

His contacts include Michel SZKOLNIKOW, white Russian smuggler, Baron Othon de BAGAERDE, Liberian Charge d'Affaires, LOPEZ BARRON, Michel DASSONVILLE and ARLISCH, both working for the Germans.

Addresses: Jorge Juan 17, Madrid. Previously, Villa Chapultepec, Ategorrieta, San Sebastian.

Also connected with Spanish smuggler working for Gestapo Juan CERVANTES RODRIGUEZ, Madrid.

From OSS records: GABISON acted of behalf of one FOLMER. "FOLMER, who used many aliases is well known to us as a German agent. Among other activities, he was connected with the purchasing service of the SS and he also was reported to be chief of the recruiting bureau for German agents in Paris. He also was concerned with the payment of German agents in Spain. GABISON was one of his men here and one of his duties was to obtain peseta exchange here through the sale of goods brought in France, the proceeds presumably to be used for the purchase of Spanish products and to finance German agents in Spain. As an example (from a letter addressed by the British Embassy at Madrid to the British Consulate at San Sebastian on 14 March 1944 regarding GABISON), we know that GABISON was in contact with PAT (an alias of FOLMER), who came once a month to San Sebastian from Paris carrying a diplomatic bag with funds to pay special agents in Spain. GABISON was reported to have been involved in a deal arranged by Juan CERVANTES of Madrid and Lucio MUÑOZ RAMOND of Barcelona relating to the exchange of aluminium for Spanish cotton goods. (...) It all boils down to the fact that both were agents of the German Government and the goods they dealt with (including the aluminium) were undoubtedly the property of the German Government.

From OSS records, Special Funds, Division Finance, docs. 4051-4100: "Mr. VIEL CASTEL stated that one FORRESTER, american with the OSS, had approached Commercial Counselor HUGUES of the French Mission on the subject of having Andres GABISON transferred from Caldas to Madrid, on the basis that GABISON had saved the lives of some FORRESTER´s agents. Mr. HORWIN stated he knew nothing of this matter. Mr. MILTON said that FORRESTER had called on him but he, MILTON, was opposed to any release of GABISON from Caldas, although he understood that GABISON was now in Madrid for dental treatment. Mr. VIEL CASTEL said that he had assumed FORRESTER was with the OSS because he had spoken of "his agents" and that FORRESTER claimed to be responsible for GABISON´S presence in Madrid. Mr. MILTON stated that GABISON had been black-listed for very good reasons, and that he saw no reason for any favoritism being shown him. The American section promised to discuss this subject immediately with BALDWIN, in charge of repatriation in American Embassy."

GABISON remained in Spain, where he died 23 September 1981. He was buried as catholic. He frequented the closest circles of General Franco. (ABC, 23 September 1983 and 3 July, 1964)

 It has to be investigated whether the identity documents of GABISON were real or fake. There was an Andre GABISON GHEZ , "Dedé Gabison", in Tunis, but he was imprisoned in Bizerte Concentration Camp at the same time the GABISON smuggler was working for the Gestapo. (See. Jacob Andre Ghez, Au camp de Bizerte, pp. 30, 66, 104) (Note by E. Meyer)

GARTENO. From OSS Secret Intelligence Special Funds Records 1942 1946 226:
(German flight of capital and assets in France, Belgium & Spain)
Loot:
"GARTENO was introduced to source by the president of the Spanish Chamber of Commerce at Paris and wished to buy 10,000,000 Pesetas worth of real silk, in garments and material , then at Lyon. He offered to pay the Germans three or four million Pesetas within Spain. Source has seen GARTENO pruduce a paper from the Gestapo stating he is in the service of the German Secret Police. It was also said that GARTENO had been a member oi the Maquis and source rates him as a double agent, playing both sides. He is a Spanish Jew, extremely rich, which cash he has obtained through working with the Gestapo and the German authorities and it is possible that he turned to the Maquis in order to protect these riches. He purchased plants and estates in France, once when seized by the Maquis, Garteno produced Maquis credentials and was promptly given every courtesy and escorted to his destination. Source believes he is one of the original black market or smuggling operators, especially in the Cerbere area.
Source stated that most of the Spaniards resident in France, and particularly at Paris, had been close friends of the Gestapo and has collaborated, particulariy in business; that the Spanish-French traffic was principally in the hands of the Spaniards, who dealt also in currency.

Many purchases of large properties and industries in Southern France, particularly in Monte Carlo, Nice and Cannes, had been made by black market and smuggling operators, to protect their fortunes. In many cases these purchases had been made through dummies, because the French law forbidding foreigners to buy. Impoverished families had been compelled to sell. He stated that the French had bought industries and assets in Belgium with funds from the black market."

He then went to Holland and Belgium to work for the 2ieme Bureau. In 1939 he was sent to Borutschko. In 1940 he worked for the Czechs and then worked for the Czechs and Germans. In 1941 he made a trip to Berlin under the alias of FOUSECA. In 1942 he worked as an agent for the Czechs German, Polish and as to his statement for the American intelligence. In 1944 he made a second trip to Berlin under the alias of ALENDORF. In 1944 he went on a mission for German intelligence to Barcelona. In March 1945 he again went on a mission for German intelligence. In February 1946 he made direct contact with U. S. representatives in Lisbon. In August 1946 he was arrested by the political security police.

The following recommendations and comments were made before he was released: subject was thororghly interrogated by 7707 I CIC, APO 757, U.S. Army. GESSMAN is absolutely unscrupulous and without moral intricacy. In the opinion of thei nterrogators,even,the given.testimony of GESSMAN contains sufficient incriminating evidence to disqualify him unconditionally for future intelligence work in any capacity whatsoever. It was suggested by the Screening Center that GESSMAN shouId be placed under surveillance for a period of time. Since he was an Austrian he was transferred to Austria. U.S. intelligence agencies were notified of this transfer".

From 1941 he managed Unitas Ltda. (capital 2.000.000 pts) which was owned by Mawick & Co. Tetuan (capital 7 to 8.000.000 pts) the property of the German MAWICK, who lives in Barcelona.

Report of Interrogation by OMGUS, External Assets Branch, dated May 28, 1946:

"Subject, a citizen of Germany, whose wife and children are Spanish, stated that he was born 21 May 1894 in Stuttgart and that he left Germany in 1914 and did not return until repatriated in March 1946. He said that he had resided in French Morocco until after the outbreak of war but that he was forced to leave there when American interests concluded and agreement with the French for deliveries of oil provided that certain Germans were expelled from French Morocco, GRADOLPH, who alleged that he was a commercial agent for Spanish companies, said that he was also employed by Hisma, (predecessor of Sofindus), from 1937 until its dissolution in 1940.

GRADOLPH disclaimed any activities as a German agent on the French and Spanish borders in Morocco, explaining that he had been commissioned by the Spanish government to purchase black market grain along the border. The subject further stated he had supplemented his income by a grocery business he operated as a sole-proprietorship at Arcila until 1943. He estimated the turn-over of this business to be approximately Pesetas 300.000 annually. GRADOLPH also denied that any but isolated shipments had been made to Germany, adding that he had once used his ihfluence and connections in Morocco to obtain a coastal vessel which could transport a load of goat skins to Germany.

In 1940 Gradolph became associated with Mawick and Cia., Ltda. (also known as Unitas Ltda.), Cardinal Cisneros 9, Tetuan, Spanish Morocco. He stated that the Mawick firm had, in 1940, received a flour mill in Alcazarquivir, Spanish Morocco, from Hisma in payment of a debt. This mill was said to have been in bankruptcy for the previous twenty years. GRADOLPH explained that he was employed as a technical director to put the mill, (called Unitas Ltda.), into operation together with an adjacent noodle factory.

Concerning the corporate organization of Mawick, GRADOLPH told that the company had been founded in 1940 at Tetuan as Mawick, Lupo, u. Kompanie with an original capital of Pesetas 450,000. Franz MAWICK, a German national, was said to have contributed Pesetas 250,000. one STUESSEL, (given name not known to GRADOLPH). contributed Pesetas 100.000, as did another German national whose name the subject could not remember. GRADOLPH disclaimed any capital participation in the Mawick business. He further stated that the capital had been subsequently increased to a total of Pesetas 2,200.000.

In reply to a question as to whether Mawick is still in operation, the subject said that he assumed that it is but that had there been a sale it would undoubtedly have been cloaked. He listed as the most probable purchaser one Oswaldo DOLID, and added that the sale would have taken place in Sevilla.

According to GRADOLPH the Mawick firm banked at the Hispano Americano Bank / Banco Hispano Americano, Madrid.

The subject was asked to supply such information as he could concerning Franz MAWICK, (individual). Gradolph asserted that MAWICK had come to Barcelona, Spain, in 1920s had a personal fortune of from 7 to 9 million Pesetas, and owned a company Franz Mawick in Barcelona and another in Sevilla, (name of which Gradolph did not supply). These companies were .said to have engaged in dealings in pelts, gut and sausage casings. Franz MAWICK, so GRADOLPH believed, may also have an interest in a bus company in Barcelona. Franz MAWICK, according to the subject, purchased a house in Barcelona for Pesetas 500,000.

GRADOLPH said that he believed that Franz MAWICK had concealed much of his personal fortune in Switzerland, Argentina and the United states, The subject was unable to further amplify this statement except to add that MAWICK had dealings with one SKOLNICK, New York, a dealer in gut and sausage casings, who may be a safehaven for MAWICK. Gradolph is convinced that Franz MAWICK contributed only an approximate 50% or less of the aforementioned Pesetas 250,000 in the original capital of Mawick and Cia., Ltda., Tetuan. MAWICK was characterized as an individual who would not risk an investment wherein his funds amounted to more than 50% the capital. The subject said that MAWICK was a representative for a firm, (name unknown), in Stettin, Germany. Gradolph claimed that he was once approached by Franz MAWICK who expressed an interest in the acquisition of gold, but that he refused to take any part in such transactions.

STUESSEL, referred to above, was said to have come to Spain in 1930 and to have been a representative of the company in Stettin. It was also believed by GRADOLPH that the third Mawick and Cia. partner represented the Stettin company. STUESSEL, so the subject stated, traveled very often.

In 1944 GRADOLPH was expelled from Spanish Morocco and came to Madrid. He added that he was without funds or employment and that he obtained a menial position of sweeping floors at the German Embassy in Madrid.

From OSS / CIA records declassified under Nazi War Crimes Disclosure Act:
To: Maurice HALPERIN, Chief , Latin America Division, Research and analysis Branch, IRIS
From: Stanley RUBINT, Latin America Division, Research and Analysis Branch, IRIS:
Subject: Report on the continued investigation of the Ibero-Amerikanisches Institut, Berlin
"Wilhelm Faupel. - Born 10 October 1873. Committed suicide 1 May 1945 near Babelsberg in the outskirts of Berlin. Military advisor to the Argentine Government from 1921-26. Inspector General of the Peruvian Army from 1926-1930. Organized and directed the Frewilliger Arbeitsdienst in Germany from 1931-33. Appointed director of the Ibero-Amerikanisches Institut and its affiliated societies on April of 1934.
Appointed charge d'affaires to the FRANCO Government in Salamanca, Spain, in November 1936 and a few months later elevated to the post of ambassador to FRANCO. Recalled from his post as ambassador towards the end of 1937 by HITLER, allegedy because he meddled in the military operations of the FRANCO army, at the request of FRANCO Returned to his former job in the Institut in April of 1938 against the desire of most of the staff members of the Institut. During his absence in Spain, his post in the Institut was given to a General REINECKE (deceased) who was much better liked by the staff than FAUPEL, but was pushed out upon FAUPEL's return to Berlin by virtue of the pressure the latter brought to bear in high Nazi circles.
Statements by the Institut's staff about FAUPEL,the man and his aims in directing the work of the Institut were very confusing. They presented the picture of a very ambitious man, guided by the ambitions and brains of a more ambitious wife, a patriot and a soldier above all and a passive anti-Nazi, admitting on the other hand his close friendship with Rudolf HESS, his contacts in high Nazi and Wehrmacht circles and his great admiration for FRANCO and the Falangist ideology.
FAUPEL joined the NSDAP in 1936 prior to his departure for Spain. In close partnership with his wife he directed the work of the Institut and its societies, paying very little attention to the scientific research being conducted by his staff and concentrating instead on political and propaganda activities. By virtue of his previous work in Latin America and Spain he knew personally most of the prominent political figures in those countries and he kept in constant touch with them, especially General MOSCARDO, a high ranking member of the Spanish General Staff, and Ernesto GIMENEZ CABALLERO, well known writer and one of the original founders of the Spanish Falange Party. All his conferences with his foreign guests were conducted behind closed doors, with only his wife and his general secretary present.
Records of these meetings were kept by his wife, who is alleged to have been the only person fully informed of all FAUPEL's activities. FAUPEL's secret records were never kept in the Institut building and his highly confidential correspondence was handled by his wife.*
The instructions of his office staff were never to open any of the incoming mail without his approval. The secret records, which were kept at FAUPEL's home in Babelsbegg, were destroyed by his sister following instructions given her by FAUPEL before his death. In 1943, FAUPEL made a four week trip to Spain, accompanied by his wife, his general secretary von MERKATZ and one of his many secretaries Elisabeth SCHULER, who presumably is still in Spain. The purpose of this trip is reported to have been a purely personal one, which seems, however, rather unlikely since it included von MERKATZ.

 Early reports claimed all the documents of the Ibero-Amerikanisches Institut in Hamburg were destroyed during the Allied bombing: " None of the files of the German Foreign Office in the Marburg document center are under the titile from which it could be seen that it pertains to the correspondence of the Ibero-American Institute or Gen. FAUPEL. (...) Knowing that Mr. COLLINS of the American State Department has done an investigation of the Ibero-American Institute I asked him about the results of his investigation. He went to Hamburg but only found there the complete destroyed building of the Hamburg Ibero-American Institute"

(From Oss Report signed by Jonas STEIGMANN, 31 September 1945 in OSS Washington Secret Intelligence Records › ... Washington Office, Special Funds Division Finance, Intelligence › WASH-SPDF-INT-1: Documents 2385-2430).
But the documents kept in Berlin were preserved, according the Stanley RUBINT report:

"The files and records of the Institut: The records of the Institut were found in a state of utter confusion. They had been moved into the cellars of the building in anticipation of the battle for Berlin. By the time of our arrival at the Institut, the remaining staff had managed to move about 75% of the records back to the main floor of the building. After my return to Berlin from Nurnberg, I instructed the staff to move the remaining records out of the cellar and to put all the files in order. The records were in very good condition and showed an almost perfect continuity from the time of the Institut's foundation until the end of the war, the only gaps being the correspondenoe files burnt by Frau SELMER on FAUPEL's orders. With the limited amount of time at my disposal, it was only possible to spot check some of the files that appeared to contain information of prime interest. However; this only constituted about ten per cent of the total number of files. It would take from two to three months for one person to carefully examine and evaluate the contents of all the records at the Institut.

My investigation revealed the following documents, which seem to disprove the contention that the Institut was purely a scholarly and cultural organization:
1) A directive from FAUPEL instructin his staff to supply him with all the available military or naval information that could be of use to the German High Command.
2) A letter of recognition, addressed to FAUPEL, from the Auslandsdienst for information furnished them by the Institut. (note: the Auslandsdienst was a confidential government publication containing information obtained from foreign press clippings, the monitoring of foreign braodcasts and from private sources. It is interesting to note, that Peter BOCK claimed never to have heard of this publication.
3) An application blank for employment in the Institut, containing a claus whereby the future employee is required to swear not to reveal any information about the work done at the Institut and to.treat all such information as top secret (note: the personnel of the Institut allegedly never knew of such a clause, nor did they at any time make even a verbal secrecy pledge).
4) A letter indicating the existence of an Institut Vertrauensmann (confidence man or agent) in Paris during the German occupation of that city.
5). Covering letters to reports sent by the Foreign Office and the Auslands Organisation der NSDAP to the Institut discussing the political situation in Latin American countries and Spain. The actual reports could not be located in the files, and the staff believes that they were destroyed.
6). Ample evidence to show that the Institut gave financial aid and support to the members of the Spanish Blue Division in Berlin and in many cases paid for their education.

7). Documents showing the Institut's participation in the recruiting of Spanish and Latin American laborers and doctors for work in German labor batallions and hospitals.
8). Reports on the activities of Spanish Republican exiles in Latin American countries, especially Mexico.

9) Considerable amount of correspondence regarding the missions of South American army officers to be sent to Germany to familiarized themselves with German military methods and to study at German military academies.
10) Correspondence between the Institut and organizations like the Deutsches Auslands Institut, Deutsche Akademie and Auslands Organisation der NSDAP revealing liaison on problems dealing with the banning of foreign publications considered harmful to the Garman government, checking of the political leanings of Latin American public servants and Germans living in South American countries, etc. These organizations also exchanged reports on foreign personalities visiting Germany with a view of exploiting them for propaganda. activities upon their return to their home countries.
11) A letter proving that Frau Edith FAUPEL supplied the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (RSHA) with information on Latin Americans and Spaniards residing or visiting in Germany.

12) Evidence that FAUPEL and the Institut were constantly being consulted the various German government agencies, including the Foreign Office, Propaganda Ministry and Auslands Organisation der NSDAP, on practically all problems relating to Latin America and Spain and to nationals of these countries.
13) Documents showing that FAUPEL personally recommended personnel for employment by Hisma, the Spanish branch of the German Rowag firm. It is known from other sources that both Hisma and Rowag operated for the Abwher.

Frau SEUMER destroyed the following files on orders given by FAUPEL, shortly before the fall of Berlin (all the files listed covered only the period from the last part of 1944 until the capitulation): correspondence between the Institut and the Foreign Office, Ministry of Propaganda, Ministry of Education, Auslands Organisation der NSDAP): Vereinigung zwischenstaatlicher Verbande und Einrichtungel; financial reports to the Vereinigung zwischenstaatlicher Verbande und Einrichtungen, activities reports of the Institut, FAUPEL's correspondence with General MOSCARDO and Ernesto GIMENEZ CABALLERO in Spain (considered to be of special importance by Frau SEUMER), FAUPEL's diary of his trip to Spain in 1943, information on Spaniards in Germany and Germans in Spain and other miscellaneous documents.(...).
Conclusions.
Inspite of the fact that the Institut and its allied societies appear on the surface to have concentrated on promoting Germany's cultural relations with Latin America and Spain, there are several points brought out in this report which place it in the shady category of Nazi organizations that should be thouroughly investigated. Such action is necessary not only to establish the actual role played by the Institut in the German plan for cultural and political penetration of Spain and the Latin American countries, but also in order to contribute to the extrication of the complicated structure established by the Nazi party for a higly decentralized and specialized intelligence system on foreign countries."

"Maiden name: FLEISCHAUER. Joined the NSDAP in 1936, at the same time FAUPEL did. Accompanied FAUPEL on all his missions and is considered by all sources to have been the brains and driving power behind all his ambitions and activities, Reported to have been grooming FAUPEL, in the last years, for his nomination to the post of ambassador to Argentina. She was disliked by the staff of the Institut because of her meddling in politics and the influence she excersized over FAUPEL to further her purely selfish aims. The staff attributed FAUPEL 's removal from his Spanish post to her ambitious machinations.

Her job at the Institut: FAUPEL 's right hand man and guiding spirit; charged with the handling of the problems of Latin American and Spanish students in Germany, the authorization of funds for their support and studies, the educational, moral and political guidance of the latter and in, in general, the handling of all problems presented to her by Latin Americans and Spaniards visiting or residing in Germany. Her main aim was, and for this she was directly responsible to the Ministry of Propaganda, to see to it that visiting students received a thorough National Socialist indoctrination to be used by the German government upon their return to their countries, and that only such persons were given scholarships to study in Germany, who had already shown a certain predisposition toward National Socialistic lines of action. She was also the Institut's liaison with the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (RSHA) in Berlin."

" To Consul Enge
German Embassy
Madrid

The contents of the three dispatch-trunk listed in the courier's pass consisted of gold amounting to several million Pesetas. In order to safeguard the great value involved as far as possible I was accocípanied by a guard both in Spain and in Portugal. The Portuguese guard was an agent who was interested in the sale of the gold in Portugal. We had arranged to meet at a place 3 kilometres off the frontier. The agent in question had under any circumstances to be prevented from guessing that the gold passed the frontier as official courier's luggage; for reasons of secrecy I was therefore forced to remove the seal from the trunks after we had passed the Portuguese frontier. By these measures I succeeded in concealing from the agent that the gold had been brought over the frontier in the disguise of official courier's luggage. I therefore submitted only my courier pass to the Embassy in Lisbon, as I could not go to the German Embassy with the agent in order to show the trunks to the authorities there.

FIEDLER, Kurz / Conrad Albert . From OSS Washington Secret Intelligence/Special Funds Records, 1942-1946. Documents 526-550: "The files of Attache Medalie contain the followlng information: Kurz FIEDLER of Barcelona was reported in December 1943 to have relieved G. PAUL TABOSCHAT as Abwehr Chief In Barcelona. Previously FIEDLER had been attached to the Abwehr in North Africa. Kurz FIEDLER is probably identical with Conrad Albert FIEDLER who became Leiter of Stelle Barcelona of K. O. Spanien in July 1943, having previously been in North Africa. Conrad Albert had trouble with his staff in January 1944 and was recalled to Germany. He is reported to have carried German passport A-466, issued in Paris on May 20, 1943. His passport is described in one report as diplomatic, giving him the status of consul. In 1943 Conrad Albert 's address was Calle Balmes 183 Barcelona."

FIESSLER, Christoph. In Marine Perch file. Still in Spain in September 1946. Sofindus and high Party Official. Condecorated by FRANCO "Caballero de la Orden Imperial del Yugo y las Flechas con Encomienda" (BOE, 11 Septiembre de 1940). Chief of NSDAP, Sevilla, FILIOL / FILLIOL / FILLOL / , Jean Paul Robert, alias PHILIPPE, alias DENIS, alias Robert DESCHAMPS, alias Adriano ROSSI, alias Adriano GROSSO, alias Andre LAMY, nicknames: FIFI, LE TUEUR*. Assasin and leader of La Cagoule. Born Bergerac 13 May 1909. Son of Louis FILIOL and Jeanne BEGOUT. He didn't finish his studies at Lycee d'Anguleme. Worked as papermaker till 1935.

In Action Francaise from 1927 till 1935 as leader of 17th Cell of Fédération nationale des Camelots du Roi (16° arrondissement, district la Muette).,

Founder with Eugene DELONCLE and Aristide CORRE of the Parti National Rėvolutionnaire et Social (PNRS) in May, 1936, party forbidden by the French government a month later.

In July 1936, FILIOL founded with Eugene DELONCLE (alias MARIE), Aristide CORRE (alias DAGORE), Jacques CORREZE (alias LA BUCHE), Henri DELONCLE (alias GRASSET), Gabriel JEANTET (GABES), Francois METENIER, and Dr. MARTIN the terrorist group L'Organisation secrete d'action rėvolutionnaire nationale (L'OSARN) , known as La Cagoule, which receive money and arms from other fascist and nazi groups.

In the period 1935-1938 FILIOL committed the following crimes:
In February 1936 he attacked and tried to kill with Leon BLUM with a bayonet.
On January 26, 1937 FILIOL stabbed to death Dimitri NAVACHINE, director of Banque commerciale pour l'Europe du Nord.
He take part in the murder of the Italian anti-fascists Carlo and Sabatino (Nello) ROSSELLI in June 1937. This murder was ordered by MUSSOLINI.

FILIOL and Marcel GOMBERT killed Leon JEAN-BAPTISTE (October, 1936) and Maurice JUIF (February, 1937), two crooks and arms sugglers accused of stealing La Cagoule's money.

In 1937, before the process against La Cagoule begun and many cagoulards were apprehended, he fled to Spain evading justice.

He returned to France in 1941 (?)., joined the MSR de DELONCLE, but tried a putsch against him in May 1942. P. LAVAL ordered his internment in novembre 1942 at Saint-Paul-d'Eyjaux (Haute-Vienne) camp, but in the spring 1944 he was liberated by Joseph DARNAND, cagoulard, founder and leader of the paramilitary force Milice française.

DARNAND assigned FILIOL as head of the Deuxième service of the Milice, a sort of Gestapo of the Milice, in Limousin. The Deuxième service was responsible of torture and murder of hundreds of Resistance members and acted as a paramilitary intelligence service of the Waffen SS and Gestapo.

The 20th August 1944 the militia of the Direction des RS run away from Vichy and escaped to Germany. FILIOL is put in charge of the Militia in Wiesbaden:" SOMMER claims that the 15,000 Frenchmen in Germany did not comprise 10% of the Fascist-minded open collaborationist still living in France. It would have been an easy matter to undertake reorganization with a receptive body of such magnitude, especially since countless other French people were not too enthusiastic over losing their homes and other possessions as their price of liberation. In Germany it was decided to send agents back to France via Italy, through Innsbruck, Verona and Milan, instead through Alsace-Lorraine, thereby reducing the chances of apprehension. The Amt VI offices in Milan, Turin and San Remo were instructed to look out for these agents and assist them in every way possible. SOMMER met some of them in September 1944 and April 1945.

The Milice, possessing the most capable men of all collaborationist groups, had an agency in Wiesbaden under the leadership of two former French officers, DEGANS and FILIOL, who selected prospectives candidates and instructed them in future work. Both DEGANS and FILIOL had formerly acted as liaison officers with Amt VI. Another office of the Milice was established in Milan under KNIPPING." (See SOMMER, Hans, French Collaborationist now in Italy).

The technical organization of this agency is directed by BICKLER and SKORZENY and run by FILIOL , alias DENIS. The training camps were in Wald, near Hartschluitz, Hausen, Krauchenwiess and Wiesbaden French court convicted him to death in absentia in 1948. He was living in Spain, in San Sebastian, with cover name of Andre LAMY.

Married Alice LAMY.

FINAT Y ESCRIVA DE ROMANI, Jose, conde de MAYALDE. Born Madrid, Feb. 11, 1904. Died Madrid, May 30, 1995. Artillery commander. Falangist. Personal secretary to SERRANO SUÑER during Spanish Civil War. Named by FRANCO as Director General de Seguridad in 24 September, 1939 (SERRANO SUÑER was then Ministro de la Gobernación).

SERRANO SUÑER and MAYALDE were then the most powerful Security Police authorities who asked HIMMLER a direct collaboration with the Gestapo. He was Director until 10 May 1941. Between July 1941 (proposed by SERRANO SUÑER, Ministro de Asuntos Exteriores) and October 1942 MAYALDE was the Spanish Ambassador in Berlin.

His last task as DGS was to sign a general order, dated 5 May 1941, to all Gobernadores Civiles asking to elaborate a census of all jews in Spain (Spanish or not, refugees or living permanently in Spain) in order to assist HIMMLER to eliminate them. " ...[envíen a la central informes individuales de] los israelitas nacionales y extranjeros afincados en esa provincia (...) indicando su filiación personal y político-social, medios de vida, actividades comerciales, situación actual, grado de peligrosidad y conceptuación policial ... Las personas objeto de la medida que le encomiendo han de ser principalmente aquellas de origen español designadas con el nombre de sefardíes, puesto que por su adaptación al ambiente y similitud con nuestro temperamento poseen mayores garantías de ocultar su origen y hasta pasar desapercibidas sin posibilidad alguna de coartar el alcance de fáciles manejos perturbadores."

He also was concerned with the payment of German agents in Spain. GABISON was one of his men here and one of his duties was to obtain peseta exchange here through the sale of goods brought in France, the proceeds presumably to be used for the purchase of Spanish products and to finance German agents in Spain. As an example (from a letter addressed by the British Embassy at Madrid to the British Consulate at San Sebastian on 14 March 1944 regarding GABISON), we know that PAT (an alias of FOLMER) came once a month to San Sebastian from Paris carrying a diplomatic bag with funds to pay special agents in Spain.

FORNOZA NIETO, Jose. Information of OSS, Art Unit, dated 20 August, 1945, Individuals involved in suspicious Art activities, Iberian Peninsula: "Jose FORNOZA NIETO is probably the most important art dealer in Spain today. He stays at Calle Alcalá No. 145, entresuelo, Centro, Madrid, where he has over one thousand pictures painted by old masters and modern painters.In 1936 he had no means whatever; today his fortime is calculated at over three million Pesetas. Besides the pictures in Madrid, there are others at Barcelona, Bilbao, San Sebastian and Seville, where he has agents. His newly-acquired fortune is due to the purchases and sales he transacted in Madrid during the Civil War. Then he bought jewels, pictures, furs, etc. etc. without being too particular as to their origin.

Although the police have visited his house on several occasions, they have never been able to find anything there which would compromise him. They have, however, suspected him of buying articles which had been stolen.

During the years 1940 and 1941. FORNOZA sold a number of paintings and porcelain to the German, Chilean and Peruvian Ambassadors, but his best client has always been the Japanese Minister. It is calculated that the latter has bought from him well over two million Pesetas worth of porcelain, paintings and jewels.

An individual named PATON is one of his agents in Madrid."

Report of Interrogation by OMGUS, External Assets Branch, dated May 31, 1946:

"The subject stated that he was born in 1903 at Essen, and that he had lived in the United states for 14 years (1925-1939), during which time he was employed by the N.V. Potash Export Company of Amsterdam, New York, an affiliate of the German-French potash syndicate N.V. Potash Export Maatschappij, Amsterdam. ? FORTHMANN's most important position with the American firm was that of branch office manager at Norfolk, Virginia.

FORTHMANN returned to Germany in 1938 for what he described as "medical attention", and, so he averred, intended to return but was prohibited from doing so by the outbreak of war. The subject has the unused portion of a round-trip steamship ticket from the United states to Europe on deposit with the authorities at the internment camp. He said that he had never taken any steps toward becoming an American citizen, although professing, with display of sentiment, an eternal "love" for the United States. While securing "medical treatment" in the Fatherland, FORTHMANN was also able to make an honest dollar or two, to his way of thinking. Interrupting his visit in Germany for a while, he went out to India in 1939, returned in the fall of that year, and, so he claimed, tried to sail from Hamburg back to New York but could not leave. He added that he realized that he must then offer his services to Germany but that they were declined by the Military. During the following six years FORTHMANN engaged in most anything that would return a profit and traveled around Holland, Spain and Portugal drumming up business.

The subject said that he went first to Holland in October or November of 1939, where he established his own business under the style of Forthmann Handel-Suntenehmung at Amsterdam. In this endeavor FORTHMANN bought scarce foodstuffs and resold them at a profit.

As stated to the interrogators and declared on MGAX(1), FORTHMANN now has approximately Netherlands guilders 5,000 on deposit in an account in his name at the Continental Bank, Amsterdam. Along the line sometime (the exact dates are ambiguous) FORTHMANN made an investment in a fishing business in Petsoma, Finland, which firm waa known as Fiska Fish Company. The subject said that he had invested in this business with Viking Raederei, a Berlin firm, and some undisclosed British interests, and that his contribution amounted to approximately ,000 expressed in Sperrmark. The Finnish business was started in 1938 - (FORTHMANN was not clear as to the time of his participation) - and its capital was said to have been RM 600,000. The subject's investment was, so he declared, in the form of a ten-year loan. Repayment plus interest were to go into his account with the Reichskredit Bank. This bank is supposed to own him about RM 60.000-70.000 presently, which amount was to be payable to FORTHMANN in any designated currenoy or quantities of cod-liver oil.

FORTHMANN left the Netherlands in 1940 before the German occupation and went to Portugal where he operated a short time for German interests in securing tin in exchange for sardines, he sought a residence visa for Portugal but was unable to get it. Failing to get residence in Portugal, FORTHMANN returned to Germany where he was able to get representation of German interests in Spain and to go there circa late 1941 or early 1942.

Although FORTHMANN emphatically denied Abwehr connections, his operations were of such a nature as to brand him as a definite German commercial representative in Spain.

Between the time of his first entry into Spain and his repatriation in March, 1946, the subject made frequent trips from and to Germany and Spain. He said that he operated almost wholly as a middleman in Spain in the purchase and sale of cocoa beans, sausage casings and gut for sutures, and scarce foodstuffs. Free-lancer that FORTHMANN was, he was probably not averse to picking up a piece-of-change in most any endeavor. He also said that at one time or another he represented the following in Spain:

Ernest HEUBACH, (electrical machines), Berlin-Tempelhof.
BERKEMEYER, (leather goods;, Berlin-Schoneberg.
SUCHINSKY, (file rejuvenation), Berlin-Stegletz

The subject readily admitted that he operated as a Black Marketeer in Spain, explaining that as a German business man he was expected to pay high prices in return for which he got high prices. In his operations FORTHMANN had the support of the German Government agencies Reichstelle fuer Gartenbau and Reichstelle fuer Tiere. Payment from them and any other German connection was generally accomplished through the German consuls in Spain. The subject told that most payments were made in Pesetas and that his deals did not figure into the Spanish-German Clearing. He added that his cocoa transactions were concluded in and around Avignon, Perpignan and at a sugar factory in Tangermunde.

The shipments of goods obtained by FORTHMANN for German purchasers was made to French. After the Allied landings in Europe, FORTHMANN was unable to deliver very much because of the bombing attacks.

In 1943 the subject was imprisoned in Barcelona and fined a large sum for an illegal currency transaction. As explained to the interrogators, FORTHMANN found that he could "do a piece of business" in the sale of cocoa if he would accept payment in Portuguese escudos in Barcelona. Feeling-out the black market rate of exchange of Pesetas for escudos, the subject agreed to sell for the latter. He accepted a check for escudos 200,000. This check was then given to one HODEL, Barcelona representative of the Accident and Casualty Insurance Company of Winterthur, Switzerland, for the black market peseta value. HODEL was apprehended by the Spanish authorities and confessed, involving FORTHMANN. Both were fined Pesetas 200,000 and given jail sentenees of four months.

FORTHMANN returned to Germany in late 1943, but made two or three trips to France in early 1944 to expedite the delivery of cocoa beans to Germany. On 15 September 1944 the subject flew to Spain to ship approximately 5.000 kilograms of catgut to Germany. This shipment had to come out in instalments, the Iast being made in January 1945.

Sifter the fall of Germany, FORTHMANN was able to secure the ship’s charter agency for the Northern Trade Company of Stockholm, Sweden, but had done only a small amount of business before his repatriation.

The subject said that he had made about Pesetas 100.000 while in Spain but that he had not netted much, explaining that his expenses had run very high.

FORTHMANN listed the following assets outside of Germany, which were also declared on MGAX(1) form:

Depository Currency Amount
Banco Aleman Transatlantico,Barcelona Ptas. 10,000
Banco Soto Major, Lisbon Esc. 6,000
Continental Bank, Amsterdam Glds. 5,000
Southern Bank, Norfolk, Virginia Dollars 1,500

In addition to the above, FORTHMANN added that he had a life insurance policy, the cash value of which he disclaimed knowledge, with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York, and Potash Syndicate bonds of about British pound sterling principal amount of 1,700 on deposit with the Reichskredit Bank, Berlin.

Despite his activity in Spain over four years, and residence there after the German defeat, FORTHMANN claimed that he knew no details of the cloaking of German assets and emphatically denied that he had ever been approached to act as a safshaven.

In connection with Herbert VOGLER.

Address: Hotel Ritz, Barcelona and calle Valencia 279, Barcelona.

Mentioned as interned in Camp 76, Asperg on March 27, 1946. Interrogated between February and May 1946. British Reports.

Head of the Finance Department of the Abwehr. FRANZBACH said that official rate of exchange was 4.24 but the Embassy and the Abwehr got 4.87. He also said that from 1942 onwards the total monthly outgoings were approx. 2.500.000 subdivided as follows:

Y. Service 230.000 pts.
Naval Met. Trupp. 50.000
W.T. Operators (Sabine) 80.000
Department I 1.000.000
Department II 50.000
Department III 500.000
Wages and general expenses 700.000
Total approx. 2.500.000

All money was paid from O.K.W. through the Embassy. In September 1944

FRANZBACH went to Germany leaving as reserves 5-6 million in cash and an arrangement was made in Berlin that Sofindus would pay the Abwehr through the Embassy 16.000.000 marks. The money they had as reserve lasted until the middle of December and then the Abwehr started trying to get money from Sofindus. This was difficult and they managed to get a bit at a time (a total of 9-10 million only).

The only delivery of gold from February 1940 till the end was that collected by PFAU and ZIMMER and totalled 50 Kilos (5 bags).

FRANZBACH said that none of the businesses that were to have been set up by the Abwehr in fact amounted to anything... etc., etc."

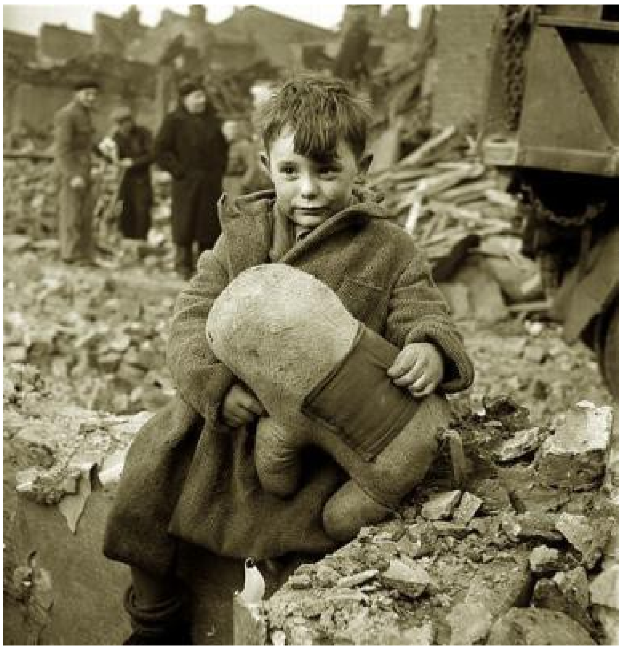
E) THE FACTUAL LIST OF NAZIS PROTECTED BY SPAIN



EBER, Edgar Manfred. Agent classified II-A in OSS records. Bilbao. Chemist. Born 1910 in Wiesbaden, Germany.
EBEREN, Josef. In 1945 listed as German customs official refugee in Spain (OSS records).
EBERSPAECHER, Fritz. Chief of the Delegation of the Reichs Labor Ministry in Madrid, address in General Goded 11.
EBSEN, Agnes. Repatriated on Highland Monarch 7 March, 1946. Entered Spain on 21 August 1944 on a collective passport with a group of German women. In charge of the bar of the Deutsches Heim. E-65 on Official List. DOB. Rendsburg, 27 February, 1913.
ECKERLING, Kurt Eberhardt, alias KATZ, alias ZADEK / ZAHDECK, alias WOHLRAB, alias Kurt KATZ-ZAHDECK and Ben ZAHDECK ROCCA. In other documents KATZ- ZAHDEK, Kurt alias Kurt ECKERLING. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. Arrested April 4, 1946. In No 6 CIC Neuengamme. Repatriated from Spain on the Highland Monarch. B-84 on agents list and III Priority List. DOB. Moelln, 7 August, 1905 (1915 in some documents).

He said that he was a director of a French importing and exporting concern with credits in Spain amounting to approximately 25,000,000 francs. He was escorted to Bilbao from the Logroño prison and was then released. In Bilbao he had an automobile at his disposal, stayed at the Hotel Carlton, and lived lavishly. Prior to his departure he gave certain information to the American repatriation representative on an alleged passage to the United States of two Gestapo agents.

It is recommended that this individual be carefully interrogated. He made contract with Henri Noques S. A. Paris, Avenue Victor Hugo, based on a turnover of 25 million francs, but this was cancelled in 1943. ECKERLING arrived in Hamburg with very little money but had, he mantained, valuables in his luggage amounting to 4.500.000 francs. This was the remainder of the funds of the Republican Army (Servicio de Informacion Militar or S.I.M), and was handed to him by SANCHIS, now in Mexico. ECKERLING mantained that this was the property of the Spanish Underground (C.N.T). In a letter dated 15 May 1946 US authorities suggested to the Officer Commanding Nº 6 Civil Internment Camp, Neuengamme, that ECKERLING's luggage should be impounded until disposal instructions were issued by the Foreign Office.

Internee No 609584 British Civilian Internment Camp No. 6, (Hamburg) .

Report of Interrogation by External Assets Branch, Finance Division, OMGUS. 29 May 1946:

" The subject stated that ha was born in Moelln on 7 August 1905; that he resided in France from 1927 to 1936; became a Spanish national in 1937 and was only rapatriated to Germany because he was considered an enemy of the present Spanish Government. Explaining the aliases, Eckerling said that he had been engaged in espionage and counter-espionage work in Spain as an antagonist of the FRANCO regime for years, hence has acquired these names for undercover operations.

ECKERLING was so vague in his discourse -delivered in the pompous manner of the international spy of Hollywood creation - that the interrogators consider any statements of his as being subject to qualification or elaboration. He was unable or unwilling to give any information concerning the existence and cloaking of Germán asaets in Spain, although he claimed to have been violently opposed to fascism and to have fought against FRANCO and against the German influence in Spain.

In summation, but certainly not in coherence, ECKERLING's admitted activities ran something like that which follows:

Carried false passport giving name as KATZ-ZAHDECK and birthplace as Strassbourg.

Entered Spain the last time in 1944 crossing the French border illegally. Fought against the Franco forces in the International Brigada from 1936 to 1939. ECKERLING claimed that from 12 March 1944 until his repatriation he was imprisoned in Spain for Zionist and anti-fascist activities. He added that he had requested repatriation to avoid execution or assassination. For eight months of his imprisonment he was held incommunicado in the Spanish General Seguridad. This term was followed by a stay in the Nan Clares de Laoch (right name is Nanclares de la Oca) concentration camp, then imprisonment in La Grona (spelling error: Logroño) from 22 June 1945 until 3 March 1946. To celebrate his exodus ECKERLING lived lavishly for three days before his repatriation at the Carlton Hotel where he squandered Pesetas 1.000 in "good living".

Getting further into the Hemingway role ECKERLING said that ha had been a construction enginear and had built the Avenida de la Luz (Madrid ?). From 1939 to 7 January 1941 he was hidden by from fascist by friends in Spain, and claimed to have contacted the U.S. Military Intelligence in 1940 and to have collaborated with this service. He said that he participated in the Deutsche Friedensnetz, organized in 1941 and operating in France, Spain and Sweden. ECKERLING's activities, so he claimed, have always been directed against fascism although ha admitted working with fascist organizations as counter-spy. Ha gave the names of a Major CLARK *A.U.S and a Claude POPLIN both in Madrid as references as to his political reputation.

ECKERLING claimed that ha had belonged to the Servicio de Investigacion Politico y Militar (SIM) since 1937 and that ha had worked for an agent named PRIETE.The interrogators were referred specifically to an agent named RIQUELDO who is supposed to know everything in the financial line.

The subject said that ha had worked In Barcelona in chemical companies and export enterprises in counter-espionage activities. A Colonel SANCHEZ, recently arrested in Spain, was claimed to be a fellow agent of ECKERLING.

The Deutsche Friedensnetz, according to the subject, is under the command of one Manfred von SELLIER (alias SALZMANN).

An association known as Intercommerziale G.m.b.H. was said to be a cloaking device used by the SIM as a center of activity for counter-espionage, (i.e., a fascist company -his fellow agants work there to pick up information).

Tangier and Oviedo have since 1941, been centers of cloaking and camouflage activities, subject said that BALLWEG, German wanted for interrogation, is in Tangier.

Skipping facilely to the matter of the looting of objects of art, ECKERLING disclaimed acquaintanceship with Alois MIEDL or other known looters. However, he named one Arnim SCHMIDT as being an art dealer whom he had met in Spain, but stated that SCHMIDT was Jewish, had been interned at Dachau and had only anti-fascist connections.

After the interrogation of ECKERLING, he asked that he be permitted to speak again with the interrogators. He was allowed to do so. At this second appearance ECKERLING urged that one Francisco PARDO, Madrid, be contacted for financial intelligence, PARDO was said to be a SIM agent and secretary of Ministerio de Industria y Commercio, and as such he is an agent with comprehensive knowledge of German contracts in Spain. In MGAX(1) filed at Hamburg, ECKERLING declared ambiguously three automobiles in France under the control of the Maquis. He brought Swiss francs 550 to the Internment Camp."

From Informe Final CEANA, Comisión para el Esclarecimiento de las Actividades del Nazismo en la Republica Argentina: "Esta Unidad de Investigación siguió buscando pruebas fidedignas que confirmaran el apoyo brindado por España a ciertos personajes vinculados al nazismo. Hubo suerte en el esclarecimiento de este hecho cuando se consultó algunos materiales mecanografiados que se conservan en el Banco de España. Nos referimos en concreto a las Actas de las sesiones celebradas por el Comité Permanente del Instituto Español de Moneda Extranjera (IEME). En este tipo de reuniones, que por su carácter confidencial y secreto nunca trascendieron a la opinión pública, se discutían, entre otros asuntos, todos los aspectos relacionados con peticiones de viajes, autorizaciones de visado y venta de moneda. Aquí se ha encontrado pruebas claras que vinculan a ciertos miembros de la Iglesia católica en la protección de "refugiados políticos" del nazismo perseguidos y/o reclamados por los aliados. En ese caso se encuentra el Obispo auxiliar de Madrid-Alcalá que, según constan en las actas del IEME del 23 de septiembre de 1947, hizo una "petición a favor de los Sres. Barón de Groman y Olaff Andersen para el pago en Pesetas de sus pasajes a la Argentina". El IEME "visto el carácter de refugiados políticos de dichos señores", acordó autorizar la cesión de las divisas necesarias para el pago de los pasajes solicitados, con la salvedad de que éstas fueran cedidas sobre la base del cambio comercial y con la condición de "utilizar para el viaje barco español" (AHBE, Departamento Extranjero, IEME, Caja 3. Secretaría, Actas del Comité Permanente 1947-1948). Consultando la revista que publicaba el órgano de la Acción Católica Española, se ha podido identificar al referido obispo como monseñor EIJO Y GARAY, quien gobernó la diócesis durante aquellos años (Ecclesia, no. 300, 1947)." EINHARDT / EINHART, Hubert. Managing Director of Einhart & Co., confidential agents for the Reichsselle fuer Milcherzougnisse, Oelo und Fette. Close to German Foreign Office.

In list of German business men working for the Reich to be considered for repatriation. Einhart & Co., were the agents for Goering's 4-Year Plan in Spain (Vierjahresplan), with Branch offices in Madrid and Lisbon. EINHARDT visited the United States in 1939 and figured on the financial of the deal in the Canal Suez transactions. Reported in Spain and Portugal.

EINHARDT, ENGE, and LA GASSE were supposed to be involved with the man who acted as Hermann GOERING's front in the transactions to acquire Suez Canal stock, value 50 million RM (deposited at the Bank of Monaco).

Enclosure No. 2 to Third Person Note dated March 22, 1946, on the subject of "Purchase of Suez Canal stocks by German Interests":

Hubert EINHART: Subject was interviewed on 18 February 1946 by officers of the American and British Safe Haven Section.

Subject was questioned for three hours concerning his life history, his commercial history, and his interests alleged or otherwise in various businesses and commercial transactions in Spain. The matter of his alleged participation in the transfer of 50 million HM of Suez Canal shares was brought up during the interview.

During the preliminary questioning of EINHART with respect to the establishment of the firm of Einhart & Cia., its personnel past and present, etc., and before the Suez case was mentioned, EINHART was asked whether a Dr. or Mr. KEMENA is or was ever an employee or representative of his firm. He immediately denied that any person with that name had ever been employed by him. After repeating the name aloud several tinea, he recalled that he had once met a KEMENA at the Hotel Palace in Madrid. He believed this was in 1943. KEMENA, he said, was a "blow-hard" and practically the entire conversation at this one chance meeting was devoted to a one-sided discourse on his family connections and his own importance. He indicated most clearly that he did not like the man and suspected that he was probably engaged in some shady affairs.

Later when he was asked what he knew of the sale of a considerable amount of Suez Canal shares, he again went through the act of repeating aloud the name (Suez Canal) several times as if to prompt his memory. He eventually recalled that on a trip to Paris during the occupation - about three years ago-he had heard considerable talk of Suez Canal shares. His recollection was dim but he was quite certain that KEMENA was in some way involved in the matter. EINHART himself had been approached in a Paris cafe or restaurant by a French "corredor de bolsa" who endeavored to interest him in the sale of Suez Canal shares in Spain. He did not remember the Frenchman's name or how they happened to be introduced. He said he turned the offer down flat as he was not interested in engaging in such transactions and could not see how the sales could be satisfactorily camouflaged. KEMENA did not at any time discused with him the sale or purchase of Suez Canal stocks and it was not KEMENA who introduced him to the Frenchman. However, he did hear lots of talk about Suez Canal stocks and it was apparent that Kemena, working, under MATZKE, was involved. Later he learned that KEMENA was dropped by Matzke due to certain irregular activities of the former. He ran into KEMENA on one or two occasions while he was in Paris but had no dealings with him; he also knew MATZKE slightly, but had no business connections with him either» MATZKE was a protege of POSSE, whom he described as a good and honorable man. POSSE was a sub-secretary under SCHACHT. EINHART referred to MATZKE as "Dr." MATZKE. He laughed when the interrogator referred to KEMENA as "Dr." KEMENA»

EINHART was of the belief that the Suez Canal stock existing in Paris at the time had been acquired by the Germans in Paris or elsewhere in France, said not abroad. He understood from what he had heard while there that a considerable amount of stock had been sold to Russian interests. He recalled having heard that a Belgian, who later went to Monte Carlo, had been deeply involved in the Suez affair. He did not remember the Belgian's name and doubted if he ever knew it.

When questioned regarding a possible purchase in Spain of a large quantity of Suez Canal shares, and the transfer of the shares to France, he denied any knowledge of any such transaction or transactions. He said it was inconceivable that Suez Canal shares would have been purchased in Spain during the war because of unfavorable exchange conditions, and added that any movement of shares would have been, and were, from France to Spain and not the opposite. He then recalled that a Spanish police agent (he did not know his name) had been engaged in carrying shares by automobile from France to Spain at Irun. And that a "corredor de bolsas" of San Sebastian was said to be involved in the sale of Suez Canal shares. He could not identify this man except to say that he is a Spaniard of medium height who invariably wears a scarf over his head during all seasons of the year.

EINHART was told that we had reliable information to the effect that his firm participated in Suez Canal transactions.This he emphatically and categorically denied.

Upon termination of the interview EINHART stated that he possibly might remember more of the Suez Canal affair in which case he would provide us with any additional details that came to mind."

In a letter addressed to the Allied Control Commission, dated 2 March 1946, EINHART stated: "As to the Suez Canal shares I likewise confirm that I have never been involved, either as a buyer or as intermediary, in any transaction oí' this kind. I remember to have heard about three years ago that French-owned Suez shares changed hands into Spain and I am trying to find out details."

D'ALQUEN, Gunther / Günther. SS-Standartenführer. Decorated by FRANCO with the Medalla de la Orden Imperial del Yugo y las Flechas. (BOE, 30 Septiembre, 1941).
(October 24, 1910 - May 15, 1998) was Chief Editor of the SS weekly, Das Schwarze Korps ("The Black Corps") the official newspaper of the Schutzstaffel (SS), and commander of the SS-Standarte Kurt Eggers (SS-Standarte Kurt Eggers. The honour title Kurt Eggers referred to the SS War Correspondent and editor of the SS Magazine Das Schwarze Korps, killed in 1943).
"Gunter d'Alquen was born in Essen, North Rhine-Westphalia, Germany, the son of a Protestant merchant and reserve officer. After attending secondary school in Essen and joining the Hitler Youth in 1925, d'Alquen entered the NSDAP at the age of seventeen and was an SA man and Youth Leader in the Party between 1927 and 1931.
He played an active part in the National Socialist German Students' League and later joined the SS on April 10, 1931, becoming an SS Captain within three years. D'Alquen never completed his university studies, concentrating instead on a journalistic career. In 1932 he joined the staff of the Völkischer Beobachter as a political correspondent, catching the eye of Heinrich Himmler who in March 1935 appointed him editor of the official SS paper, Das Schwarze Korps.
As the mouthpiece of revolutionary Nazism and chief spokesman of the SS in the German press, d'Alquen's paper frequently attacked intellectuals, students, distinguished scientists, recalcitrant business firms, black marketeers, churchmen and other groups or trends in German society which had aroused Himmler's wrath. Apart from its notorious antisemitism and censorious role in national affairs, the paper saw itself as a bastion of German morale during World War II, concentrating its attention on German victories at the front.
SS War Reporter
D'Alquen himself became a prominent SS war reporter after September 1939 and towards the end of the war was appointed by Himmler as head of the Wehrmacht propaganda department. Among his publications was an official history of the SS, Die SS. Geschichte, Aufgabe und Organisation der Schutzstaffeln der NSDAP (1939). He also edited Das ist der Sieg (1940) and Waffen-SS im Westen (1941). In July 1955 d'Alquen was fined DM 60,000 by a Berlin Denazification court, deprived of all civic rights for three years and barred from drawing an allowance or pension from public funds.
He was found guilty of having played an important role in the Third Reich, of war propaganda, incitement against the churches, the Jews and foreign countries, and incitement to murder. He had glorified the SS State and Hitler's infallibility, brought democracy into contempt and encouraged anti-Semitism. After a further investigation into his earnings from Nazi propaganda, SS-Standartenführer d'Alquen was fined another DM 28,000 by the Berlin Denazification court on January 7, 1958." PIERRE DAYE / PIERRE ADAN. From Informe Final CEANA, Comisión para el Esclarecimiento de las Actividades del Nazismo en la Republica Argentina:
"Antecedentes personales

Pierre DAYE nace en Bruselas el 24 de marzo de 1892. Ingresa a la Argentina en 1947 con el pasaporte español No. 1156147.

Procedente de Madrid, llega al aeropuerto de Morón donde lo esperan Georges GUILBAUD –llamado DEGAY-, Robert PINCEMAN –llamado RIVES- y Charles LESCAT o LESCA -llamado Carlos LEVRAY y Mario AMADEO, quien desde la década de 1930 había demostrado afinidad ideológico-política y una estrecha relación con personas vinculadas a los regímenes nazi-fascistas en Europa.. Por esto no es extraño que acompañara al grupo de prófugos y fugitivos que recibía a DAYE. (Véanse las Mémoires Inédites de Pierre DAYE-, Vol. 5, Pag. 1350, citadas por Diana Quatrocci-Woisson en el Informe: CEANA).

En 1947 Pierre DAYE forma parte del grupo de "allegados" que participan de las conferencias sobre inmigración que Rodolfo FEUDE y Carlos FULDNER coordinan de acuerdo con las instrucciones del Presidente de la Nación, General Juan D. PERÓN. (...).

Pierre DAYE, fue condenado a muerte el día 18 de diciembre de 1946 por el Consejo de Guerra de Bruselas, inculpado de colaboración con el enemigo.

En los mismos años en que DAYE actuaba en forma semi oficial, asesorando sobre inmigración, el Gobierno de Bélgica solicitaba su extradición.
Acerca de los trámites de extradición de Pierre DAYE:

El 17 de junio de 1947 la Embajada belga pidió su entrega basándose en la Resolución VI sobre crímenes de guerra del Acta Final de la Conferencia de Chapultepec, que preveía el compromiso de quienes la suscribieron -incluido nuestro país- en cuanto a entregar de inmediato y sin proceso de extradición a los criminales de guerra reclamados por otras potencias. Las actas de Chapultepec firmadas por el gobierno de ipso, fueron ratificadas por el Senado de la Nación, durante el primer gobierno de Perón.

El pedido de extradición fue realizado previa localización de Pierre DAYE, que se alojaba en el Hotel Lafayette con el nombre supuesto de Pierre ADAM.

El día 9 de octubre de 1947, Pascual LA ROSA se expidió en el sentido de que debía procederse a la entrega de Pierre DAYE sobre la base de la anteriormente citada Resolución VI de Chapultepec. Respecto de los colaboracionistas LECOMTE, LEROUX y RUYSSCHAERT citados en el expediente por el que se solicita la extradición de Daye, se propuso aguardar la acción de la legación de Bélgica.

El último informe policial es del día 17 de septiembre de 1947. De allí en más se interrumpe la investigación del expediente. La extradición de DAYE nunca fue concedida. Retornó a Europa donde escribió sus memorias personales. Esta fuente es muy rica en referencias sobre los mecanismos por los que ingresaron a la Argentina los criminales de guerra y/o contra la humanidad y los colaboracionistas se Europa Central.

"En nota D.1923 - Nº 1894 la Legación de Bélgica aquí acreditada denunció la llegada a la República de un tal Pierre DAYE, nacional belga condenado a muerte por el Consejo de Guerra de Bruselas el 18 de diciembre de 1946 por colaboración con el enemigo. Invocando la Resolución VI de la Conferencia de Chapultepec, solicitó que se ponga al nombrado a disposición de las autoridades belgas, a bordo de un buque de esa bandera.

Posteriormente, en nota D.1923 - Nº 2293, dicha Legación reiteró su pedido anterior y al mismo tiempo, informó que se encontraban también en la República un tal LECOMTE, ex-burgomaestre de Chimay, condenado a muerte y que llegó a Buenos Aires bajo el nombre de DE GRAEF; un tal LEROUX, que llegó a la Argentina con el nombre de SEYNAEVE, y un tal Gérard RUYSSCHAERT. De estos dos últimos la Legación belga no menciona ningún cargo ni tampoco solicita la entrega de los tres, aunque esa sea posiblemente el fin perseguido al efectuar la denuncia.

La Oficina de Enlace con el Ministerio del Interior y la Policía Federal, a la que se dio intervención en este asunto; confirmó la veracidad de las noticias suministradas por la Legación de Bélgica e hizo conocer que habían sido individualizados y localizados el nombrado Pierre DAYE y un tal Jan DEGRAAF WERHEGGEN, quien presumiblemente sea el Lecomte, ex-burgomaestre de Chimay, aludido. De las otras dos personas, se comprobó que habían entrado al país.

Como Pierre DAYE es el único reclamado hasta el presente por la Legación belga, la cuestión debe concretarse al mismo, a propósito de quien cabe señalar que, según lo manifiesta la Oficina de Enlace con el Ministerio del Interior y la Policía Federal, mantiene relaciones con José María AREILZA, persona que pertenece a la Embajada de España en nuestro país", seguramente el propio Embajador.

Al respecto es necesario tener en cuenta la Resolución VI sobre "Crímenes de Guerra" de la Conferencia de Chapultepec, la que en su parte dispositiva establece:

1º. Recomendar a los Gobiernos de las repúblicas americanas que no concedan refugio a los culpables, responsables o cómplices de dichos crímenes.

2º. Recomendar a los mismos Gobiernos que, a petición de cualquiera de las Naciones Unidas y de conformidad con el procedimiento que se acuerde según el numeral siguiente, entreguen los individuos acusados de tales crímenes a la Nación Unida requirente o a la custodia de los organismos de las Naciones Unidas que se establezcan para juzgar y castigar a tales criminales.

3º. Solicitar del Comité Jurídico Interamericano que, teniendo en cuenta las respectivas legislaciones nacionales, proyecte y presente, para su adopción por los Gobiernos de las Repúblicas americanas, las normas necesarias para determinar la condición de criminal de guerra, así como el procedimiento que debe seguirse para la devolución o entrega de los mencionados delincuentes."

Por lo expuesto, este Departamento de Relaciones Externas considera que correspondería o acceder desde ya a lo solicitado por la Legación de Bélgica y proceder a la entrega del citado Pierre DAYE o aguardar antes a que dicha misión reitere nuevamente el pedido.

Con respecto a las otras personas nombradas, habrá que esperar a que la representación diplomática belga inicie alguna acción, expresando los cargos que se les hace y requiriendo su entrega.

DEGRELLE, Léon Joseph Marie Ignace. From Gerhard STRIDDE's Affidavit:

The flight took of on 7 May 1945 at 23:10 hours from the airport Fornebu/Oslo to Spain. The order for our flight was issued by Reich commissioner TARBOVEN, and it read: Oslo-Drontheim.The pilot was Albert DUENINGEN, the wireless operator Georg KUEBEL, the navigator Benno EBNER, the flight mechanic Gerhard STRIDDE and the passangers were Leon DEGRELLE and his adjutant Robert (du WELZ). They landed in Spain on 8 May 1945 at 06:20 hours. Fuel shortage compelled us to make a forced emergy landing on the beach of San Sebastián. DEGRELLE had 3 or 4 bone fractures on the shoulder joints. DUENINGEN, skin abrasions and small fingered injured, KUEBEL, EBNER and Robert, skin abrasions, STRIDDE, broken leg and face injuries. They were taken by the Spanish police to the military Hospital Mola at San Sebastián. They remained there until September 15, 1945 (DEGRELLE until 15 October 1946). About 15 September 1945 the crew of four arrived at Camp Caranza, where they remained until 29 January 1946. As the transport of the camp inmates was to go via France, they were advised by the Germans and Spanish authorities not to make the trip through France. STRIDDE escaped and lived in Santander, calle Perines 13, up to his apprehension on 28 September 1946 and sent to prison in Madrid, where he remained until his return to Germnany on 23 November 1946.

From Helmut R. MICHEL's Affidavit: Robert du WELZ lived up to the middle of November 1946 in Zurbano 43,

From Wiki: After Germany's defeat, DEGRELLE fled first to Denmark and eventually fled to Norway, where he commandeered a Heinkel He 111 aircraft,[3] allegedly provided by Albert Speer. He was severely wounded in a crash-landing on a beach in San Sebastián in Northern Spain. The government of FRANCO in Spain initially refused to hand him over to the Allies (or extradite him to Belgium) by citing his health condition. After further international pressures, Francisco FRANCO permitted his escape from hospital, while handing over a look-alike; in the meanwhile, José Finat y Escrivá de Romaní helped Degrelle obtain false papers. In 1954, in order to ensure his stay, Spain granted him Spanish citizenship under the name José León Ramírez Reina, and the Falange assigned him the leadership of a construction firm that benefitted from state contracts. Belgium convicted him of treason in absentia and condemned him to death by firing squad.

While in Spain, during the time of FRANCO, Degrelle maintained a high standard of living and would frequently appear in public and in private meetings in a white uniform featuring his German decorations, while expressing his pride over his close contacts and "thinking bond" with Adolf Hitler. He continued to live undIurbed when Spain became democratic after the death of FRANCO. Degrelle continued publishing and polemicizing, voicing his support for far right solutions. He became active in the Neo-Nazi Círculo Español de Amigos de Europa (CEDADE), and ran its printing press in Barcelona - where he published a large portion of his own writings, including an Open Letter to Pope John Paul II on the topic of the Auschwitz concentration camp, the extermination purpose of which Degrelle called "one big fraud, Holy Father." His repeated negationI statements on the topic of Nazi genocide brought Degrelle to trial with Violeta Friedmann, a Romanian-born Venezuelan survivor of the camps; although the lower courts were initially favourable to Degrelle, the Supreme Court of Spain decided that he had brought offence to the memory of the victims, both Jews and non-Jews, and it sentenced him to pay a substantial fine. It was also decided that he should pay a fine for his Open Letter to Pope John Paul II as well.

Asked if he had any regrets about the war, his reply was: "Only that we lost!" In 1994, Degrelle died of cardiac arrest in a hospital in Málaga in Southern Spain."

DIRINGSHOFEN, Heinz von. Dr. Commander Physician. Decorated by FRANCO with the Medalla de la Orden Imperial del Yugo y las Flechas. (BOE, 30 Septiembre, 1941).
DIRLEWANGER, Oskar. Obersturmführer. Commander of the so-called Sonderkommando or SS-Sturmbrigade Dirlewanger . War criminal and convicted child rapist decorated by FRANCO.

Born in 1895 in Würzburg. He served as an infantry officer in World War I and won the Iron Cross 2nd Class and 1st Class medals. After the end of World War I, DIRLEWANGER, described in a police report as "a mentally unstable, violent fanatic and alcoholic, who had the habit of erupting into violence under the influence of drugs," joined different Freikorps paramilitary militias and fought in Ruhr, Saxony and Upper Silesia.

He fought against the German Revolution of 1918–19 with the Freikorps in the cities of Backnang, Kornwestheim, Esslingen, Untertürkheim, Aalen, Schorndorf and Heidenheim near Stuttgart, in the Ruhr at Dortmund and Essen in 1920 and in eastern Germany in 1920 and 1921. He served in Freikorps Epp, Freikorps Haas, Freikorps Sprösser and Freikorps Holz.

In 1934 convicted of raping a 14-year-old girl and stealing government property. After serving a two-year jail sentence, DIRLEWANGER was released. Soon after, he was arrested again for sexual assault. He was interned in a concentration camp. Gottlob BERGER, an old Freikorps comrade who worked closely with Heinrich HIMMLER, the Reichsführer-SS, secured his friend’s release and an appointment to the Condor Legion.

During the Spanish Civil War, he served with the Condor Legion from 1936 to 1939 and was wounded three times.Both times he was considered a model soldier and was well thought of in fascist military circles.

Between April and November, 1937 he was instructor in Gruppe Issendorf, (also known as Gruppe Thoma Academias and Imker Ausbilder, under command of Walther von ISSENDORF). He trained members of Falange in Academia de Oficiales Pedro Llen.

In November 1937 he was arrested and jailed in Toledo for sexual assaults. Transfered to Sippo, who sent him to Germany for another charges of child abuse. Von THOMA’s eulogistic report on him liberated from prison and he was ascended to Hauptmann rank.

DIRLEWANGER returned to Spain in July 1938 as instructor for Falange’s Academias. According to some sources he was also instructor and company commander in the tank unit Imker. At the end of the Spanish Civil War he had the Spanish Military Merit Cross, the Spain campaign medal and the German Spanish Cross (silver).
From Wikipedia, Oskar DIRLEWANGER:

"At the beginning of World War II, DIRLEWANGER volunteered for the Waffen-SS and received the rank of Obersturmführer. He eventually became the commander of the so-called Sonderkommando Dirlewanger (at first designated as a battalion, later expanded to a brigade and eventually a division), composed originally of a small group of former poachers along with soldiers of a more conventional background. It was believed that the excellent tracking and shooting skills of the poachers could be put to constructive use in the fight against partisans. Later, Dirlewanger ’s soldiers were mostly recruited from volunteers among convicted German criminals (civilian and military) and concentration camp inmates, eventually including even political prisoners and mental asylum patients.

The unit was assigned to security duties first in occupied Poland (General Government), where DIRLEWANGER also served as an SS-TV commandant of a labour camp at Stary Dzików. The camp was a subject of an abuse investigation by the SS judge Georg Konrad MORGEN, who accused DIRLEWANGER of wanton acts of murder, corruption and Rassenschande, that is the crime of sexual relations with non-Aryans (MORGEN consequently himself got reduced in rank and sent to the Eastern Front).

According to Morgen, "DIRLEWANGER was a nuisance and a terror to the entire population. He repeatedly pillaged the ghetto in Lublin, extorting ransoms." Atrocities committed by DIRLEWANGER included injecting strychnine into young Jewish female prisoners, previously undressed and whipped, to watch them convulse to death in front of him and his friends for entertainment. According to Raul HILBERG, this camp was where "one of the first instances that reference was made to the 'soap-making rumor';" according to the rumour, DIRLEWANGER would "cut up Jewish women and boiled them with horse meat to make soap."

DIRLEWANGER's primary patron in the SS hierarchy was BERGER, who provided HIMMLER with a massive political boost by numerically increasing the Waffen-SS through his position as chief of the SS-Hauptamt. In Forgotten Holocaust: The Poles Under German Occupation, Richard C. LUKAS described DIRLEWANGER as "a sadist whose brutality was well known ... one of those degenerates who, in saner days, would have been court-martialed out of the German army." According to Peter Longerich, DIRLEWANGER's leadership "was characterized by continued alcohol abuse, looting, sadistic atrocities, rape, and murder—and his mentor BERGER tolerated this behaviour, as did HIMMLER, who so urgently needed men such as the Sonderkommando Dirlewanger in his fight against 'subhumanity'."[10] In his letter to HIMMLER, SS-Brigadeführer Odilo GLOBOCNIK recommended DIRLEWANGER, who "in charge of the Jewish camp of Dzikow ... was an excellent leader."

In January 1942, however, the local Higher SS and Police Leader, SS-Obergruppenführer Friedrich-Wilhelm KRÜGER threatened: "[Unless] this bunch of criminals disappears from the General Government within a week, I will go myself and lock them up."

In February, the unit was promptly reassigned for anti-partisan duties in occupied Belarus, "with a speciality of 'pacifying' an area by slaughtering every man, woman and child."

HIMMLER was well aware of DIRLEWANGER's reputation and record, but awarded him the German Cross in Gold on 5 December 1943, in recognition of his regiment's successes during this time, such as Operation Cottbus. In Bloodlands: Europe Between HITLER and STALIN, Timothy SNYDER wrote that "DIRLEWANGER's preferred method was to herd the local population inside a barn, set the barn on fire, and then shoot with machine guns anyone who tried to escape." Rounded-up civilians were also repeatedly used as human shields and marched over minefields. In Masters of Death, Richard Rhodes wrote that DIRLEWANGER and his force also "raped and tortured young women and slaughtered Jews Einsatzgruppen-style in Byelorussia beginning in 1942."SNYDER cautiously estimated that the Sonderkommando, by then regiment-sized, killed at least 30,000 civilians in its Belarusian tour of duty.Some other estimates are much higher, such as at least 120,000 civilians killed in 200 villages. Jan VALTIN wrote: "The Dirlewanger Brigade is marching! How many hundred villages erased? How many hundred thousand lives snuffed out? Ask Colonel DIRLEWANGER!"

In 1944, during the German rout from Belarus, DIRLEWANGER's unit suffered heavy losses in the rear-guard fights against Soviet regulars. It was used again (by then, reformed into a brigade), in the suppression of the Warsaw Uprising. Historian Martin WINDROW wrote that "in summer '44 DIRLEWANGER led his 4,000 butchers, rapists and looters into action against the Warsaw Uprising, and quickly committed ... unspeakable crimes." In Warsaw, DIRLEWANGER participated in the Wola massacre, together with police units rounding up and shooting some 40,000 civilians in just two days. In the same Wola district, DIRLEWANGER burned three hospitals with patients inside, while the nurses were "whipped, gang-raped and finally hanged naked, together with the doctors" to the accompaniment of music. Later, "they drank, raped and murdered their way through the Old Town, slaughtering civilians and fighters alike without distinction of age or sex." In the Old Town – where about 30,000 civilians were killed – several thousand wounded in field hospitals overrun by the Germans were shot and set on fire with flamethrowers. Reportedly, "the Dirlewanger Brigade burned prisoners alive with gasoline, impaled babies on bayonets and stuck them out of windows and hung women upside down from balconies."

SS-Obergruppenführer Erich von dem BACH-ZELEWSKI, overall commander of the forces pacifying Warsaw – and DIRLEWANGER's former boss in Belarus – described DIRLEWANGER as having "a typical mercenary nature"; von dem BACH 's staff officer sent to summon DIRLEWANGER before him was driven off at gunpoint. Nevertheless, in recognition of his work to crush the uprising and intimidate the population of Warsaw, DIRLEWANGER received his final promotion, to the rank of SS-Oberführer, on 15 August 1944. In October, he was also awarded the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross, recommended for it by his superior officer in Warsaw, SS-Gruppenführer Heinz REINEFARTH (after the war, REINEFARTH lied about his role in Warsaw, even denying DIRLEWANGER had been under his command).

DIRLEWANGER then led his men in joining the efforts to put down the Slovak National Uprising, eventually fighting against the Red Army in Hungary and Germany. On 17 April 1945, he was injured in combat for the 12th time and sent to the rear. Death: DIRLEWANGER was arrested on 1 June 1945 near the town of Altshausen in Upper Swabia by the French occupational authorities while wearing civilian clothes and hiding under a false name in a remote hunting lodge – reportedly recognised by a former Jewish concentration camp inmate – and brought to a detention center. He died around 5–7 June 1945 in a prison camp at Altshausen, probably as a result of ill-treatment. The exact cause of DIRLEWANGER's death is unknown, which over time led to numerous speculations. His death certificate issued by French authorities stated that DIRLEWANGER died on 7 June 1945 of natural causes. However, the certificate has been questioned, especially by the German historians. According to Rolf MICHAELIS, a Luftwaffe lieutenant Anton FÜSSINGER (now deceased) claimed he was DIRLEWANGER's cell mate, and said that he witnessed DIRLEWANGER being gravely beaten by Polish guards in the French service on the night of 4 to 5 June, resulting in his death. However, no one else corroborated any of his statements, despite further research by the Polish Institute of National Remembrance. Contemporary Polish sources suggest that those guards could have been recruited from among former forced labourers, although a Polish survivor of the original Nazi camp at Altshausen stated that its former Polish prisoners did not know anything about DIRLEWANGER's death.

The lack of corroborating evidence led to even more rumours after the war ended. Many sightings of DIRLEWANGER were made around the world over the years. Although the French recorded that DIRLEWANGER was buried on 19 June 1945, there were rumours and tabloid stories suggesting that he had escaped, including one popular story of DIRLEWANGER serving with the French Foreign Legion in Vietnam during the First Indochina War and later defecting to Egypt to serve Nasser's army. He was even being still officially wanted by the Polish government for murdering over 30,000 people in Poland. In response, the department of public prosecution in Ravensburg arranged the exhumation of DIRLEWANGER's corpse to confirm his identity in November 1960. The place of his burial was confirmed, although it was liquidated later. "

DOBIASH, Wilhelm. Austrian officer repatriated from Carranza Internment Camp. From OSS, WASH SPDF INT 1 Docs. 3551-3600:

(...) Date: 8-12 January 1946

"The news that Germans in Spain would be repatriated in early February 1946 was well received by the Germans interned at the Carranza concentration camp, although the German colony did not display the same sentimente Of the 390 internees, source was told that for the time being only fifteen who appear to be considered war criminals were to remain in Spain, in a concentration campo.

The officer in charge of the camp, a certain DOBIASCH , who was a German army officer, applied to the Spanish Ministry of Foreign Affairs for permission to make the trip together with another sixteen internees via Barcelona-Trieste. In this request they stated that they all were of Austrian nationality. Application was said to have been made because of their great fear of crossing France. DOBIASCH according to his own statements was an early member of the Nazi Party.

In accordance with the scheduled repatriation of Germans, the manager of the Carranza camp, a German named LOESCH, instructed a certain UNANUE, an employee at the camp to sell all the fixtures and surplus provisions at black market prices. The money obtained from these sales is to be given to LOESCH who is to remain in Spain in the employ of Antonio SALONA whose business is located in Barcelona. SALONA was in charge of supplying the needs of the Germans at the Carranza camp and was assisted in this by UNANUE one of his employees."

SECRET GERMAN BARED AT TRIAL
New York, Sept. 12

The government today revealed the texts of secret messages in which a Hamburg spy center requested information about American airplane production and technical and military intelligence. The messages, received by a "spy" radio station operated secretly by the Federal Bureau of investigation on Long Island.were identified by James C. Ellsworth, FBI agent and government witness at the trial of 16 men charged with conspiracy to spy for Germany.

The messages were addressed to William G. Sebold, who testified earlier that he was assigned to spy in this country by the German Gestapo. He turned his assignment over to the FBI, who built the Long Island station and operated it in counter-espionage. Among the messages introduced into evidence as having been received by the Long Island station from the outlaw station AOR in Hamburg, were:

June 3, 1940, when it was reported that the French might try to move their liner Normandie out of New York—"Thanks for reports. Observe Normandie."

June 13, 1940—"Is it true that shipments of provisions have preference over war materials."

June 29—"Deliver all material through Siegler to H, Duarte, Lisbon, Hotel Duos Maloes. (or Nacoes). Password on meeting is Sesam greets Fran. Duarte will hand over to Siegler 500 for Boeder; 300 for you; 200 for Lily; 259 for Dunn. Distribution of money by you. Don't borrow money for Lily. All should report military and technical information delivered to Baglaad. Siegler should bring Stigler also to Duarte. Hearty greetings. "*

(Lily Stein and Everett Boeder were among them who have pleaded guilty to one or both counts for the indictment Franz J. Stigler is on trial). (...)

From Information of OSS, Art Unit, dated 20 August, 1945, Individuals involved in suspicious Art activities, Iberian Peninsula: Reported to be engaging in smuggling pictures, jewels and other valuables from France to Spain. Involved with MIEDL."

From Roberts Commission, Subject file: Menten:

"According to British reports from Madrid, subject engages in illicit traffic in pictures, jewels and motor cars. He is believed to be an agent of the Sipo and SD and is a protege of Ernst ALISCH, alias Ernesto SEILER, important SD official formerly in Paris.

Subject is furthermore reported to have once been a member of the Spirito-Carbone gang in Marseilles, with which his constant companion, the Belgian Adrian OTLET (q.v) and possibly KONINECKX (See MIEDL dossier) may also have been connected. This gang of gunmen, kidnappers and blackmailers included Francois SPIRITO, Jean CARBONE, Francois CARBONE, and Venture CARBONE.

Among other subversive activities they denounced de Gaullists to the Germans and led anti-British and anti-Semitic demontrations.

Subject is reported, 12 September 1944, to be in difficulty with Spanish authorities on account of his residence permit. Carries German passport. Source suggests thnt DUVAL's difficulties with the authorities were due to the fact that MIEDL had entrusted DUVAL with pictures, bonds and jewels to the value of several million francs, which DUVAL undertook to smuggle into Spain. Same source believes that DUVAL intends to double-cross MIEDL and dispose of these articles for his own benefit. British are trying to investigate, 18 October 1944.

Subject's wife holds French identity papers and claims to be of Finnish origin, though she is in fact Russian. He smuggled her into Spain in the luggage compartment of a stolen Citroen at the time of German withdrawal from southern France. They lived lor a short time at Calle Miracruz 24. 3rd floor left, San Sebastian. Were reported at Palace Hotel Madrid, 24 September 1944.

Member of the Dutch Legation in Madrid saw DUVAL's car in Palace Hotel Garage and recognized it as one stolen from himself. According to Pierre DAYE, Belgian journalist who was asked by OTLET to help DUVAL but refused, the Duchman has preferred charges against DUVAL and authorities have asked the German Embassy to remove him from Spain."

"Subject has for some time been known for his pro-German and pro-Falangist activities. He was the eldest of a large family in Seo de Urgel in Spain. Following his father's death he became the sole support of this family. In 1936 subject lost his wealth and his home and properties were taken over by his creditors. Among these properties which he owned was the then inactive Banca Agrícola y Commercial de Andorra and one-half interest in the Hotel de Andorra.

Reliable information, dated 13 June 1945, indicates that today subject is considered to be one of the richest men in Andorra and referred to as one of the most wealthy men on the Spanish side of the Pyrenees. He is considered to be the biggest gold holder in that region and his fortune is considered to be in the hundreds of millions.

It is known that during the German occupation of France he handled the exchanges for many wolfram and wool shipments brought by the Germans into Spain through Andorra. He became the cashier for all of the larger chains of agents operating in southern France. It is further reported that he received and effected the exchange of all the gold shares and currency that the SD, Gestapo, and Abwehr officials took out of France during its occupation by Germany and after its liberation.

The majority of the personnel who worked for the Germans are known to have carried on their financial transactions ttirough the Banca Agrícola y Commercial de Andorra. Since there is no international control of entry of stock and money to Andorra and since we have information that anyone is able to open an account for anyone else, irrespective of where he lives, and since the Banca Agrícola y Commercial de Andorra is the only bank in Andorra, the scope of subject's activities is unlimited."

Tangier
Date Report: 10-13 April 1945
Subject: Traffic in Contraband Currency

"The Count of CHURRUCA, Spanish Vice-Consul in Algiers mantains contact with ROSENBAUM, an exchange broker of Tangier. CHURRUCA makes a regular monthly trip to Tangier, brirging with him United States currency ranging in amount from 2,000 to 10,000 dollars. The selling price of the dollars varies between 13.75 Pesetas and 17.00 Pesetas depending on the demand. ROSENBAUM seems to be the principal buyer and seller of smuggled dollars in Tangier. Subject: Activities of Conde CHURRUCA, former Spanish Vice-Consul in Algiers.
19 February 1946
Origin Theatre: Tangier
"1. Conde Cosme y DOTRES CHURRUCA, former Spanish Vice-Consul in Algiers, left Tangier on 27 December 1945 ostensibly for the Philippine Islands via Spain.
2. CHURRUCA smuggled gold out of Tangier via Algiers during the latter half of 1945. According to some sources, CHURRUCA shipped the gold to Spain for the account of the Spanish Government. However, other reliable sources report that CHURRUCA actually smuggled the gold out of Tangier for a group of Vichy-protected Algerian Jews, and that the gold was then shipped to France and used for the purchase of land and buildings.

3. CHURRUCA was closely associated in these transactions with Robert BENSIMON (also spelled BENSIMHON), Azagury Building, 18 Calle Sanlucar, and with Georges BOUCHARA, BENSIMON's partner.
4. CHURRUCA bought his gold fron the following Tangier money brokers: Jacob MUYAL, 91 Siaguins; Menahem MUYAL, 43-45 Siaguins; and Isaías CHOCRON, 7 Siaguins.

CHURRUCA was reported in April 1945 to be smuggling United States currency into Tangier, ROSENBAUM, an exchange broker in Tangier, was the principal buy and seller of this currency. (This may be Nicolas ROSENBAUM mentioned in report A-66350, VT-3950.)"

Hola, me gustaría conocer la fuente de donde sale esta información.

Soy familiar de Rudolf Wagner Casciaro, y tengo en casa los papeles del régimen,donde se le acusaba de francmasón y comunista, entre otras cosas, y me gustaría llegar a saber quien fue en realidad.

Muchas gracias.

Postwar Confinement:
Arrested and released on two occasions by British authorities in Schleswig-Holstein, May 1945. He then lived under a false name as a farm worker on the island of Fehmarn. Arrested by U.S. Army authorities in Bremen, 19.09.1945. Transferred to British custody, he was held at internment camps in Neumünster-Gadeland, Eselheide bei Paderborn (CIC No. 7), Minden, and Fischbek. Appeared as a witness before the British military tribunal at the Hamburg "Curio-Haus" in the trial of Neuengamme concentration camp staff, 09.04.1946. He was himself tried by the British Military Tribunal at the Hamburg "Curio-Haus" in the "Fuhlsbuettel Case", 06.08.1947 – 27.08.1947. Specifically charged with the murder of Russian laborers at Fuhlsbüttel Prison on 14.11.1943; in the death of 10 recaptured French officer POW's (several of whom were shot in Fuhlsbüttel; the others were deported to KL-Mauthausen where they were killed); and the murder at KL-Neuengamme of 71 prisoners from Fuhlsbüttel. He was acquitted on all of these charges. Upon learning that he was to be extradited to the Soviet Union, he took poison and was subsequently hospitalized in Hameln. Turned over to Soviet authorities in Berlin, 16.09.1947. Tried by a Soviet court, he was accused of responsibility for the death of 45,000 people in the area of Dnjepropetrowsk in 1941/42. he was sentenced to 25 years' hard labor. He was held at a Soviet prison camp at Magadan in the Kolyma region of eastern Siberia.

From Yad Vasem:

"Henning Graf von BASSEWITZ-BEHR was a major war criminal and the last Higher SS- and Police-Leader in the Hamburg region. Born to a noble family in the Mecklenburg region of Germany, he joined the Nazi party in the 1920s and was first assigned to the motorized units of the SS.

From 1941, BASSEWITZ-BEHR was assigned to several positions in the German occupied territories of the Soviet Union. In 1942 and 1943, during his assignments as "SS- and Police-Leader" in Dnipropetrovsk and as deputy to the "Higher SS- and Police Leader Central Russia", Erich von dem Bach, he was directly involved in the murder of Thousands of civilians.

From February 1943 until the end of war, BASSEWITZ-BEHR served as Higher SS- and Police-Leader in Hamburg and therefore responsible for all deportations of Jews from that region and the murder of thousands of concentration camp prisoners. After the war, he was extradited to the Soviet Union and imprisoned in a Siberian penal camp, where he died in January 1949."

BAUER, Hugo. In 1945 he posed as a German customs official refugee in Spain (OSS records).

BAUER, Rudolf. German jeweler in Barcelona, charged with the sale of large amounts of diamonds used to transfer large fortunes from Germany to Spain. Connected with THEBE, URBANECK, WENDEL, KÖNNEKE, Consul RÜGGEBERG.

From a unidentified OSS report, dated June 26, 1946:

"Subject: Transfer of German fortunes to Spain.

1. I know that during the war the firm Columbit made such transfers of raw materials and merchandise. The value is said to be over one million Pesets. The merchandise was imported to Spain and was probably sold there by camouflaged "dummies" or "straw-men". The competent section in the consulate in Barcelona knows all the details of the case.
2. I know that large amounts of diamonds and 1 large diamon brooch was offered and sold in Spain by German agents. The articles came from HWK (1st It. KAISER and later THEBE) and reached the hands of the HWK agents URBANECK, WENDEL and KÖNNEKE through courier mail by way of the German Consulate in Barcelona, (Cons. RUEGGEBERG). It was particularly the German jeweler BAUER, Barcelona, who was charged with the sale.

Because URBANECK, WENDEL and KÖNNEKE were friends of mine, it was claimed that I too was a HWK agent. This is true neither directly nor indirectly. I never sold such articles from the HWK or any other German agency.

3. I.G. Farben: Bayer, all details known in the USA dept. in Barcelona also about other firms. I know no details.

It is possible that the following could answer this mass of questions:

PANHORST, OBORIL and ZIEGRA, that is, which camouflage firms were founded and where values might possibly still exist."

Officer of the SS, Gruppenfuehrer or Obersturmfuehrer. Native German. Born January 1, 1897 at Osterode, East Prussia.

At the outbreak of the Spanish Civil in 1936 BERNHARDT, who was then living in Spanish Morocco, offered his services to FRANCO, a personal fried of his. It was arranged that subject handle the Spanish products for German war material; the holding companies Rowak in Berlin and Hisma in Tetuan were set up for the purpose and became important economic factors on the Nationalist side.

In 1938 Sofindus (Sociedad Financiera e Industrial, Av. del Generalisimo Franco 1, Madrid) replaced the earlier corporation. As managing director of Sofindus since at least 1941, subject collaborated closely both with Sipo, SD and the Abwehr. Under his direction Sofindus, in addition to serving as a purchasing agency for wolfram and other strategic commodities, handled foreign exchange transaction for the German Government and the German Intelligence services, provided cover employment for the Sipo and SD agents, sometimes paying a part of their salaries, facilitated the granting of Spanish visas to Abwehr agents by promising employment, set up bank deposits, probably in Spanish names, to provide for Abwehr expenses in case of a diplomatic breakbetween Spain and Germany, and assisted the German IS in other ways.

Specifically, subject handled the transfer by Sofindus to the German Embassy Ptas. 16.000.000 for the use of KdM Spain in November 1944. Between October 1944 and April 1945, he collaborated with the German Embassy, their Naval Attache and KdM Spain in a number of unsuccessful attempts to ship supplies from Spain to the German garrisons holding out in France. BERNHARDT had many influential connections with high officials of the Spanish Government.

In June 1945, the British reported that BERNHARDT had offered to direct Sofindus in the interest of the United Nations, with an Allied committee as its Board of Directors. He estimated the assets of the company in 1945 at Ptas. 500.000.000

According to MOSIG, BERNHARD evinced great interest in transferring his operations to Argentina in November 1944, at which time he predicted Germany's defeat. Subjects had contacts with Chade, the largest electrical company in Argentina. In early 1946 BERNHARDT was negotiating with a Swiss firm regarding transport of machinery to Argentina via Spain, MOSIG stated.

From CI Preliminary Interrogation Report (PIR) N0 127. Dated 24 June, 1946

Personal data:

Sigismund BIBRA was bom in Ober-Ems/Taunus on 3 Jan 1894. He attended the Volksschule in Thal/Harz, the Gymnasium in Quedlinburg, and the Oberrealschule in Ballenstadt / Harz from 1906 to 1914. He entered the amy in 1914, was seriously wounded and captured, and while convalescing in Switzerland, he continued his education at the Oberrealschule in Davos, Switzerland from 1917 to 1918. He was returned to Germany through an exchange of PWs. In February 1919 he began his studies at the University of Berlin, at the same time remaining an officer in the Gardeschuetzen Bataillon of the 3rd Garde-Regiment.

He left the army in October 1920 to accept a position as diplomatic courier with the Foreign Office in Berlin. He continued his studies and in 1921 received his degree in political science. In February 1922 he was appointed secretary to StaatsseKretaer Freiherr von MALTZAHN of the Foreign Office and was relieved of his duties as courier to become attache. Shortly thereafter he was transferred to Reichskenzler CUNO as secretary.

After the collapse of CUNO's Cabinet, BIBRA returned to the Foreign Office and was assigned the task of determining how much German capital had flowed into Switzerland and was later transferred to the Referat for Reparations and Restitutions. Then the Allied Control Comission left Germany, this Referat more or less dissolved and in 1927 BIBRA was transferred to Rio de Janeiro as Legationssekretaer to the German Embassy.

In April 1931 he was transferred to Prag as Legationssekretaer and in 1935 became Gesandtschaftsrat.

In June 1936 he was transferred to the Embassy in Switzerland as Gesandtschaftsrat and in 1940 advanced to Botschsftsrat.

He was transferred to Madrid in 1943 as Gesandter I Klasse and in April of that year was appointed Stellvertreter des Botschafters.

From 1 Sep 1944 to the end of the war he was Geschaeftstraeger for the German Embassy at Madrid. He was repatriated to Germany in 1946 and interned at Camp 76.

Administrative data:

BIBRA was arrested 6 Feb 46 by CI/MIS Detachment at Camp 76. He arrived at USFET MIS Center on 27 Feb 46 and was accepted at the request of G-2 (CIB) USFET.

Interrogation on 4 March 1946

Q. What is your full name?

A. Hans Sigismund Gunther von BIBRA.

Q. What was your position?

A. Minister in Spain.

Q. What were your specific duties as minister?

A. For tne last nine months I was the Charge d'Affairs. There was no ambassador, because on the first of September 1944 the ambassador was called back to Germany, and I was the man directly below the ambassador. If he went back to Germany, I had to take his place.

Q. How long had you been Charge d'Affairs?

A. The last nine months.

Q. What was your position when the ambassador was in Spain?

A. His first consul.

Q. As such, what were your duties?

A. Everything in the Embassy; to represent the ambassador.

Q. Everything went through your hands?

A. Yes. Some things through the ambassador, because he understood much better, for instance, his communications regarding the States. He was the last ambassador in Washington. With this I had nothing to do.

Q. Did you handle any financial matters that came up in the Embassy?

A. We had another consul: von HEYDENRYNCH.

Q. He was your financial expert?

A. Yes.

Q. Did all financial matters go through his hands alone?

A. When we had no more relations with Berlin, then I also asked the consul, of the Embassy who was the chief commercial attache. He was also consul of Embassy. I asked him to help Heydenrynch. BECKER was his name. He is now in Asperg.

Q. Where is the other man?

A. Still in Spain. You know when we had no more relations with Berlin, it was too difficult for HEYDENRYNCH and for me, because all financial orders were received from Berlin. But after the relations with Berlin were cut, it was too dangerous for me to have only one man, so I took the next oldest consul of Embassy.

Q, After finances .vere handled by HEYDENRYNCH, did they also go through your hands? In other words, did you have to approve or disapprove all transactions?

A. Bigger things. HEYDENRYNCH and BECKER approved first, then it had to pass the hands of the chancellor of the Embassy, PILZ. Then the order got to the treasurer, TUCHOLKA. Therefore, it was absolutely certain that four of the employees of the Embassy had to see everything pertaining to money matters. Mr. TUCHOLKA is an old man of 60 years and had more than 30 years service. I believe PILZ had 25 or more years service. BECKER and HEYDENRYNCH and I all had a little more than 15 years service and were about tne same age.

Q. Where did your money come from?
A. We had gold reserves in the Embassy. But we could spend this gold only on order from Berlin, from the minister of the Foreign Affairs. I don’t believe he personally could spend this money. I believe he had to speak with the Ministry of Commerce and the Ministry of finance.
Q. This was the gold reserve. What did you use for spending money?
A. The money that passed the clearing from Berlin. HEYDENRYNCH knows, I don’t know. Maybe also from Switzerland.
Q. You said that all finincial transactions came through these four men?
A. Only when we had no more relations with Berlin.
Q. Then did they come through you?
A. Yes. Generally, it was that HEYDENRYNCH and BECKER told me, "We have a depression. We have to spend this money." And then I approved. And then it came to PILZ and TUCHOLKA. PILZ approved only. I believe it is the same method as yours.
Q. Did any financial transactions take place that you did not know about?
A. Small things. HEYDENRYNCH didn’t tell me everything. Generally I knew about the big things, because he had difficulties with one of tne chiefs; for instance, the military attache. They received a telegram from Berlin which said the Embassy had to pay them 3 or 4 million, and HEYDENRYNCH did not get the order from his minister. Generally the man who would like to have the money came to me and said he had difficulties with HEYDENRYNCH. Generally, in this way, I heard of all transactions. If a telegram from Berlin came and said I had to pay them, I approved.
Q. Then would you say you had knowledge of all the important financial transactions?
A. I think so. I don’t believe that HEYDENRYNCH could pay millions. But if there was a telegram from Berlin, I saw a copy of the telegram. I didn’t study them because it was on order from Berlin.
Q. Then was the last time you received any money at all?
A. I am sure BECKER could tell you. I don’t know, because the Embassy had money with the chief of the Spanish foreign exchange office--HUETE. I believe there was a lot of money, but it was the duty of BECKER to speak with these people to give us 20 millions or more. I don’t know at what time we got the last money.
Q. When was the last time you remember receiving any money?
A. There was a big firm, Sofindus, and if there was money, they said, we have to get it. And. then BECKER or HEYDENRYNCH sent a telegram to Berlin to ask them if this money was for us or for Sofindus.
Q. Who was Sofindus?
A. That was the biggest German concern.
Q. What did Sofindus do? .
A. Business. They bought, for instance, wolfram. They purchased and sold for the German State.
Q. What did they buy and sell?
A. It was a big business. Blankets--all these things. All German needs. BECKER knows absolutely all these things. That was the biggest commercial thing in Spain.
Q. Who ran that?
A. The head was Johannes BERNHARDT.
Q. Where is he now?
A. In Spain.
Q. Was he German?
A. Yes.
Q. Who else was in Sofindus? What other German?
A. There was another director, but he didn’t have the same influence. BERNHARDT was the big man. Not WALE. He is in Madrid.

Q. When was the last time you remember getting any money in Spain?' From any source outside of Spain?
A. I must lie if I were to tell you.
Q. Did you get any m 1944?
A. Yes, I am sure.
Q. Any in 1945?
A. We could have money really only from this big business, from arms. In 1943 we sold lots of arms to the Spanish Government, because in August 1943 nobody had Pesetas. I came to Spain in May, 1943. In August none of the Germans had money in Spain. And then we had long negotiations with the Spanish Government about the prices and all those things, and then we got 212 to 220 million pesatas.
Q. When was this?
A. In July, 1943. We did not get the money immediately. It came in installments, and we had difficulties.
Q. When was it finally all paid?
A. 1944. That was 400 million pesatas. With the 220 Million we couldn't pay all the wolfram we needed for the war in Germany. The Spanish government owed us a milliard, 100 million, from the Civil War which HITLER gave to FRANCO. And then the ambassador spoke lots of times to Count JORDANA Minister of the Foreign Office in Spain, because he said, "We gave you arms, but you have to give us wolfram." So the ambassador and the count made an agreement in San Sebastian in August 1943, concerning 100 million marks and they were to pay 420 million pesatas. Now the difficulties to get the money began. To get it, the 220 and the 420. But that is the basis of the German money in Spain. I believe the other things were small. May be in one instance we got from Switzerland a million Swiss francs, I don't know.
Q. When was that money finally all paid by the Spaniards to you?
A. Generally, I believe, the military attache spoke with the minister of war; the Naval attache spoke with his minister. And then we got sometimes 20, sometimes 30 million.
Q. By the beginning of 1944 was it all paid?
A. No.
Q. By July 1944?
A. The 400, yes. I believe 400 were paid rather quick, I believe before the beginning of 1944. I know BECKER knows exactly.
Q. How about the other 200?
A. Also there was 100 that was surely paid in 1943- Maybe more, maybe less.,
H. When was it all finally paid? By middle of 1944?
A. Maybe. When I was charge d'affairs, maybe there were still discussions about 20 or 30 million. I am not sure.
Q. Most was paid by middle of 1944?
A. Before.
Q. By beginning of 1944?
A. It was not my job.
Q. To the best of your knowledge, by beginning of 1944?
A. I am sure the 420, yes, but the 220 I believe by middle of 1944.
Q. Where did you get the money in Switzerland?
A. From a bank, but I don't know what bank.
Q. Did you ever get money from Switzerland?
A. I heard sometimes if we had no money, there was that possibility. It is sure that until August 1943 nobody .had money, and also in the Embassy we had big difficulties, and all commercial people in turn, every German, were in a difficult situation. Afterwards everybody was swimming.
Q. By end of August 1943 you. had plenty of money?
A. Yes, and all commercial people too, because they were all paid by this money, for instance, from the big arm business.

Q. First the 420 million that you got early, that was a repayment of a loan to Spain during Civil War?
A. Yes, a little less than half of the money the Spanish Government got during the Civil War in Spain".
Q. How did they receive that money during the Civil War? In goods or cash?
A. I don’t know.
Q. No idea?
A. No. In cash, I believe. I don’t know.
Q. Are you sure it was all in money? No goods at all?
A. I believe the goods were always balanced.
Q. You mean the goods exchanged between Spain and Germany were all balanced?
A. I believe the million was a cash loan, because vve got back 400 when we didn’t balance.
Q. For what purpose was the money that was loaned to Spain, if it was in the form of money? To buy goods from Germany?
A. No, I believe to help in the war.
Q. That good was that? They couldn’t fight with money.
A. I don’t know.
Q. Where were you at that time?
A. In Switzerland. This question about the milliard, during the first months I was in Spain, they were never touched. Because everybody said that was a friendship loan from HITLER to FRANCO, and we couldn’t touch it.
Q. The repayment by the Spaniards of the 420 million pesatas, was that due to HITLER’s friendship to FRANCO?
A. No. We believed we had such bad business in arms and there were horrible stories. I believe the idea was that HITLER gave the arms to Spain without the question of money.
Q. The repayment of the 420 million pesatas, that wasn’t for arms. That was a repayment of debt?
A. We didn’t get enough money to buy wolfram with the arms. Before I came to Spain, it was a question of Germany giving arms to Spain, but not a question of money.
Q. When was Germany giving arms to Spain?
A. In summer of 1943.
Q. What kind?
A. The best. Every kind--tanks, planes, rifles.
K. That kind of arms were sold for the 220?
A. Arms we sent to Spain. And then came a minister, EISENDORR, and other people, a financial minister, a purchase minister, etc., to speak about the price of these arms. Then they asked nearly a milliard. They got 220 after 3 months discussions. The situation was very difficult for us, and then the ambassador personally spoke in San Sebastian several times with the Minister of Foreign Office, JORDANA, to give us the 400.
Q. Then they gave you back the 400?
A. Yes, to balance. We said that we had done business. To help us to buy the wolfram. Most of this money went to wolfram.
Q. Did you ever get any money from France?
A. No.
Q. Did the German Embassy or any German agencies get any from France?
A. In financial service they were absolutely alone.
Q. Did the Abwehr draw money from you?
A. Yes, several times.
Q. How many times?

A. I don't know, but I believe continually. But on order from Berlin.
Q. Do you know of any particular instances?
A. I believe there was a big discussion in May 1945.
Q. Did they get it?
A. No. Maybe to pay their employees six months. Two months before I asked the Spanish Government, what will the Americans and English do when it is finished, and they said it was against the German State and all the property of the German State. Then I said I give everybody six months to live afterwards. Every month I pay all who depend on the German State. Then the Spanish Foreign Office told me and I had the impression that they spoke before with Americans or English. Then I paid 6 months to everyone who got money from the state to give them the possibility in Spain that all can arrange to live without big difficulties. That was in the beginning of May or end of April, 1945.
Q. How much aid that amount to altogether?
A. Between 2 and 4 million pesatas.
Q. Was it more than 2?
A. It may be, I have no idea. In those days, I had such difficulties.
Q. To how many people was that money paid?
A. In the Embassy there were nearly 800.
Q. Did that include other agencies?
A. Yes. Only people who were attached to the Embassy, though. Approximately 800 people and IT counsels and staff. And all the schools and teachers of the German schools.
Q. How many schools were there?
A. Big beautiful schools in Madrid and Barcelona.
Q. How many people in those schools were paid by Germans?
A. Nearly all the teachers during the last years. Deutsche Schools. In Sevilla, in Bilbao, San Sebastian, Cadiz, Mallaga.
Q. They had fewer than 30 teachers in those schools? How many in the small schools?
A. In Malaga, 5 or 6. Just small schools. Barcelona and Madrid were the biggest.
Q. How much money did you get yourself personally at that time? At end of May or beginning of April?
A. I believe more than 200,000 pesatas.
Q. You got that yourself?
A. Yes, but I had to spend lots.
Q. If you got 200,000 yourself and there were over 800 people, the total must have been more?
A. But I was the chief and had to spend a lot.
Q. What was the total amount, do you think, that you paid out?
A. Generally, the Embassy spent every month 7 million pesatas. That is, only the salary. We had ourselves, too.
Q. How could these people live for 6 months on 2 million?
A. Because only 1 to 2 million were salaries. I don't know.
Q. Do they get their regular salary for a 6 month period?
A. Yes, everybody.
Q. The same salary they had before?
A. Wa cut the salaries a good deal.
Q. How much?
A. The smallest, nothing. The biggest, 15 per cent.
Q. After you paid out these salaries for 6 months, how much money did you have left?
A. Then I paid 10 millions to an old German, Dr. WENDEL.
Q. For what?
A. I was afraid if I paid to employees for 6 months that the rest of the colony would have nothing. Mr. WENDEL has 75 years old. He was not in the Party. He was still the doctor for the British Ambassador, HOARE, and so I was sure that his reputation on your side was good. I wrote him a letter, and I put a copy in the Treasury records, telling that this money was to help poor Germans who were in financial difficulties.

Q. When did you write it?
A. I believe the 3 or 4 of May 1945.
Q. Did you actually give him the money?
A. Yes, I sent it to him.
Q. He received it?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you send it to him?
A. I believe somebody in the Treasury brought it to him.
Q. Was it deposited in a bank?
A. So. Directly to him in money, paper money, pesatas.
Q. Do you know where he deposited that money?
A. He had it in his home, I believe, and then 3 weeks afterwards he came to see me and asked what about the situation, now since the Spanish Government asked him to come to see me because I had this letter. Then I said the Spanish Government told me they would agree with me to give him these 10 millions. He deposited 9 millions, but I believe your Embassy said, "If you need money, you can ask for it."
Q. Where did he deposit it?
A. With the American and British Embassy. He made lists before spending the money and sent the lists to the American Embassy, and if they said it was in order, he paid. If not in order, he would not pay.
Q. After you paid out all this money, the 6 months salary and the 10 million, now much did you have left in the Embassy?
A. 56 million pesatas.
Q. Did you spend any more of that?
A. So. 56 I passed to the Spanish Government on 8 May.
Q. To whom in the Spanish Government?
A. BECKER contacted Spanish Secretary of State, CASTILLIO. I brought 5 millions to CASTILLIO and BECKER, 51. About this money, until I left Spain 5 weeks ago, there was lots of discussion and difficulties because there was a question of the gold. Then we passed to the Spanish Government a ton of gold, and afterwards the Spanish Government told the British and American Ambassadors they didn’t receive any gold.
Q. To whom was this gold turned over?
A. To the second chief of the Protocol. I don’t know his name. He took over the Embassy. I left a half hour before and HEYDENRYNCH and BECKER gave the Embassy over to the Spanish police and to the man of the Protocol, and the gold was in the Embassy.
Q. There was a ton of it?
A. Yes, all of it.
Q. Do you know about the firm of Einhardt and Company? A banking firm?
A. I heard the name. Very quick business man.
Q. Who was EINHARDT?
A. I don’t know. I believe I have never seen him. He may know me, but I am sure I don’t know him. I heard a lot of him.
Q. What did you hear? What kind of business did he do?
A. I heard only that he was unscrupulous.
Q. What banking firm acted for the 4 Year Plan in Spain?
A. Johannes Bernhardt.
Q. Einhardt had no connection?
A. Yes, I believe they had connections.

Q What connection did EINHARDT have with the Embassy?
A. I believe not very much. ENGE, second chief of commercial department of Embassy, he must know. He is in Madrid. He is on list to come. BECKER or ENGE must know exactly.
Q. Do you know of any dealings at all that EINHARDT had with the Embassy?
A. No. I heard the name in the Embassy and I heard "He is not so bad".
Q. The air attache could have had business dealings with EINHARDT?
A. I believe that is so. He had a lot of relations with business people.
Q. Did you have any dealings with EINHARDT? Not personally, but on behalf of the Embassy or other Germans?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever receive any money from France?
A. I don't believe through the Embassy.
Q. Do you know of the Unilever Corp. in France?
A. I know of Unilever from England and in Germany.
Q. In France?
A. Personally, no.
Q. Do you know how it acted in France? Do you know what Unilever did in France?
A. Perhaps the same thing as in Germany and other countries.
Q. Do you know who was head of Unilever Corp. in France?
A. If you say the name, perhaps.
Q. Do you know of MATZKE?
A. No
Q. He was a very important German.
A. Only once was I in Paris and during the war I didn't see Paris.
Q. But you knew the important Germans in Paris?
A. I saw the ambassador once for 5 minutes. I knew the charge d'affairs, and I knew Mister HEMMEN for 20 years.
Q. Were you in Paris at all during the war?
A. No.
Q. Do you know of the Banco Germanico Americano?
A. Yes.
Q. How did that bank act as far as Germany was concerned? Did they represent the German Government?
A. The Deutsche Bank but not the German Government. Banco TransAtlantico is one, and I don't know the other.
A. What dealings aid the Embassy have with the Banco Alemán Transatlántico?
A. Very good relations.
Q. You had a lot of business with that bank?
A. Yes, I believe all business was done through both banks.
Q. Do you remember the name MATZKE?
A. No. With the Embassy he had no relation.
Q. Did you have any relations with a French Banker, LAGASSE?
A. No. I don't know the name.
Q. When did you go to Spain?
A. In May 1943. At that tiine there were a thousand men in the Embassy. The ambassador and I were at the top without knowing everybody. Politics were very difficult.
Q. Did you meet KOCUREK?
A. No.
Q. Edwin KOCUREK? .
A. No.
Q. He said he knew you. He had business dealings with you in Spain. He said he went to Spain in the fall of 1943 and had difficulty getting foreign exchange. He went to the Embassy and had negotiations with you, and you assisted him in obtaining foreign exchange.

A. That is impossible.
Q. Didn't you help other Germans get foreign exchange? He said you made arrangements for him with Banco Germánico.
A. It may be that ENGE or BECKER did, but I don't remember. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know the corporations in France named Unico and Seduco?
A. No. I never heard those names.
Q. You are sure you had no idea of operations of Unilever Corporation?
A. No. I only knew of some illegal business between France and Spain.
Q. Did you spend much time in San Sebastian?
A. No, very little, because the ambassador went every year, and I had to stay in Madrid. I saw him in 1943 for 3 days, in 1944 for 2 days. That is all.
Q. Can you tell us of any German property which is in Spain today?
A. There is Sofindus. That is very big. The biggest commercial house in Spain, including the Spanish. There are people who say, i.e. you say, I. G. Farben is also very big. Of the others — there is Ernesto KIRCHLE, a very rich man. He was representative of Skoda, but he had also other interests. STURM, I believe, was arms. Very famous in Germany.
Q. Is he still in Spain today?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any property in Spain?
A. I left money from these last 6 months, about 100,000, with my wife.
Q. When did you leave that to her?
A. I left Spain on 29 January 1946.
Q. At that time you gave her about 100,000?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any property?
A. No. Furniture, yes.
Q. Do you own a house?
A. No. It was rented, a small flat.
Q. Do you own any real property at all?
A. No.
Q. Any securities?
A. No. Only insurance.
Q. You don't own shares in any corporation?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any you gave to anybody?
A. No, never in my life. I had my property here in Germany.
Q. Did the ambassador or any other people in the Embassy have property in Spain?
A. A lot of people is the Embassy had property in Spain, because we bought in Spain. ENGE owns houses in Spain. He was second director of a bank in Barcelona.
Q. Do you have any property outside of Germany that is not in Spain?
A. When I gave my declaration, I listed it all. We got an order at end of 1944 to finish all accounts in Switzerland. So I wrote to the bank to finish the accounts and to send my mother and old aunts small sums.
Q. Do you have any other property in Switzerland or anywhere else outside of Germany?
A. No, nothing.
Q. Do you know of any funds or property of other Germans in places like Switzerland? Of some of the important German leaders?
A. Just a few days ago a British officer asked me. In Spain I heard the name of a man, MIDEL (MIEDL), as an art dealer from Amsterdam and Munich. He arrived in Spain in 1944 with our troops, came to France with lots of very valuable paintings. The Spanish Government put a hand on it immediately---I believe because the Dutch minister asked that of the Spanish Government. He came to see me to ask the Spanish Foreign Office to free them. He said he had relations with GOERING, and I told him I didn't speak with the Spanish Government without an order from my government and wrote a telegram to Berlin that MIDEL asked me to speak with them. I never received an answer from Berlin. This man was furious because his things were not free.

Q. Do you know of any other activities of GOERING?
A. That is all that GOERING had to do in Spain. General KRAMER.
Q. Where is he now?
A. Still in Spain, but he is also on the list.
Q. Was he military attache?
A. Air attache. He was also representative of the Wermacht, military and air attache.
Q. Did you know GOERING?
A. I saw him twice in my life.
Q. When was the last time?
A. Once in evening dress at a big dinner party in Berlin in 1931 when I came back from Brazil. I did not speak to him. And once at a demonstration in Stuttgart, in 1937, I believe.
Q. You didn't see him after that?
A. No.
Q. Do you know Gen. KRAMER very well?
A. He was GOERING's representative in Spain.
Q. Do you know of any business he had for GOERING?
A. For instance, a man, HORN, I believe, a brother-in-law of HESS, was doing business in Spain, and he said he was conducting business for GOERING. He came with an order from GOERING.
Q. What is his first name?
A. I don't know. He is in Spain.
Q. Is he a naturalized Spaniard?
A. No, German. He is the smartest business man.
Q. What kind of business was he in?
A. I asked that he be sent back to Germany. He bought for 2 million Pesetas tool machines to be sent to Sweden. To buy those machines in Spain and send them to a country which makes just those machines--that was too much for me. I believe KRAMER gave HORN 2 million to buy the machines to sell them in Sweden.
Q. Why?
A. I don't know. I don't believe that was real business. A theft! I asked in Berlin to have him sent back, and he left by airplane and one week later he came back. He came to see me and said I was against him. He saw GOERING and said it was better I didn't shoot against him. So what could I do?
Q. You said it was a theft. Why?
A. Can you send those machines from Spain where they don't have any and couldn't make them? If you send those machines from Spain to Sweden, an American or Britisher who sees the papers will say it is not possible.
Q. Where did KRAMER get the two million Pesetas?
A. An order from Berlin. Maybe from the Embassy. We don't know where from. We heard that KRAMER gave it to HORN. They say he bought these machines. I think he bought some machines for show, but I am sure that that was not right. It is impossible that this business was right.
Q. Did you ever hear of anyone else buying anything for GOERING?
A. I know Mr. HORN from Switzerland. Years ago he came to see me to introduce him to somebody of Swiss Government to help the old couple, friends of GOERING. I saw him in a hotel in Spain and asked him what he was doing there. HORN said I was once very cross with him. He wanted me to help him to exchange marks for Swiss francs for this couple. I had a bad impression of the business, so I said I would give him the possibility of helping this couple, but the money he had to arrange himself.

Q. Do you know of anything HORN aid in Spain for GOERING?
A. He was making business day and night.
Q. Have you heard of any transaction in Spain involving shares of the Suez Canal?
A. The representative of the British Embassy asked me 6 months ago.
Q. What was your answer?
A. That was the first time I heard about it.
Q. Where were you then?
A. In Madrid, but I have no idea. I asked BECKER, and I believe that in the Embassy nobody knows.
Q. Did you ask ENGE?
A. No, because he is so Spanish that he was afraid to see me. He didn't like to see anybody of the Embassy. He had so many houses, etc., in Spain.
Q. He is on the list to come?
A. Yes, but he is doing all he can to stay there.
Q. You never heard anything of Suez Canal shares?
A. So, only that one time.
Q. If any such transaction had been made for GOERING, would HORN have been involved?
A. Yes, I think so.
Q. Is HORN on the list to come?
A. Yes, but he is doing everything not to come. It is difficult to say if this man just used the name of GOERING or really had such good relations.
Q. Didn't you check on him?
A. That is very difficult, because if an Embassy sent a telegram to ask about somebody and he went back, and the Embassy asks that he stay in Germany—. It is possible that he bluffed also the people in Berlin. I don't know.
Q. Did you have any dealings with the Bank of Monaco?
A. No.
Q. Do you know of any Germans who had any deposits in the Bank of Monaco?
A. I heard that Monaco is very important. In all the German circles and from the political attache in the Embassy. I heard from WINZ, but I don't know if he is leaving Spain.
Q. Who else said that Monaco is important?
A. First important in espionage and then in money.
Q. Who said it?
A. People in Barcelona - commercial. I don't know their names. You can't believe what was going on between France and Spain. Everybody was passing the frontier and everybody was buying in France very cheaply. It was a bad situation, but I can't say it was the SS. The people who buy things for the SS, principally in Barcelona, said it.
Q. When did you hear them say that?
A. There was a very famous story in Madrid--they killed one of the biggest commercial men. His name was Russian--SASSINOFF. The owner of nearly all the biggest hotels in south France. He handled all the business of the SS between France and Spain.
Q. What was the connection between that and Monaco? You said Monaco was important?
A. The police attache told me that he did not know why the Embassy does not pay attention as to what goes on in Monaco, because it is important for us and for others. Espionage and financial transactions were going on. I said I had asked one of my counsellors to study the question, but he said he believed it was not necessary.

Q. Did he find out if there was any German money in Monaco?
A. I don't know. At that time everything was so uncertain. Many difficulties. I had nothing to do with it then—too many difficulties.
Q, Did you hear from anyone else that Monaco was important?
A. No. But that was not the Police attache's own opinion. He said it in May or June 1944.
Q. What did you think he meant when he said it was important financially?
A. There was business between France and Spain. There were a lot of things going on. I don't know. I had the impression it was not his point of view.
Q. Are you certain that in Spain you never received money from the Unilever Corporation in France?
A. No, I am sure.
Q. The Embassy or any Germans in Spain?
A. There is a Mr. PAUL or PAULO in Barcelona. Once somebody in the Spanish Government asked me if he was doing business on order of the Embassy. Big business in francs. He said he was doing it on order of the Embassy. If it is not on order of the Embassy, we will put him in prison. So I asked Mr. KLEYENSTUBER if it was on his order. I told Spanish Government that he had nothing to do with Embassy. I believe he was one week in prison and he is now in Barcelona. Everybody knows him.
Q. The Abwehr drew its money from you?
A. They had their own money. They asked money from us to pay the 6 months, and afterwards we knew that he put it away. It was put away and people who did it on order of the chiefs went to American Embassy and told them what was going on.
Q. How much did they draw from you a month?
A. I don't know if it was for one month or every month. They needed about 5 1/2 million pesatas. Another time I was told they spent a million a month. I never paid attention exactly.
Q. What other sources of money did the Abwehr have besides the Embassy?
A. The gold.
Q. Where did it come from?
A. From Berlin.
Q. Where did the foreign exchange come from?
A. I don't know. When the secretary of state told me officially that 5 or 6 officers are in prison and asked me my opinion about it, I told him, I believe nearly all the money they spent they got from the Embassy.
Q. Did it happen that the figures were as high as 5 or 10 millions?
A. Yes.
Q. How often did that happen?
A. Surely once for 16 million.
Q. When?
A. September or October 1944.
Q. Did they draw money from you continually every month or just on occasions?
A. Just when we received a telegram. They would get the money and spend it, then another telegram would come.
Q. How often did you get those telegrams?
A. Occasionally. Once every 3 or 4 months.
Q. How about the smaller sums? Did you receive telegrams for small sums very often?
A. Nearly every day we had 5 or 6 telegrams to pay money because we could pay only on order from Berlin.
Q. Do you think that the Abwehr spent all the money it received from you?
A. No, because they asked us for aid and later we heard they had a lot of gold.
Q. What did they do with the money if they didn't spend it?
A. That is the big question.
Q. Who would know?

A. KLEYENSTUBER and FRANZBACH.
Q. What was KLEYENSTUBER's salary?
A. I have no idea. He was chief of the biggest department of the Embassy. I think 20,000 pesatas a month maybe.
Q. How did the SD operate? Did they draw money from you?
A. Yes, from the Police attache.
Q. How much did they draw?
A. Much less.
Q. Did they also get some of their money from Berlin?
A. From the Embassy, but not all of it.
Q. Did it ever go as high as 16 or 20 million?
A. No, never. 1 million or 2 million, I think.
Q. The police attache received the money from the Embassy, but they say they did not pay these people?
A. Yes.
Q. Where is this police attache now?
A. In Madrid, HAMMES, assistant. Q. is gone.
Q. When did Q. leave?
A. In September he left Berlin and did not come back. But we don't know. In Madrid they said one of your airplanes intercepted his airplane. Some say he is in British hands and some say he is dead.
Q. ENGE was not asked at all about Suez Canal shares? A. No. It may be that BECKER asked him.
Q. You don't remember Dr. MATZKE?
A. No.
Q. Who would know if a man went frequently to San Sebastian?
A. The counsel, KOCHT. He is in Madrid. He is not on the list.
Q. Do you know a CORDES?
A. No.
Q. Where is EINHARDT now?
A. In Spain.
Q. Is he on the list?
A. I don't know.

b. GIS Career

Wolfgang BLAUM was born in Emden 6 Jun 11. After graduation from high school in 1929 he became an employee of the North German Lloyd. He was sent by that concern to Cristobal (Panama) in 1934.

In 1937 he joined the NSDAP in Panama. He was on his honeymoon in Germany when the war broke out, and he enlisted in 1940.

Feb. 1940 Joined Brandenburg Bn for intelligence training.

Mar. 1940 Assigned to Referat II, KO Spanien, in Madrid, as deputy to KRUEGER, and remained there until 1945 as technical adviser and right-hand man of later Referat II chiefs.

Feb. 1945 Returned to Germany by air.

Apr. 1945 Assigned to FAT 259 in Italy, Sonderfuehrer (Z), Referat II KO Spanien. He went to Spain in March 1940, sent there on orders of the J section. Upon his arrival in Madrid, BLAUM reported to Freg. Kptn. LENZ, CO of KP Spain. BLAUM was told that his first mission was to make contacts of possible future value. Permission for BLAUM to remain in Spain was obtained by the German Embassy, where he was registered as an employee. Later the entire staff of Referat II was incorporated into the Embassy as a section of KO Spain, Thus LENZ became BLAUM's superior. Although matters of II interest were settled with Abwehr II in Berlin, LENZ still influenced II operations, since all general policies had to be approved by him.

In February 1945, BLAUM was also recalled, and Referat II's remaining activities were entrusted to Werner SCHULZ, an inexperienced man from Berlin.

He gave training in sabotage techniques to Spanish agents working for nazis: Francisco BORJABAD, Ricardo GUSAETA, Emilio DIAZ.

BRANDEL, Hermann, alias BRAND, Harry (Also known as OTTO, Otto BRANDEL, BRAND, Harry , or Hans BRANDT). Information about Organisation "Otto" (Hermann BRANDEL) from DELFANNE's interrogation:

In 1940 BRANDEL was in Brussels directing an espionage network in Belgium and France. DELFANNE was one of his agents. On 10 May when the German Embassy in Brussels was closed, BRANDEL was arrested with others members of the Diplomatic Corps and transferred to Lille in France. A few days later he was freed by the advance of the German Tanks. He followed the entry of the troops into Paris and organized his group.

In Paris, he located the agents of the French Deuxieme Bureau and set up a counter-espionage and espionage network in the unoccupied zone of France. In this task he re-employed many of his former agents. DELFANNE rejoined BRANDEL in January 1941. They lived in the same private hotel, 23 Square du Bois de Boulogne, Paris XV.

During 1941 and 1942 OTTO continued his counter-espionage and espionage work in France and Marocco and intensified the radios networks. Towards June 1941, OTTO received large sums of money from Roges Company for the purchase of large quantities of raw materials: leather, textiles, wool, cotton, skins, metals, wines and alcohols intended for Germany. This commercial activity was brought to him by Robert POESCHEL, retired Major, agent for the Abwehr and industrialI. In a short while, purchases increased considerably and OTTO organized his work to fit his double activity. Henceforward, he worked under the feldpost Nº 21476/0 (Abwehr) 20803 (Majestic), 03069 DT, purchasing organization Otto. Large warehouses were rented or requisitioned at the quays of the St. Ouen Station (Paris), from whence goods trains left every day.

At the end of 1942 the premises nº 19, 21, 23, 25 and 27 were no longer sufficient and Otto removed to n^{o} 6, rue Adolphe Yvon, Paris XVI. At the same time BRANDEL was officially made responsible by Berlin for all the purchases for the 4 Jahresplan. The organisation underwent a tremendous expansion and soon all the buildings of the quays of St. Ouen Station were allocated for warehousing.

When the accounts were closed on 15 April 1944, the Otto organization had made purchases to the value of 450.000.000.000 French francs.. Throughout the whole of this period Otto BRANDEL was the leading figure, assIed by his secretary Mlle. Mary and his associate Robert POESCHEL.
The principal collaborators were:
Capt. Wilhelm RADECKE (Abwehr)
Dr. von NEUBERG
Dr. Alfred FUCHS

Hans Wolfgang von GODAMER.
The principal purchasing agents were:
DUBOIS (WIROTH) (Luxemburger)
Rudolf von MERADE / MERODE (Alsacian)
Madame DUBAIL (Alsacian)
SABATIER (French)
Max STOCKLING (SOUVIRON) (Swiss)
D'HUMIERES (VAN HOUTEN) (Dutch)
George DELFANNE (MASUY, BAUER) (Belgian)
PAT (Luxemburger)
Roger THEREUIN (French)
RENAUT
Joseph JOHANOVITCH (Polish)
TARDIEU (French)
DUSSAP (French)
TEMMLER (German)
Von GOLDAMER (German)

As far as his espionage work was concerned OTTO was directly under Col. RUDOLF and the latter directly under Admiral CANARIS, until July 1944 when the attempt was made against Hitler's life.

From Interrogation Report on Flight X Repatriates: The fortune of Hermann BRANDEL , alias OTTO (declaration of J. DELFANNE):

"OTTO received a commission of 1% on the value of purchases made. I saw personally the closed account of 15 April 1944 with the figure 450.000.000 francs. In 1942 he bought a lot of diamonds and gold dollars. In 1943 he bought international securities including Royal Dutch and Standard Oil. In July, August 1943 he bought a considerable lot of diamonds of 6 to 12 carats. At the end of 1943 he bought Swiss Francs, Sterling and Dollars (Bills). Part of these were sold to him direct by the Director of the Bank of France, Monsieur ADAUT.
OTTO owns property in:
Belgium: Avenue Brunod-Uccle, Brussels value 5.000.000 Bel. Francs.
France: A large state near Dijon comprising a Chateau and its lands.
Switzerland: Considerable Bank account.
Spain: Deposited with Antonio VARGAS MACHUCA, 1.500.000.000 French francs in securities, money, diamonds and gold.
Germany: The Bayerische Bank in Munich held a considerable account for OTTO. On 12 August 1944 at the time of my last interview, OTTO told me that this Bank would always be able to give his address."

BRANDES, Hans Joachim Friedrich. Born in Berlin 2 May 1921.Repatriated from Portugal via Spain by air (dates from January 29 to February 25, 1946). Po. No. 0569. Repatriated from Spain on the Highland Monarch . In 1946 he claimed Jewish father. Interrogated before 6 March1946 by by G-2 UFSER and on the 8 July, 1946 by Finance Division (not in London lI, but well known to British (MI5 and MI5) for his connections with Jeb Jensen). Interrogated again in April 1947 by OMGUS, Finance Division. Released from Camp Asperg on 3 September 1946 and employed again by the Geisenheim branch of the firm Fritz Werner A.G., Berlin-Marienfelde. Address after release: Wiesbaden, Ahornweg, 1, tfn. 28648.

At the beginning of 1942, he went from Switzerland to Lisbon as representative of a business opened by Clara BRANDES, née WERNER, his mother, the company being Fritz Werner, A.G., Machine Tool Manufacturers, Berlin-Marienfelde. He acted similarly at Zurich from 1937 to 1942.

Leon PAULET of Marseilles, formed a company with BRANDES' father and a Monsieur BARBOUT of Paris. The father had a third interest in the Paris company with PAULET and BARBOUT. After the collapse, BRANDES alleged that his father was Jewish and in a concentration camp for seven years(no proof of that statement was presented) .He said that, after leaving the concentration camp, his father opened a machine tool business in Paris where he was murdered by the Gestapo, which has employed his maid to put poison in his father's cigar.

Hans BRANDES set up building a weapon factory for the Portuguese Government, importing machines from Fritz Werner, A.G for 2.000.000 RM. Funds to the extend of RM 500.000 were paid by Portuguese Government to German- Portuguese Clearing, but no machines were ever delivered.

In Portugal there was a representative named Baron von KNIEGGE, of (a) A.G.K. (Ausfuhr Gemeinschaft für Kriegsceräte) and (b) Rheinmetall Borsig. According to Brandes, KNIEGGE , by abuse of his official position in A.G.K., prompted the Portuguese Ministry of War to pay WERNER in the interest of the company which he represented, i.e., Rheinmetall Borsig.

It is stated that von KNIEGGE is now working for the Americans in Portugal to avoid being brought back to Germany, but he has property hidden in Portuguese names to a very considerable extent, and knows all about clandestine trading in Wolfram, etc. His Portuguese "tame men" include CHAVES of the Ministry of War.

Brandes was connected and suposed to have information about to following issues:
1. In 1944, Germany engaged itself to supply Argentine with machines which necessitated blockade breaking sea-transport facilities, which von KNIEGGE was briefed by Berlin to negotiate in Lidsbon, for which he received RM 1.000.000 by direct courier from Berlin. The enterprise was abortive, but where the money go was unknown.
2. Sofindus controlled all transport Portugal-France, for which LOHSE was responsible, with BAESELER (Bayonne) and LESSER (Lisbon) as underlings. Smuggling was achieved by abuse of terms of Law 40, whereby Spain agreed with Allies to prevent transit of War supplies, e.g., Wolfram, to German controlled territory. War supplies were false labelled, e.g., Wolfram was described as Fish Oil by collusion with the Spanish Customs officials. According to Brandes, LESSER was still in Portugal and BAESELER in Spain in 1946.
3. Continental Caucho shares, sold through the offices of a Spanish lawyer, by the aid of a German named FIEDLER, acting for a group. BRANDES knew about this operation through a WERNER's representative in Madrid called Hinderer&Co.

The 100.000 he received from Gottfried PAUL (see PAUL's interrogation) was mostly spent by the time he was interned. The remaining 35.000 Escudos, together with all his private property he left with the Land-Lady of the Chalet de Largo, Monte Estoril.
Eliah Meyer, Ludwig Losbichler: marchante de arte y agente de la gestapo (2) pp. 16 y 21:

"En 1949, un traficante y agente del Abwehr, Hans Brandes identifica a OBORIL como matón de Gottfried PAUL-TABOSCHAT, otro agente del Abwehr, traficante y encargado de blanquear dinero nazi."

Hans Brandes, como Gottfried PAUL, es un caso típico de criminal profesional que desarrolla su carrera en los servicios secretos. La información británica sobre este individuo fue ocultada a la OMGUS por su relación con la muerte de Hans JEBSEN, "ARTIST", oficial del Abwehr y doble agente del MI5 controlado por Dusto POPOV, "TRICYCLE".

Según el relato "oficial", BRANDES engañó a JEBSEN y se hizo pasar por proaliado, pero lo denunció a la Gestapo. La Gestapo lo secuestró y murió ejecutado en Flossenburg en 1944. Esta versión necesita una urgente revisión: se confunden al buen tuntún la Gestapo con la Abwher y se afirma con rotundidad la suerte de JEBSEN, de la que no existe documento ni indicio alguno de su ejecución. JEBSEN, como TRICYCLE, eran agentes con exceso de iniciativa, curiosidad y arrogancia, que pudieron suponer un peligro para la Operación Garbo y es lógico que Tomás HARRIS o el XX Committee estuvieran preocupados, pero creo que la suposición de que pensaron en algún momento en asesinarlo es una interpretación erronea del término liquidate (o el más coloquial bump off) usado por LIDDELL para indicar que se cerraba una operación o el trabajo con un agente. Los responsables de servicios secretos no van dejando "en scripto yaz esto" sus asesinatos.

Kim PHILBY no se dejó engañar por las patrañas de Hans BRANDES, a quien consideró un gangster peligroso pero de poca monta. (Vid. Ben Macintyre, Double Cross: The True Story of The D-Day Spies, p. 248)

"PRESIDENTIAL ADVISORY COMMISSION ON :HOLOCAUST ASSETS IN THE UNITED STATES·
Edgar M. Bronfman, Chairman
(From) Kenneth Klothen, Executive Director, l (To) The Honorable Enrique MUGICA HERZOG

December 12,1999
Spanish Commission on Holocaust Assets
Concha Espina, 8. 7 lzda
28036 Madrid
Spain
Dear Mr. Chairman:

It was a great pleasure to meet with you and your colleagues in Washington. Pursuant to that meeting and our very productive discussions, I am writing to forward to you some of the questions that we would like to pose to Professor MARTIN ACEÑA and the other members of your research team for their insights.

As you know, our work is divided into three major research categories: art and cultural property; gold, and non-gold financial assets,. We have canvassed our research staff and have received questions from them.

These include:
1) We would like to know more about the activities of Alois MIEDL in Spain. MIEDL is the art dealer who crossed the French-Spanish border with works obtained from the Goudstikker Collection. Does the Spanish Commission know anything about the fate of these works imported by MIEDL?
2) Has the Spanish Commission obtained information about the post-war activities in Spain of art dealer Karl BUCHHOLZ in Spain? He was an important dealer who also did business in the U.S.
3) Do Spanish officials know anything about the activities of Alfredo HIRSCH, and an individual surnamed ZANTOPF (according to some reports, the same person)? During the war years HIRSCH was an art dealer in Spain.

4) Does the Spanish Commission know about an auction of Old Masters organized by a German national in Barcelona in 1943? (See explanatory notes: Auction of Old Masters in Barcelona)
5) The Eizenstat report described the financial transaction between Spain, Chase, and First National Bank with ,regard to the telephone system. Is the Commission aware of other transactions?
6) Were any assets entering the United States that were used as collateral in financial transactions transferred from Central Banks of neutral countries through Spain during the relevant time period?
7) If so, what was the form of these assets?
8) Does the Spanish Central Bank possess records, or correspondence with the US Federal Reserve, regarding the transfer of assets from Spain to the United States during the relevant period?
9) Has the Spanish Commission addressed the issue of whether any assets looted from Holocaust victims may have ended up in the hands of individual Spaniards?
10) Did the Commission address the issue of whether gold, and other assets, may have been smuggled into Spain illegally?
11) Is the Commission aware of information in Spanish archives that could shed light on the relationship between the Falange Party, the then-government of Spain, and German Reich financial institutions? If so, was either a recipient of looted assets?
12) Is the Commission aware of documents concerning the following individuals or organizations and their involvement with looted assets:
a) Jose CANCELLER, Minister of Foreign Affairs
b) Aznar & Co. : ,
c) Johannes CHARLES (also known as Baron Jean Charles)
d) August T. GAUSBECK (founder of Banque Charles & Co., in Monaco in 1944. It had a branch in Barcelona. There is information that this bank had a close relationship with the Reichsbank).
e) Axis Embassies and legation offices in Madrid.
13) Is the Commission aware: of Argentina or other Latin American nations serving as a transit point for looted assets tnmsshipped from Spain and destined for the United States?

If your Commission has no information relevant to these questions, would it be possible to offer us some guidance as to how we might:pursue research into these issues in Spanish archives?

I very much appreciate your generous offer of assistance and hope that the cooperation between our, two Commissions can serve as a model for similar cooperation among all such Commissions as we strive to discover the truth about this terrible period in our recent history.

Finally, I look forward to the ’day when, as you suggested, we will "almorzar bien en Madrid."
Sincerely (signature)
Kenneth KLOTHEN
Executive Director."

In view of the research results and conclusions, the efforts of Spanish Commission (BOE num. 166 Sabado 12 julio 1997) has been, since that date, to put it midly, shameful. Keeping on this mummery, Mr. MÚGICA and his Commission recommended Spanish Government to provide "adecuate assistance" to a non existent organization: the Organización Mundial Sefardí:

"II.–Una vez afirmada la ausencia de responsabilidad del Estado español, la Comisión, habiendo cumplido el mandato recibido de acuerdo con el Real Decreto

1131/97 de 11 de julio, considera su deber terminar estas Conclusiones adhiriéndose a la creciente corriente de opinión en la Comunidad Internacional que vuelve a tomar conciencia del drama del

Holocausto judío.

Por ello, y teniendo en cuenta la política de España en favor de las comunidades sefardíes, recomienda al Gobierno, desde su propia legitimidad democrática y por el sentimiento humanitario de los españoles, que aporte la ayuda que juzgue más conveniente a la Organización Mundial Sefardí, de la que son miembros numerosos conciudadanos españoles. Madrid, 5 de marzo de 1998.
El secretario de la Comisión, Fernando de GALAINENA.
VºBº el presidente, Enrique MÚGICA HERZOG ***."

The amount promised , not as restitution, since Spain, according to Comisión Múgica final report, denied any involment or responsabilities in Nazi looting, was assigned, months later, to a non identified sephardic NGOs:

En la Sección 12 (Ministerio de Asuntos Exteriores), Organismo 103, Agencia Española de Cooperación Internacional, Programa 134.A (Cooperación para el Desarrollo) se modifica la denominación del concepto 497, de tal manera que donde dice: «Organización Mundial Sefardi», debe decir: «Subvenciones a Organizaciones no Gubernamentales para ayudas a sefardíes víctimas de la persecución nazi». (BOCG. Senado, serie II, núm. 112-g, de 14/12/1998 p. 970)

* In 2012 Israel bestowed the Shmuel Hadas Award upon Enrique MÚGICA HERZOG.

"BUCHHOLZ. One suspected of serving as cloak for Nazi interests in the New German Bookshop, 50 Avenida Liberdade, Lisbon. It was opened in late 1943 by a German refugee, a certain BUCHHOLZ, in partnership with a Portuguese named LEHRFELD, who put 200.000 into the business. He brought with him half a million marks worth of books, pictures and sculpturs from Germany, and sold at high prices. It is said that GOEBBELS and RIBBENTROP used him to open bank accounts for them in places they considered safer than Argentina, and that as far back as 1938, BUCHHOLZ was selling "confiscated" art pieces for the benefit of the Nazis. Swiss dealers were in touch with him a year ago, but no recent information has come concerning him. BUCHHOLZ, Karl Horst.

New German Bookshop. 50 Avenida da Liberdade, Lisbon

German. Married. Passport No II.4520-44, II-4520-43 BL, 4520-43 Berlin V (6).

Address: Leipzigerstrasse, Berlin; Budapest; Buchholz Gallery New York (4).

Occupation: dealer in books and works of art.

Description: About 40 years old, fairly tall, rather good looking, a nice prosperous German. Born about 1904 (4); August 26, 1901 at Gottingen. German subject (6).

Backgound: Claims to be a refugee having one Jewish grandmother. However, he brought with him some half million marks worth of books, pictures and sculpturs. Has a splendid shop with high prices.

Present activities: Opened a shop in late 1943 (...). Appears to be working for RIBBENTROP and GOEBELS personally, acting as an outlet for their wealth. Now has German woman as secretary who reports back to RIBBENTROP or GOEBELS on sales posibilities. Subject is said to have a brother in US, now an American citizen, who also has a book and art shop. Subject has been sending books and confiscated or looted works of art to the brother (1) Is reported to have received photos of pictures now for sale in Switzerland and is in touch with dealers and refugees (2). Subject travels constantly and his shop is reported as intermediary for the sending of looted goods to South America. A young woman, daughter of a German teacher in Lisbon, is said to be working there, and reported to be anti-Nazi, might be willing source (3).Is reported to have received photos of pictures now for sales in Switzerland (...)(2)

Pictures mentioned are:
Italian Master (XVI Cen), La Dama au Petrarque, 90,000 Swiss francs (sic).
Antonio Moro, Charles V, 86x66 cm. 38,000 Swiss francs (sic).
Franz Snyders, Natures Mortes or Still Life, 22,000 Swiss francs.

"His Berlin partner, Herr HUELSEN, and he are anti-Nazi, and they frequently exhibit "condemned" works of art for which they were attached by Nazi press, warned by RbK and fined RM 5000. But another source says he sold art works by the "degenerate artists" from German museums in 1936. In 1938 some things that had passed through his hands were at FISHER's sale in Lucerne; considered subject was employed by Nazi government as agent in this affair (4). Also opened branch in Budapest as well as Lisbon (4).

His brother's shop in U.S. in either New York or Washington; in collaboration with subject reported to have sold works from German Jewish collections and paintings by German Jews. Bulchholz Gallery in New York, now owned by Curt VALENTIN, former partner in Berlin, said to be anti-Nazi and to have severed all connections with BUCHHOLZ (4).

Price of pictures on sale in Switzerland quoted at 190,000 Swiss francs, 138,000 Swiss francs, and 22,000 Swiss francs (4). Photographs of these three pictures on view at Buchholz Gallery in Lisbon (4).

"(BUCHHOLZ). Had a bootleg gallery, dealing in art books, and also in paintings, etc., on the Leipzifer Strasse. In 1936 he had a number of works by forbidden artists for sale. In 1938 the Museum of Modern Art (NYC) bought a number of such things from him through Kurt VALENTINE (sic). They were from German museums, and were sold at ¼, 1/3 or even 1/10 the market price. A year or so later, the balance of the things were sold at the Lucerne auction of all the modern things taken from the German museums.

In other words, BUCHHOLZ was used by the German government as an agent in 1938.

A list of what he is offering now would make it possible to decide whether he is an agent now or not.

VALENTINE (sic) says BUCHHOLZ went to great risk to protect VALENTINE (sic) in the early days of the regime, but failed. VALENTINE (sic) had great faith in him until he saw him Paris in 1938. He (BUCHHOLZ) opened a bookshop in Lisbon two years, something he could not have done without the consent of the German Government. He also opened one in Bucharest." (V.F to M.D., Nov 2, 1944*

Q. Do you know a man by the name of BUCHHOLZ?
A. BUCHHOLZ, if I remember correctly, was a member of the Amt Mil.
Q. In what country did he operate?
A. I believe he was active for the counter-espionage in France and Italy.
Q. Who was his superior?
A. The chief of Frontaufklaerungsleitstelle III West, Col. GARTHE.
Q. Do you know anything specifically about his operations?
A. Previously I never knew that a BUCHHOLZ existed. Only very recently, in the last days of my freedom and during my time in prison, I heard his name and heard that he was not a very good type of person.
Q. Whom did you hear this from - from people who interrogated you or from other Germans?

A. Other Germans.
Q. Do you recall who told you about BUCHHOLZ?
A. It was a co-prisoner in England who was formerly a subordinate of mine, by the name of Rittmeister von LEDEBUR.
Q. Didn't he tell you that BUCHHOLZ had been doing?
A. No, he only asked me if I knew BUCHHOLZ who was supposed to be a man who had great expenses and spent a lot of money.
Q. What were your connections with the New German Book Shop in Lisbon?
A. No connections."

Functions of I-M. KO Spain

I-M was the largest of the Referate of KO Spain. This was natural, since there was little opportunity for observing enemy armies and air forces in Spain, but all enemy naval activity in the Mediterranean was easily observable. However, the greatest blunder of KO Spain was the failure to discover the plans for the Allied invasion of North Africa, a matter which belonged to the province of I-M.

Information on enemy naval movenents was sent to Luftwaffe units in Sicily (later Italy) and to the Mediterranean submarino commander at Genoa for action.

Mr.von Schack:
I have no documental evidence to infere that Hermann GOERITZ and Mathias GOERITZ are the same person. Besides, Tangier was a city frequented by GIS agents (I remember there was a third agent Goeritz). I use to edit the information from files and index cards with only minimal changes (different spelling, aliases, etc) and only when I find a document which confirms my previous identification, I file the names under one person. This list is a tool to other researchers, so I try not to add to much of my own elucubrations.
But if You have any documents or proof to identify the two names as one person, I am glad to make the neccessary changes.
I don't find any Miss Inge Benzinger in my archive, but if you have documents or archival reference to look for, I shall include her.
Best regards

Hi
The name of my grand father appears in this list. I would like to know the truth about his role during the war.
Could you help me ?

Interrogation results

Introduction

AMENDE, previously interrogated at this Center concerning the activities of KO Spanien, contributed little new information because he left Spain in 1941. His connections with members of the Spanish Intelligence Service are described in Annex 1.

Life history

AMENDE was born 4 Aug 03 in Bendorf (nr. Koblenz). After studying Economics at the University of Leipzig, he worked for various coal firms and finally obtained a managerial position.

He lost his job in 1932 and, unable to find work, joined the RAD in 1933. He was discharged from the RAD in 1935 with the rank of Unterfeld Meister. He entered the German Army January 1936 and was discharged in May of the same year with the rank of Gefreiter.

Unable to obtain suitable employment in Germany, AMENDE went to Spain in 1937. There he joined the Italian Brigade, a unit of the insurgent army. With the help of the German consul, he managed to get out of the Brigade, which, according to him, he had entered against his will. He found work with a construction firm at San Sebastian and later with a paper manufacturing concern in Tolosa in 1938. In the Spring of 1939 he accompanied a number of Spanish business men to the exposition in Leipzig.

In October 1939, AMENDE began working for the German Vice-Consul in Barcelona. He was sent to Madrid on various errands, and there became acquainted with Emilio LANG, a member of KO Spanien. LANG asked him to get in touch with members of the Falange to see whether some of them could be recruited to work as German agents.

In the fall of 1940 he began to work full-time for the Abwehr in Madrid and served there until September 1941, when he was discharged for refusing to undertake a mission to Mexico.

AMENDE returned to Germany and was appointed Abteilungs Leiter of a regional headquarters of the Zentral Handels Gesellschaft Ost, an organization of shady reputation, which sold chemical fertilizers and other necessities to farmers and bought their products.

When Russian troops began advancing, AMENDE retreated with his organization and was again on the lookout for a new position. He met Flieger Stabs Ingenieur KURTH, a member of Ast Muenster, who thought that AMENDE might help him to make contacts in Spain. It should be noted that after 1943 the different Asts were anxious to make contacts on their own without the knowledge of higher headquarters. These contacts were often for the purpose of acquiring luxury good in an illegal manner.

In connection with KURTH's proposal, AMENDE made several brief trips to Spain, but upon his return to Germany in March 1944 he was informed that his services were no longer required. He did not return to Spain.

5. Conclusions: None

6. Comments and recommendations

AMENDE, being a former member of the Abwehr, falls into the automatic arrest category. He is considered a security threat."

Annex I

KO Spanien and the Spanish Intelligence Service

As previously stated in Third US Army CIR No 38, dtd 9 Sep 45, cooperation between the GIS in Spain and Spanish Intelligence existed throughout the war. However, when in 1943 and in 1944 the balance began tipping toward the Allies, this cooperation grew less as the German situation grew worse. Many Spaniards who had been in German service or in liaison with KO Spanien in 1941 became unavailable in 1943 and began to support the Allied cause in 1944.

The following have knowledge of the activities of KO Spanien and of the Spanish Intelligence Service. They are considered by AMENDE to be key personalities in the chain of numerous groups and organizations linked with either KO Spanien or the Spanish Intelligence Service.

1. Emilio LANG. LANG was born in Germany but became a Spanish subject a good many years ago (date unknown). He had excellent connections with the Direction General de Seguridad as well as with the Servicio (de) Informaciones Militares. In 1940 he and his father-in-law were employed by KO Spanien to carry out a mission in defeated France.

LANG became KUEHLENTAL's assistant and took care of most of the work, including liaison between Referat I and III and the Spanish Intelligence Service. He interviewed and hired agents, briefed and dispatched them on missions, and provided them with the necessary documents and finances for their particular missions. All the agents were required to report their activities to him. LANG was in constant contact with other agencies of Referat I and was often consultad by Referat III-F, where a certain HAUBERT was in charge of agents.

Toward the end of 1941 LANG moved to Bilbao to open an Aust of Referat

KUEHLENTAL where he could supervise agents more closely. It seems that from this time on he did not enjoy KUEHLENTAL's confidence. LANG was active during 1944 and it is assumed by AMENDE that he remained in Spain.

AMENDE believes that LANG possesses all the information necessary to uncover the activities of the German underground in Spain. LANG has connections with the following:

- Sr FINAT, Conde de MAYALDE, Spanish Chief of Police. (Through LANG's father-in-law who was employed in the Direccion General de Seguridad.)
- German SD and agents. (Through Adolf STEIN, a German school teacher in Madrid.)
- GENSEROWSKI, an Abwehr agent and member of the German Consulate at Bilbao.
- Padre LANGE (see below).
- KUEHLENTAL. (For connections with the KO and the SIS)
- Spanish government agencies in charge of issuing passports and visas, booking offices for securing passage on boats for Abwehr agents, and other maritime services.
- Referat I-g for secret codes and inks.

2. Padre LANGE (Pater Agostin Maria LANGE)

Padre LANGE (name by which most commonly called) is considered by AMENDE to be a key figure in the Spanish Intelligence Service. Padre LANGE is a German by birth, who, although completely given to the Church, has not given up his love for and allegiance to Germany.

During 1943 and 1944, when the GIS was very active in the Iberian peninsula, Padre LANGE was a principal link between the leaders of KO Spanien and those Spaniards who were willing to do sabotage and counter-intelligence work for the Germans.

Padre LANGE is known to have last lived in the Pyrenees region where he often travelled from one monastery to another, keeping in touch with the Basque peasantry whose welfare he had at heart. His pro-Basque attitude and convictions alienated him from more nationalist-minded northern Spaniards.

It is believed that he was never sympathetic to the Nazis because their views conflicted with his uncompromising Catholicism. His activities on behalf of the Abwehr are explained as stemming from his love for Germany. He was politically unfriendly to FRANCO.

Padre LANGE was closely connected with the Basques living on the French and Spanish border, the people there having complete confidence in him as a spiritual leader and helping him with frontier crossings and related intelligence activities.

AMENDE states that Padre LANGE was able to maintain liaison with the Church in Ireland, but does not know whether priests were sent on missions to Ireland by the Abwehr or the Spanish Intelligence Service..

AMENDE believes that Padre LANGE's position as member of the Misioneros del Sagrado Corazón de Jesus, a member order of the Society of Jesus with extensive missions in South America and Central Africa, may have been used to secure assistance for Abwehr agents on missions.

Little is known of Padre LANGE's influence in Italy other than that he was in contact with his superiors in Rome.

Despite Padre LANGE's lack of popularity with certain Spanish nationalist groups, he was on excellent terms with the Spanish Intelligence Service and was always kept completely informed about internal and external matters. In addition, Padre LANGE operated his own private intelligence net, which enabled him to provide the SIS with important information.

Both the SIS and the GIS considered Padre LANGE's net of agents to be invaluable, although he vas never completely taken into the confidence of the Abwehr. AMENDE says that KO Spanien never made as full a use of LANGE as might have been made.

Padre LANGE's present whereabouts are unknown, but it is believed that he is still in Spain and could easily be located. His last known residence was in a boarding school near Bilbao where he was an instructor for sons of the Spanish nobility.

AMENDE says that there were no relations between Referat II and the Spanish Intelligence Service. Any project undertaken by Referat II was of necessity kept secret from the German Embassy itself. All sabotage actions on Spanish soil were covered to prevent any proof that these were German-inspired. Spanish agents were recruited without the help of any official Spanish government agencies, and sabotage operations were carried on independently of any other organizations in Spain, Spanish or otherwise. Only in planning the R-net against a possible Allied invasion of Spain, did BLAUM (...) recruit the aid of PERALES and his followers.

Annex II

Net of informants in Spain.

According to AMENDE it should be possible to establish a net of informants knowledgeable on the activities of the remaining elements of the GIS in Spain. Some of these potential informants are considered neutral, others pro-Allied, and others pro-German. (...) AMENDE is not sure of their exact sympathies. Nevertheless, he suggests the following as a possible plan of procedure:

First contact with Spaniards across the border from Cerbere might be established with the chief of the frontier police at Port-Bou, a certain Mariano López VINUALES and his assistant SOL could serve as liaison men with agenta headquarters in France, bearers of correspondence, and could be helpful in granting entrance and frontier-crossing permits.

VINUALES, then, is the man to contact RUIZ DEL VALLE and AMABLE in Figueras. The latter two are members of the Spanish Intelligence Service, good friends of AMENDE with leads into Barcelona, and are likely to be cooperative. In Barcelona, MORENO BRAVO is the key informant on any subject concerning

- former members and activities of German Consulates
- Abwehr Stelle Barcelona
- Plans and projects of former Referat II, KO Spanien
- Shipping during the war; dispatching of agents
- The Spanish Intelligence Service
- Leads into Madrid

From MORENO BRAVO the link to CASANAS may be established. CASANAS well known in Spanish politics since 1937, has connections with:

- Clique of general officers surrounding France
- Falange and minor parties with similar policies
- Spanish police (for check on aliens, registers)
- Civil service throughout the country
- Falange police, and Spanish Intelligence Service in Spanish Morocco, and possibly South America .
- SERRANO SUÑER and his immediate environment (now eclipsed in Oviedo) and has acquaintance with:

- LICIMADA JUANA (member of SIS -alien registration)
- AGULLÓ (Naval Intelligence)
- BOMBÍN (SIS and Falange police)
- Emilio LANG (and through him wit h former Referat I, KO Spanien.

Emilio LANG, the next man in the chain, may be consulted with the purpose of obtaining all information concerning the GIS, especially recent activities of what remained of KO Spanien. LANG may also be able to contact Padre LANGE in Bilbao.

Padre LANGE, another key man, would be invaluable for connections with:
- Church in Spain (church heads in Madrid)
- Nobility
- GIS and its past activities in Ireland and S America
- the Basques
- and his intimate knowledge of conditions in N Spain.

ANDRES, Helmut. German formerly employed as technician by the Spanish Government.Listed for departure on SS Marine Marlin, scheduled to leave the Port of Bilbao about Agust 31, 1946. Entered Spain March 6, 1945.

ANDRESS MOSER, Hermann Karl. From Safehaven Report, American Embassy, August 13, 1945: Born in Darmstadt 10 March, 1890. Married. Two sons in German Army.

Working for Merck since 1911 dealing with Spain and South America. He went to Spain in 1912 as representative for the house of Loewenstein. Later in business with a Spanish druggist in Malaga, José PELÁEZ BERMÚDEZ. Returned to Germany 1914-1918 for Army service. Returned to Spain about 1923. Fled from Republican zone at Barcelona in August 1936 to re-enter in the Nationalist zone at Vigo in September. Renewed his company’s operations in a warehouse at Vigo, where Merck semi-finished products from Germany were processed, packaged, and sold in Nationalist territory.

Under interrogation by Allies he alleged difficulties with Johannes BERNHARDT, top executive of Hisma (predesessor of Sofindus) because of ANDRESS’ alleged refusal to handle the compensation arrangements for his import of drugs through Hisma-Rowak clearing system.

ANDRESS was president of the German Chamber of Commerce from 1932-1936 and one of the founders of the German Clubhouse in Barcelona, which later became the Nazi Party house. Member of NSDAP since 1933 till end of the war. He paid the regular membership fees to the Party, plus special contributions for miscellaneous reasons. In addition, he and all German employees of subject’s company paid specified percentages of their wages to the Deutsche Arbeitsfront in Spain.

"Subject company was founded in Spain in 1923, Bernhardt PFOTENHAUER, director of Merck in Darmstadt, came to Spain in 1923 specifically for the purpose of founding a Spanish subsidiary. Its original capital was Pesetas 500.000 (1000 shares at 500 Pesetas per share), wholly owned by Merck. (...) Around 1929 the company’s capital was increased to Pesetas 1.000.000. The additional 500.000 allegedly was paid for, and stock delivered to the following Spaniards: Isaac NOGUERAS, Antonio NOGUERAS, Alvaro CALDUCH. The first two are brothers and physicians. CALDUCH is a pharmaceutist. All three are allegedly friends of ANDRESS and paid for the stock out of their own earnings. The interviewer expressed mild surprise that these persons would earn enough to be able to spend 500.000 Pesetas on stock, and ANDRESS' reply plus evident embarrassment on this point aswell as later left the impression that the mentioned Spaniards were cloaks for Merck money.

On or about 1933, the company's capitalization was apparently increased to Pesetas 1.510.000, although ANDRESS was not clear as to the exact amount of the increase. The additional Pesetas 510.000 of shares were apparently divided among the following Spaniards: Pablo SÁNCHEZ (businessman), Álvaro CALDUCH (pharmaceutist), Pedro ROMERO (businessman), SALA (dentist), ORIOL (doctor). Questioned with respect to the source of the funds paid by the Spaniards, ANDRESS was again embarrased and evasive. In early 1939 the company's capitalization was apparently increased to Pesetas 2.010.000 and shareholdings rearranged as follows: Carlos ANDRESS: 350.000 pts; Hans EGERT (director of the company): 150.000. ANDRESS admits that these two German holdings totaling 500.000 were the same 500.000 originally bought by Merck and belong equitably to Merck. in addition, Pesetas 1.510.000 were divided among the following Spaniards: Dr. Antonio NOGUERAS, Pablo SÁNCHEZ, Álvaro CALDUCH, Pedro ROMERO, SALA and ORIOL.

The interviewer thereupon asked ANDRESS whether he would be willing to sign a sworn statement to the effect that the Pesetas 1.510.000 worth of shares were paid exclusively from Spanish funds and neither directly nor indirectly by Merck or any other German source. He replied that he could not make such statement , plead ignorance and stated that PFOTENHAUER and STEINHAGE, who came to Spain on behalf of Merck in 1929 (...) may have had some private understanding with the mentioned Spaniards without ANDRESS knowing the details thereof. Interviewer's impression was that ANDRESS is fully informed concerning such detils, and he therefore suggested to ANDRESS, and ANDRESS promised, a careful refreshing of his own memory and a written statement on this subject on or before the end of August. It was pointed out that evidence undoubtedly forthcoming from the house of Merck in Germany would naturally be available to check against any statement by ANDRESS.

Company Officers and personnel: The board of directors is identical with the last mentioned stockholders. ANDRESS and EGERT are the principal officers and actually run the firm. Spanish stockholders are not employed by the company and visit it only infrequently. ANDRESS and EGERT receive Pesetas 6500 and 4500 respectively in their monthly salary.

The following Germans are likewise connected with the Spanish house: Nikolaus SCHAEFER (technician instructed by Merck), Helmut FIEDLER (businessman and apoderado), salaries ptas 3500 per month, Hans HOFFMAN (chief of the company's Madrid office), monthly salary Pesetas 4000. Besides the foregoing, the following are representatives of the German house of Knoll, A. G., and act as so-called scientific representatives of the local house, paid by it to explain the customers the use of Knoll products: WALTMAN, monthly salary ptas. 3500 (located at Barcelona), Wilhelm KOLBE, monthly salary pts. 3000 (office in Valencia), Hans SCHRAMM, salary ptas. 2500 (Bilbao), EICKHOFF, salary ptas. 3000 (Madrid)".

Address of ANDRESS: calle Dr. Roux, Tres Torres, Sarria, Barcelona. Tfn. 84218. ANDRESS married Eduvigis MAGEL SIEBEN. One surviving son, Horst . A brother , Dr. Fritz ANDRESS was also NSDAP member. He was connected with firm Lacer, S.A in post war years. He died in Barcelona 4 February, 1973. He was Evangelist.

Office Memorandum, US Government, 18 December, 1944, Subject: Flight of Axis Assets to Latin America: "Unverified information has been furnished by the Legal Attache at Montevideo, Uruguay, indirectly from Jorge ADAMS an exiled communist in Uruguay, of Hungarian birth, to the effect that various Nazi Party officials had sent large amounts of money for deposit to Buenos Aires, Argentina and La Paz, Bolivia. The Spanish shipping firm, Aznar and Cía, is alleged to have assisted in making transfers from Europe. One Alejandro ZUBIZARRETA, technical director of the Aznar firm in Bilbao, Spain, has also participated in this activity.

According to this informant, other individuals who have aided in the work of bringing and depositing money in Latin America for Axis interests are Juan VENTOSA CALVET (misspelling for CALVELL) and Francisco de Asís de CAMBÓ. The Duke of ALBA, Spanish ambassador to England, is said to have obtained permission for VENTOSA to enter England under the pretext that he was to work for the restoration of Spanish monarchy.

The allegation was also made that Banco Frances-Italiano, Buenos Aires, Argentina, is considered to be one of the principal firms assisting the Nazi Party in transferring funds to Argentina.

Another individual alleged to have engaged in forwarding Nazi funds to Argentina is one Pedro ARMENTEROS, who recently arrived in Argentina from Spain."

(see VENTOSA CALVET, Juan and CAMBÓ, Francisco de Asís cards for further information)

From FBI Memorandum, dated 10 December, 1944, signed by John Edgar HOOVER:

"Information was received that on January 12, 1944, Pedro de ARMENTEROS y URBANO sailed from Barcelona, Spain, en route to Buenos Aires, Argentina aboard the S.S, Cabo de Buena Esperanza. He was travelling as a correspondent for the newspaper Vanguardia and planned to settle permanently in the Argentine. He was accompanied by his mother and two adult sisters.

It was further reported that ARMENTEROS had been formerly Chief of Information and Investigation of the Falange in Barcelona, but was dismissed during 1943 for embezzlement of public funds, and was generally known as a "notorious scoundrel".

On January 28, 1944, ARMENTEROS was interviewed and searched at Trinidad. At that time it was ascertained that ARMENTEROS was born in Bellmunt, Tarragona, Spain in 1912.

He was carrying a letter dated December 29th, written on paper headed Bose, Productos Químicos, Rambla Canaletas 13, 1^{o}, Barcelona, without cover and no address, giving the bearer the power to sell outright for 200,000 pesos, or rights of exploitation on agreed terms Patents N^{os} 149,189 and 163,651 property of Antonio CAMPANA BANDRANAS, Casanova 178 and Rambla de Cataluña 7, Barcelona. The bearer is to act in this affair with and through Mena BANDRANAS PALA or his son Roberto of Florida 783, Buenos Aires. The patents refer to a photographic process for making Identity Cards, etc...which would be impossible to falsify or forge.

A similar letter dated December 28, 1943, referring to Sinefin, which apparently has not yet been patented (...). In this letter it is stated that two sample machines can be sent to the Argentine within three months by the Diplomatical Bag (utilizando la via diplomatica)

Letter to bearer dated January 12, 1944, signed Maruja. Writer states that the Bank is Anglo South American Bank and adds that Enrique PAGES had the name of the Bank from Enrique ALSINA. Writer informs bearer that there are $ 500 (five hundred dollars) in the Bank and all he has to do is to present his passport.

Letter dated January 11, 1944, addressed to bearer from El Director de La Vanguardia, Barcelona, confirming a conversation and agreeing to accept articles sent by bearer from Americar. Writer states that he does it at the repeated request of the Gobernador Civil and Jefe Provincial del Movimiento en Barcelona * (Antonio CORREA VEGLISON).

A letter dated January 12, 1944, from Ritmo y Melodía Publicaciones, Villarroel 18, Barcelona, appointing bearer their representative in South America. (...)

A Memorandum relating to the formation of a Commercial Delegation of Argentine Exporters in Barcelona and its Free Port which is to be considered as an Argentine port for the distribution of Argentine products in the Mediterranean. The Argentine Delegation is to work with a Delegation that is being or has been formed by Pedro de ARMENTEROS in Barcelona. The memo heading states that it is written by Dr. A. de AROLAS and is dated Barcelona, December 1943.

(...) During the interrogation of ARMENTEROS he stated that (...) in 1932 he had served two years of military service with the Sanidad Militar, after which he studied law until the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War. He remained in Barcelona until December 1936, when he decided to leave the Republican zone and join the Nationalists. He went from Barcelona to Lisbon on a Mexican war transport, leaving his family in Barcelona.

He proceeded to Salamanca where he was mobilized and posted to the Catalan Infantry Corps. He served in the Santander front. After serving six months in the regiment of a personal friend, FERNÁNDEZ BALBIS, ARMENTEROS applied for a commission and was sent to the Riffian Academy at Ceuta. He served at several other posts and in April 1939, because of his health, he returned to Barcelona.

In 1942 he transferred to the Sindicato de Espectáculos Públicos which was responsible for all theatrical and film productions in Barcelona. Later he contributed to the newspapers Solidaridad Nacional and La Prensa. These papers were government-owned. At the advice of a friend, MOLINA, Argentine consul in Barcelona, he decided to go to the Argentine and write articles for the Vanguardia. This employment was obtained through Conde de GODO.

During the interrogation, ARMENTEROS was said to have "glossed" over his connections with the Falangist Party and later admitted that he was a Camisa Vieja, which indicated that he had been a Falangist before the Civil War.

He complained about the number of former Catalan Separatist who were members of the Falange in Barcelona. He admitted that many of his colleagues had cooperated actively with the Germans; however, he mantained that he had preserved an entirely Nationalist outlook and refused to cooperate. Because of his attitude he said that he was denounced on numerous occasions by one Captain BRAVO MONTERO, apparently a notorious German agent . He denied having being approached by any Germans prior to his departure from Barcelona; however he did state that he knew two men named TIMMELL (phonetic) and BARTOLEIT (phonetic), both of whom were reported to have been well-known German agents in Barcelona (...)

In addition to the 500 Argentine pesos, ARMENTEROS also received authority from a friend, Enrique ALSINA, Calle Ausias March Esp, Paseo San Juan, Barcelona to make use of about $ 1500 in United States currency which is deposited in ALSINA’s name in the Anglo South-American Bank and is now in the Bank of London and the River Plate. ALSINA es apparently a house agent in Barcelona.(...)

ARMENTEROS arrived in Buenos Aires, Argentina, February 23, 1944, aboard of the S.S. Cabo de Buena Eperanza, where he registered at the City Hotel. Observations of his activities revealed nothing particularly suspicious except that on February 25, 1944 he went to the Hotel Jousten, Corrientes 300, for about two hours. This hotel is operated by and for Germans and is a notorious Nazi hangout. On February 29, 1944, ARMENTEROS and Francisco FERNÁNDEZ JIMÉNEZ, who is suspected of being a German agent, met at the City Hotel and in the afternoon they went together to the Banco de la Provincia, San Martin 135. After leaving the bank, ARMENTEROS returned to the City Hotel and JIMÉNEZ went to the Spanish Consulate. Juan Enrique Jorge PAGES, who traveled from Spain on the same boat with ARMENTEROS, appears to be a close friend. These men have been together a great deal. PAGES was las reported to be living at Las Heras 2948, fourth floor, apartment A.

ARNOLD, Eugen. Agent classified IV-B in OSS records. Chief of NSDAP in Granada. Lived in Malaga.
ARNOLD, Johannes. In 1945 he posed as German customs official refugee in Spain (OSS records).
ARNOLD, Karl / Karlo / Carlos/ Theo. German agent classified A. In List of obnoxious Germans proposed for repatriation from Spain. SD/ Gestapo. Repatriated by army air transport on 23 August 1946.. Listed B-16, , I Priority. Identical with the representative of Amt VI D RSHA in Spain. Subject wanted for intensive interrogation in Germany.

Information from the office of Attache D. P. Medalie: "From a reliable source dated June 9, 1944, it is reported that one group of SD in Spain is under joint direction of subject, a director of Cía. General de Lanas, Ayala 10, Madrid. Private tel. Nº at this address is 67164 (this is number listed in 1944 tel. book for company and MOSIG). Subject charged with collating all information. ARNOLD was chief of German espionage in Argentina until the war. Also controlled communications to Berlin largely by W/T. In sending messages, subject got in touch with Karla BRAND. Subject was reported to have large quantities of counterfeit and sterling in France which was sold in Spain and Portugal, and apparently large quantities in Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey, total value of which was between one and two million pounds. Only four persons knew the notes were counterfeit: Source, ARNOLD, MOSIG and HEYMANN.

Information from a British report dated October 28, 1944: ARNOLD worked directly under the supervision of the Embassy and was nominally director of Cía. de Lanas, Ayala 10.
Information from Vice Consul N. O. Titus' files: A request was made that subject be detained in Spain and examined. A packet of 20.000 pounds sterling in banknotes was found in Restaurante Cóndor (Jorge Juan, 68, Madrid) and subject was arrested. The Spanish police searched his domicile but their efforts were in vain.

Information from a British report dated May 28, 1945: When Arthur GEBAUER, Abwehr agent, was in Berlin in January 1944, he was introduced to ARNOLD from Madrid and told that he could apply to him, should he need anything in Spain. In August 1944 GEBAUER again got in touch with subject, who referred the case to Berlin. The suspension of Lufthansa services prevented GEBAUER's return to Germany and he remained in Spain partly on his own funds, partly assIed by ARNOLD. Later ARNOLD told GEBAUER he could no longer supply him with funds and he must apply to HAMMES.

On August 24, 145, the D.G.S (Direccion General de Seguridad) charged against ARNOLD who had been arrested on June 12th, 1945, for counterfeit money transactions. However, the records show that subject was later released from prison.

General information provided by the office of Attache D.P. Medalie:

German. Born in Pforzheim March 22,1911 (year not clearly stablished). Arrived in Argentine about 1933 and was later employed by Thilo MARTENS of Martens & Cia., Av. 25 de Mayo 267, Buenos Aires, a prominent member of the NSDAP. Known to have been actively engaged with Alfredo MUELLER, who was then head of the Deutsche Arbeitsfront in Argentina, in underground activities, the two men generally believed to have been the leaders of anti-Allied sabotage in the Western Hemisphere. According to the report of the Taborda Committee of the Argentine Congress, he was in receipt of a monthly salary of 500 pesos paid by the Union of Cultural and Benevolent Societies (formerly the Argentine NSDAP), and was supreme chief of the Gestapo and of the so-called Assault Troops (Sturmabteilung or SA).

The same source also referred to meetings which he had held with leaders of the National Socialist Societies and with ex-convicts who had been responsible for a series of acts of terror in late 1934 and early 1935. As a result of the above, and order for his arrest and deportation was issued but, after hiding in the German Embassy, he escaped to Uruguay where he was kept under "open" arrest in the Hotel Maas, Montevideo. He sailed for Brasil on September 1, 1940. He was not allowed to land at Santos, but on arrival at Rio de Janeiro he was seen off by the police on the L.A.T.I. plane on September 7, 1940.

In Madrid since at least the summer 1942, working for the SD under cover of employment as director of Compañía General de Lanas, subsidiary of Sofindus. Engaged in recruiting and running courier in Spanish transatlantic vessels, either personally or through a cut-out in Sofindus. Also served as a cover address for correspondence to and from agents in South America, frequently receiving clandestine consignments of mail and commodities at his office. Specialized in political information concerning South America and Spain. Travelled to Bilbao, Irun, San Sebastián, Barcelona and Valencia, and during 1943 went three times to Germany. Visited Vigo in September 1944.

Height 5,7 (170 cm); thickset built, round face, fair hair, brown eyes, ruddy complexion with pimples. Passports: (1) Nº 308/1940 issued Buenos Aires; (2) Nº 1952/42 issued Berlin May 20, 1942; (3) Nº 1536. Address:May 1943, private: Calle Lista 76, 3 floor left, Madrid; 1944, office: Calle Ayala, 10. Tfn. 67164 and 53131, Madrid. Private address: Calle Lista 76, 3rd floor left, Madrid.

Interrogation Report of Karl Gustav ARNOLD

Interrogated by W. Wendell Blancke, Foreign Service Officer: at Camp 76, Hohenasperg,on September 9, 11, 12, 17; at Wanasee .Internment Camp,Berlin,on October 15, 16,l8,21,24,29,31,and November 5, 8, 12, 1946. Language_,Spanish. Berlin, Germany, November 20, .1946.

I. Introduction

In view of the attempted suicide some difficulty was expected in interrogating ARNOLD, and at the outset he displayed considerable agility in avoiding being pinned down concerning his activities in Spain. But once it was demonstrated that the general scheme of his activities was known he began, to fill in many of the lacunae: apparently his own long training in intelligence work had schooled his nature to abhor the vacuum left by a missing fact, and he was anxious, once he had beg-on talking, to get the story straight, Moreover, ARNOLD ’s common sense showed him that as a U.S. prisoner in occupied Germany he had nothing to gain by being stubborn; and his basic honesty made it hard for him to tell lies, or even half-truths.

The prisoner felt very strongly regarding the venality and corruption prevalent in Spanish officialdom; particularly in those who took money to protect him, then, once they had bled him dry, turned him over to the police. For many of his erstwhile German colleagues, too, he seemed to feel indifference and a contempt that was easily explainable in the light of their general performance. Like others of his type, however, ARNOLD appeared to have pacted with himself not to volunteer information on unbroached subjects, and for this reason there may easily be aspects of his activity which were-missed -entirely in the present interrogation.

II. Chronological Guide

Early Background. Born at Pforzheim, March 22, 1911, of Karl Wilhelm ARNOLD and Christine VOLLE.. Prisoner was baptized Karl Gustav but never used middle name, Married in 1535, has one son and one daughter.

1939 Wife suffering from Buenos Aires climate, returned to Germany in August to stay.

July I940. As part of general investigation of Nazi activities by Argentine Congressional Committee, prisoner hailed before Argentine police and told to desist from Party activities. On Embassy's advice, packed up and left for Montevideo. Uruguayan authorities gave him three weeks to leave country.

August I940 Left for Brazil on SS Hawaii Maru. After stay of about three weeks managed to obtain passage on L.A.T.I. airplane for Europe.

September 1940 Reached Rome on September 3I

Germany

October 1940 Arrived Berlin October 4, presented himself to Ernst Wilhelm BOHLE, Chief of the Auslandsorganisation. No openings in AO, . but BOHLE promised to find something. Prisoner volunteered for army, then took short leave to visit parents and wife in Pforzheim. A few hours before he was to be inducted at Spandau barracks in Berlin he was ordered to report for duty at R.S.H.A.

November 1940 Began work at Amt VI-D4, R.S.H.A., on November 1.Translated from Spanish to German, and later briefed agents going on missions to South America. Applied for SA membership.

December 1941 ordered to Baden Baden to try to develop SD contacts among Latin diplomats interned there awaiting exchange. Had no appreciable success. May 1942 Exchange effected, ARNOLD accompanied Brazilian diplomats to Biarritz, returning with Germans. Reported back to Berlin.

Spain

September 1942 Ordered to Madrid as special representative of Amt VI-D4, to establish and maintain clandestine courier service with South America. Lived at Hotel Nacional. In mid-September ARNOLD met up with Johannes Siegfried BECKER, head of SD espionage, in South America, who :was awaiting chance to get to Argentina. During ensuing months BECKER and ARNOLD worked out bases of future courier system. :

October 1942 Moved to apartment at Calle Lista 76, third floor. (Number of same house later changed to 72). Took trip to Bilbao with BECKER and enlisted services of Jorge DEMMEL for courier system. In mid-October prisoner obtained cover-employment with Compañía General de Lanas, at Calle Ayala 10, second floor: company was subsidiary of Sofindus, and ARNOLD obtained job through friendship with Anton WAHLE, assistant director of that company. Prisoner installed one-room office in the Cía. de Lanas, but his job with them was purely nominal.

December 1942 BECKER finally got off to Argentina as stowaway aboard SS Rita Garcia.
January 1943 BECKER arrived in Argentina.
February 1943 ARNOLD called back to Berlin for consultation to report on courier plans. Kurt GROSS had taken over Amt VT-D4. After 4-6 days conferring with GROSS and PAEFFGEN, head of Amt VI-D, prisoner visited his family - parents at Pforzheim and wife at Leonberg. Returned to Madrid after about three weeks' absence.
March 1943 First correspondence arrived from Buenos Airės via newly established courier system, in early. days of March, at the latest.
June-July I943 Dr. PAEFFGEN visited Madrid for about 10 days, having come to confer with Martin MEYWALD, Armin SCHMIDT and Ana de POMBO regarding projected establishment of a dress-shop. PAEFFGEN lived for eight days at Calle Lista 72 with ARNOLD.
August 1943 Prisoner advised by Amt VI that wife was seriously ill, given permission to return for visit. Remained with wife, at Leonberg about 15 days till she was out of danger. Spent two or three days conferring in Berlin, then returned to Madrid.after three weeks' absence.
November 1943 Major Elías BELMONTE PABÓN of Bolivia arrived in Madrid from Berlin. Arnold accompanied him (on orders, from Amt VI) to Bilbao. There they met BELMONTE's half-brother, Ruben SARDÓN PABÓN, who had just arrived from Argentina. ARNOLD drove the two to Madrid and afterwards saw them across the frontier at Hendaye,en route for Berlin.

January 1944. Flew to Berlin for consultation and visit with his family. Remained eight days in capital, was consulted on project to send cutter Passim to South America with SD agents; BELMONTE and Bolivian Revolution also discussed.
April-May 1944 GROSS, who had been to France to see Passim off, returned via San Sebastián and called ARNOLD, MEYWALD, SCHMIDT and de POMBO there for conference. GROSS' trip through Spain was only pretext to stock up on cigarettes, cognac, coffee and silk stockings (as was usual), and conference was a joke.
September 1944 Prisoner went to Vigo to await arrival of Passim, imminent return of which had been announced to him by Berlin. Returned to Madrid with Heinz LANGE, Amt VI agent who had been aboard; with them they brought correspondence from Argentina, which ARNOLD forwarded to Berlin.
March 1945 Max SCHNEEMAM and Hans Christian ZUEHLSDOKF arrived in Madrid, separately.
May 1945 With end of war ARNOLD liquidated his organization and left cover-job with Cía de Lanas.
June 1945 Arrested by Spanish Police on June 21 for alleged implication in affair of the forged British banknotes. Held 21 days incomunicado in Dirección General de Seguridad, then transferred to Provincial Prison of Madrid at Carabanchel.
October 1945 Released October 16 on 5,000 Pesetas bail, by Juzgado de Instrucción no. 3. Lived for next three months clandestinely at a small hotel in Las Navas del Marques, after which he moved, still in hiding, to Calle Fuentes 10. Was in possession of false identity papers in name of Carlos Alonso KLEIBEL. Dealings with Spanish Intelligence.
July 1946 Moved to San Juan de la Arena, Asturias, living at Casa Tona.
August 1946 Arrested in Asturias by Spanish police and brought back to Madrid. After five days in jail was repatriated by air on August 23. Before leaving took twelve tablets of Luminal, which he described as "enough to kill a bull", but when he came to he was in Germany.

III. Activities in Argentina

The Landesgruppe Argentinien

As mentioned in the chronological guide ARNOLD became a full-time employee of the central office of the Nazi Party in Argentina in 1937, and a year and a half later became administrative head of the Landesgruppe. As Organisationsleiter he had two chief sets of duties: 1) to organizo rallies, meetings and assemblies, and handle all matters which were strictly administrative; 2) after the war started, to take care of German youths and girls who wanted to go back to the Fatherland and volunteer for war service. ARNOLD was not a good orator and never spoke at Party gatherings. The political reports which went monthly to Berlin were considered the sole province of the Landesgruppenleiter,

Alfred MUELLER,

The prisoner also made not infrequent trips into the Argentine interior, principally among German colonist enterprises such as the one at Colonia Liebig in the territory of Misiones. On these trips ARNOLD's chief mission was to look into the economic welfare of the settlers, as these colonies were a joint semi-official undertaking of the Embassy and the Landesgruppe, which went halves on the expenses. When the colonists in certain sections became destitute as the result of a two-years' drought, for example, it was ARNOLD's job to arrange for their repatriation to Germany. The cost of their fares was charged to Reichkosten and came from the Reich itself via the Embassy: the German Government had an agreement with the German steamship companies to transport the colonists (both ways) at half-price. The cost of succoring destitute settlers with food and clothing, as in the case of the drought regions, was borne by the local Winterhilfswerk

The fact of the continuous squabbling between the Landesgruppe and the German Ambassador Edmund von THERMANN is well known, and ARNOLD was questioned briefly on the subject. The prisoner characterized von THERMANN as a liar and the worst type of diplomat, a man who could never be trusted. ARNOLD, of course, was a close friend of Alfred MUELLER, the Landesgruppenleiter, who was von THERMANN's sworn enemy. When MUELLER returned to Germany in 1940, he managed to wangle an interview with von RIBBENTROP, and told the Foreign Minister to his face that von THERMANN was not to be trusted and was absolutely impossible to work with. RIBBENTROP drew himself up, red in the face, and shouted: how dare MUELLER say that of one of his ambassadors. But MUELLER stuck to his guns and presented his list of some twenty accusations against the Ambassador; and eventually von THERMANN was called back to Germany to answer them.

In Argentina the Landesgruppe had sporadic contact with the Spanish Falange and somewhat less with the Italian Fascio; but relations were largely limited to the mutual sending of representatives to celebrations of patriotic occasions. Gottfried SANDSTEDE, the German Press Attache, always maintained that the Germans and British in Buenos Aires should establish some sort of sub rosa contact, since he claimed that economically they were both enemies of the United States in Argentina; but to the prisoner's knowledge this never progressed beyond a project in the mind of SANDSTEDE.

The Graf Spee Sailors

When the Graf Spee was scuttled in December 1939, ARNOLD was on vacation in the southern lake region: when he returned in late January 1940 the crew was already interned at the Immigration Hotel in the port of Buenos Aires. As Organisationsleiter of the Party the prisoner's duty was then to do everything he could to enliven the mariners' sojourn. He arranged trips to the various German athletic clubs, picnic lunches, et cetera; he also saw that they were represented at the regular patriotic reunions, for example, the German national holiday on May 1 and the Solstice Festival at the Neuen Deutschen Turnverein in Vicente Lopez. ARNOLD averred thit his part in aiding the flight of the Graf Spee officers was an unimportant one, being limited to once taking two of them to Córdoba in his car. He professed not to know anything about how false documents were obtained for the fugitives, although he admitted he knew this was being done.

Expulsion from Argentina

In 1939-40 a series of actions was carried out against the National Socialist organization by the Damonte TABORDA investigating committee and the democratic society, Accion Argentina. Proceedings began against the person of Alfred MUELLER and various prominent Party members, especially those in Colonia Liebig in Misiones, and eventually reached ARNOLD. In mid-1940 the prisoner was warned by a German-Argentine who had infiltrated Accion Argentina that in a month or six weeks he would be investigated. The tipster, whose name ARNOLD could not recall, was a descendant of Germans who did not speak German, a boy in his early twenties who worked in one of the offices in the building of the Banco Germánico. He was a former member of the early Argentine fascist Legion Civica who had succeeded in joining Acción Argentina -completely on his own initiative and without prompting by the Germans- for the purpose of spying on the members and sowing confusion whenever the opportunity offered itself.

ARNOLD did not act on the warning, as he considered he was doing nothing illegal, and in July 1940 he was hailed before the Orden Social section of the Argentine police. He was shown into a room full of people and immediately accosted by an official who began shouting at him; the burden of the lecture was that ARNOLD must stop his traveling on the Party’s behalf, he must go to his home and remain there until called again by the police, and, above all, he must not go to German Embassy and tell of his interview with the police. As he finished, the official, who had his back to the others, tipped ARNOLD a broad wink. The prisoner did not know the identity-of this police officer -he was just told by the police he had to go in and see "the chief" but he described him as short, dark and thin. (Note: according to the interrogator’s recollection the inspectors then in charge of Orden Social were MORANO and BIETTI.). ARNOLD, of course, took the wink for what it was worth, and went immediately to the German Embassy with his story. There he was advised to pack up and leave, which he did.

He traveled perfectly openly to Montevideo by the night boat, using his cédula de idantidad - a document which is carried by most resident foreigners as well as by natives in Argentina - and put up at the Hotel Nogaró. Next day he bought a paper and read to his surprise that Karl ARNOLD had been "expelled" from Argentina by a decree signed by Acting President CASTILLO.

The prisoner considered that since he had left the country the decree of expulsión might be considered fulfilled, but he nevertheless went into hiding in the boarding house of a German widow; the address was given him by the secretary of minister LANGMANN (the widow herself did not know he was a fugitive). ARNOLD then heard the Uruguayan authorities were looking for him and went to LANGMANN for advice: the Minister was Landesgruppenleiter for Uruguay, and he and the prisoner called each other du. According to LANGMANN the police had already been in touch with the Legation and had left word that if ARNOLD could be reached he should be informed that the police would like to have a friendly talk with him -they gave their word of honor that he would not be arrested. ARNOLD knew better than to put much trust in a Latin American’s word of honor, but on LANGMANN ’s advice he called on the Uruguayan police chief CASAS, accompanied by an official of the Legation.

The police chief told him that he must return to Buenos Aires immediately, to which the prisoner replied: why should he, when he had just been expelled from there. The Uruguayan then alleged that ARNOLD had entered the country illegally, and the prisoner, countered that he had done, nothing of the sort, having come in with his Argentine cédula. (Note: travel by cédula only was legal and usual between Argentina and Uruguay.) CASAS, however, maintained that ARNOLD ’s entry should have been effected only through a passport and visa, and, in spite of the "word of honor", ARNOLD was arrested then and there. He was not put in jail, but allowed to live in the Hotel Maas under guard of two policemen; he might leave the house, but only in the company of his guards. He stayed in the hotel three weeks. . .

The prisoner meanwhile got a lawyer and proved that his entry into Uruguay had been legal, whereupon the Uruguayan authorities made out a decree of expulsion and got it signed. ARNOLD interposed habeas corpus but did not have any expectations from it, so when he had a chance he left for Brazil. He managed to got a thirty-day transit visa for that country, and after being refused passage on the Moore McCormack Steamship Line he boarded the SS Hawaii Maru for Rio de Janeiro; this was in the last days of August or on the first of September, 1940.

When the ship reached the Brazilian port of Santos ARNOLD he was called into conference with the captain of the ship, CONDOW, and the Santos representative of the Japanese line, and advised to leave the vessel there and proceed by rail to Rio, since there was no guarantee that he would be allowed to continue to the Brazilian capital; the Santos authorities had given him permission to leave the Hawaii Maru and continue by train. ARNOLD was in a quandary, but succeeded in persuading the captain to put him through by telephone to the German Embassy at Rio. The Embassy told him to stay aboard at all costs, and he did, continuing the voyage without further mishap. After about three weeks' stay in Brazil the prisoner obtained a seat on one of the L.AT.I. airplanes.for Europe. He arrived in Rome on September 31 and in Berlin on October 4, 1940.

Espionage personalities in Argentina

The prisoner was questioned briefly concerning his connections in Buenos Aires with individuals with whom he later had relations in the German intelligence service. These were Walter Eugen MOSIG, Johannes Siegfried BECKER, Kurt GROSS and Heinz LANGE.

MOSIG, who was later a' special representativo of Amt VI in Spain, was known to ARNOLD slightly in Buenos Aires. He was working there in the early 30's as a free-lance businessman representing German firms.

BECKER, who later became chief of SD espionage for South America, was in 1937-38 the representative of the Deutsches Handwerk in Argentina. His rather vague mission was to arrange for sending German and German-Argentine artisans to the Reich for a training course, and to propagandize for German craft-work.

Kurt GROSS, later chief of Amt VI-D4 in Berlin, worked in Argentina in the 30's as assistant to the chemist in the Bauer & Helbing paint factory. GROSS corresponded occasionally with ARNOLD in later years, -once from Spain during the Civil War, once from Kehl when he was with the Gestapo there, and once or twice from Berlin.

Heinz LANGE the prisoner met in Buenos Aires about a month before he left the country. He came to ARNOLD's office one day, at N.S.D.A.P. headquarters, and said he had been recommended to call by GROSS in Berlin: the prisoner believed that GROSS had probably suggested his name as one who could be of use to LANGO in getting to know the country. LANGE told ARNOLD he had just arrived as representative of Amt VI for South America, and asked for his help; at the same time he offered his aid in the matter of the Graf Spee escapes. The prisoner believed that LANGE did indeed help out in the latter activity, but he himself left the country within the month and never collaborated to any extent with the SD agent.

Heinz LANGE was an old Party-member who had been expelled from membership for his part in an anti-Party Putsch in Danzig, after which he emigrated to Paraguay in 1926 or 1927. There he married the daughter of an honorary German consul. LANGE was also a relative of Bruno FRICKE, Otto STRASSER's Schwarze Front representative in Buenos Aires, who later founded the Freies Deutschland movement there. FRICKE's wife was a SCHADE, and LANGE's sister was married to a Mr. SCHADE in Paraguay.

LANGE returned to Germany at the time war broke out, to volunteer for the army

-ARNOLD did not know how he had joined up with Amt VI. He also applied for SS membership but his application somehow got bogged down. He arrived in Argentina in 1940 by airplane.

According to the prisoner, LANGE was not very useful as an intelligence agent -he was an activist who would be good for a sabotage mission, but he had no conception of how to put together a report and it was quite explainable that when Siegfried BECKER took hold of the reins in Argentina, rancor arose between him and LANGE.

IV. Activities in the R.S.H.A., Berlin

Arrival

When he arrived in Berlin in October 1940 ARNOLD immediately presented himself at the offices of the Auslandsorganisation and obtained an interview with Gauleiter Ernst W. BOHLE. BOHLE said he did not quite know where, to employ him, as there were at the moment no suitable vacancies in the AO, but assured him that he would be taken care of somehow. ARNOLD thereupon went to a recruiting center and volunteered for the army, after which he took a leave and visited his parents and wife at Pforzheim and Leonberg. . Apparently BOHLE's organization had been active on the prisoner's behalf, for when he returned to the capital and was preparing to go in two hours time to the Spandau barracks for induction into the Wehrmacht, he was informed by representative of the Sicherheitsdienst that a special arrangement had been made with the army for him to work in the Reichssicherheitshauptamt.

The R.S.H.A. was at that time interested in getting people with South American experience who spoke fluent Spanish. ARNOLD signed a contract and went to work on November 1. Questioned as to the nature of this document, the prisoner explained that it was not a contract for a period of time but merely a formality to satisfy the Labor Bureau. Regular laborers had an Arbeitsbuch, but office employees had to have some sort of document to prevent their being pressed into service in a war plant or similar occupation. ARNOLD thus became a Vertragsangestellter or contracted employee. Into this class fell the secretarial help and clerks in the R.S.H.A.; they were given a grey pass instead of a red one. (The red pass showed that the bearer was a special agent of the SD, with permission to carry a pistol, travel free, make arrests et cetera.)

Duties

ARNOLD was assigned to Amt VI-D4, the South American desk, and was at first put to work in making translations from Spanish to German. Subsequently, he was given the job of preparing prospective agents for service in South America and briefing them in their work. Only in 1940 had the SD started sending agents for service in South America and briefing them in their work. Only in I940 had the SD started sending agents to the Western Hemisphere -this had previously boon forbidden by HITLER himself: the Fuehrer feared to disturb existing diplomatic relations, especially with the United States, According to the prisoner anyone whose espionage activities caused trouble in North America at that time was to have been shot.

ARNOLD, having recently returned from Argentina, briefed the agents on probable travel conditions, what documents would be necessary, and above all how to avoid attracting attention. He told them a good bit about life in South America and gave them a set of "general rules." He also instructed the agents in what Amt VI wanted to know: especially when Walter SCHELLENBERG took over the Amt there was great interest in political reporting. The prisoner got the agents their funds, told them where to go for their radio-operating courses, et cetera. In those days the microdot camera had not yet been perfected: ARNOLD understood it was originally a Russian invention but too cumbersome for use in the field, and that its later practical form was the work of Professor ZAPP of Dresden.

Agents sent to South America

In 1940 Heinz LANGE was sent to Chile and Paraguay (via Argentina), Siegfried BECKER was sent to Brazil and Argentina, Wolf FRANCZOK went to Brazil, and Hans

SCHUERER STOLLE to Argentina. Jonni HARTMUTH was also sent to Paraguay, but ARNOLD had no contact with him as he was originally destined for the United States and was sent abroad by Amt VI-D2 (Referat North America). Excepting for LANGE all the above have since been apprehended, wherefore the prisoner was not asked for details regarding their early activities, which he knew at best only from hearsay. Another agent, or rather semi-agent, was ENGLING, who went to Brazil by airplane while BECKER was there. This individual represented a German commercial house the name of which ARNOLD did not recall, and it was he who later sent in an unfavorable report on BECKER and FRANCZOK (see below).

As soon as the agents began operating to an appreciable extent the lack of satisfactory lines of communication became noticeable. Reports took a long time to get back to Berlin and in many cases were practically valueless. BECKER's most trustworthy channel was airmail sent via L.A.T.I. to the cover-address JANNICKE-ORTNER in Berlin. JANNICKE was the owner of a small leather-factory (Ortner meaning "leatherworker"), and when mail arrived from South America he called up Amt VI and they sent a car over to pick it up.

The first clandestine transmitter set up during the early part of the war met with too many difficulties to be effective. The apparatus was installed aboard an interned German merchant-vessel in the Santos harbor with one of the ship's German radio-operators doing the transmitting, but soon after it started functioning it was localized by the Brazilian police and the operators had to flee. The equipment was only saved by quick work. The next installed themselves in a private house, but were soon spotted there and from that time on were in constant flight. The intelligence activity of Amt VI, ARNOLD affirmed, was without practical value in the period 1940-42 because of the lack of effective channels of communication.

As mentioned above, the businessman-agent ENGLING took it upon himself in 1941 to send in a very unfavorable report on BECKER, as well as on FRANCZOK; apparently the former had been having an affair with the wife of the Brazilian Minister of Public Works and had succeeded in making her pregnant. ARNOLD distinctly recalled that Amt VI telephoned BECKER at a private number in Rio de Janeiro, at the end of 1941, and ordered him to return to Berlin, (Note: contrast this with the testimony of Hedwig SOMMER, who said BECKER returned on his own initiative.) When BECKER got back to Berlin he went into a series of conferences with SCHOLLENBERG and Sturmbannfuehrer DAUFELDT, then head of Amt VI-D. Although ARNOLD knew that BECKER was subsequently sent back to take charge of all SD espionage in lower.South America, he knew no details of the conferences since he himself was sent in the meanwhile to Baden Baden. Had the prisoner been, in Berlin BECKER would have doubtless told him the whole story, since the two were friends from their days together in Buenos Aires, Relations with SCHELLENBERG: ARNOLD 's SA and SS affiliation.

Although ARNOLD had little contact with Walter SCHELLENBERG during his days in the Amt, he was later received briefly by his chief on each of the three occasions when he was called back to Madrid for consultation. In addition to the usual interrogatory regarding the political situation in Spain, SCHELLENBERG once asked ARNOLD to prepare him a detailed report setting forth his views in the matter of' employing women as intelligence agents, The prisoner's reply was to the effect that he thought very few women apt for such work, owing to their general lack of more than a superficial grasp of politics.

The prisoner was then questioned regarding'a report that SCHELLENBERG had offered him honorary SS-rank and that he had refused it. It was not SCHELLENBERG who had made the offer, ARNOLD said, but rather his chiefs GEPPERT and DAUFELDT who constantly importuned him in that direction. At the time of his entry into the R.S.H.A. his two superiors assured him that they could get for him the SS-rank of Untersturmführer (second lieutenant), and they pressed blank application forms upon him. When they later reverted to the matter ARNOLD told them that, firstly, his wife suffered from epilepsy and he believed that that was considered a hereditary disease; and, secondly, he would not be willing to leave the (Protestant) church. In spite of repeated assurances that the epilepsy would not stand in his way, ARNOLD stuck to his refusals and said he was satisfied to be a member of the SA. His real reason, which he did not tell to DAUFELDT and GEPPERT, was that he then hoped to leave the SD service as soon as the war was over, which might be difficult for a member of the SS.

The story of the prisoner's SA affiliation is as follows: In Argentina there had been no regular SA in the Landesgruppe, but the so-called Sportabteilung was considered its equivalent and ARNOLD, as Organisationsleiter, had charge of this department: he managed such activities as Party swimming, boxing, gymnasium work, soccer football, et cetera. Since he did not wish to join the SS when he came to Germany, the prisoner applied to join the SA, and in due course was informed verbally that he had been named an SA-Sturmfuehrer of the Reserve. This was not an honorary position, but neither was it active; ARNOLD never did quite understand his status. In any event, he filled out many papers, but had not finished with them all before he was sent to Spain. As a consequence he never received any kind of diploma or membership card, and never got an SA uniform.

Ewald GEPPERT and Toni KURFUERST

GEPPERT, who was head of Amt VI-D4 when the prisoner went to work there, was described by ARNOLD as a "gangster." He had once sustained a leg injury and was somewhat lame, having to spend considerable time away from the office owing to complications from his injury. GEPPERT was ą misanthrope and quite unpossessed of scruples when it came to making promises of any sort. He was later transferred to one of the sections of Amt VI-F, whore false documents were procured and/or manufactured.

One of GEPPERT' s confidants and agents was Toni KURFUERST, the valet of the Brazilian Ambassador at Berlin; ARNOLD believed him to be an Austrian from his accent. KURFUERST had been many years in the service of the Brazilian Embassy and had offered his services voluntarily to Amt VI. He delivered to GEPPERT highly valuable reports on everything that, was said and done in the Embassy. It was through this agent that the SD learned that the Brazilian Ambassador was a sworn enemy of Germany, and that during the Allied air raids he became delirious with joy, even running into his garden and flashing a lantern to help the bombers, KURFUERST, however, ceased his collaboration with Amt VI some time before Brazil broke diplomatic relations with Germany and the Embassy was closed. GEPPERT had promised him the rank of Untersturmfuehrer in the SS, but KURFUERST was a Catholic and refused to leave the Church. The application was therefore turned down, and KURFUERST withdrew sulkily from his SD connections.

Kurt GROSS

GROSS, the last head of Amt VI-D4, was described by ARNOLD as 35-37 years old, and born in a small town in the Province of Baden. ARNOLD met him in Buenos Aires in 1931, when they both joined the N.S.D.A.P. at the same time as mentioned above GROSS worked in the Bauer and Helbing paint factory. At the time the prisoner knew him in Argentina GROSS was a fanatic Nazi idealist who sacrificed much time and money for the Party. In 1934 he returned to Germany, making the trip as deck-hand on a tramp steamer because he had very little money.

Once in the Reich GROSS joined the SS and obtained a low-salaried job in the Gestapo. During the Spanish Civil War he served in the counter-espionage branch of the Condor Legion, for which he was decorated. He was then assigned to the Gestapo, again in counter-espionage, at Kehl am Rhein, transferring after a period of time, to Amt VI, which sent him to Biarritz. While on the latter job GROSS had a brawl with a German general and was recalled and sent back to the Gestapo to work in the Berlin offices (Amt IV). He there rose to the rank of Kommissar, after which he was again called to Amt VI and put in charge of VI-D4 under Theodor PAEFFGEN.

During all this time ARNOLD's only contact with GROSS was through occasional letters. From his later experiences with his chief, however, the prisoner gathered that GROSS became one of the many disillusioned Nazis who thought of nothing but personal comfort, resolved to extract from his position as many material advantages as possible, although he was a capable and intelligent man with a feeling for intrigue, GROSS fell down because of his failure to judge men: as a result of this he picked a series of incompetents and knaves to carry out his missions abroad.

GROSS enjoyed considerable ill fame among his subordinates for his overbearing and grasping ways. His principle thought during the latter years was how to obtain more cognac, cigarettes, coffee, silk stockings for his lady friends, et cetera. In this, ARNOLD, of course, was in a position to help him, and his chief did not hesitate to burden the prisoner frequently with long "shopping lists." In common with the rest of the Embassy and associated staffs in Madrid, ARNOLD was allowed to send home three kilograms a week through the diplomatic pouch; but although, he tried to send as much as he could to his wife and parents. GROSS' demands used up a large portion of the allotted space. Also, every time that ARNOLD was ordered to Berlin for consultation, GROSS accompanied the order with a list of things he wanted. When ARNOLD sent presents to the employees of the Amt, GROSS always expropriated the lion's share before the recipients, had a chance to get at them: of every three boxes of oranges that ARNOLD sent, for example, GROSS took two. This type of behavior soon became known in the Amt as Grosería.

Another of GROSS ' unpleasant characteristics was that of making bombastic threats against the lives of agents with whose work he was dissatisfied. In the case of PESCOLLER, ZIEGRA and BUNGARD, all of whom turned put to be both useless and dishonest, GROSS sent them menacing letters and even demanded of ARNOLD that to have them murdered. The prisoner replied sharply, telling GROSS not to be childish and saying that only if he received a letter from SCHELLENBERG himself would he even contemplate compliance with such a ridiculous order. Aside from the stickiness of such a job, ARNOLD's value as an intelligence agent would be ended if he were forced to start killing off subordinates for inefficiency. Moreover, the prisoner said, it was GROSS ' fault for sending abroad such a collection of incompetent rascals in the first place.

The prisoner described Kurt GROSS as follows:

Age: 35 years (GROSS was born in 1911, the same year as ARNOLD).

Height: 6 feet. Weight: About. 155 lbs. Hair: Black. Eyes: Black Nose: Long and straight. Lips: Thick. Skin: White. Face: Long . Build: Athletic, dancing-master type. Appearance: Elegant Languages: German, indifferent Spanish and French. Physical defects: None. Nationality:German.

The Latin-American Desk at the R.S.H.A.

There follows a brief study of the coiįiosition of the so-called Referat Latin America during ARNOLD 's time in Berlin, including reference to its changing position within the scheme of Amt VI of the R.S.H.A.

At first the head of Amt VI was SS-Brigadefuehrer JOST; who was replaced in late 1941 by SS-Brigadefuehrer Walter SCHELLENBERG.

Until 1941 Latin America came under Amt VI-B, the head of which was SS-Sturmbannfuehrer ROSSNER: VI-B handled Italy, France, Spain and Latin America. The last-named section, called VI-B4, was under Sturmbannfuehrer GEPPERT.

At that time Amt VI-D, under SS-Sturmbannfuehrer DAUFELDT, comprised the United States, Canada and Great Britain. In 1941, ROSSNER was sent to the eastern front and Latin America was put under DAUFELDT in VI-D; GEPPERT remained head of the Latin American desk, now designated VI-D4. In I942 DAUFELDT was sent to Switzerland as a vice consul and his place as head of VI-D taken by SS-Sturmbannfuehrer (later Obertsurmbannfuehrer) Dr. Theodor PAEFFGEN. GEPPERT remained in charge of VI-D4 for a time.

While ARNOLD was employed in VI-D4 the composition of the Latin American desk was the following:

Chief: SS-Untersturmfuehrer GEPPERT
Hans SCHUERER STOLLE ..... left 1942 for Argentina
Mrs. Hedwig SOMMER .... remained till 1945

After ARNOLD left for Spain Kurt GROSS was made head of VI-D4 and the number of employees was gradually increased. GROSS brought with him his former Gestapo associate Robert GROSSE, whom the prisoner never met, and added, to ARNOLD's knowledge: HINTZE,RUNGE, and the Misses RUDAT, KREDDIG, AHRENS, NEUMANN, UTTO and DRESSENDOERFER. Others who, he believed, were subsequently associated with VT-D4 were Untersturmfuührer HAMMAN and SS-Sturmbannfuehrer Dr. Willy SCHMITZ. The latter held the police rank of Kriminaldirektor and transferred to Amt VI from Amt IV shortly before or shortly after the prisoner went to Spain.

V. Assignment at Baden Baden

When after Pearl Harbor the majority of the South American states severed diplomatic relations with Germany, the members of some of the missions were interned at Brenner's Park Hotel in Baden Baden while they awaited exchange with the German diplomats who were to arrive from Lisbon. The representatives of Uruguay, Paraguay, Bolivia, Brazil, Ecuador and Peru arrived at Baden Baden at the end of 1941, according to the prisoner, and Amt VI believed it saw a good chance to meet and make contact with the group as a whole; it was therefore decided to send a man to attempt to gain some of the internees for future collaboration with the SD and the German cause. ARNOLD was given the mission, owing to his mastery of Spanish.

He was camouflaged as an interpreter of the German Foreign Ministry and adhered rather closely to that duty, putting himself at the disposal of the internees and even giving German lessons to some of them. ARNOLD's pupils included the daughter of the Uruguayan Minister, Virgilio SAMPOGNARO, the wife of the Uruguayan First Secretary (who was SAMPOGNARO's son), and the Charge d'affaires of Bolivia, whose name the prisoner could not recall. SAMPOGNARO was subsequently posted to Spain: ARNOLD once saw his two daughters in a Madrid railway station, but naturally avoided letting them see him. Asked if he had heard anything of an affair in Madrid between Armin SCHMIDT and one of the SAMPOGNARO girls —a relationship alleged by Martin MEYWALD in his interrogation— the prisoner said that he had not; but he added that it would not surprise him, as SCHMIDT had affairs with numerous women, many of them from the diplomatic corps.

Although some of the internees were sympathetic to the German cause, ARNOLD had no success in enlisting anyone as a future agent for the SD. Those who showed themselves pro-German came mostly from the Peruvian group: there were a number of young Peruvian students, proteges of Mme. Edith FAUPEL, who decided to remain in Germany and continue their studios. As a group the Brazilians, Uruguayans, Bolivians and Ecuadorans were either indifferent to the Reich or actively inimical. The Paraguayan representative was an old general whose only thought was to exploit the black market in foreign exchange and to prey on Jews who wanted to flee from Germany; he frequently enticed young Jewesses' into his rooms on the pretext of arranging their escape, (The internees enjoyed a large amount of freedom and physical comfort, their movements within a limited sphere being practically unhindered.)

ARNOLD was quizzed briefly regarding the Peruvians who remained in Germany, several possible names being suggested to him. He recollected Dr. Victor MANCHEGO as one: MANCHEGO, he said, worked during the day at broadcasting in Spanish and at night at the Charity Hospital in Berlin, where he almost killed himself from overwork. Dr. Reinaldo ESPINOZA was also recalled by ARNOLD (he was another who broadcast for Germany) and there was a second younger ESPINOZA who eventually returned to Peru. The only other Peruvian student whom the prisoner remembered was one who had the nickname of CULEBRON.

Two Peruvian diplomats had already agreed to work for the German Foreign Ministry before ARNOLD arrived at Baden Baden. These were PAZ, the Vice Consul at Hamburg, and Miguel CERRO CEBRIÁN, the Charge d'Affaires. PAZ had fought as a volunteer in the German army during World War I and had lost an arm in combat. CERRO CEBRIÁN: ARNOLD later contacted in Madrid, and used him occasionally as one of his sources for political intelligence. The prisoner said he suspected that near the end of the war CERRO CEBRIÁN attempted to collaborate with the United States Embassy in Madrid. :

Having failed to enlist a single South American who was willing actively to work with the SD once he returned to his own country, the prisoner spent his time attending to the personal wants of the internees and trying thus to build up at least, some good will towards Germany. He often accompanied them to the gaming tables at the Baden Baden casino, and recalled that he had once taken the Bolivian Charge d'affaires and the Bolivian Consul out through the hotel kitchen as a sort of lark to avoid the Gestapo check. These last two often went out with ARNOLD, but he could not recall their names. The prisoner was asked if the Abwehr had gained any collaborators among the diplomats, and replied that all he knew in that connection was that he once saw an ARNOLD agent approaching SCHAUM, the Gestapo security man at the hotel, with a request to interview several of the Brazilian guests. ARNOLD did not know whether this individual had any success with the Brazilians or not.

In May I942 the diplomatic exchange was effected and ARNOLD accompanied the Brazilian group to Biarritz, going with the Germans back to Berlin. At about the same time the Bad Nauheim group, consisting of diplomats from the United States, Mexico, and the Central American countries, was also exchanged. ARNOLD 's colleague in Amt VI, John Walter BOEHLE was entrusted in Bad Nauheim with a mission similar to the prisoner's in Baden Baden, but met with similarly negligible success.

VI. Assignment in Spain

Establishment of the Courier Service

As previously mentioned, the work of the SD agents in Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Paraguay was being largely wasted in 1942 through the inadequacy of communications. The Italian airline L.A.T.I. had been forced to cease operating out of Rio de Janeiro shortly after Pearl Harbor, and reports forwarded in a makeshift manner through Spanish crew members were often lost or delivered indiscriminately to German consulates which did not know what to do with them. Sturmbannfuehrer DAUFELDT, then head of Amt VI-D, decided finally to send ARNOLD to Spain to systematize a regular clandestine courier service between Madrid and Buenos Aires. He was named special representative of Amt VI-D for Spain: he had no connection with Amt VI-B, the regular desk which handled affairs for the Iberian peninsula, although he was naturally permitted to use the latter's facilities for communicating with Berlin.

The prisoner arrived in Madrid in early September, 1942. Shortly after his arrival he obtained camouflage employment with the Compañía General de Lanas, one of the subsidiaries of Sofindus, where he earned a nominal salary of 500 Pesetas a month. He drew this money every payday, but immediately put it back in the cash box. ARNOLD was not under obligation to do any work for the wool company, but occasionally when the firm was especially busy he helped out in minor ways. For the rest, he made use of the company's office space and devoted himself to learning all he could about Spain and to organizing his courier service.

Siegfried BECKER had been in Spain since March 1942, waiting for an oportunity to get back to South America, so shortly after his arrival ARNOLD contacted BECKER and they started working out a communications system. From the very beginning it was recognized by the two that the actual recruitment of the couriers would be more feasible at the Buenos Aires end: in Argentina practically all the ships left from the capital port, whereas in Spain there were many ports throughout the country and it would be very difficult for ARNOLD, based of necessity in the capital, adequately to cover all the necessary ground.

BECKER finally got away from Spain in December 1942 as a stowaway aboard the SS Rita Garcia, through his friendship with the then first officer (later captain), Marcelino DIAZ CAMUS. Arriving in Buenos Aires in January 1943, the SD agent immediately set about getting recruits and obtained the intermediary services of two Spaniard's, Esteban AMORÍN and Manolo de MIGUEL ARRASTIA, to go among the Spanish crews and enlist couriers. The service was quicKly set up, the first correspondence arriving in Madrid no later than the early days of March 1943.

At the Madrid end ARNOLD 's system worked in the following manner:

Berlin sent the regular mail for VI-B4 to Heinz SINGER, in the Office of the Police Attache, In it there would be a smaller envelope marked "For JOSE" (one of BECKER's cover-names). SINGER then telephoned the prisoner, who picked the material up. ARNOLD did not open the correspondence, but kept it in a special drawer until the next courier should come to his office, in the meanwhile letting it be known through his organization.(see below) that he had something ready to go. When a courier appeared at his office, he repouched and sealed with sealing-wax whatever material had accumulated and gave it to the sailor, immediately advising Berlin by telegraph so that the home office might cable BECKER that correspondence was on its way. Both ARNOLD and BECKER were also very punctilious about promptly acknowledging receipt of any mail.

When the ship arrived in Buenos Aires, AMORÍN or MIGUEL, and possibly others of the group, went aboard and contacted the seaman with some variation of the cuestión: "Has traído algo de allá?" ("Have you brought something from over there?"). This was preceded with the countersign "Saludos de José", or "Saludos de Pepe" (both cover-names of BECKER).. When ARNOLD 's men went to pick up mail coming the other way they would say: "*Saludos de Carlos", or "*Saludos del Gordo" (both meaning ARNOLD): in general, however, the couriers coming in from Argentina went themselves to the prisoner's office in Madrid.

Outgoing couriers had two addresses where they might go in Buenos Aires in the event that they were not met at the boat. The first of these was Padre Luis FERNÁNDEZ, Iglesia Carlos Pellegrini nº. 1, Buenos Aires. "The second address was Boker & Cia. in Calle Moreno -the prisoner did not recall the exact street number. ARNOLD could not explain just what was meant by "Iglesia Carlos Pellegrini no, 1" -the address in question was not a proper address at all—but he did know that Padre FERNÁNDEZ church was the place where the priest could be contacted. Both addresses were furnished by BECKER after he had arrived and set up the Buenos Aires end of the system.

The prisoner was asked if Nicolás QUINTANA was a member of the group of AMORÍN and MIGUEL. He replied that he recalled the name from Buenos Aires days as that of a minor chief of the Falange, but that he had never hoard of any connection between QUINTANA and the courier group.

In the latter part of 1943, when the ARNOLD-BECKER service was functioning at top efficiency, there were always from fifteen to eighteen Spanish seamen bringing and taking correspondence. Practically all of these wore recruited in Argentina, although a few were enlisted by ARNOLD's assistants Jorge DEUMEL and Francisco GOICOECHEA (See below)

In general the sailors were picked from members of the Falange and/or the former Blue Division. Few of them took money for their services, being anti-communist fanatics : some, however, received an occasional 1,000 peseta bonus from ARNOLD when they delivered material to his office(Cf. the interrogation of Hedwig SOMMER, Amt VI-D employee, who said: "... an impressive number of Spanish crew members- for the courier system, which was all the more remarkable for the fact that few of them were paid for their efforts..."). There was a constant turn-over in personnel, as the seamen often transferred to other ships to get better money and were continuously changing their routes;the ships, too, were often rerouted from one port of call to another.

The greatest difficulty in recruiting the seamen was in overcoming their fear of being taken prisoner by the British at Trinidad or Gibraltar, or at least of losing their jobs. Several of those who were discovered and prohibited further sailing on the high seas by the British navicert authorities were later employed by the prisoner as part of his local organization in Spain. One courier who was picked up in Gibraltar, and his correspondence confiscated, had in his possession several letters with ARNOLD's name and address on them: this man's comrades circulated the rumor that he had been hanged by the British, but the prisoner was never able to confirm this.

In February 1944, when Argentina undertook a big spy roundup following its breach in relations with Germany, AMORÍN, MIGUEL and others were arrested along with the gang of Wilhelm SEIDLITZ and Hans SCHUERER STOLLE. This dealt the courier system a blow from which it never recovered, although it was still possible to get an occasional envelope through.

Principally the crew members brought the regular intelligence reports from BECKER's organization, but they also carried newspapers magazines and commercial newsletters. ARNOLD affirmed that he himself never sent or received contraband, but he admitted that sections of the Abwehr were occasionally allowed to use his seamen for that purpose. He was not aware of the nature of the contraband, but knew that Embassy was very much interested in obtaining crystallized insulin from Argentina. Asked about shark's liver extract (for night fighters' vision), the prisoner replied that he had heard of some such contraband which had been brought in tins, but did not really know what it was. He knew nothing about the smuggling of industrial diamonds. The interested Abwehr branch the prisoner believed to have been the commercial section -in any case it had offices on the top floor of the Embassy building, as ARNOLD occasionally got its courier mail by mistake, and vice versa.

In reply to a query as to the identity of his couriers the prisoner pointed out that considerable time had passed since the organization was broken up in 1944; he did, however, remember the following:

Marcelino DÍAZ CAMUS, of the Rita García: enabled BECKER to stowaway in December 1942; about a year later he took a radio transmitter to Buenos Aires for ARNOLD, as well as a cypher-machine. This last was one of the Enigma machines nicknamed Lilli, which the prisoner believed was short for Lilliput. ARNOLD himself took the two machines to Santander in his automobile; and their receipt was later acknowledged by BECKER.

José Luis DÍAZ, also of the Rita García: later worked for ARNOLD in Spain.

ROBERTSON, of the Cabo de Buena Esperanza.

Francisco GARCÍA: ship unrecalled.

Juan BEASCOECHEA: ARNOLD did not recall his ship, but knew that the British later forbade BEASCOECHEA from sailing. He worked for nothing.

Francisco GOICOECHEA: Ship unrecalled, also, later blacklisted by the British and worked for the prisoner in Spain.
José ARZAC: ARNOLD recalled only the name of this person.

ARNOLD 's Operational Organization

Although whenever possible the prisoner had his couriers cell at his office in Madrid, this was not always possible because of distances and sudden changes in sailing schedule's. ARNOLD therefore enlisted the aid of several helpers to represent him in the Spanish port's and to travel around when necessary.

The principal of these was Jorge DEMMEL, to whom passing reference has been made above. DEMMEL was a German of some 52-53 years of age, proprietor of the Bar Germania in Bilbao. He was married to a Spanish woman, by whom he had a daughter, and had been some 20 years in Spain and participated in the campaign against ABD EL KRIM: ARNOLD believed he was a naturalized Spaniard.

DEMMEL was a heavy drinker and gambler, and spent much time chasing after women, but he was a good worker and very useful to the courier service. In Bilbao he received the correspondence from Buenos Aires and occasionally recruited seamen for the organization. Occasionally, on ARNOLD 's orders, he visited other Spanish ports to pick up and/or deliver correspondence, when it was impossible for the courier to come to the office at Madrid.

In 1944 DEMMEL sold the Bar Germania and moved to a small town some seven or eight miles from Madrid - ARNOLD could not recall its name. The buyers of his bar, however, failed to meet their obligations and DEMMEL lost all his money, becoming involved in all kinds of difficulties. He continued for a while doing odd jobs for ARNOLD but subsequently the prisoner lost touch with him. During the Bilbao days DEMMEL had not accepted a salary, being paid only his expenses when he took out-of-town trips: later, when he was in financial trouble in Madrid, ARNOLD occasionally paid him small sums to help him out, over and above his regular traveling accounts.

Once DEMMEL had quit, the prisoner depended largely on Francisco GOICOECHEA, a former courier who had been blacklisted by the navicert authorities, to act as his traveling representative. GOICOECHEA worked for ARNOLD until the end of the war for a monthly salary of 2,000 Pesetas. The prisoner had no idea what subsequently became of him, knowing only he did not live in Madrid.

Another collaborator who had formerly been a courier was José Luis DÍAZ. At the beginning of 1944 Amt VI was worrying about a possible breach in relations between Germany and Spain, and decided that ARNOLD should have his own clandestine transmitter, to assure one channel of communication. There was also recurrent talk of setting up a station in Spain to intercept the South American traffic from BECKER, since Berlin was poorly placed atmospherically for the transmissions from Argentina; this latter project, however, never passed beyond the discussion stage. In any case, ARNOLD was sent a 40-watt transmitter from Berlin.

In early 1944 he sent DÍAZ to Germany to learn to be a radio operator. The Spaniard took a course of from four to six months, after which he returned to Madrid with ą small transmitter of his own and began sending at ARNOLD's orders. He sent .ARNOLD's regular coded operational messages, instead of the Police Attache's office, but aside from that the new arrangement had little practical, value, as shortly after the equipment had been installed and contact with Berlin established, the war ended. DÍAZ, whose salary was 2,500 Pesetas a month, received six months pay from the prisoner when the latter liquidated his office and sold the transmitter for 1,500 Pesetas to a member of the Spanish intelligence service; ARNOLD did not know to whom. The prisoner characterized DÍAZ as very lazy and not a serious worker. He apparently still lives in Madrid—ARNOLD saw him quite often in the company of Karl HERTEL.

Rounding out the prisoner’s regular "office force" was Joaquín LÓPEZ a former employee of the Falange in Bilbao who had been introduced to ARNOLD by Jorge DEMMEL, LÓPEZ helped copy reports and did odd jobs, such as obtaining false papers for Germans and others (see below). He also received 2,500 Pesetas a month from ARNOLD, and worked till the end of the war. The prisoner understood LÓPEZ to be still in Madrid.

ARNOLD ’s immediate operational organization, then, comprised the following:

Salary

Jorge DEMMEL .... Expenses and, later, bonuses.
José Luis DÍAZ .... 2,500 ptas.
Joaquín LÓPEZ .... 2,500 ptas.
Fco. GOICOECHEA .... 2,000 ptas.

The money for the regular salaries was sent to Spain every month by the R.S.H.A. from Berlin. ARNOLD never had a female’ secretary - LÓPEZ was the closest he had to stenographic help.

The prisoner himself received a salary in the Reich of 460 marks, raised automatically after two years to 500. Most of this he allotted to his wife in Leonberg. In Spain he received a flat sum of 1,000 marks, or 4,200 Pesetas, for living expenses. Further operational costs, such as extraordinary sums expended on agents and/or collaborators, entertainment of possibly useful neutrals, special trips, et cetera, he collected from Berlin after presenting an itemized account at the end of each month. ARNOLD said that he did not bother to put down the small items -the many drinks and meals he had to buy for various people, et cetera- but only itemized the solid extra expenditures. His regular living allowance was paid him for six months at a time -he was the only agent in Spain so paid, as far as he was aware.

Relations with the Office of the Police Attache and Karla BANDT

As mentioned above ARNOLD made regular use of the office of Heinz SINGER, the representative of Amt VI-B4 in Madrid, to send and receive his telegrams and correspondence to and from Berlin. Although he often went to SINGER’s office and got to know most of the employees personally, however, the prisoner was in no way officially connected with the Office of the Police Attache. Only when he needed a passport or a visa did he take advantage of the Attache’s facilities in the regular way of business.

Through his regular trips to the Consulate ARNOLD met SINGER ’s secretary, Karla BANDT. Often, when he was too busy to go to the Consulate, Miss BANDT brought correspondence to his office or met him at a nearby bar. Before long the acquaintance developed into friendship, and from there to love. When the prisoner was being held in jail in 1945 Miss BANDT visited him daily, and when he was to be freed she was signatory to his bail bond. In ARNOLD ’s opinion these two factors were responsible for Karla BANDT’s having been included in the list of persons whose expulsion was demanded by the Allies. She was repatriated in the same air shipment as the prisoner.

Aside from his casual personal contact with the others, however, ARNOLD was not considered part of the Police Attachee’s office. He was never invited to the staff get-togethers occasionally staged by WINZER and HAMMES, and was only asked to dinner by Heinz SINGER twice during the four years he was in Madrid. ARNOLD had only a nodding acquaintance with HAMMES, WINZER, VEY, KOENNECKE, SCHMIDT, and the stenographic staff other than Karla BANDT.

VII. Relations with other AMT VI agents

The foregoing section was devoted to ARNOLD ’s subordinates and associates in the actual performance of his established duties. Another of the prisoner’s principal functions was that of acting as paymaster, communications-channel and guide to a number of individuals sent to Spain from Amt VI the relationship is perhaps best described by the German word betreuen, meaning "to service". In most cases ARNOLD was not responsible for the information gathered by these agents, who were only operationally attached to him. Often, however, he felt obliged to warn Berlin regarding the unreliability of the material which many of them were forwarding through him.

Karl HERTEL (Cover-name BIMBO)

Karl HERTEL arrived in Madrid during the summer of 1944. According to his own statements he had been in Central America for some time, and had been repatriated with the exchange of 1942. He had had representations for several German firms there - ARNOLD knew that he sold coffee to Germany, and recalled HERTEL's having mentioned make of German automobile for which he had been agent. HERTEL once boasted of the number of high-ranking public officials to whom he had sold cars.

In Berlin HERTEL had somehow got into Amt VI and worked there for a while: his job was to make contact with German diplomats and others who had returned from countries with which Germany had broken relations, seeking personnel and/or information which might be of use to the SD. The prisoner recalled that in Amt VI HERTEL was nicknamed the Sklavenhaendler (slave-dealer). At one time in the past he had lived and worked in Spain, and he finally managed to get the R.S.H.A. to send him to Madrid. HERTEL's selling argument was that with his influential Spanish contacts he would soon become established and would not be an expense to the Amt; these same contacts would then be valuable sources for political reporting.

As soon as HERTEL arrived in Madrid he got in touch with Mme. Gertrud ROGGEWEHN (see below), whom ARNOLD believed he had known in either Berlin or Paris. The two slept in the same house the very first night HERTEL arrived and from that time until the prisoner lost track of them they lived together. HERTEL's promise of making himself economically self-sufficient was completely without basis. He did work out several minor swindling schemes for making money on the side, but he continued to depend on SD money for his subsistence. His expenses ranged .from 1,000 to 1,500 Pesetas a month. To ARNOLD's knowledge HERTEL never used the Karl Hamburg Tropical Fruit Company as a cover, as alleged by one source.

One of HERTEL 's money-making dodges was to take advantage of a German in Barcelona -ARNOLD could not recall his name- who had been called up for military service and wished to avoid going. HERTEL promised this German that if he would pay him a monthly sum he, HERTEL, would arrange to have the German listed as a collaborator in the intelligence service. The German paid the money, and somehow HERTEL fixed, it -ARNOLD did not see his correspondence on the subject, so did not know how it was done. In any event the German gave HERTEL a quantity of politico-military information of very little real value.

HERTEL did succeed in infiltrating the English Club in Madrid.There was a Jew who rented apartments to members of the British and American Embassies, and HERTEL struck up a friendship with him. Both HERTEL and the Jew spoke good English, and HERTEL got his friend to introduce him at the Club as a Central American -ARNOLD believed that the name he used was Mr. BRABANT (later amplified to the Count or Duke of BRABANT). The prisoner did not recall the name of HERTEL's friend and sponsor, but said that he would be easy to identify as he was murdered by a Spaniard shortly before the end of the war, the crime exciting considerable comment in the press. Following the Jew's murder HERTEL took over the apartment-lotting business and collected the commissions.

In spite of his connections with British and American circles, however, HERTEL did not know how to take advantage of his situation for political intelligence purposes. When ARNOLD submitted HERTEL a monthly expense account to Berlin, the Amt invariably intimated that it hoped some tangible results would soon be forthcoming from his work. Before long Berlin began blaming ARNOLD for HERTEL's failings, and this was too much for the prisoner. He wrote back ą sharp, letter and pointed out that if the R.S.H.A. were going to continue sending out incompetents and rascals, it would continue getting incompetent results.

When the war ended and ARNOLD was liquidating his organization he asked HERTEL to call at his office, as he wanted to give him some money as a reserve for the coming months. HERTEL did not appear, even after several communications had reached him. ARNOLD therefore reasoned that if HERTEL was unwilling to come and collect money it must he because he was afraid to face him; and if HERTEL were afraid to face ARNOLD it must be because he had sold out to the Allies. The prisoner therefore let HERTEL know that he considered him a traitor, and that he need look to ARNOLD for no further help. Nevertheless, at the end of 1945, he received a threatening letter from his erstwhile associate, demanding 10,000 Pesetas.The note was worded more or less as follows: "You still have a lot of that money and I need 10,000 Pesetas. I hope for your own good that you will give it to me". ARNOLD tore up the letter and threw it in the waste-basket.

ARNOLD later heard that HERTEL was living with Mme. ROGGEWEHN in Madrid and passing himself as the Count (or Duke, or Marquis) of BRABANT, but he never knew his address. The prisoner rather thought that BRABANT may have originally been the name of HERTEL's mother.

A description follows:

Age: About 35-37 Height:5 ft., 8-9 in. Weight: At least 220 lbs. Hair: Black. Eyes: Dark. Nose: Flat. Lips:Thick. Face: Round. Skin: Very white and pale. Build: Extremely fat. Appearance: Never seems well shaved or washed. Nationality: German. Languages: Excellent English and Spanish, probably others besides, of course, German.

Gertrud ROGGEWEHN (Cover-name TANJA)

Mme. ROGGEWEHN's activities were the object of especial interest on the part of the American Embassy at Madrid, wherefore an affidavit regarding her espionage connections was obtained from ARNOLD at the outset of the present interrogation and forwarded to Spain. (Berlin despatch no. 7476, October 21), In the interests of completeness a precis of the affidavit's contents is included here:

Gertrud ROGGENWEHN had been married to a Dutch citizen, but had separated from him before the war. She was living in Paris when the Germans marched in, and assumed contact with the SD there. SS-Sturmbannfuehrer and Kriminaldirector SCHMITZ sent her to Spain to work as an agent, forwarding several thousand Pesetas to ARNOLD to give to her and asking him to stand by her with counsel and aid. Mme. ROGGEWEHN arrived in Madrid in early 1944; during the first months she made several trips to Berlin and Paris, establishing the business which was to serve as her cover.

This was to be a beauty salon, Mme ROGGEWEHN also had the Spanish representation rights of the French perfumery Worth, and planned to start manufacturing Worth products in Spain. She succeeded in bringing into the country several cases of perfume essence, as well as her Citroen car, but the invasion of France put a stop to her importations and she had to give up both the perfume enterprise and the beauty salon. Her connection in Worth was with a certain M. BLAMCHET (or a similar name), Mme ROGGEWEHN had worked with him before the war and ARNOLD believed that the SD had nothing to do with her obtaining the Worth representation; in fact, it appeared more likely that her possession of the already established connection was what enabled Mme ROGGEWEHN to induce SCHMITZ to employ her.

When Karl HERTEL arrived in Spain, he and Mme ROGGEWEHN rented a house together at an address in General Mola, whereupon ARNOLD passed the handling of her to HERTEL and advised Berlin to that effect. Before HERTEL arrived Mme ROGGEWEHN had lived for a time with her sister, who was married to a German physician named SCHRADER. As the prisoner later heard it, Mme. ROGGEWEHN's subsequent relations with HERTEL put a considerable strain on her ties with her sister and brother-in-law.

Mme, ROGGEWEHN had a valid German passport, in the name of TUTTHAS or something similar, and used this document for her travels to Berlin and Paris. She also had an expired Dutch passport in her own name and tried to get it revalidated at the Dutch Consulate in Madrid before the end of the war -ARNOLD did not know what luck she had.

Mme ROGGEWEHN must have had countless acquaintances among the Germans living in Madrid, the prisoner said, but he did not know who they were. He believed that she was also at one time in touch with Ernst ALISCH, of the SD Paris. She had contact as well with a Bulgarian ex-diplomat and with numerous ladies of the Spanish aristocracy with whom she played weekly bridge. ARNOLD, however, was not informed regarding the identity of her circle of acquaintances, nor did he know whether Mme ROGGEWEHN and Karl HERTEL continued living together after the war.

Alejandro MINK (Cover-name ZANGE)

MINK was born in Argentina of German parents, and was taken to Germany at an early age to be schooled and brought up. His mother, who had been abandoned by MINK 's father and had divorced him, lived in Germany. Alejandro finished his medical studies, then made contact with the SD. Since he was of Argentine nationality Amt VI thought he could be used as an agent in Spain, and sent him to ARNOLD for training: the prisoner recalled that this was shortly before Argentina broke relations with Germany (January 25, 1944), because MINK arrived on a valid Argentine passport. MINK, however, did not speak a word of Spanish and had to spend all his time studying that language. About his only concrete accomplishment in Madrid aside from studying was to put his Argentine papers in perfect order, he never produced anything in the line of intelligence: on the contrary, ARNOLD said, MINK caused him a lot of trouble and expense which could easily have been avoided. After the war ended the Argentine broke off all contact with the prisoner, who never saw him again, MINK may have gone back to Argentina, ARNOLD said -that may have been why he was so anxious to get his papers in order.

During the period of his "activity" MINK received from Amt VI, through ARNOLD, a monthly sum for expenses which varied between 1,000 and 1,500 Pesetas. He also received 1,500 Pesetas from his mother, who paid in the equivalent amount in marks in Berlin.

MINK was described as follows:

Age: 22-23 years. Height: 5 ft.,10-11 in. Weight: 150 lbs. Hair: Dark brown. Eyes: Blue. Skin: Palid, sickly. Nose: Straight, regular. Lips: Normal, not thick. Face: Elongated. Build: Thin. Appearance: Tubercular (which he is)

Nationality: Argentine Languages: School English and French.

Last heard of: MINK went to San Sebastián for his health when he parted from ARNOLD.

Dr. Gerd BUNGARD

When the head of Amt VI, Theodor PAEFFGEN, came to Spain in 1943 he told ARNOLD of a certain Dr. Gerd BUNGARD, then in Paris, who had been his, PAEFFGEN's, classmate in law school. Soon after that BUNGARD himself arrived from Paris, and simultaneously an envelope came from PAEFFGEN containing 15,000 Pesetas for his first three months' salary as an agent of Amt VI. BUNGARD was supposed to have a very close connection with the fabulous French "big operator", CHATIN, and was to use ARNOLD as a channel for his reports to Berlin. When BUNGARD's first political report came in, however, ARNOLD read it and found it to be the worst type of meretricious twaddle: consequently he called the new agent in and said he was willing to send that one report, but that it would be the last he would send unless BUNGARD could unearth some trustworthy intelligence. BUNGARD never again came to ARNOLD’s office -the prisoner believed, however, that he subsequently sent material through Heinz SINGER.

BUNGARD had brought to Spain with him certain German patents, on which he was supposed to be able to live: the first three months’ salary was merely to enable him to get under way.

The prisoner understood that in France he had been a German lawyer defending Frenchmen accused of resistance activities and had taken advantage of what he learned thereby to sell his clients and their associates out to the Abwehr, in whose pay he was. Before ARNOLD got rid of BUNGARD the latter was continually thinking up grandiose but unworkable intelligence schemes, and he boasted incessantly of his friend CHATIN’s connections among the Allies and the Spaniards.

ARNOLD knew nothing of BUNGARD’s having acted as a go-between for CHATIN in offering some sixty million French francs on the black market, as alleged by Martin MEYWALD.

PESCOLLER (Pen-name Tex HARDING)

PESCOLLER was an Austrian who came to Madrid at the end of 1943 or the beginning of 1944, looking up ARNOLD shortly after his arrival, he said he was under orders to get to Brazil clandestinely -he claimed a large circle of connections among important personages there, including Foreign Minister ARANHA, and was to set up a transmitter and send in political intelligence. PESCOLLER, a man of 46-48 years of age, had traveled widely in both North and South America in his youth and had published adventure novels, under the pen-name of Tex HARDING. He spoke quite passable English, ARNOLD said. He claimed to possess several false passports, but the prisoner did not know in what names these were made out.

PESCOLLER ’s arrival surprised ARNOLD very much since he knew something of his past and was aware that the Austrian had made a miserable botch of a mission to Italy several years before for Amt VI-B; this was something connected with merchant shipping, and had cost the R.S.H.A. a lot of money without producing any results. For the present assignment PESCOLLER had been employed directly by Amt VI-F, which had apparently sent him out without bothering to look up the voluminous and unfavorable dossier which ARNOLD knew had been filed by Sturmbannfuehrer HOSSNER and since the latter had been sent to the front and there had been an almost complete turnover in personnel, PESCOLLER ’s name had escaped notice. (The prisoner was asked what right Amt VI-F, which was the department for technical adjuncts, had to send its own political-reporting agent into the field. It had no right, he replied, and had consulted no one.)

ARNOLD sent in a sharp letter to Amt VI-D protesting PESCOLLER ’s presence in Madrid. Then, in January 1944, when he himself went back to Berlin on consultation he took advantage of the opportunity to call on the chief of VI-F and make him realize the enormity of what he had done. This individual became extremely worried and begged ARNOLD to induce PESCOLLER to return to Germany before he involved VI-F in trouble, but the prisoner refused flatly, saying that he had too much work to waste time rectifying the stupidities committed by another department.

ARNOLD saw the Austrian no more then two or three times in Madrid, he said, as PESCOLLER did not communicate through him but through Heinz SINGER. The prisoner knew, however, that PESCOLLER was ordered back to Berlin and refused to go, selling the jewels entrusted him and living upon the proceeds. Kurt GROSS interfered in the matter and ordered ARNOLD to track down PESCOLLER and "do away with him", but this was a typical Grosería and the prisoner paid no attention to the order: only if SCHELLENBERG himself had made such a demand would he have even considered taking any action.

ARNOLD did, however, keep track of PESCOLLER ’s movements. For a time the Austrian lived in Vigo, with an artiste of the Scala theatrical company: she was the girl who held the number-placards for the vaudeville acts. Although he had a wife and children in Germany, PESCOLLER went through a "legal" Spanish marriage ceremony with this girl. ARNOLD also learned that the Austrian was passing himself as a duke or count in various Spanish cities, one of which was Barcelona, using a different name each time.

PESCOLLER was included in the Allies' wanted list, and eventually got interned at Caldas de Malavella, but he managed to escape from there and the prisoner believed he was still in Spain or Portugal. Unless PESCOLLER has a new swindle, ARNOLD said, his resources must have become exhausted.

The following is PESCOLLER 's description as remembered by ARNOLD:

Age: 46-48 years Height: Almost 6 ft. Weight: 180 lbs. Hair: Almost bald, remainder dark. Eyes: Dark. Skin: Pale. Nose: Wide, strong. Face: Oval. Lips:Thick. Teeth: Bad Build: Robust Appearance: Dissipated. Nationality: Austrian. Languages: English, Spanish and Portuguese well (PESCOLLER was his real name -he also had a cover-name which ARNOLD did not recall.)

Countess Mechtild PODEWILS

That Countess PODEWILS worked in Spain as a special agent of Walter SCHELLENBERG has already been confirmed by SCHELLENBERG himself (POLAD despatch no. 7118 of September 24, 1946). ARNOLD, however, was required to add what he could to his chief's testimony in the way of supplementary information, since he dealt occasionally with the Countess in person.

Countess Mechtild PODEWILS, said the prisoner, was German, between 30 and 34 years of age, tall and very pretty. She had been married in South America -ARNOLD believed it was Bolivia- and had two children. After her divorce some years ago her former husband took the boy with him to live in Portugal, while she went with the daughter to Spain. The prisoner knew that she was an intimate friend of SS-Gruppenfuehrer WOLF, whom she called by the diminutive term of "WOLFCHEN", and it was this man who recommended that she be sent to Spain as an agent. ARNOLD did not know in what year she came to Madrid.

Countess PODEWILS reported directly to SCHELLENBERG and it was the latter who gave her directives. On one of ARNOLD's trips to Berlin the chief of Amt VI complained to him that she was spending more than her work was worth and asked ARNOLD to help her out a bit and give her some coaching in intelligence work. This the prisoner found rather difficult since the Countess received her instructions direct and delivered her reports in the same way, with the result that ARNOLD did not know what kind of work she was producing. During 1944 she visited him at his office every once in a while, but although he offered his help and advice he did not have much time to devote to coaching her. She was not at all apt at politics, ARNOLD discovered.

The Countess had, nevertheless, excellent contacts. She was well connected in both aristocratic and official circles, and was a close friend of Miguel PRIMO de RIVERA and other members of the Government. But, as she herself admitted to ARNOLD, she understood neither intelligence work nor politics and was unable to distinguish between important and unimportant material; nor was she able to work with any semblance of system. Notwithstanding this SCHELLENBERG paid her, the prisoner understood, 15,000 Pesetas a month, plus occasional bonuses for extraordinary expenditures.

ARNOLD had never heard of the Countess HELLDORF or HELLWIG mentioned by Hedwig SOMMER in her interrogation. Since the description tallies in other respects, it may be assumed that the above individual was in reality the Countess PODEWILS.

Hans ZIEGRA

Another visitor at ARNOLD's office was Hans ZIEGRA. ZIEGRA had been sent on a mission to Madrid from one of the Berlin bureaus -the prisoner believed his job was to unfreeze German assets in Brazil. He was certainly also in contact with Amt VI*-ARNOLD believed he was collaborating ex officio with GROSS and PAEFFGEN. On one of the prisoner's trips to Berlin ZIEGRA invited him and GROSS to his house, and there they met a certain SS-Gruppehfuehrer MUELLER. ZIEGRA appeared on intimate terms with this Nazi general.

In Madrid ZIEGRA occasionally called at ARNOLD's office, where he boasted loudly of his connections with members of the Brazilian Embassy at Madrid; he claimed an excellent contact with Ambassador ROCAS himself, and with the former first secretary Pablo SILVEYRA. Shortly before the war ended SILVEYRA told ARNOLD that ZIEGRA had tried to get from him a Brazilian passport, without success. The prisoner also recalled that ZIEGRA once gave him a report on the American presidential candidate DEWEY, whom ZIEGRA claimed to have known personally when he was in the United States. For the rest, the man was a windbag.

Shortly before the end of the war ZIEGRA was called up for military service, and immediately went to ARNOLD to try to get out of it -he had no wish to die at the front, he said. When the prisoner told him he could do nothing, ZIEGRA broke off the acquaintanceship and stopped seeing ARNOLD. As he did not return to Germany, he was listed as a deserter. Whereupon to the prisoner's knowledge he sought contact with the United States Embassy at Madrid.

According to his own statements ZIEGRA had taken part in the "Aryanizing" of Jewish business houses in Germany, among which was the Arnold private bank in Berlin. ZIEGRA himself acquired two, or perhaps three, Berlin tailor shops which had been Jewish-owned. He also informed ARNOLD on one occasion that he had been the first Ortsgruppenleiter of the Nazi Party in Rio de Janeiro; but ZIEGRA told so many lies that the prisoner did not know whether this was true.

Arthur GEBAUER (Cover-name Arthur GOLD)

For many months ARNOLD knew this individual only as Arthur GOLD. He was introduced to him in Amt VI by Dr. PAEFFGEN during the 1944 trip to Berlin. GEBAUER, as his real name was, was to get a job as seaman on any ship bound for England or the United States, and in Berlin he boasted that from Spain that would be very easy for him. When GEBAUER did arrive in Spain he immediately called on ARNOLD to collect the money which had been sent him from Berlin for his mission -ARNOLD did not know how much the envelope contained- and to ask for help in getting aboard a ship. Since ARNOLD's ships went only to South America he suggested that GEBAUER take one of those and try to enter the United States by land, but the man was a bluff and a coward, and refused the chance. The prisoner interposed that GEBAUER was not only cowardly but also stupid, and that if he ever had got to Great Britain or North America he would not have dared do anything.

The prisoner never heard GEBAUER make any mention of having formerly worked for the Abwehr in Las Palmas. (Note: there was an Arthur GEBAUER listed as an Abwehr radio, operator there in 1943.) He did, however, make frequent trips around Spain, principally in the vicinity of Barcelona, and went several times to Portugal. GEBAUER once told ARNOLD that he had worked for the French frontier service, and the prisoner gathered from other odd bits of conversation that on his trips around Spain he was mixed in some business with the SD frontier personnel -probably smuggling coffee. ARNOLD was fairly certain that GEBAUER "traveled black" on the occasions when he entered Portugal.

GEBAUER never passed any reports through ARNOLD, written or verbal, and the prisoner saw him only when he was in need of funds. There was no regular monthly expense allotment for this agent since he was supposedly in transit and supposed to get off as soon as possible. In the first months after his arrival, however, GEBAUER often came to ARNOLD and asked for money: the prisoner gave him sometimes 1,000 or 1,500 Pesetas, and on one occasion, 2,000, which sums he entered in his monthly reckoning and collected from Berlin. In the closiig months of the war GEBAUER was still hanging around and still coming to ARNOLD and during this period the prisoner gave him occasional smaller amounts, 500 or 1,000 Pesetas, out of his own pocket.

ARNOLD described GEBAUER as a man of from 40 to 43 years of age; about5 ft. 9 in. in height; thin, with dark hair and dark eyes, and a straight nose. He dressed in clean clothes, but looked like a ship's fireman or engineer.

Pablo SILVEYRA (Cover-name also GOLD)

As stated in the introduction to the present section, the foregoing individuals were not in reality "ARNOLD s agents" but rather a series of more than semi-independent workers whom he served in the capacity of paymaster and adviser. All in all they were a sorry lot; the prisoner did not consider one of them really worth his salt. ARNOLD did, however, have two paid agents of his own, who served him fairly efficiently in the field of political intelligence. These were Pablo SILVEYRA and Tomas SAMPER (see the following subsection, for the latter).

When ARNOLD first established contact with SILVEYRA he was First Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy at Madrid. Later he was retired for old age, having reached 60, but he did not wish to return to Brazil because he was estranged from his wife and she was living in that country. The prisoner felt that if it had not been for that factor, SILVEYRA would have gone back long before to devote himself to newspaper work; he was an excellent journalist.

SILVEYRA was very intelligent and well informed. He was not ideologically a fascist, but disapproved violently of the Brazilian Foreign minister ARANHA and his rupturist policy. ARNOLD used him to good effect for reports on Spanish politics, as well as for obtaining information as to what was going on in the Brazilian Embassy. SILVEYRA frequently brought the prisoner information which he affirmed came from telegrams despatched by the Ambassador to the Itamaraty Palace, but he never furnished actual copies of either telegrams or letters] at times. ARNOLD suspected that the Brazilian was running short of material and brought such reports as fillers. The prisoner also had the feeling that the Ambassador did not trust his first secretary, and gave him little opportunity to get hold of actual copies of his messages -SILVEYRA's reports were verbal reconstructions of these.

At the outset of the relationship SILVEYRA worked gratis, after which he was paid a salary for a short while; ARNOLD then began paying him for piece work at about 1,000 Pesetas a time, amounting to from 3,000 to 5,000 Pesetas a month. Later the prisoner again put SILVEYRA on a fixed monthly salary basis, at 5,000 Pesetas.

Tomas SAMPER

ARNOLD's chief source of information on purely Spanish politics was Tomás SAMPER, an old-time Falangista who had multifarious connections, in the various Spanish ministries and especially with the police of the Gobernación de Barcelona . While SAMPER's forte lay in Spanish political intelligence he also had some contact with the South American consulates in Madrid, as well as with the British, and often picked up such news as the effect of the V-bombs in England, et cetera. SAMPER operated through a network of contacts; but for reasons of security, and also probably because he feared ARNOLD might attempt to get into direct touch with his agents, he never told the prisoner who or what any of these were.

SAMPER was also ARNOLD's main source for obtaining the many publications the collection of which was one of the chief chores of German intelligence agents. These comprised magazines and other periodicals on technical, political, military and commercial subjects, not only from Spain but also from Great Britain and the United States. SAMPER got most of the publications sent to him from Barcelona, ARNOLD noticed.

The prisoner paid SAMPER from 8,000 to 10,000 Pesetas a month, according to his rendition of expenses. SAMPER was a big fat man, ARNOLD interposed, but he covered a lot of ground and was a real operator.

JELAMBI (fnu)

JELAMBI is not to be claused with SILVEYRA and SAMPER, but neither might he be included in the category of HERTEL, MINK and the others whom the prison serviced. He was a Venezuelan national who had been studying in Belgium and had refused repatriation in 1942 because he was not finished with his studies. When he finished his courses -they were in engineering ARNOLD thought- he found he could not get out of the country; accordingly, in order to leave Belgium, he had contacted the SD in Brussels and had offered his services as an agent once he arrived in his own country. The SD representative, whose name the prisoner did not recall, sent JELAMBI to Berlin with an introduction and he was subsequently sent to Spain en route to Venezuela.

JELAMBI reached Madrid in 1943 and established contact with ARNOLD. There the two arranged that the Venezuelan, who ARNOLD understood had taken a course in radio-telegraphy, would attempt when he got home to set up a transmitter and forward political information to Madrid. If he did not succeed in establishing radio contact he was at least to communicate through the seamen's courier system and/or any available trustworthy traveler, letting ARNOLD know his whereabouts and situation.

Once he had got off to Venezuela, however, neither ARNOLD nor Amt VI ever heard of JELAMBI again, so he was written off as one more "agent" who had played the SD for a free ride home. JELAMBI had money of his own, and never received any funds from the prisoner.

Relations with Armin SCHMIDT, Ana de POMBO and Martin MEYWALD

The activities of SCHMIDT, de POMBO and MEYWALD touched ARNOLD's sphere only incidentally, but he was asked to comment on them by way of supplementing the lengthy interrogation of MEYWALD (POLAD despatch n°. 7148 of October 7, 1946).

MEYWALD and SCHMIDT arrived in Madrid several months after the prisoner had got there in 1942, and paid him a call; at that time they were not certain whether they should remain in Spain or proceed to Portugal. ARNOLD had known MEYWALD during about two years in Berlin when they were both in Amt VI, and throughout their time in Madrid their relations remained on an informal friendly plane. MEYWALD did frequently give ARNOLD reports to forward to Amt VI, but he also handed a number of these directly to Karla BANDT in the Police Attache's office; his correspondence from Berlin, too, came often in ARNOLD's mail, but always in sealed envelopes, MEYWALD ran his own affairs: he was a Hauptsturmfuehrer, outranking the prisoner, and the exploitation of the de POMBO-SCHMIDT connection was entirely in his hands.

ARNOLD's relations with SCHMIDT and Ana de POMBO were very casual, he entertained the former at his house with MEYWALD once or twice shortly after they arrived, and SCHMIDT invited him to the opening of the Ana de POMBO Dress Shop and to one of the artistic evenings at the house at Avenida del Generalisimo. It was on the latter occasion that Ana de POMBO told ARNOLD that she was a personal friend of Anthony EDEN, then British Foreign Minister, and that she had many contacts among the personnel of the British Embassy at Madrid; these last included the Military Attache, General TORR, and his secretary, Miss Joan CAMPBELL. Mme. de POMBO told ARNOLD frankly that when she was employed at Paquin in Paris she had worked for the British Intelligence Service.

ARNOLD was queried concerning the SD's view of Ana de POMBO's British connections. He replied that naturally the Amt took care in its dealings with her, but that it had been his personal conviction that she was so much in love with Armin SCHMIDT that as long as the latter remained reasonably faithful to her, she would continue to serve the interests of German intelligence. SCHMIDT, of course, was playing de POMBO for what he could get out of it. He had long white hair -his nickname was "el tío melenas"- and he was slightly hunch-backed: it was hard to see wherein his sex appeal lay, ARNOLD said, but SCHMIDT certainly had it. Ana de POMBO also told the prisoner that she had once been engaged to Jose Antonio PRIMO de RIVERA, and that the Republicans had killed a fourteen-year old son of hers. During the time

ARNOLD knew her she was always the mistress of SCHMIDT.

Regarding SCHMIDT ARNOLD only knew what MEYWALD told him. He had long been a forger of both signatures and art works, and had served several prison sentences therefor. In Madrid he displayed great talent for getting to know the right people, but he was absolutely incapable of any serious work, or of turning his contracts to advantage for intelligence purposes. The prisoner did not know any of the details of the dress shop's failure, but heard that SCHMIDT had robbed the business of large sums of money. He was sought by the Spanish police in 1944, but escaped abroad with Ana de POMBO.

Neither SCHMIDT nor de POMBO delivered any kind of reports to the prisoner, nor did they in any sense work under his orders. They did, however, come to ARNOLD in an effort to get his help in ridding them of MEYWALD, who they said was spring on them and, moreover, did not know how to behave in the plane of society in which they had to move. ARNOLD refused to become involved in the quarrel. When Dr. PAEFFGEN came to Madrid and stayed in his house, the prisoner learned that they had come to him with the same tales.

Sectional Summary

To recapitulate, the various agents discussed above were known by ARNOLD to have received the following general remuneration from Amt VI:

HERTEL..............1,000-1,500 ptas. monthly
MINK. . ...1,000-1,500 ptas. monthly
SILVEYRA .... 3,000-5,000 ptas. monthly
SAMPER .... 8,000-10,000 ptas. monthly
BUNGARD .... 15,000 ptas. lump sum
ROGGEWEHN ..... 2,000-3,000 ptas. lump sum
GEBAUER.......... 1,000-2,000 ptas. occasionally
PODEWILS .... 15,000 ptas. monthly plus bonuses, paid by SCHELLENBERG
PESCOLLER......Paid by Amt VI-F. Had diamonds.
ZIEGRA .... Unknown .
SCHMIDT and de POMBO .... Paid large sums by PAEFFGEN
JELAMBI .... No payment

As will have been observed, few of the above agents were considered of any use by the prisoner. Infact, the only two who produced were those he himself established locally in Madrid, SAMPER and SILVEYRA. Most of ARNOLD's political reporting, however, was based on an entirely different set of connections: South American and Spanish persons in official or quasi-official capacities with whom the prisoner's relations were purely social and with whom the matter of remuneration did not come into question. These people will be dealt with in the following section.

VIII. Associates in political intelligence

ARNOLD's field of interest in intelligence was twofold: first, the Spanish political scene; and second, developments in South America. In the latter connection he cultivated a number of Latin Americans in Madrid, keeping the relationships on a friendly basis and regularly discussing politico-military matters with them. For example, when General Edelmiro FARRELL became president of Argentina ARNOLD went to Captain Manuel MIRANDA, then in Madrid, and got an excellent evaluation of the new president's character and political orientation to cable Berlin; MIRANDA had been FARRELL'S aide and knew him intimately, as indeed he knew most of the higher-ranking Argentine officers. In like manner, ARNOLD used the knowledge of SILVEYRA, who had been for many years a newspaperman in Rio de Janeiro, in judging the political personalities of those who came to prominence in Brazil.
The prisoner's most dependable sources in the above respect were Captain MIRANDA, Dr. Juan Carlos GOYENECHE and Commander EDUARDO CEBALLOS, all three Argentines.. Be also had relations with a number of other Latin Americans, who will be discussed below.

Captain Manuel MIRANDA

MIRANDA was a military commentator who broadcast pro-German military commentaries and published a newspaper column under the pen-name of CAPTAIN M. His trip to Germany had originally been paid by the German Embassy at Buenos Aires at the instigation of the then Press Attache, Gottfried SANDSTEDE. MIRANDA came to Madrid from Berlin some time in early 1944.and, as mentioned above, was very useful to ARNOLD as a source of authentic and accurate information concerning the Argentine militarists who were at that time playing a prominent role in the country's politics. MIRANDA had a ruptured stomach from a fall in the mountains and was living on borrowed time. One day in mid-1944 he was taken violently ill, and an emergency operation performed; but it was to no avail, and MIRANDA died the next day.

Juan Carlos GOYENECHE

GOYENECHE had been in Madrid for some time before ARNOLD met him, but the prisoner first made contact with him on orders from Amt VI, after the Argentine returned in early 1943 from his trip to Germany and his interviews with HIMMLER and von RIBBENTROP. Although he was not an official representative of the Argentine Government, GOYENECHE enjoyed special privileges, through his high connections. From his base in Madrid, he visited Portugal, Italy France and Germany, interviewing prominent personalities. According to his own statements he was traveling to study the fascist systems and to work towards a better understanding between the European totalitarian countries and Argentina. He succeeded in obtaining interviews with FRANCO. MUSSOLINI, the Pope, LAVAL, RIBBENTROP, HIMMLER, and possibly, with SALAZAR-.

ARNOLD characterized GOYENECHE as an idealist among nationalists, a fervent authoritarian and catholicist. He was descended from illustrious forebears: the prisoner understood that one grandfather had been President of Uruguay, while others had long played a prominent role in the Argentine politice scene. He had had an intimate connection with Adrián C. ESCOBAR when the latter was Argentine Ambassador to Madrid, and GOYENECHE later confided to ARNOLD that it was ESCOBAR who enabled him to travel in France and Germany. The prisoner believed that the Ambassador must have taken GOYENECHE with him on one of his periodical trips to Hendaye and/or Paris and introduced him to the SD heads in France; probably to SS-Standartenfuehrer Helmut KNOCHEN himself. KNOCHEN, who headed the SD in Paris, must then have arranged for GOYENECHE´S German trip. ARNOLD knew positively that it was through SCHELLENBERG that the Argentine's interview with HIMMLER, at the latter's headquarters on the eastern front, was arranged: as for the RIBBENTROP interview, the prisoner could not say who had fixed that.

When ARNOLD met GOYENECHE it was just after he had returned from this trip, and the prisoner asked him how he had got along with HIMMLER. The Argentine replied that it had been very fine; the Reichsfuehrer-SS had shown common sense and comprehension, and had given him every opportunity to expound his ideas. RIBBENTROP, on the other hand, had left a bad taste in GOYENECHE's mouth, ARNOLD averred; the Foreign Minister spent the whole half hour of the interview doing the talking himself, not allowing his guest to say more than a half-dozen sentences. According to the prisoner GOYENECHE was very close-mouthed about the subject matter of both conversations— even though in a way ARNOLD was HIMMLER's own representative, the Argentine did not tell him what HIMMLER had said.

In Buenos Aires GOYENECHE had been the director of, or one of the foremost collaborators in, a political magazine of rightist and catholicist ideas, and a leading member of the young group which revolved around that magazine. In Spain he spent much time giving lectures to students and young Falangistas; he lived in Madrid at the Residencia de Estudiantes and spent á very large part of his waking hours at mass or in the company of priests. The whole purpose of his trip to Germany, ARNOLD said, was to reconcile Hitlęrįsm with Catholicism.

The prisoner did not believe that GOYENECHE was in direct contact with the Buenos Aires Government during the time he associated with him, although the Argentine did speak of friendship with Mario AMADEO, then an official of the Argentine Foreign Ministry. GOYENECHE seldom went to his Embassy, ARNOLD said, after his friend Ambassador ESCOBAR was transferred from Madrid. When it was intimated that GOYENECHE did, nevertheless, possess a diplomatic passport, the prisoner resisted the idea, claiming that what he had seen in the Argentine's possession was the equivalent of the German "official mission" document (like the United States' "Special Passport.").

GOYENECHE saw ARNOLD regularly in Madrid, and the prisoner believed that he associated regularly there with other Germans as well. ARNOLD's relations with the Argentine were limited largely to friendly interviews at which politico-military matters formed the chief topic of conversation. As GOYENECHE had very good connections with a number of important personages in Spanish official circles, ARNOLD paid heed to his opinions on current problems and used him as a source for much of the political material he sent to Berlin. The prisoner never received.anything like a written report from GOYENECHE, however, nor did he ever give the Argentine either money or gifts. The only,favor ARNOLD was able to do for GOYENECHE was to lend him a camera for a few months at one time. GOYENECHE was never looked upon as an "agent" by the SD, but rather as a friend and sympathizer, which -indeed he was.

Commander Eduardo CEBALLOS

CEBALLOS had been Argentine Naval Attache in Berlin for a number of years before he was transferred to Madrid. In Spain, he was in contact with the SD in the person of ARNOLD after Argentina had broken relations with the Reich in January 1944. It is well known that during his stay in Berlin CEBALLOS' chief preoccupation was to obtain the release of the tanker Buenos Aires, bought by Argentina before the war, and held in Göteborg, Sweden, by the Germans' refusal to allow it passage out. When he came to Madrid, CEBALLOS had written orders from the Argentine Ministry of Marine to make contact and deal with any German officials in Spain who might be in a position to facilitate the tanker's release.

The prisoner knew CABALLOS and occasionally discussed current issues with him in the same manner as with MIRANDA and GOYENECHE. Shortly after the Argentine-German rupture, ARNOLD was ordered by Amt VI to get in touch with the Naval Attache and make him one final offer with respect to the tanker, namely, that the Germans would release it if the Argentines would release the German agents arrested in the general spy roundup of February 1944. The prisoner telephoned CEBALLOS and said he had an important proposition regarding the tanker, suggesting a discreet meeting in a cafe. The Naval Attache signified his willingness -he was ready to do anything to gain his longtime objective- and the two met. ARNOLD presented the German Government's offer -an official one in writing- and CEBALLOS took it and communicated it to his superiors in Buenos Aires. In spite of its former eagerness to get the tanker, however, the Argentine Ministry of Marine never replied to the offer. ARNOLD said CEBALLOS was very pro-German, but he never worked for the SD in any informational or other tangible capacity, nor did he at any time receive money or gifts from the prisoner.

Dr. Adrián C. ESCOBAR and Consul Aquilino LOPEZ.

Mention has been made above of the Argentine Ambassador ESCOBAR's aid to GOYENECHE in obtaining entry permits for Germany and France. According to ARNOLD, both ESCOBAR and the then Argentine Consul in Madrid, Aquilino LOPEZ, were in contact with the chief of the SD in Paris, Dr. Helmut Herbert KNOCHEN. The prisoner volunteered that he understood ESCOBAR had sought this connection when he thought Germany was going to win the war, hoping thus to get into favor with Germany and at the same time become a political prophet in his own land. The Ambassador professed himself a great friend of Fascism in general and of the Reich in particular. Another probable reason for the contact, ARNOLD thought, was that ESCOBAR hoped, through his trips to visit KNOCHEN and others, to establish a legitimate pretext for crossing the French frontier with no questions asked. The prisoner had no proof, but believed that both ESCOBAR and Consul LOPEZ, who sometimes accompanied his chief, took advantage of their border crossings to engineer illicit deals in foreign exchange and contraband goods. Captain MIRANDA, with whom the prisoner later discussed ESCOBAR, said that the Ambassador, who was very fond of good living, had certainly taken advantage of his friendship with the Germans to do profitable business when he went to France.

ARNOLD's statements concerning ESCOBAR were based on informed hearsay, as the Ambassador had left Madrid when he arrived in September in 1942. With LOPEZ, however; there was direct contact. In November 1942, the prisoner received an order from Berlin to make connections with the Consul -in the order it was stated that LOPEZ had declared himself ready to work for the SD and give them political reports; it was added that the contact had been made originally by the SD in Paris. ARNOLD therefore went to LOPEZ ' office in Madrid. Much to his surprise the Consul was very much perturbed by the visit, and got rid of him as quickly as he could, The prisoner could not at the time understand LOPEZ' attitude, since Argentina still maintained diplomatic relations with Germany and the visit of a German was not an unusual thing in Madrid.

Later, LOPEZ attitude was explained. ARNOLD learned that the Consul had complained to KNOCHEN of his visit, saying that he had not meant he would work with the SD in Madrid, but rather only through direct contact with the Paris office: if he had anything he would deliver it personally to the SD at Hendaye. The illicit foreign exchange,deals of LOPEZ were at that time an open secret in Spanish circles, so ARNOLD supposed that the reason the Consul resisted dealing with him was precisely so that he might have a pretext for crossing the border.

The prisoner stressed once more that he had no proof of the blackmarket activities of either ESCOBAR or LOPEZ, but added that any of the SD personnel who were at that time stationed at Hendaye should have concrete knowledge; if they were U.S. prisoners they might be interrogated to advantage. LOPEZ was a long-standing member of the Unión Cívica Radical in Argentina, the least pro-German of the political parties, and this fact strengthened the prisoner's belief that LÓPEZ was only collaborating with the Nazis for what he could get out of them.

Major Elias BELMONTE and Rubén SARDÓN

Sometime in the second half of 1943 the former Bolivian military Attache in Berlin, Major Elias BELMONTE PABÓN, arrived in Madrid from Germany. At the same time, ARNOLD received orders to accompany BELMONTE to Bilbao to receive the letter's half-brother, Rubén SARDÓN PABON, and to arrange for the two to travel on to Berlin. SARDÓN was arriving from Buenos Aires. The prisoner accordingly took BELMONTE in his car to Bilbao, met the half-brother, and drove the pair back to Madrid; and thence he later took them to the border and despatched them to Germany. For his trip from Argentina SARDÓN had used his regular Bolivian passport with a visa for Spain, He did not, however, wish any evidence of his Berlin trip to appear on this document, so ARNOLD arranged with the Office of the Police Attache for false German papers to be used instead.

On his arrival in Madrid, SARDÓN simply went to the Spanish police and signed in, giving an address in Madrid and receiving the customary temporary authorization for residence. He then went as far as Irun on his Bolivian passport. There he was helped to cross the border clandestinely by the delegate of the Police Attache from San Sebastian, and once across the line he used his German pass. The latter was not a regular German passport, but the grey-type document customarily furnished to Volksdeutsche, that is, ethnic Germans of other than German nationality, such as Czechoslovakian, Polish, et cetera. SARDÓN spent about three months in Germany then returned by the same route, again crossing the frontier clandestinely and subsequently resuming the use of his Bolivian passport, unmarred by any evidence of his trip. Major BELMONTE remained in Berlin, working for the Reich as before.

It was quite evident to ARNOLD that SARDON came to Europe to establish contact with his half-brother and to sound out the latter's opinions on matters of political moment in Bolivia. During the automobile ride from the port to Madrid, in the first flush of their reunion, ARNOLD recalled that practically all the conversation was devoted to rapid staccato questions and answers about mutual friends. The prisoner recalled that the names of FOIANINI, PAZ ESTENSSORO and FILIPPI were mentioned, but he did not remember any others. He did, however, recollect that during the trip SARDÓN informed his half-brother that BELMONTE' s old mother had got the Bolivian President PEÑARANDA to admit privately to her that it was then recognized that the famous "BELMONTE- WENDLER note" was a forgery; PEÑARANDA added that the BELMONTE's must understand that owing to the world situation the Bolivian Government could not very well admit this publicly for the time being.

ARNOLD subsequently learned in Amt VI that SARDÓN had made a great nuisance of himself during his Berlin sojourn. He had whined incessantly at the hardships of wartime existence, and was constantly demanding extra treatment. Among other things he complained very volubly that when he had landed in Bilbao his camera had been left forgotten in the customs shed. SARDÓN blamed ARNOLD for this; and finally Amt VI gave him a new camera to shut him up.

When he returned to Madrid SARDÓN avoided contact with Germans, although once when he saw the prisoner in a bar he said hello. To ARNOLD's knowledge he associated constantly with the ranking officer of the Bolivian Legation in the Spanish capital -ARNOLD was not sure whether it was the Minister or the Charge d'Affaires.

The 1943 meeting was the prisoner's first contact with Major BELMONTE, although of course he had heard of him in the Amt and knew that Ewald GEPPERT had once sent the Bolivian on some sort of mission to Lisbon. When ARNOLD returned to Berlin for consultation in January 1944, the Bolivian Revolution of the previous month was still fresh news and was being commented on with great interest in Amt VI. Kurt GROSS was all for sending BELMONTE right back to his country to ride the crest of the new movement, since the Bolivian was recognized as a "people's leader". GROSS hoped thereby to convert the revolution from an officers' Putsch to a popular movement; he even envisaged the possibility of BELMONTE's being chosen president in a democratic election. GROSS was already dickering for a submarine or other form of transportation to get the Bolivian back to his people, but he feared privately that BELMONTE would refuse to go. ARNOLD, who recognized the quality of BELMONTE's Indian courage, was sure that he would go, and betted GROSS 100 marks in support of his conviction.

However, after much pondering and careful stud; of all available reports coming in concerning the post-revolutionary situation, BELMONTE himself decided that if he appeared on the scene his comrades-in-arms would be fatally compromised vis-a-vis the United States: he therefore decided to remain in Germany. (Note: contrast this with the statement of Hedwig SOMMER, who believed that it was Amt VI which lost interest in sending BELMONTE, not the opposite. ARNOLD seemed on fairly sure ground concerning the point, as he had made the bet with GROSS and followed the matter closely.)

When at the end of 1944. Major BELMONTE left Germany and came to Madrid to stay, he abjured all contact with Germans, asking ARNOLD personally, in their only interview, to abstain from calling on him or even writing to him in the future. His reason for this was that he feared any such contact would harm the cause of the new Bolivian Government, with which BELMONTE identified himself in absentia. At the same time he manifested a burning desire to put himself right with the Allied authorities in Madrid in order to return to Bolivia. With only one German did BELMONTE make an exception: his mistress Helga DREWSEN.

This Fraulein arrived in Madrid from Berlin several months before the war ended sent by Amt VI. She had orders to establish contact with ARNOLD, but never did so -probably, the prisoner thought, because BELMONTE had forbidden her to. ARNOLD never did see her in Spain, although he heard that Max SCHNEEMANN had run across her and BELMONTE at a swimming pool near Madrid in the fall of 1945. To the best of the prisoner's knowledge Major BELMONTE and Miss DREWSEN are still living together in Madrid.

The HELLMUTH Affair

The prisoner was questioned briefly concerаing his knowledge of the projected arms buying tour of the Argentine Osmar Alberto HELLMUTH in mid-1943. He said only that he received orders to see that HELLMUTH got off to Berlin as soon as he arrived in Spain. When HELLMUTH failed to arrive, ARNOLD did not for a time know what had happened; but he eventually learned of the Argentine's arrest indirectly through the new Argentine Military Attache at Madrid, Colonel Carlos Alberto VELEZ, who had been on the same ship. ARNOLD never met VELEZ personally, nor did he appear to know anything at all about Reinhardt SPITZY, the agent of the Brünner Waffenwerke who dealt with the Attache. The prisoner knew vaguely that BECKER had been involved in the HELLMUTH affair, and that Hans HARNISCH of the Abwehr was the principal German figure in the case.

Miguel CERRO CEBRIAN

As mentioned in a preceding section the former Peruvian Charge d'Affaires at Berlin, Miguel CERRO CEBRIAN, was recruited as a collaborator by the German Foreign Ministry at the time he was interned at Baden Baden awaiting exchange. In what his collaboration consisted, ARNOLD never discovered; but he did know that CERRO CEBRIAN, like BELMONTE, had repudiated his country's action in breaking relations with Germany. In 1943 the Peruvian came to Madrid with his wife, and the prisoner knew that he was in contact with the German Embassy there. ARNOLD's relations with CERRO CEBRIAN were private in nature: as with GOYENOCHE and MIRANDA the prisoner made use of his talks with the former Charge in his political reporting to Amt VI, but there was never any question of remuneration or regular employment. It was mentioned above that ARNOLD suspected CERRO CEBRIAN of seeking contact with the Allies towards the end of the war.

Christian KROLL

According to ARNOLD, KROLL was a brother-in-law of the Peruvian Ambassador in Madrid, RIVERA SCHREIBER. He was by profession an engineer, and had formerly worked with the broadcasting department of the German Foreign Ministry in Berlin, but, when he found his work was being rendered sterile by lack of comprehension on the part of the Rundfunk authorities, he moved to Spain. At the time KROLL came to Madrid in 1943, Mme. EDITH FAUPEL wrote ARNOLD to get in touch with this hijo of hers -she referred to all her proteges as her "sons"- and the prisoner called on the new arrival. KROLL was hard pressed for money, so ARNOLD managed, through the intermediary of Amt VI, to place him as representative of a German firm -its name the prisoner could not recall- at a contracted salary of more or less 4.000 Pesetas a month.

In obtaining this job for the Peruvian ARNOLD told Amt VI that KROLL would be very useful to the SD in view of his relationship to Ambassador RIVERA SCHREIBER. In this, however, the prisoner wilfully exaggerated, since he was fully aware that relations between the two were cool and that RIVERA SCHREIBER would never confide in his brother-in-law. And so it turned out: ARNOLD and KROLL often met in cafes and bars or at dinner, and discussed the politico-military situation as it affected South America, but Amt VI was not satisfied with the information gained from the Peruvian and scolded ARNOLD on several occasions.

The prisoner added that KROLL, who was of German-Peruvian parentage, became one of the closest personal friends he had in Madrid: he was absolutely honest and frank. At the beginning of 1946 KROLL returned to Peru, and the prisoner heard no more of him.

Carlos CRUZ (*) . ..

* The name of Carlos CRUZ figured several times in the correspondence of General FAUPEL's Ibero-Amerikanisches Institut (see POLAD airgram.no. 354 of Dec. 20, '45, item no. 11.). In 1543 Colonel CRUZ, then in Vienna, wrote to General FAUPEL and offered himself without reserve to the cause of the "New Europe'. He asked and got recommendations to leading personalities of the Falange in Madrid, where he then planned to go instead of returning with the other Chilean diplomats to Chile. (CRUZ, like BELMONTE and CERRO CEBRIAN- repudiated his country's breach in relations with the Axis.)

The former Chilean Consul in Vienna, Carlos CRUZ, came to Madrid in an attempt to obtain Spanish representations for his country and to sell Chilean merchandise in Spain. ARNOLD did not recall how he got to know CRUZ, remembering only that the meeting had been a chance one. Their association lasted only about two months: ARNOLD recollected that he asked CRUZ about Chilean politics and that they talked of Argentina -the ex-Consul had a very poor opinion of Argentine professional politicians in general and of Colonel PERON in particular- he considered PERON a demagogue and a politicker.

The Chilean traveled a good bit around Spain trying to drum up trade. The prisoner recalled that CRUZ was away from Madrid when he, ARNOLD, was arrested by the Spanish police, and that while he was in jail CRUZ returned to Chile.(*)

Dr. FERNANDEZ MORAN

FERNANDEZ MORAN was another of Mme. FAUPEL's entourage of young proteges -he was a Venezuelan who had studied in Germany since he was fourteen years old, and had not gone home in the 1942 exchange because he wanted to finish his medical studies. At the age of twenty-four he received his doctorate, but by that time it was very difficult to get out of Germany. ARNOLD did not know how FERNANDEZ MORAN had come into contact, with Kurt GROSS, but believed it was through the intermediary of Mme. FAUPEL. In any event, the connection was purely personal -ARNOLD emphasized that the young Venezuelan made no premise whatsoever to work for Amt VI; GROSS was merely helping him to get out of Germany in deference to the wishes of Mme. FAUPEL.

GROSS gave FERNANDEZ MORAN ARNOLD's address in Madrid, and in June or July of 1944 the Venezuelan visited him. As soon as he had got his papers in order and received money from home, FERNANDEZ MORAN returned to Venezuela. The prisoner believed that this happened while he himself was in Vigo awaiting the arrival of the Passim, in September 1944, since he did not recall FERNANDEZ MORAN's departure and only later -in about November- got a note saying the young doctor had arrived safely in Venezuela.

IX. Relations with SD - Portugal

Sturmbannfuehrer NASSENSTEIN

The prisoner was cuestioned regarding his relations with Sturmbannfuehrer ARNOLD may be mistaken about the date of CRUZ' return. In any case, a further item in the FAUPEL files is a greetings telegram dated January 1944 in Buenos Aires, from CRUZ to General FAUPEL. NASSENSTEIN, the Amt VI representative in Lisbon, and with the two Brazilian integralists who collaborated with the SD, Plinio SALGADO and Luiz ALBUQUERQUE. ARNOLD affirmed that he had only casual contact with NASSENSTEIN on the several occasions that the latter visited Madrid. Regarding SALGADO and ALBUQUERQUE the prisoner knew only that the Amt was at one time very much interested in gaining their collaboration, but that NASSENSTEIN did not succeed in getting much good out of them. SALGADO was more political philosopher than activist, ARNOLD also got the impression that he was too cowardly to be of any use to the SD. ALBUQUERQUE was an unknown quantity.

Karl Ernst von MERCK

Von MERCK was included by Hedwig SCANNER among the Amt VI people in Lisbon who worked under NASSENSTEIN, and ARNOLD was questioned concerning him. He knew that during a certain time von MERCK worked in Portugal, but he was unaware of any of the details of his activity for NASSENSTEIN. ARNOLD did, however, come into contact with Von MERCK when the latter moved to Spain, and related the following concerning him.

Von MERCK and the prisoner knew each other in Buenos Aires, where the former was a Party member and a reporter for the German-language Deutsche La Plata Zeitung. Later, on one of his trips to Berlin, ARNOLD found von MERCK there working for the Voelkischer Beobachter; and he subsequently went to Lisbon as a correspondent for that paper, in December 1944 or January 1945 von MERCK left Lisbon for Madrid, continuing his journalistic work in Spain.

The prisoner saw a good bit of his former friend in Madrid, but said that while in Spain von MERCK could not be classed as a collaborator of the SD -he never gave ARNOLD any kind of a report, and only discussed the political situation with him. Von MERCK, ARNOLD said, was a clever and intelligent journalist, but he was almost totally deaf and conversation with him was rather difficult. He spoke perfect Spanish, his father having been German and his mother a Guatamaltecan. In Madrid von MERCK married one of the employees of the German Embassy, but ARNOLD never got to know the lady.

X. The arrival of the Passim

The prisoner was required to tell of his part in the arrival in Spain of the Passim, a naval cutter of Abwehr Marine under the command of Captain GARBERS which was making its return trip to Europe after having delivered the SD agents HANSEN and SCHROELL on the Argentine coast in 1944.

In July 1944 ARNOLD received word from Berlin that a sailing vessel was on its way to Spain with some SD men aboard; it had originally been destined for France, but was unable to land there owing to the Allied invasion, whereupon radio orders had been given the captain to head for Vigo. The prisoner was instructed to go there and receive it, taking.care of the crew and the cargo. He proceeded to Vigo, hired a ten-ton launch with a crew of two sailors -they were Gallegos and the old-time smugglers- and went to the north entrance of Vigo harbor to await the cutter's arrival. (ARNOLD had already instructed Berlin to radio the Passim to wait near the north entrance until he could contact it and take charge of the cargo and agents before the ship entered port.)

ARNOLD's plan was to transfer the whole crew and cargo to his launch, take everything into Vigo and dispatch it clandestinely to Madrid, then return and sink the Passim near the coast. ARNOLD and his crew lurked about Vigo harbor for almost three weeks in September 1944, fishing and swimming and occasionally going ashore for supplies. When the cutter finally did arrive, however, they missed it. Firstly, the Passim had been erroneously described to the prisoner by Berlin as a 46-ton vessel with two masts, whereas in reality it had three. Secondly, Captain GARBERS disobeyed the order to tarry in the north entry of the harbor, and went right into the port at night.

The cutter arrived in Vigo about 4 a.m. As soon as there was daylight Heinz LANGE, who was one of the passengers, got himself taken ashore and made a hurried tour of the town's eating-places until he chanced upon ARNOLD breakfasting in a small bar. The two knew each other from Buenos Aires, and the prisoner said it was like seeing a ghost when the dishevelled LANGE appeared at the door in the early morning light. He had known that LANGE was among the passengers, since he had recognized his cover-name of JENSEN in the original communication from Berlin; but ARNOLD had not known the other cover-names which were mentioned and did not discover until later that the remaining two passengers were Philipp IMHOF and Juergen SIEVERS.

While LANGE was rushing about town in search of ARNOLD the Vigo Abwehr agent Walter GIESE -whom ARNOLD knew as Alfredo THOMAS- had managed to get in touch with the Passim and smuggle ashore to the German Consulate all the correspondence and other material which LANGE had brought along from BECKER's organization in Argentina. ( The following was read in a report of the interrogation of Walter GIESE by G-2: GIESE, working in Vigo, was advised by Abwehr III (Kurt von ROHRSCHEIDT) that a cutter was to arrive with two SD agents aboard. The SD man (ARNOLD) had been instructed to receive them, but GIESE was advised to remain in the background in case he were needed. The SD man did miss the boat and GIESE had to care for the cutter when it reached port, getting the cargo ashore. The crew was interned for a few weeks.

In this, GIESE'was aided by a Spaniard, who had formerly been representative of a German steamship line in Vigo -the prisoner could not recall his name. There was not time however, to save the crew and the vessel and they were interned, along with SIEVERS and IMHOF, for a matter of some weeks. At the intercession of the Embassy they were eventually released and allowed to proceed by air to Berlin.

LANGE's foresight in promptly abandoning the ship was justified, as he escaped internment and delay. He and ARNOLD went to the Consulate and examined the material -LANGE had sunk much of it en route when there was.a scare about a British warship, but there remained two big packages about two feet square. The prisoner opened them and leafed through the contents, noting only that these consisted of reports, photographs, diagrams, et cetera. Then he repacked everything in dry paper, as the material was very damp. ARNOLD and LANGE went to Madrid with their burden and the prisoner forwarded it immediately to Amt VI. LANGE remained in Madrid for three or four weeks then went on to Berlin. ARNOLD never saw him again, nor did he know what had become of him.

X. The SCHNEEMAN and ZUEHLSDORF mission

The Microdot Machines

The story of Max SCHNEEMANN and Hans Christian ZUEHLSDORF has been adequately covered in the interrogation of Hedwig SOMMER and in the recent questioning of SCHNEEMANN himself (POLAD despatch no. 7386 of October 15, 1946). These two arrived in Madrid in March 1945, and were temporarily assigned to ARNOLD for handling pending their projected trip to northern South America, ZUEHLSDORF sailed for Buenos Aires after a few months in Spain, and was subsequently picked up by the Allied authorities at Trinidad; SCHNEEMANN remained in Spain until his repatriation in the same airlift with ARNOLD.

SCHNEEMANN's testimony regarding the microdot equipment in his and ARNOLD's possession, while willingly given, was confused and incomplete. ARNOLD was therefore required to supplement SCHNEEMANN's story. Although his version did not agree in every respect with that of his colleague, ARNOLD's testimony appears more integrated and probable.

SCHNEEMANN claimed that ARNOLD received a microdot-machine intended for him and ZUEHLSDORF, but refused to give it to them; that ARNOLD later did give SCHNEEMANN a smaller, inferior apparatus, which he, SCHNEEMANN, subsequently sold to the Spanish for 8,000 Pesetas; and that still later ARNOLD gave the first machine to the Spanish.

The prisoner did not contradict SCHNEEMANN as to the number of machines, but affirmed that his colleague was mistaken in supposing that he had been given the inferior of the two; they were absolutely identical, ARNOLD said. There was a smaller apparatus, in more or less cigar-box size, scheduled to arrive from Berlin: but it was to have been an improved model rather than a poorer one. Moreover, it never was delivered. The prisoner's version of the matter, reconstructed after considerable checking, follows:

In mid-March, 1945, ZUEHLSDORF arrived in Madrid by airplane, to te followed at the end of the month by SCHNEEMANN. Shortly before ZUEHLSDORF's arrival Amt VI had sent to ARNOLD a camera for taking the minute photographs known in the Amt VI as "Mipu-s" (an abbreviation for mikropunkte or microdots). It was intended that ARNOLD should learn how to use the the machine and to this end there also appeared in Madrid a Chilean woman named Emma PÉREZ (for whom see below), who was to make initial use of the apparatus and at the same time instruct ARNOLD how to carry on with it. But the end of the war with its attendant confusion was followed closely by the prisoner's arrest by the Spanish in June 1945, with the result that he not only never took a microdot lesson but never even got a proper look inside the case which inclosed the apparatus. (This was a regular leather suitcase.) At the same time, Berlin informed ARNOLD that it would soon forward to him the smaller, improved model, but this never arrived. The prisoner believed that the Amt's failure to send it owed to the impossible state of communications in the closing months of the war. Hearing ARNOLD speak of this smaller apparatus was probably what confused SCHNEEMANN, the prisoner thought. Then, at about the time ZUEHLSDORF arrived --either in the same airplane or in the one directly before or after it- a second Mipu machine arrived for ZUEHLSDORF's use, to be taken along on the mission to South America, ARNOLD insisted that this second apparatus was for ZUEHLSDORF and not for SCHNEEMANN. Along with it came a radio-transmitter, and both machines were encased in metal cases, hermetically soldered. The Mipu apparatus was identical in size with that which had already been received by ARNOLD, the only difference being that the case was of metal instead of leather.

In May and June 1945, respectively, SCHNEEMANN and ARNOLD were arrested by the Spanish for different reasons and spent the summer in jail. ZUEHLSDORF, in the meanwhile, left Spain for South America. When he got out, ARNOLD gave the second apparatus (the metal-cased one) to the Spanish captain BAHAMONDE Y GUITAN, in order to keep on good terms with Spanish officialdom. BAHAMONDE subsequently passed the apparatus on to Comandante Pablo ÁLVAREZ LARA, of the Spanish General Staff. ARNOLD also let ALVAREZ LARA have the metal-encased transmitter left by ZUEHLSDORF, although the Spaniard refused to accept it as a gift and insisted on paying the prisoner 4,000 Pesetas for it. ARNOLD wanted to give ÁLVAREZ LARA the other 40-watt transmitter sent to him by Amt VI some months before the war's end, but he discovered that the Spaniard with whom he had left it for safe-keeping had himself sold it to one of the Spanish intelligence services, keeping the money. The prisoner averred that, he would be very happy to help locate this individual, as he was a swindler of the first category, but the name escaped him.

Before being jailed SCHNEEMANN had got possession of the first leather encased apparatus, probably through its custodian, Emma PÉREZ, with whom he was on intimate terms. After his release SCHNEEMANN lent this machine to the policeman FERNÁNDEZ RIVAS, and subsequently got it back to sell to ÁLVAREZ LARA for 8,000 Pesetas. During all this time SCHNEEMANN kept importuning ARNOLD to give the ZUEHLSDORF machine to him, SCHNEEMANN, claiming that it was by rights his. (...)

Emma PÉREZ ("NEGRA")

ARNOLD did not know the first name of this Chilean woman, whose nickname was NEGRA, but Max SCHNEEMANN confirmed that it was Emma. She appears to be identical with a certain Emma PÉREZ B., also a Chilean, several of whose letters were found in the FAUPEL files: the latter Emma PÉREZ confided to Mme. FAUPEL that she was working for the R.S.H.A. In any case, the Chilean woman came to Madrid from Berlin a few weeks before the end of the war. All that Amt VI told Arnold was that she was competent in the handling of the Mipu camera and that he was to take lessons from her: Berlin thought this important since it was expected that air communication with Madrid would soon be cut off.

Amt VI sent ARNOLD a sum of money for Miss PEREZ—it was either 6,000 or 9,000 Pesetas—and when she arrived he gave it to her and she started work. Before she had achieved any tangible results she blew out a tube in the machine—the Madrid current was different than that of Berlin—and before ARNOLD could get her another one the war was over. So the prisoner never.learned about microdot photography.

ARNOLD had very little personal contact with Miss PEREZ, but he gathered that she was not particularly sympathetic to National Socialism, having offered her services to Amt VI in order to be able to leave Germany and salvage the 10,000-15,000 marks which she had saved in the Reich. This money she never dii get, although ARNOLD gave her something when he liquidated his organization (see below). She and SCHNEEMANN were very friendly, and she lived in the same boarding house with him until he was arrested in May 1945. The prisoner believed that after her work with Amt VI ceased she received help from one of the Chilean diplomats in Madrid: he himself lost touch with her after his arrest, but believed she might still be in Madrid. ARNOLD added that he got the impression that kiss Perez' real political sentiments were more leftist than otherwise.

Max SCHNEEMANN

With-the-exception of the conflicting statements regarding the disposal of the itipu equipment, nothing the prisoner said about his colleague was fundamentally in contradiction to what SCHNEEMANN told about himself in interrogation. ARNOLD did add, however, that SCHNEEMANN drank too much for an agent, and when he was drunk in a public bar he would tell anyone who had on a blue shirt that he was a German. Undoubtedly, thought the prisoner, this was what had caused SCHNEEMANN to be caught in the trap of the impostors who posed as policemen and swindled him of his ring and camera—one of their gang heard him talking freely in a bar and thought: good, here was a victir.

SCHNEEMANN, of course, committed the further imbecility, when he went to the police to reclaim his stolen property, of carrying on his person his false seaman's papers in the name of Angel BLANCO BLANCO, and at the same time telling the police that he was not Angel BLANCO BLANCO but the German Max SCHNEEMANN.

False documents

Most forged papers were furnished by Amt VT-F, although there were also means of obtaining certain types of these locally. Whenever the prisoner needed a German passport, as in the case of Ruben SARDÓN, it was of course no great matter to obtain one at the Office of the Police Attache. ARNOLD simply furnished, photographs of the subject together with the desired name.

To obtain Spanish documents was usually merely a matter of bribing the proper employee, but the prisoner never made the contact in person in such cases. For SCHNEEMANN and ZUEHLSDORF, as well as for himself, he obtained merchant seamen's papers which were legitimate, having belonged to mariners who had left the sea. These were bought in their original condition by Joaquin LOPEZ, through the intermediary of a friend, from an employee of a maritime office in Bilbao. The friend paid from 50 to 100 Pesetas apiece for them, and LOPEZ bought them from him for 200 or 250 Pesetas. In Madrid ARNOLD's organization changed the photographs and replaced the rubber-stamp seals by a paper-transfer process with a stamp-ink pad.

As mentioned below the prisoner paid HELGUERO VALCARCEL 500 Pesetas for his safe conduct and driver's license in the name of Carlos ALONSO. The lawyer, however, never told him where or how he obtained these documents.

XIII. Liquidation of the ARNOLD organization

In the months of May and June, 1945, after the war was over, ARNOLD liquidated his organization. Following the example of the German Embassy and many of the German commercial houses he gave each of his then remaining collaborators more or less six months salary in advance, from a large sum sent him by Berlin as follows:
Pablo SILVEYRA ... 30,000 ptas.
Joaquin LOPEZ ..... 15,000 ptas.
Jose Luis DIAZ ...... 15,000 ptas.
Francisco GOICOECHEA .... 12,000 ptas.
Alejandro MINK ...... 6,000 or 8,000 ptas.
Emma PEREZ ..... 10,000 or 12,000 ptas.

The prisoner included Emma PEREZ with the others because she wanted to get back to Chile and he did not know what to do with her. Later, for her passage, he also gave her 7,000 Argentine pesos which had shortly before been sent him by the Amt through Lisbon, as PEREZ never succeeded in getting her Reichsmarks savings out of Germany. SCHNEEMANN and ZUEHLSDORF supposedly had most of the money which had been originally entrusted them for their mission—ARNOLD did not know how much it was—and as they were not considered part of his regular organization he left them out of the division.

After the above sum hid been paid out the prisoner still had between 90,000 and 100,000 peseta. Of this sum he later had to pay out 60,000 Pesetas, as well as his own car, to the lawyer who got him and keywald out of jail: 50,000 as the price of the deal and 10;000 more for the actual bail. ARNOLD 's automobile—an Opel with license number MU 5191 — he later sacrificed to the lawyer, Antonio HELGUERO VALCARCEL, to make a further deal with the desk officer (oficial de mesa) at the Juzgado nº 3 so that ARNOLD and keywald should not have to report personally tihile free on bail (...)

XIV. Arrest in the banknote affair

Much has been written in other interrogations, as well as undoubtedly in the records of the Spanish police themselves, regarding the well known case of the counterfeit British banknotes allegedly received by ARNOLD and/or KEYWALD from Amt VI for use in financing their operations. It has been established with some authority that pounds were supplied to some of the missions being equipped to go to the Western Hemisphere.

Hedwig SOMMER under interrogation affirmed that she was instructed by Kurt GROSS to pack a large amount in pounds in about thirty tin waterproof boxes for HANSEN and SCHROELL just before taey left aboard the Passim in April 1944 -She believed that they were given a large sum to take with them. However, SOMMER admitted that her assumption that the money was counterfeit was based on an indirect reference which she happened to see one day in GROSS' correspondence; and when she later heard that persons had been arrested in Portugal for passing counterfeit pound notes she drew a fairly logical inference. SOMMER said she believed that ARNOLD had received a supply, though she thought that most had gone to NASSENSTEIN at Lisbon.

As far as could be gathered from available briefing and from the statements of ARNOLD and MEYWALD, who were the two principal protagonists, the British Consulate's accusations against them were based almost entirely on the allegations of Armin SCHMIDT, a recognized forger and swindler, in whose possession a quantity of the counterfeit banknotes was discovered. SCHMIDT later escaped from Spain with his partner and paramour Ana de POMBO, but nothing in the briefing indicated where this couple now are, or to what authorities SCHMIDT made the allegations outlined above.

During five months' detention and interrogation the Spanish police were apparently unable to substantiate SCHMIDT's charges against ARNOLD and MEYWALD. In the present interrogation ARNOLD refused adamantly to admit to any complicity in the affair of the banknotes, or to any knowledge of their origin. (...)

XV. Relations with the Spanish intelligence services

ARNOLD's detention for the banknote affair lasted form June 21 to October 16 1945. Following his release from jail he saw that with the war over and Germany defeated he would have to live by his wits and, above all, to curry favor wherever he could with the Spanish authorities. There follows a discussion of the personalities with whom he came into contact in this connection:

Captain BAHAMONDE Y GUITAN and Comandante ALVAREZ LARA.

Arnold believed that Captain BAHAMONDE was not a relative of General FRANCO, as stated by MEYWALD: as a matter of fact, the prisoner rather thought the name was spelled "BAAMONDE", without the "h", but he was not sure. The captain was a previous acquaintance of MEYWALD, as well as of Ana de POMBO and Armin SCHMIDT and he visited ARNOLD and MEYWALD frequently while they were in jail. He did everytning he could to alleviate their situation, and proved himself a staunch and agreeable friend.

Once ARNOLD was released he bethought himself to make use of BAHAMONDE as a channel to the sort of Spanish official connections which he would need if he were to remain a free man. Accordingly, in October 1945, he offered the captain the Mipu camera, calculating that since BAHAMONDE was not connected with intelligence he would in turn get in touch with an officer of that service and pass the apparatus en to him. ARNOLD figured correctly: BAHAMONDE gave the camera to Comandante PABLO ALVARES LARA, and soon introduced ARNOLD to him. ALVAREZ LARA, who accepted the camera and promised ARNOLD the aid and protection of the Spanish authorities, was a member of the Spanish General staff and also, the prisoner believed, connected with the S.I.M. (Spanish Military Intelligence) He also had certain contact with the chief of the intelligence service of the Falange, GONZALEZ VICEN (or VINCEN, or VINCENT).

In November, in order to cement his advantage still further, the prisoner also offered ALVARES LARA the transmitter left by Hans ZUEHLSDORF; this the Spaniard accepted, but only on the condition that ARNOLD allow him to pay 4,000 Pesetas for it. As mentioned above, the prisoner hoped to pass over his other transmitter as well, but discovered that it had been disposed of by the Spaniard in whose care he had left it.

ARNOLD also promised to put ALVAREZ LARA in touch with Max SCHNEEMANN, who might let him have the Migu machine in his possession -the policeman FERNANDEZ RIVAS was holding it at the time, the prisoner understood. For the first meeting with SCHNEEMANN, ALVAREZ LARA picked the house of a certain Captain Emilio VILLA CALZADILLA, a friend of his who lived in Colonia del Viso. ARNOLD went to that house in a cab, while SCHNEEMANN and Karla BANDT followed in another, some five minutes later. This was in January 1946, the prisoner believed. ARNOLD merely introduced SCHNEEMANN and had a few words with him, then went out to wait in the cab. SCHNEEMANN asked ARNOLD where the other Kipu was,and the prisoner told him he had already given it to BAHAMONDE Y GUITAN. ARNOLD subsequently learned that SCHNEEMANN sold his Mipu for 8,000 Pesetas, and understood that ALVAREZ LARA had offered him also the protection of the Spanish authorities.

At this point the prisoner broke out exasperatedly to exclaim that these promises of protection on the part of BAHAMONDE and ALVAREZ LARA were made with no other end than to gain the confidence of ARNOLD and his associates and to keep track of them, and finally abandon them to whatever fate might be in store. For example, ALVAREZ LARA promised the prisoner a Spanish passport with which he could get to

South America; but in spite of numerous reminders he never received it all he got from the Spanish during this period was an occasional invitation to dinner in a restaurant and a series of translation jobs from German to Spanish by means of which he earned a total maximum of 4,000 Pesetas. when arnold was finally arrested in his asturias hideaway, at San Juan de la Arana near oviedo, he managed to send a telegram to ALVAREZ LARA, but the latter never visited him in jail nor did anything to prevent his delivery to the United States (...)

Captain VILLA CALZADILLA; Captain SANCHEZ LARQUE

VILLA CALZADILLA, at whose house the meeting with SCHNEEMANN was arranged, was known to the prisoner only casually as a friend of ALVAREZ LARA. Their intercourse was limited to an occasional greeting in passing.

Captain Pablo SANCHEZ LARQUE of the S.I.M. was a neighbor of ARNOLD's in Calle Lista; the prisoner met him through MEYWALD, with whom he worked a good bit. In spite of SCHMIDT's accusation that ARNOLD had" given some of the British banknotes to SANCHEZ LARQUE, the prisoner affirmed that he had no more than a nodding acquaintance with the captain, and certainly no dealings in connection with intelligence work. Comandante TOLEDO, SANCHEZ' LARQUE's superior officer, was known to ARNOLD only by name from certain allusions in MEYWALD's conversation.

Betrayal by HELGUERO VALCARCEL and FERNANDEZ RIVAS

In the section devoted to the liquidation of ARNOLD's organization mention was made of money paid to the lawyer Antonio HELGUERO VALCARCEL for gaining MEYWALD's and ARNOLD's freedom and for subsequent favors. One day when the prisoner was still in jail he was visited by HELGUERO VALCARCEL in the company of the policeman FERNANDEZ RIVAS, whom ARNOLD had not previously met. The lawyer practised in Madrid at Calle Breton de los Herreros 40, 2nd floor. He offered to get MEYWALD and ARNOLD out of jail for 50,000 Pesetas —25,000 for each— and the prisoner promised him that sum.

In October 1945, accordingly, HELGUERO arranged their release on bail at 5,000 Pesetas each and ARNOLD paid him the agreed 50,000 Pesetas. HELGUERO gave 5,000 of this sum to FERNANDEZ RIVAS in ARNOLD's presence. As mentioned above the prisoner subsequently gave his Opel automobile and more money to HELGUERO VALCARCEL to arrange for the privilege of not having to report every fifteen days to the police. Both ARNOLD and MEYWALD could report themselves in a private house, in a bar, et cetera, anywhere in Spain. Later, when ARNOLD traveled north, he filled out four empty blanks and left them with VALCARCEL to be handed in when due.

When the Allies began clamoring for the Spanish to hand over ARNOLD for repatriation, HELGUERO came to him and offered false documents of identity. The prisoner accepted and chose the name Carlos ALONSO KLEIBEL, picking the first two names to agree with the initials on his clothes and the last, which he considered to be that of a Swiss mother, because of his Germanic appearance. For 500 Pesetas HELGUERO delivered to ARNOLD a safe conduct valid for six months and a driver's license, both in the new name. But the lawyer and FERNANDEZ RIVAS then began preying on ARNOLD, blackmailing him for more and more money until finally, when they realized that the source was dry and there were no more funds, they denounced his false name to the police and told everything they knew about him.

Since the end of the war ARNOLD had lived continually in hiding, making a little money translating from German to Spanish: one book he translated was Lt. General von RIECKHOFF's Trumpf oder Bluff?, explaining the downfall of the Luftwaffe. ARNOLD abjured almost all contact with Germans, and for weeks on end never even went out on the street. In the summer of 1946 he decided on a change of scenery, hoping to get out in the open air a bit and to live more cheaply. He thus moved as secretly as possible to Asturias, at San Juan de la Arena, near Oviedo, and was living there when he was picked up for repatriation. Only two Madrid people—ALVAREZ LARA and HELGUERO VALCARCEL—knew where ARNOLD was, and the prisoner subsequently learned from the police that it was HELGUERO who had betrayed him.

HELGUERO VALCARCEL and FERNANDEZ RIVAS, the prisoner was certain, earned further cash for telling the police all they knew; ARNOLD said it would not surprise him in the least if they had not also tapped the American and British Embassies for what they could get. He felt that the arrests of SCHNEEMANN, Karla BANDT and MEYWALD, as well as his own, could probably be laid at the door of the two informers.

In jail, the night before the airlift of August 23, the prisoner learned through an indiscretion of the same FERNANDEZ RIVAS that he and several others were to leave for Germany the following morning. It was between one and two in the morning when RIVAS appeared in the cell block and gave out the news; the prisoners also noticed a few precautions, such as ringing down heavy shutters on their cells. Arnold had dined well that evening -inmates were allowed to send out for meals- and he still had a liter of wine and about a quarter-bottle of cognac. He also had a dozen Luminal sleeping tablets and one of the minute poison capsules of the type used by Himmler to kill himself: the latter he always carried on his person. ARNOLD thereupon settled down with the two bottles and began methodically to take the tablets, with a drink or two of wine and cognac between each one. He took the whole dozen before he lost consciousness.

Next morning the prison guards found ARNOLD in a comatose condition, and began treating him. First they pomped out his stomach, then gave him cold baths, then many injections -his arm was sore for days. He recalled practically nothing of all this- when he came to he was in Germany. His poison capsule, which he had not taken, had disappeared along with his fountain pen, money and other effects. ARNOLD believed that the reason the sleeping pills had not killed him was connected with the amount of liquor he drank at the same time.

"Virtually no assets which should go to the reparations pool have been taken over by the Allies. A number of obvious German concerns such as banks, news agencies and shipping companies have been taken over from the Germans by Spanish government controllers. But the Germans continue in charge and the Allies have no real say. Even in these businesses it is clear that real German assets have been salted away elsewhere. German technicians and business experts were sent to Spain to become naturalized citizens and a great many married into the Spanish aristocracy and commercial elite. AUERBACH RUZSLI / AUERBACH RUPLI , Georg Rene, alias Rene RUPLI . DOB. Staverin (?),2 May 1900. Arrested April 4, 1946. Repatriated on SS Haighland Monarch 7 March, 1946. B-485 on Agents' List and III priority List. Internee No. 609533 in No 6 CIC Neuengamme. In hospital and not interrogated until 29 May 1946. Relible source reports that both Rene Rupli and wife Sussane were German agents working under Gustav LENZ.

Report on interrogation by OMGUS, Finance Division on May 29, 1946:

"The subject explained that his real name is AUERBACH, that he used the name RUPLI on his emigration from Germany. He gave a verbal account of his trip from Hamburg to Spain,. which account was about in line with the story AUERBACH had previously given the American Embassy in Madrid. He disclaimed any but unpleasant contacts with the Gestapo. AUERBACH said that he is Jewish and that ha was fleeing to Spain on this last trip from Germany, having acquired a false passport. At Stuttgart his passport was picked up by the Gestapo and another false one was issued, also in the name of RUPLI, but listing his nationality as Swiss. This trip took place in May of 1941. AUERBACH said that he had returned to Germany once since leaving, taking a short trip of five or six days in 1942 or 1943. AUERBACH appeared to be very unstable and frequently talked incoherently. The interrogators are of the opinion that the subject is a narcotics addict.

Representing himself as a theatrical producer director - an "impresserio"- AUERBACH insisted that a tremendous amount of German external assets exist in Spain in the form of proceeds from the entertainment field.

It was stated by the subject that there has existed in Spain an institution or association known as Stagma, the full styling of which is Spanische Authoren Gesellschaft, or Sociedad de Autores Españoles. AUERBACH said that ha does not know either the exact name of this association or the addrees but insisted that it is a well known organization. He claimed that the vice-president of the organization is one Jose Juan CADENAS. The offices of the association were said to be in the same building as those of the Spanische Iberia Versicherungs Gesellschaft America del Sur. The Stagma was also said to have approximately 300 employees.

AUERBACH claimed that several millions of Pesetas are owed Germany by Stagma for rights to the produotlon of theatricals, publishing and production rights of music and scripts. The daily proceeds were estimated to have been about Pesetas 3.500 over the last two years, of which more than ten percent were to have gone into German hands. He explained that during the war these funds were not transmitted to Germany but were accumulated for eventual payment which was never made.

Concerning his Abwehr activities and association with one LENZ, German agent in Spain, AUERBACH emphatically denied both. He added that he knew a Herr HALM and Herr von ROHESCHEID (misspelled for ROHRSCHEID) who had Abwehr connections. They approached him with a request to take a package to Africa; he refused, and had no further dealings with them.

Information from the Embassy in Madrid has linked AUERBACH with one MOHR, a known German agent. The subject explained this as follows: An actress named Strandzinger was an acquaintance of AUERBACH and the mistress of MOHR. She prevailed upon the subject to meet MOHR. The latter spoke of investing in an AUERBACH production, but was actually penniless. AUERBACH claimed to have paid a hotel bill for and to have loaned money to MOHR before he discovered the false pretences.

In respect of an acquaintanceship with Emil LANG, the subject said it was only slight. LANG was represented as a wealthy German who possessed an illegal Swiss passport. AUERBACH believed that LANG owned a wholesale furs establishment at Avenida General Francisco Franco 104, Madrid.

AUERBACH admitted organizing the Viennese Revue which was financed by KAPPS and JOHANN, but denied any Abwehr activity in this connection. KAPPS and JOHANN were thought to have interests in a gas company in Madrid. A lawyer, DOVAL by name, with an office in the Banco Viscaja (misspelled for Vizcaya), does business for and protects KAPPS. The latter is a German who came to Spain in 1942 or 1943.

AZERROD, Jacques / Jacob. Brother and partner of Moises AZERROD.
AZERROD / AZERRAD, Moises. From Roberts Commission, Geographical Card File on Possible Art-Looting Subjects › Africa:

"AZERROD, Moise and brother. Tangier, Morocco The AZERROD brothers are reported to be selling looted silver and jewelry brought to Tangier in small vessels registered at Vigo, Spain, Subject is in charge of supplying provisions to these ships. Part of a silver service was sold to Ernst OESCH of Tangier (proclaimed list) through Hans HUBER for 0.

Most of solid plate, a jewel case, and a mantelpiece set smuggled to Tetuan. AZERRODs prefer items that can be melted down, avoiding trace. Exact origin unknown. Silver sold in Tangier looted by Nazis from ancient southern French chateaux.

Subject and his brother, Jacques, have bought motor launch from HUBER (see HUBERT, Hans) for 7,500 Pesetas which they intended to use for fishing and for contraband. Also acquired from Renschausen & Co. through HUBER a safe, some furniture, films and a heap of objects of German origin. See source for details on above mentioned deals.

Roberts Commission - Protection of Historical Monuments … Subject File › Spain: Safehaven Report dated 1 March, 1945:

"According to an OSS report of February 2, 1945, classified G 2, old silver which was looted- from southern Franch chateaux during the Nazi occupation, was brought to Tangier in small vessels registered at Vigo, Spain, and is being sold in Tangier and Spanish Morooco by AZERROD brothers.

Among the items brought to Tangier for sale were an ordinary silver service and some solid silver plates from which the initials and e emble markings had been removed. In addition, it appears that a lewel case and a mantelpiece have been smuggled into this area and are now in Tetuan. It is stated that a part of the ordinary silver service sold for 14,000 Spanish Pese-tas (approximately 0) to Ernst OESCH of Tangier (P.L.) through Hans HUBERT.

The AZERROD brothers are searching primarily for items that may be changed or melted down without leaving any trace. It has been impossible to ascertain the exact origin of this silver. Although it cannot be confirmed, the brothers AZERROD especially Moise, who takes charge of supplying the ships with provisions, have received different objects by the same route. HUBERT has intervened in all this traffic."

ELIAH MEYER: «THE FACTUAL LIST OF NAZIS PROTECTED BY SPAIN»

Esta es la lista de más de cuatro mil responsables de la política nazi en España, y sus redes de financiación, sin adornos literarios, sin calificativos ni epítetos, cuyas fuentes son los miles de documentos desclasificados de los servicios de Inteligencia aliados.

Todo lo contrario de un trabajo académico al uso, en los que la historia sólo es la trama literaria donde se salpica de manera puramente anecdótica, como referencia bibliográfica, aquellos documentos oficiales, militares, gubernamentales y de los servicios de inteligencia, entre los que el historiador escoge los que ilustren su punto de vista, para llegar a las conclusiones que su tesis requiera.

Pero la historia de un mundo dividido en dos frentes: países en lucha contra el nazismo y una Alemania cegada por el antisemitismo que nos cuentan es, como poco, una verdad sesgada si no una patraña. Los aliados situaron a los jerarcas de la política nazi en los mismos puestos claves que habían tenido con Hitler, y los mismas tacticas sucias y las mismas fuentes de financiación ilegales fueron utilizados en la guerra fría con la excusa de la amenaza comunista.

Desde el final de la primera guerra mundial, los alemanes se saltaron la prohibición del rearme, y de la industria armamentística colocando sus empresas en España, con testaferros autóctonos, una salida airosa para los miembros de las familias tronadas, ya fueran liberales o conservadores, de la misma manera que escogieron marchantes de arte judíos y gentiles, sin más afinidades que el lucro, para blanquear la procedencia de las obras de arte expoliadas.

Una piadosa amnesia ha permitido hacer creer que los liberales insignes de nuestro país fomentaron los Institutos alemanes en España por amor a la filosofía de Krause, la musica de Wagner o la literatura de Goethe, y no por ser el centro de agitación y propaganda de la Alemania hitleriana, que financiaba generosamente los vuelos retóricos de los intelectuales españoles, con vocación de paniaguados y servilones como pocos.

The factual list of nazis protected by Spain, además, es muy útil para comprobar que hay una explicacion más pedestre que su amor a España y su laboriosidad para que algunos de nuestros ancestros de origen alemán se hicieran con un capitalito y se quedaran aquí, donde acogemos entusiastas a todo aquél que tenga dinero o algo que lo valga.

De nada: ya saben que me gusta ser útil.

SAGITARIO: HORÓSCOPO PARA MANDUCANTES AFLIGIDOS DE «COIUNDAE TRISTITIA»

Sagitario (nacidos entre el 22 de noviembre y el 22 de diciembre):

Como los malos actores, en la cama y en la mesa sobreactúas: eso de exhibir el set de sacacorchos, termómetro, alcoholímetro, de diseño italiano, inspirado en las herramientas de dentista, para una botella de Rioja del montón, dar un sorbito al vino y enjuagarte con él las arcadas gingivodentarias, la bóveda palatina, el piso de la boca, el velo del paladar, los pilares anteriores del velo y el istmo de las fauces con los ojos cerrados se nota mucho que lo has aprendido usando un colutorio de marca blanca que te ha quemado el paladar.

La anilla vibradora mariposa, las bolas chinas, el arnés vibrador de doble penetracion, modelo conejito rampante, el azotador para juegos de bondage, los profilácticos de varios colores y sabores que tienes en la mesilla, y sacas de vez en cuando para desmpolvar, no logran disimular que tu idea del sexo la has sacado de la explicación que dieron en el Foro Todo Motor sobre el funcionamiento del émbolo y el pistón en el Seat Panda, y que desconoces clamorosamente la anatomía femenina.

Tira a la basura el Curso de sibarita por correspondencia y el diploma del Seminario de Artes amatorias, y hazte misógino.

Escorpio (nacidos entre el 23 de octubre y el 22 de noviembre):

Quien te hizo creer en las virtudes erotizantes de la murria, el cenizo, y la egolalia narrativa de tus pasados logros te engañó miserablemente. Ser otro borrrachuzo en la movida madrileña, otro actor de teatro, otro director de un corto que jamás se estrenó, otro pintor mural, otro músico ágrafo, sólo puede motivar deseos bastante confesables y poco caritativos.

Si a eso se une esa dieta desatinada, repetitiva y escasa por pura roñosería y el trasiego de cervezas para inspirarte la narración de anécdotas en las que el resto de la humanidad queda pingando, y tú reluces como un héroe helénico que tiene como latiguillo aquello de "como yo digo" , no hay más remedio que concluir que el entusiasmo erótico que inspiras ha de ser perfectamente descriptible.

No te empeñes. Huye de las mujeres, que te esquivan, y dedícate a la asfixia autoerótica con el cable del teléfono.

Ni Pablo de Tarso tiene tu empuje evangelizador: el zumo de apio y nabo, la ensalada de algas rehidratadas con brotes de soja, la mousse de calendulas con sésamo tostado, y el té de retama y nomeolvides son el dogma de fe culinario con el que rebates cualquier desvío doctrinal que no pase por la herboristería.

No es raro que te falle la hueste generativa, que el comercio carnal te llene de zozobra, que no des la ida por la venida con el gurú, el psicoanalista, y la casa de tu madre donde te resistes numantino, y te niegas a empujarte un par de huevos fritos y unos tacos de jamón, que es lo que más te gusta en el mundo.

Sigue la senda de la abstinencia, el vegetarianismo, la macrobiótica, la holística, y no sigas dandole vueltas a la idea de hacerte antropófago con la rubia que te vende el tofu: las damas se acarician, se besan, se follan, no se comen.

Esos rituales (cuando te alisas el pelo y la corbata, verificas los botones de la chaqueta, te tiras de las mangas, compruebas el cierre centralizado del coche, una y otra vez, etc.) no es porque seas cuidadoso, son signos de una neurosis obsesiva como cuando, antes de empezar a comer, distribuyes los alimentos en el plato por colores, por tamaños, texturas, y orden alfabético, y amasas la miga del pan con los dedos como si fueran mocos.

En la intimidad, en el fuego más ardiente de la pasión, primero doblas y metes en bolsas la ropa que ha de ir a la tintorería, cuelgas en perchas forradas tu traje y lo cepillas concienzudamente, llevas la ropa sucia al cesto del cuarto de baño, haces tus abluciones con la meticulosidad que te caracteriza, te pones el pijama, abres el embozo de la cama en el ángulo de 45 grados que prefieres, y no es raro que descubras estupefacto que tu amada se ha ido a sus quehaceres sin dejar ni una nota de explicacion.

Cursa biblioteconomía, y descubre el sublime erotismo consistente en rellenar los huecos en las estanterías.

La idea del bocadillo de varios pisos, edificado con todos los alimentos indigestos a tu alcance, untado con mayonesa, y regado con una Coca Cola light; el set completo de guarrerías embolsadas con sabor a queso de axila de oveja que sueles consumir ha dado al traste con cualquier atisbo de deseo de hacerte padre que pudiera aquejar —hipotéticamente— a tus sufridas y efímeras relaciones.

El desconsuelo y la desesperacion que sientes ante la mera idea de comerte una ensalada, unas hortalizas, unas legumbres cocinadas sin casquería ni manteca se corresponde exactamente con el que produce tu escorzo.

Sigue pelándotela solo (si es que te la puedas encontrar aún) y cuando eso no baste, apuntate a los grupos que celebran los solsticios abrazando a los árboles y besando (con lengua) los huecos que dejan los xilófagos.

No deberías iniciar nuevas relaciones mientras no cambies el menú: las conservas de legumbres cocidas, adobadas con glutamatos, colorantes y conservantes, las bolsas de patatas ultracongeladas ya cortadas, fritas con el infame aceite de girasol, lacias y descoloridas como monjas preconciliares, el filetito de consistencia cartilaginosa, lleno de binzas, pasado por la sartén con muy poca gracia, y la consabida naranja de postre, te abocará, como hasta ahora, a la coiundae tristitia.

Que te creas muy intelectual porque lees el suplemento cultural de El País —y sensible como una novicia porque te gusta escuchar a Antonio Gala— dice mucho sobre las deficiencias que tu dieta ha provocado en tu pobre cerebro.

HA MUERTO MANUEL GARCÍA VIÑÓ, CREADOR DE «LA FIERA LITERARIA»

Ha muerto Manuel García Viñó, digno personaje barojiano de "Inventos, aventuras y mixtificaciones de Silvestre Paradox", creador de la crítica acompasada y de "La fiera literaria", y miembro fundador del Círculo de Fuencarral.

Había nacido en 1928, en Sevilla. Casado con la pintora Pepi Sánchez (1929-2012).

Como todos los que no se toman en serio a los mastuerzos juntaletras más vendidos, hemos disfrutado de sus mandobles y sus castizas y horripiladas críticas literarias y con su espíritu rebelde y desajustado.

Lo echaremos de menos.

SE BUSCA INFORMACIÓN SOBRE QUIEN «DICE LLAMARSE JUAN KOPLOWITZ AMORES»

Buscamos infomación suplementaria sobre la noticia publicada junto al anuncio de Amarcord, en ABC, el 5 de Diciembre de 1975, sobre el ciudadano «Juan Koplowitz Amores»:

«Karateka» español detenido en París

París 4. Un subdito español, que dice llamarse Juan Koplowitz Amores, ha sido inculpado de violencias contra agentes de la autoridad y encarcelado en París, según se hizo público hoy.

Koplowitz había tratado de tomar el avión para Río de Janeiro la pasada noche, pero el servicio de aduanas descubrió que llevaba en su cartera 230.000 francos (tres millones de pesetas) en billetes, un recibo de un Banco suizo certificando una venta por su cuenta de 190 kilos de oro y tres maletines que habían sido registrados a su nombre que contenían un falso pasaporte español, diverso material para falsificar documentos y sellos de la Policía española. También se encontró en su poder un látigo utilizado en el llamado «kárate de combate». —Efe.

Los «pupilas» eran muchachos
ESCANDALOSO DESCUBRIMIENTO EN ROMA

Roma 4. La Policía notificó hoy la detención de Alfredo Baudo, de veintidós años de edad, que mantenía abierta una casa de prostitución masculina en la localidad de Aricela, a veinticinco kilómetros de Roma.

Los agentes irrumpieron en un suntuoso apartamento, en horas de la madrugada pasada, siguiendo una pista, según la cual se trataría de una casa de prostitución —prohibidas por las leyes, abolido este «viejo oficio»—, pero fueron de sorpresa en sorpresa.

La primera sorpresa fue el comprobar que las lindas «pupilas» no eran sino jóvenes del sexo masculino delicadamente vestidos de mujer; la segunda consistió en encontrar que la «clientela» estaba formada por sujetos de la mala vida romana, muchos de ellos ya conocidos de la Policía por delitos menores, y dos «peces gordos», con la cartera repleta, pero cuyos nombres no fueron hecho públicos.

En fin, la tercera sorpresa consistió en que el riquísimo mobiliario, de elegantes y costosos muebles, lámparas, tapices, cuadros y todos los objetos de decoración, procedían de un importante robo cometido hace algunos meses en casa de una señora de la localidad, Laura Marcioni, a quien fue restituido su ajuar.—Efe.

Riña entre policías en Colombia: tres muertos

Barranquilla (Colombia) 4. Un teniente y dos agentes de la Policía nacional resultaron muertos hoy aquí durante una riña producida entre ellos, se informó oficialmente.

Los sucesos ocurrieron cuando el teniente Luis Alberto Losada llamó la atención, en forma fuerte, al agente Sergio Bermúdez por presentarse tarde al relevo.

Luego de un intercambio fuerte de palabras, los dos efectivos policiales pasaron a las manos, y cuando el oficial solicitó refuerzos para someter a Bermúdez, éste desenfundó el revólver y le disparó, causándole la muerte de forma instantánea.

Otro agente que trató de intervenir en el hecho también fue acribillado por su compañero.

Al darse cuenta de la gravedad de sus actos, Bermúdez intentó huir, pero resultó muerto al disparar contra él el centinela de servicio.

El teniente Losada había sido trasladado hacía pocos meses al mando de Policía Atlántico, al norte del país.—Efe.

Indultado y preso a las dos horas

Alicante 4. Dos horas ha permanecido en libertad uno de los reclusos excarcelados de la Prisión Provincial de Alicante, en aplicación del real decreto de indulto.

El citado recluso, delincuente habitual que cumplía condenas por robos de coches, salió de la cárcel a las ocho de la tarde, y la Guardia Civil de Tráfico lo detuvo hacia las diez de la noche, cuando, en libertad, marchaba a su domicilio para reunirse por primera vez con su familia, montado en una moto que presuntamente acaba de robar.—Europa Press.

Atraco a una tienda de tejidos en Barcelona

Barcelona 4. Alrededor de unas 283.000 pesetas se llevaron tres individuos que, armados de una pistola y un cuchillo, asaltaron una tienda de tejidos sita en la calle Alta de San Pedro.

Los tres individuos, jóvenes, según los testigos, penetraron en el establecimiento de tejidos Nobeal, y mientras uno de ellos, esgrimiendo una pistola, amenazaba a los siete clientes que se encontraban en aquel momento en el local, otro saltó el mostrador y, amenazando a los empleados con un gran cuchillo, consiguió apoderarse de unas 283.000 pesetas en efectivo y varios talones bancarios guardados en unos cajones.

El tercero de los asaltantes no exhibió arma alguna, mientras vigilaba la puerta del local.

Consumado el robo, los tres asaltantes emprendieron la fuga en un coche marca Seat-127 que les esperaba cerca de la puerta.—Cifra.

LA DESESPERACIÓN

Me gusta ver el cielo
con negros nubarrones
y oír los aquilones horrísonos bramar;
me gusta ver la noche sin luna y sin estrellas, y sólo las centellas
la tierra iluminar.
Me agrada un cementerio de muertos bien relleno, manando sangre y cieno que impida el respirar;
y allí un sepulturero de tétrica mirada con mano despiadada
los cráneos machacar.
Me alegra ver la bomba
caer mansa del cielo,
e inmóvil en el suelo,
sin mecha al parecer,
y luego embravecida que estalla y que se agita y rayos mil vomita
y muertos por doquier.
Que el trueno me despierte con su ronco estampido,

y al mundo adormecido
le haga estremecer;
que rayos cada instante
caigan sobre él sin cuento, que se hunda el firmamento me agrada mucho ver.
La llama de un incendio que corra devorando
y muertos apilando quisiera yo encender;
tostarse allí un anciano,
volverse todo tea,
oír cómo vocea,
¡qué gusto!, ¡qué placer!
Me gusta una campiña de nieve tapizada,
de flores despojada,
sin fruto, sin verdor,
ni pájaros que canten, ni sol haya que alumbre
y sólo se vislumbre la muerte en derredor.
Allá en sombrío monte, solar desmantelado me place en sumo grado, la luna al reflejar;
moverse las veletas con áspero chirrido igual al alarido que anuncia el expirar.
Me gusta que al Averno lleven a los mortales
y allí todos los males les hagan padecer;
les abran las entrañas,
les rasguen los tendones, rompan los corazones sin de ellos caso hacer.
Insólita avenida que inunda fértil vega, de cumbre en cumbre llega,
y llena de pavor,
se lleva los ganados
y las vides sin pausa,
y estragos miles causa,
¡qué gusto!, ¡qué placer!
Las voces y las risas,
el juego, las botellas, en torno de las bellas alegres apurar;
y en sus lascivas bocas,
con voluptuoso halago, un beso a cada trago

alegres estampar.
Romper después las copas,
los platos, las barajas,
y abiertas las navajas,
buscando al corazón;
oír luego los brindis mezclados con quejidos que lanzan los heridos en llanto y confusión.
Me alegra ver al uno pedir a voces vino.
mientras que su vecino
se cae en un rincón;
y que otros ya borrachos,
en trino desusado
cantan al Dios vendado impúdica canción.
Me agradan las queridas tendidas en los lechos, sin chales en los pechos,
y flojo el cinturón,
mostrando sus encantos, sin orden el cabello
al aire el muslo bello...
¡Qué gozo!, ¡qué ilusión!

ADOLFO HITLER

La colonia alemana en Barcelona

Con motivo del cincuenta y tres aniversario del nacimiento de Adolfo Hitler, la colonia alemana de Barcelona se reunió el pasado domingo en el Coliseum, donde celebró un acto, en el que tomó parte el jefe del Partido Nacional Socialista en España, doctor Hans Thomsen. La sala del Coliseum aparecía engalanada con banderas alemanas, españolas e italianas, y en el escenario figuraba un busto del Führer, sobre el que destacaba el símbolo del Aguila alemana con la Cruz gamada, así como dos grandes signos de la Juventud Hitleriana a ambos lados del mismo.

El teatro presentaba brillante aspecto, por la numerosa concurrencia de alemanes residentes en esta ciudad asistentes al acto.

Con el doctor Thomsen, presidieron el acto el cónsul general de Alemania, doctor Jaeger; el jefe local del Partido Nacional Socialista en Barcelona, Walter Bartolsit, las jerarquías locales de dicha organización y nutridas representaciones de F. E. T. y de las J. O. N. S., presididas por los camaradas Santa Marina y Riquer, y del Fascio italiano

ROMANCE DEL MOSQUITO

Yo me estando en la mi cama, tres horas antes del día, soñé que alguien se acercaba a la cabecera mía, pensé que venía a verme
aquella que más quería.
Eché mano hacia la puerta
a donde una luz había, y sólo viera un mosquito
cerca de la cama mía.
—Por Dios te ruego, el mosquito, por Dios y Santa María, que me dejes tú dormir
hasta que amanezca el día.
—Sólo te puedo dejar media hora no cumplida.—
Ya me arrebocé en la sábana, tapé la cabeza mía;
la sábana era de holanda,
que en el agua no se vía, de la lanza del mosquito
ella no me protegía.
No pasó la media hora,
su trompeta retiñía;
pronto me dio tres lanzadas,
las tres fueron muy sentidas:
la prima fuera en el hombro,
la otra en una mano mía,
la tercera la peor,
que en la nariz me hería.
Salto diera de la cama y me puse una camisa, me fuí al cuarto de baño,
por ver si me protegía;
el mosquito era guerrero,
hasta allí me perseguía.

Me puse bajo la ducha
    a ver si llegaba el día.
Allí me hablara el mosquito, muy mal me amenazaría:
—No será sólo una noche,
    todas te acompañaría;
aunque estemos en Otoño,
    está ya trocado el clima,
paciencia, hombre, paciencia, que es Alá quien a mí envía, tendrás que ponerte un burka
    o aguantar mi compañía,
y nadie conocerá
    el sexo que tú tenías.
—Tate, tate, el mosquito,
    no hables en demasía,
que tengo yo una raqueta, que me trajeron de China que apretándole un botón se parece a una parrilla y vas a hacerle a Lorenzo en el cielo compañía.

Amigo: he encontrado este comentario tuyo en una entrada de la web de J.P. Quiñonero:
Conforme pasan los años, tengo más dificultades para apenarme por la pérdida de esa clase de gente y esa clase de pueblos que encuentran sus señas de identidad en torturar animales, y arrasar lo único humano que podrían tener. Y si hubiera un cataclismo que los arrasara, ni me despeinaría por socorrerlos.
Sí, ya sé que soy cruel. Es lo malo de la crueldad de esa gente: es contagiosa. "
Formo parte del grupo "Okupa Tordesillas" y me gustaría usar tu comentario ´citándote y enlazando a tu blog... ¿me lo permites?
He leido pocas cosas tan lúcidas en este terrible tema de torturas de animales en honor a la tradición.

Qué tiempos aquellos en que Gatopardo frecuentaba casa Quiño. Por casi nada se liaba una buena discusión y lográbamos sacar de sus casillas al pacífico Quiño. Maty se obstinaba en repetir verdades que casi nadie compartía. J. Moreno nos deleitaba con su crónica de viajes y su diario político independentista. A Madame Marie siempre se le ocurría algún comentario, incluso sobre lo que no admitía glosa. Y hasta a mi me parecía que tenía algo que decir. Gatopardo... qué decir de sus intervenciones. Basta con leer este blog ¿Qué fue de todos nosotros? Enmudecimos.

[MIGUEL DE CERVANTES: CORRIDO VA EL ABAD]

¡Corrido va el abad
Por el cañaveral;
Corrido va el abad!

Corrido va y muy mohíno
Porque, por su desatino,
Cierto desastre le vino,
Que le hizo caminar
Por el cañaveral.

Confiado en que es muy rico,
No ha caído en que es borrico;
Y por aquesto me aplico
A decirle este cantar,
Por el cañaveral.

A veces vemos más demonios de los que hay, en este caso podría ser una donación específica para buscar un atajo al cielo (recuerda que Ruiz Mateos está chalado)
Lo siguiente se me antoja demasiado retorcido y digno de novela, que Montserrat se haya convertido en la caja B de Convergencia, después del desmontaje del Palau. Aunque lo más lógico sería que los donativos se entregaran directamente a su fundación. Por otro lado creo que en el 2009 Nueva Rumasa ya era un coladero con mucha necesidad de liquidez.

DEFENSA TEMERARIA DE LA IMPUNIDAD

La monarquía de España, estribación geográfica y política de África, nos tiene acostumbrados a sus bochornosos usos y costumbres depredadoras, tan acordes con la putrefacción de sus referentes y aliados de Qatar, Marruecos, Kuwait...

Que no sea imputada la Infanta Cristina de Borbón, que se lucró con las actividades de las sociedades filantrópicas en las que participaba con su marido; que la Iglesia Católica esté escriturando bienes inmuebles que no le pertenecen, como la Mezquita de Córdoba, es sólo alguno de los despropósitos jurídicos a los que estamos acostumbrados en este puñetero país, que ocupa un lugar en Europa que no le corresponde.

El Poder Judicial, el Legislativo, el Ejecutivo, la Iglesia Católica, y el periodismo lameculos son sus criados complacientes, defensores de su impunidad, y elementos imprescindibles para acelerar el proceso de descomposición que, parece ser, suele empezar por la cabeza, pero jamás se detiene ahí: la insolidaridad nos debilitó a los ciudadanos y nos abocó a esta derrota que se empezó a fraguar con la desindustrialización, auspiciada por los magos de las finanzas y del ladrillo, y la criminalización de los movimientos ciudadanos no sometidos a las directrices de Sindicatos y Partidos.

Y así nos luce el pelo...

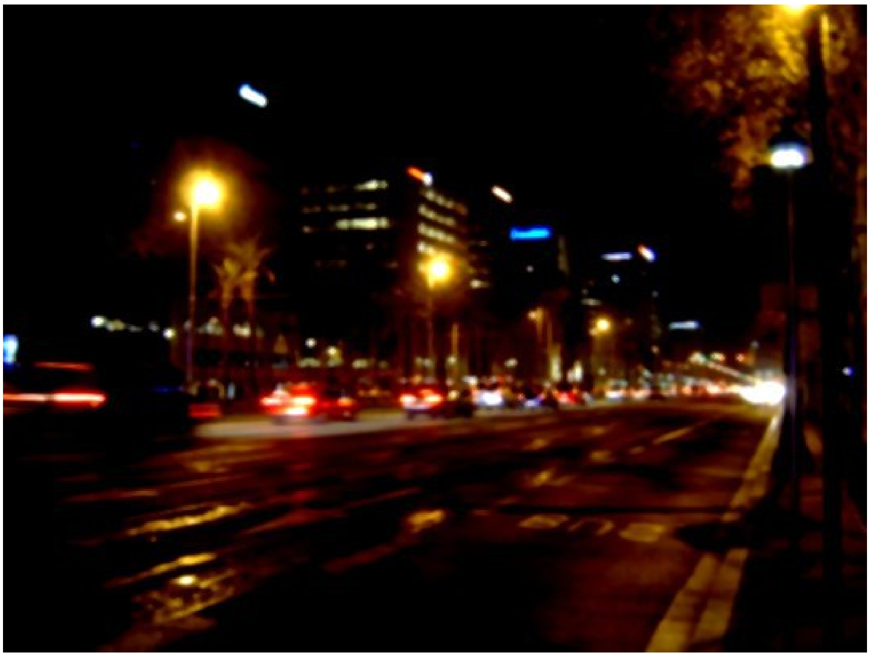
PERIODISMO DE INVESTIGACIÓN



A las cinco de la mañana, dejé a mi gato dormido, y corrí a la ducha. Ese día salía en primera plana mi reportaje con una denuncia escalofriante sobre corrupción, blanqueo de dinero, industria farmacéutica, y un suicidio tan extraño como silenciado.

Había tocado a los más grandes, y mi director me advirtió que no se arriesgaría sin tener todas las pruebas. Se las había facilitado, y por primera vez lo vi palidecer. Facturas de los teléfonos móviles con los números marcados y el tiempo de cada conversación, comprobantes de las tarjetas, donde se detallaban los ingresos y los pagos, incluidos los del Hotel George V y la grabación digital de los testimonios de mis fuentes de información. Escuchó todo, absolutamente todo. A pesar de que habían firmado sus declaraciones, quiso comprobar que la trascripción y mis conclusiones eran fidedignas. Estudió el informe del forense que había dictaminado la causa de la muerte, llamó a varios contactos suyos de los servicios de Información, y les preguntó sin rodeos. Pulsó la tecla del teléfono para que pudiera escuchar sus confirmaciones, y cuando colgó, pidió café para dos, llamó al redactor jefe, y le dijo: —¡Adelante, publícalo!— y a mí me rodeó los hombros con su brazo y me dijo: —¡Eres una valiente! Y fue entonces cuando sentí el vértigo y me di cuenta de lo que arriesgaba.

Cuando bajé a buscar el coche para ir al VIPs, donde primero llegarían los periódicos, la luz de emergencia del garaje se había estropeado una vez más, y tuve que llegarme hasta el conmutador alumbrándome con el encendedor. Pero no fue la luz general la que se encendió sino unos faros del coche. Supe después que eran dos hombres, pero en ese momento sólo escuché una voz modulada y tan amable que resultó infinitamente amenazante:

—Debe de ser un cortocircuito... Por favor, perdone que no hayamos concertado una cita...¿puede acompañarnos?

Reconocí al hombre de confianza y el chófer personal de la empresaria que había investigado .

No les di la satisfacción de justificar su deseo de matarme, y respondí afirmativamente. Antes de entrar en su coche, y sin que se dieran cuenta, dejé caer al suelo mi DNI y mi carnet de prensa. No ocultaron sus rostros, parecía no importarles que los pudiera identificar, y eso me confirmó que no pensaban dejarme con vida. Sentí un terror helado —¿Adónde vamos?

—Doña Julia desea invitarla a desayunar con ella, sólo tiene ese hueco en su agenda. Le pido perdón en su nombre por lo intempestivo de la hora y por no haberle pedido cita de antemano.

Aquel recurso a la ironía y a las buenas maneras de aquel asesino me recordó que existe un protocolo que incluía cierta amabilidad para con los condenados a muerte.

Las calles estaban casi desiertas, mojadas por la lluvia que en esos momentos era aguanieve, y, a pesar de la calefacción, tuve escalofríos y me arrebujé en el abrigo tratando de controlar el temblor. Mi secuestrador se dio cuenta y dijo al conductor:

—¡Suba la calefacción al máximo, y cierre bien esa ventanilla! Y pare en el VIPs para comprar los periódicos. Y dirigiéndose a mí: —Siempre pone la calefacción al mínimo, y aquí detrás hace frío.

Su gélida amabilidad me hizo el efecto de una bofetada, y le respondí en el mismo tono:

—No sentiré frío demasiado tiempo.

—No, ya se empieza a notar que ha subido la calefacción.

Frenó el coche ante el VIPs, y bajó el conductor. Ni un guarda de seguridad, ni un policía afuera. Las puertas del coche estarían bloqueadas y cualquier intento de escapar sería inútil, pero enseguida volvió el conductor con los periódicos y encima de todos, los titulares de mi artículo me parecieron un hermoso y triste testamento, redactado sin saber cabalmente que me acarrearía la muerte. Y una ráfaga de orgullo me hizo sentirme reconfortada, porque yo había dejado claro quienes serían los culpables de mi desaparición.

El tiempo es un concepto elástico, el viaje se me hizo eterno, y sin embargo, cuando llegamos a aquella mansión asomada a un acantilado, con la ciudad a lo lejos, reflejada en el agua, me pareció demasiado corto. Abrieron las verjas con el mando a distancia y, entre la niebla, los perros corrieron paralelamente al coche, adiestrados para atacar sin ladrar. Mis secuestradores no hicieron caso de ellos, y se quedaron en actitud de espera, exhalando vaho por las fauces, y fijando su mirada en mí, dispuestos a atacar a la mínima orden.

—Por aquí, por favor.

Y me señalaron la puerta que se había abierto antes de llegar, entregaron los periódicos al mayordomo uniformado, y se despidieron de mí con una leve reverencia. Una doncella con cofia y delantal impolutos, perfectamente almidonados, me pidió el abrigo, y me guió hasta un cuarto decorado con sobriedad, en el que estaba puesta la mesa para dos comensales. El mayordomo entró a continuación, dejó los periódicos en una mesa auxiliar, y me preguntó si tomaría té, café o chocolate, y si tenía predilección por alguna marca en especial.

—Café. Gracias. Me da igual la marca, suelo comprar el que esté de oferta.

No pestañeó. No respondió. Pero ella sí:

—Con su talento no debería de preocuparse por su futuro ni por economizar en lo básico. Tenemos que arreglar eso.

No me había dado cuenta de que estaba sentada en un sillón inmenso, de espaldas a nosotros, y cuando se levantó y vino a mí, sonreía con la mano extendida. Y yo, como una idiota, se la estreché. Hubiera sido bonito despreciársela, pero por automatismo, siempre acato las normas de urbanidad, y saltármelas representa un esfuerzo consciente que en ese momento no pude hacer.

—Estoy muerta de hambre. Anoche no cené casi nada. Tuve que asistir a uno de esos actos oficiales de la Embajada Británica, y tienen unos cocineros atroces.

Nos sentamos a la mesa, y se lanzó a mordisquear una tostada entre gemidos de placer. Yo estaba bloqueada. Nos sirvieron dos camareros y se retiraron.

—Anoche me pasaron su artículo en pruebas de imprenta. Y me dije: tiene todo el talento del mundo esta periodista. ¡Es una lástima no conocerla, y le pedí a Gonzalo que lo solucionara.

Yo respondí con un nudo en la garganta:

—Todo lo que he escrito es la estricta verdad.

—Oh, bueno, la verdad... ¿quién la conoce enteramente? No hay que obsesionarse con la verdad...De todas formas, me divirtió mucho, tiene detalles muy sabrosos, y se nota que es usted observadora. Por eso, le quiero hacer una proposición que creo que le interesará.

—...¿Y que no podré rechazar? —dije recordando El Padrino —Oh, sí, claro que puede rechazarla; pero... después de valorar las condiciones no creo que lo haga.

Siguió desayunando con voracidad. Y de pronto me señaló con su dedo manicurado:

—Usted no ha probado bocado. Ni siquiera ha probado el café. Espere, no se tome ese, ya estará tibio, voy a pedir otra cafetera.

Tocó la campanilla, y a los tres segundos entró el camarero con una cafetera humeante, y nos sirvió sin preguntar.

—¿Cómo sabía qué es lo que le iba a pedir?

—No soporto el café tibio, y siempre tomo dos tazas, recién hecho.—Y me sonrió—Es una de las cosas buenas que tiene el dinero: me permito el lujo de darme estos pequeños placeres. Y ahora dígame: ¿cuánto cobra usted en el periódico?

—Lo suficientemente poco como para dejar este mundo con algunas deudas...

—Vive con un gato ¿verdad? A mí me gustaría tener un gato, pero paso tan poco tiempo en casa que el pobre se aburriría... Así es que tengo perros, porque suelen llevarse bien con el servicio. Los gatos no son tan demócratas, y sufren de estrés cuando se les da la compañía inadecuada ¿verdad?

Había escuchado muchas tonterías en mi vida sobre gatos y perros, pero aquella explicación desbordó todas, y solté una carcajada. Ella rió también, y me dijo:

—Mire, me cae usted muy simpática, sabe reir, y eso es lo que me gusta más de una persona. Hay demasiada gente pomposa y seria. Vamos a ser buenas amigas. Y además usted me puede sacar de un atolladero horrible.

—Quiere que desmienta la investigación que se ha publicado ¿no es eso? Lo siento, pero...

—¡Oh, no, querida!¡Qué ocurrencia! Precisamente esa información es la que le permitirá cumplir con mi encargo: su director tiene la costumbre de invitar a sus periodistas estrella a cenar en su casa, y usted es la nueva revelación que querrá agasajar como se merece...

—Perdone, no entiendo.

—Su mujer enseña siempre sus diseños para la nueva colección a los invitados, y suele explicarlos pormenorizadamente... Quiero que me informe exhaustivamente sobre eso.

—¿Quiere usted copiar sus modelos?

—¡Todo lo contrario ! Quiero estar segura de no comprarme ninguna ropa que pueda recordar ni remotamente sus atroces diseños... ¡Ay, qué tarde es! Me tengo que ir ya... Mi chófer le acompañará adonde usted le diga.

Me besó efusivamente, y se despidió dejándome en la mano el primero de los cheques al portador de 30.000 euros que me ha pagado. Y todo gracias a mis valientes artículos de investigación y denuncia. Perfectamente inútiles por lo demás.

Muy bueno y divertido. Y ya sé de dónde sacó Rocasolano el comienzo de su libro, la escena de la visita del periodista. Lástima que no se diera cuenta también de la inutilidad de su investigación.

Sí, yo también uso los calificativos de "bueno" y "divertido" en la sección "Crítica literaria" cuando no me quiero calentar la cabeza.

Ahora bien, la referencia culta al libro de Rocasolano en el mismo paquete no se me había ocurrido nunca.

Es que los lectores, como la vida, damos sorpresas. Desde que se inventó ese tostón de la intertextualidad, las fuentes ya no fluyen, como antes, hacia abajo, son remolinos. Pero, una vez aceptada esta incoherencia ¿y lo bien que lo pasamos, qué? ¡Virgen del amor hermoso!, por un quítame de aquí esta influencia...

ROMANCE DE LA VUELTA DEL NAVEGANTE

30 LA VUELTA DEL NAVEGANTE

La vida de las galeras es muy mala de pasar:
comiendo del pan mohiento, bebiendo aguas de mar.
Siete años estuve en ellas,
todos siete por el mar, rodeando y navegando sin tierra firme tocar;
a la fin de los siete años,
llegué a puerto de mar.
Le pedí licencia al conde,
y no me la quiso dar;
con licencia o sin licencia,
juré a desembarcar.
Quiso Dios y mi fortuna, una noche de lunar,
puse espada de correo,

eché manos a remar, la barca arribé a la orilla, echéme en un arenal.
Jornada de cuatro horas en dos la hube de andar;
llegué a los altos palacios donde dejara a mi madre, allí encontré a mi tía bordando en un cabezal:
—Dios guarde a la señora y el su lindo trabajar.
—Bien venido, caballero,
tan cortés en el hablar.
—Yo soy un sobrino suyo, don Luïs del Palomar.
—No puedes ser don Luïs, que él en galeras está;
para tú ser mi sobrino,
otras señas me has de dar.
—¿Qué es de mi caballo blanco, que me dejara mi padre?
—Ese caballo, sobrino,
en tu cuadra aún está.
—Me diría, la mi tía, la mi madre ¿cómo está?
—La tú madre, don Luïs, está ciega de llorar.
—¿Dónde está mi amor primero, quedó chica, por criar.
—Hoy se hacen los conciertos, mañana la casarán.
—¿A dónde, mi tía, a dónde, que los voy a conturbar.
Aparéjeme el caballo, aprisa y no de vagar;
y bájeme la vihuela,
que yo la voy a rondar.
—No vayas allá, sobrino, que te han de querer matar.
—No me matarán, mi tía, que yo les sabré hablar.—
—Dios guarde a los padrinos y a los que a la mesa están.
—Bienvenido, caballero,
tan cortés en el hablar.
—Soy pariente de la novia, que la vengo a visitar.
—Entre, entre para adentro, asiéntese a yantar.
—Con la licencia del novio, con la novia quiero hablar;
el gasto que hayan hecho yo lo ayudaré a pagar, siete anillos traigo de oro, todos siete le he de dar.—

El novio, de codicioso, pronto la mandó llamar.
La novia, de que lo vio,
  de él se fuera a abrazar;
tantos son besos y abrazos, no los pueden apartar.
—¡Mala maña tenéis, novia,
  y mala de olvidar, que de un hombre extranjero os vais de él a abrazar!
—¡Miente, miente, la madrina, boca sucia, sin verdad, que los amores primeros
  no se pueden olvidar!
—Y los gastos de la boda ¿quién me los ha de pagar?
—Ellos en besos y abrazos bien pagos los tienes ya.
—¡Malhaya uno me diera
  y ése fue a su pesar, con los ojos rasos de agua mirando para la mar.

El romance, que no interesó a los editores del siglo XVI, o, al menos, pasajes muy característicos del romance, se documentan en muy distantes áreas conservadoras dentro de la tradición pan-hispánica, evidenciándonos que la fábula tiene su origen en la Edad Media. En los siglos XIX y XX, se han recogido versiones orales del tema en las comunidades sefardíes de Bosnia, en las islas Canarias, en Brasil, en las islas Açores, desde el Algarve hasta Entre-Douro e Minho y Tras-os-Montes (en Portugal), en Orense y Lugo (Galicia), en Sayago y en Sanabria (Zamora), en Sajambre (León), en Polaciones y Ramales (Cantabria), en la Sierra de Béjar (Cáceres), en Andorra, en Cataluña, en las islas Baleares.

En buena parte del NO. de la Península (desde Cantabria, hasta Tras-os Montes y la Sierra de Béjar), la convivencia de este romance con el de tema similar “El conde Dirlos” ha dado lugar a muy variados préstamos de motivos entre uno y otro, tanto en una como en otra dirección. En Sayago, el regreso a su tierra del primer amor de la que va a desposarse se halla encabezado por una secuencia propia del romance de “El Quintado”, mezcla tampoco disonante.

Más curioso es el desarrollo del romance en la tradición catalana, donde el “navegante”, al salir de la galera e informarse de la próximidad de la boda de su desposada, va a rondarla y su canción da pie a que la fábula continúe con el característico desarrollo del romance de tema mítico “El conde Niño” o “Amor más poderoso que la muerte”: el nuevo marido, que confunde la canción con el canto de la sirena, desengañado, da muerte sucesivamente a los dos enamorados, quienes sólo lograrán unirse, más allá de la vida, transformados sucesivamente en plantas y en aves.

EL CORTE INGLÉS VENDE BONOS PARA COBRAR EN AJOS

No hay plazo que no se cumpla ni deuda que no se pague.

El Corte Inglés/Fundación Areces, más conocido como el entrepreneurial fabada group reedita el truco de las preferentes de Bankia:

"El cerrojazo de la banca está provocando que las empresas echen mano de la imaginación para gestionar su balance. La última en hacerlo es El Corte Inglés, que ultima una emisión de bonos en el mercado a través de la cual titulizará los derechos de cobro sobre los clientes que compran los productos a plazo. Con esta transacción, el mayor grupo de distribución de España consigue liquidez inmediata después de refinanciar su deuda el pasado año.

Fuentes financieras han confirmado que El Corte Inglés lleva trabajando varios meses con Banco Santander para llevar a cabo esta operación en los mercados de capitales. El importe no está definido puesto que se fijará en función de las expectativas de captación de demanda entre los inversores institucionales, pero la horquilla de la emisión oscila entre los 500 y los 1.000 millones de euros."

"Por una parte, el importe de los bienes y servicios adquiridos por los clientes mediante la utilización de la tarjeta emitida por la compañía ascendió a 5.295 millones de euros, lo que supuso un descenso del 4,7%. Por otra, Financiera El Corte Inglés concedió otros 1.599 millones a través de la denominada Fórmula Personal de Pago, un 11,3% menos. La cifra de contratos con particulares fue de 2,3 millones, según los datos oficiales del holding de la distribución. El total de las tarjetas de compra El Corte Inglés, a 31 de diciembre de 2011, era de casi 11 millones."

ENRIQUE DE DIEGO: «LA MONARQUÍA INÚTIL»

"En cualquier caso, ningún dirigente democrático habría sido capaz de sobrevivir al continuo cúmulo de escándalos que han rodeado a la Zarzuela y al monarca. Hubiera bastado uno solo de ellos, y de mucha menor magnitud, para forzar el impeachment o para excitar el mínimo de celo de la más perezosa fiscalía anticorrupción o la consiguiente comisión de investigación parlamentaria. El monarca estaría inhabilitado in eligiendo o in vigilando, si se sostiene la ingenua suposición de que Juan Carlos ha tenido mala suerte a la hora de seleccionar sus amigos o que ha sido traicionado por ellos, abusando de la influencia adquirida por su cercanía a la familia real. No, Juan Carlos no ha estado en malas compañías por candidez. Vale aquí aquello de dime con quién vas y te diré quién eres.

Nadie ha corrompido a Juan Carlos. En último término, a tenor de los indicios, él sería el corruptor. Según Cacho, su introducción en los vericuetos de la mordida y el dinero negro es precoz. En efecto, una de las primeras cosas que llama la atención en su conducta es la precocidad, su condición de pionero. Se introduce en las zonas oscuras de la economía y la política, solicita abultadísimas comisiones ya cuando es príncipe, cuando ni tan siquiera ha accedido al trono.

De la oscura historia de Zarzuela pueden extraerse, de partida, algunas conclusiones: a) la corrupción de los más íntimos ha sido permanente, sin solución de continuidad, simplemente unos corruptos han ido siendo sustituidos por otros; b) la corrupción de los ya antes corruptos se ha intensificado al contacto con el monarca, con tendencia a sentirse impunes y a considerar que estaban en el cogollo, en el núcleo del tráfico de influencias en la sufrida piel de toro; c) la influencia sobre el monarca se ha conseguido demostrando capacidad para conseguir o imponer la omertá sobre las numerosas debilidades del monarca, de modo que la presunta corrupción se ha acompañado de constantes y crecientes restricciones a la libertad de expresión.

Aunque ya se ha citado la motivación, es conveniente insistir en el trasfondo pseudofreudiano —una especie de síndrome del 'príncipe mendigo'— que le habría llevado a la venalidad: una infancia con dificultades económicas en el exilio de Estoril. "Siempre se ha dicho que —relata Jesús Cacho— la Casa Real española es pobre, y no sólo en comparación con casas reales como la británica, una de las mayores fortunas del planeta, sino con muchas de las familias de la alta burguesía española y no digamos ya de la aristocracia bancaria. Don Juan, conde de Barcelona, necesitó la ayuda continuada de una serie de nobles para mantenerse enhiesto en Estoril —incluso para vivir los últimos años de su vida— el estandarte de una Monarquía no afecta al franquismo; y su hijo Juan Carlos llegó al trono de España literalmente con lo puesto. Esa situación de penuria, que muchos monárquicos consideraban impropia de la Institución a la que el nuevo Rey representaba, se tradujo en una cierta manga ancha a la hora de valorar determinadas iniciativas del entorno real tendentes a proporcionar a la Casa los medios materiales adecuados a su alta función. Nadie se rasgó las vestiduras, en suma, a la hora de hacer posible que el Rey comenzara a consolidar un pequeño patrimonio.

"Una de las primeras formas conocidas para conseguirlo fue el petróleo, las comisiones del crudo que importaba España para cubrir sus necesidades de energía".

Las comisiones del crudo deben representar cantidades astronómicas que, por cierto, pagan los usuarios en las gasolineras. La consecuencia sería que hemos pagado siempre más cara, artificialmente, la gasolina.

Jesús Cacho da detalles sustanciosos y concluyentes. "Alfredo Pardo, director de flota de Cepsa, tuvo que suspender un viaje a Kuwait que tenía programado para firmar un contrato multimillonario de compra de petróleo al emirato. El barril de crudo estaba en torno a los 13/15 dólares, y el precio estipulado en aquella operación quedó establecido en los 14,29 dólares, que, como es norma en este tipo de contratos, quedaron reducidos finalmente a 14,27, dos centavos menos como regalía que suele embolsarse el comprador.

Pero cuál no sería la sorpresa de Pardo cuando le anunciaron que no necesitaba viajar al emirato porque el viaje y la firma del contrato iba a correr a cargo de don Manuel Prado y Colón de Carvajal. 'Fue la primera vez que oí hablar de este señor'.

"Muy pronto, sin embargo, esa minoría de españoles connaisseurs comenzaría a hablar largo y tendido de 'Manolo' Prado como el hombre que hacía y deshacía en Palacio".

Esta relación con el crudo parece haberse extendido en el tiempo. El autor de este libro también ha conocido, de fuentes solventes, de ex directivos del máximo nivel de Cepsa, otra historia paralela: en los años ochenta, ante una nueva crisis de producción, relacionada con Irán, el embajador en Kuwait, Fernando Schwartz, había hecho gestiones para conseguir de dicha nación un suministro adicional, pero cuando esos directivos se pusieron en contacto con el Ministerio de Economía se les dijo que no hicieran nada que "de eso se encargaba Manuel Prado".

Manuel Prado y Juan Carlos de Borbón han constituido una unidad de negocio. Más claro, agua; reseña Cacho: "Prado es the servant, el valido, un hombre, en origen, sin grandes caudales, que tiene el dinero que el Rey ha querido que tenga como administrador suyo". Vale para ellos el viejo lema de los Reyes Católicos: tanto monta, monta tanto.

Esa especial relación de negocio entre Prado y Borbón, Borbón y Prado es, también, destacada en la biografía oficial y autorizada de Sabino Fernández-Campo, escrita por el periodista Manuel Soriano, en la que se abunda en las continuas interferencias de Prado en el devenir de Zarzuela, en su condición de alter ego del monarca. Púdica pero significativamente, indica Soriano que Manuel Prado "al prosperar en el mundo de los negocios abandonó para siempre su empleo de funcionario de la Organización Sindical".

Andando el tiempo, para desarrollar su labor de intermediación y comisionista, a Manuel Prado se le dotó de privilegios de Estado.

"Prado —explica Soriano— no es diplomático de carrera, pero fue nombrado embajador at large, es decir, sin embajada en ningún país pero disponiendo de pasaporte diplomático que le permite viajar con mayor libertad de movimiento y más protección oficial. Ha realizado muchas misiones por todo el mundo como embajador extraordinario y plenipotenciario al servicio directo del Príncipe, primero, y del Rey, después". Cacho relata que Manuel Prado podía utilizar y utilizaba papel con membrete del monarca y, con su nombre, pedía ingentes cantidades de dinero, que han condicionado la soberanía nacional.

Otra acusación de presunta corrupción precoz, explícita y directa. "Henry Ford II, presidente de la multinacional norteamericana del mismo nombre, había oído hablar de Manuel Prado cuando, con varios meses de antelación a su primera visita a España, adonde viajó el 25 de marzo de 1974 para colocar en Almusafes (Valencia) la primera piedra de la factoría española Ford, recibió una cariñosa carta del entonces Príncipe de España recomendando encarecidamente a su amigo Manuel Prado como la persona adecuada para facilitar todos los trámites legales necesarios en nuestro país. Juan Carlos de Borbón se despedía dejando constancia de que una respuesta positiva sería adecuadamente valorada en un próximo futuro".

La instauración en el trono, el inicio de su reinado, hace que el tándem Juan Carlos de Borbón-Manuel Prado Colón de Carvajal perciban mayores posibilidades de negocios y en dimensiones mucho más elevadas.

Tanto Jesús Cacho, como Manuel Soriano, como Jesús Palacios, en los libros ya citados, describen con pelos y señales una de las primeras peticiones de ayuda de Juan Carlos a las monarquías árabes en forma de carta. Asadollah Alam, jefe de la casa del derrocado sha de Persia, la publicó en su libro The Sah and I. The confidential Diary of Iran's Royal Court, 1969-1977, editado en Londes en 1991.

El texto de la carta reza así:

"Mi querido hermano:

Para empezar, quisiera decirte lo enormemente agradecido que estoy de que me enviaras a tu sobrino, el príncipe Saharam, a verme, proporcionándome así una rápida respuesta a mi llamada en un momento de gran dificultad para mi país.

A continuación me gustaría ofrecerte un breve resumen de la situación política de España y la evolución de las campañas de los partidos políticos.

Cuarenta años de un régimen totalmente personal le han hecho mucho bien al país, pero al mismo tiempo han dejado a España sin estructuras políticas, hasta tal punto, que representa un grave riesgo para la consolidación de la monarquía. Tras los seis primeros meses del gobierno de Arias, que también me vi obligado a heredar, en julio de 1976, designé a un hombre más joven y menos comprometido, al que conocía bien y gozaba de mi total confianza, Adolfo Suárez.

A partir de ese momento me juré seguir el camino de la democracia, procurando estar siempre un paso por delante de los acontecimientos para evitar una situación como la de Portugal, que podría ser incluso más peligrosa en mi país.

La legalización de varios partidos políticos les ha permitido participar libremente en la campaña electoral, elaborar sus estrategias, emplear los medios de comunicación de masas para su propaganda y la presentación de la imagen de sus líderes, a la vez que se aseguraban un soporte financiero sólido; la derecha asistida por el Banco de España, Los socialistas por Willy Brandt, Venezuela y otros socialistas europeos; los comunistas, por los medios habituales.

Mientras tanto, el primer ministro Suárez, a quien yo había dado la responsabilidad de gobernar, sólo pudo participar en la campaña electoral durante los ocho últimos días, sin disponer de las ventajas y oportunidades que te he explicado anteriormente y de las que otros partidos políticos se beneficiaron.

Pese a esto, solo y con una organización apenas formada, financiada con préstamos a corto plazo de particulares, consiguió alzarse con una victoria clara y decisiva.

Sin embargo, al mismo tiempo, el Partido Socialista obtuvo un porcentaje de votos mucho mayor de lo esperado, que podría suponer una seria amenaza para la seguridad nacional y la estabilidad de la monarquía, puesto que me han informado fidedignamente que ese partido es marxista. Una parte del electorado no es consciente de esto y lo votan en la creencia de que, a través del socialismo, España podría recibir ayuda de los grandes países europeos como Alemania o alternativamente de países como Venezuela, para reactivar la economía española.

Por esta razón, es imprescindible que Adolfo Suárez reestructure y consolide la coalición centrista, para crear un partido político que sirva de soporte para la monarquía y la estabilidad de España.

Para lograrlo, el primer ministro Suárez necesita más que nunca toda la ayuda posible, ya sea de sus compatriotas o bien de países amigos preocupados en preservar la civilización occidental y las monarquías establecidas.

Es por este motivo, mi querido hermano, que me tomo la libertad de solicitar tu apoyo en nombre del presidente del gobierno Suárez en esta crítica coyuntura; las elecciones municipales se celebrarán dentro de seis meses, y es ahí, más que en ningún otro momento, donde nos jugaremos nuestro futuro.

Por eso, me tomo la libertad, con todo respeto, de someter a tu generosa consideración la posibilidad de donar la cantidad de 10.000.000 (de dólares) como tu contribución personal al fortalecimiento de la monarquía española.

En el caso de que mi petición merezca tu aprobación, me tomo la libertad de recomendar una visita a Teherán de mi amigo Alexis Mardas, quien seguirá tus instrucciones.

Con todo mi respeto y amistad. Tu hermano. Juan Carlos".

Alexis Mardas era un intermediario amigo de Constantino de Grecia. De la contestación del sha, sólo sabemos lo indicado por Asadollah Alam en su libro, que estaba expresada "en términos afectuosos pero mucho más prudentes que la del Rey de España". No era difícil, porque la imprudencia es tan superlativa que sólo puede resultar inteligible a la luz de la impune inmunidad de la que se ha rodeado el monarca, y del espeso silencio de los medios respecto a sus fragilidades. Cacho sitúa a Manuel Prado como autor material de la misiva. El infantil desarrollo lógico de la carta resulta en algunos tramos hilarantes si no fuera un grave caso de corrupción y de una mendicidad efectuada en nombre de España. Si se tiene en cuenta que la más acendrada doctrina monárquica situaba, desde antes de la transición, el acceso al poder del partido socialista como el momento de consolidación de la institución, esa referencia a la mencionada formación política como enemiga de la corona y grave riesgo para la monarquía, merecería ocupar alguna nota a pie de página en la antología de la picaresca española, con Prado y Borbón en los papeles de Rinconete y Cortadillo. Juan Carlos no aprendió la corrupción del felipismo, ni presuntamente se corrompió con la cultura del pelotazo, sino que en tan oscuras materias es un adalid, a tenor de lo descrito por Cacho, y Prado, un adelantado, el adelantado del Golfo Pérsico, como su antepasado lo fuera de la mar océana.

Para Cacho, "el texto transcrito refleja fielmente la arquitectura mental de quienes rodeaban al Rey de España, y en particular la de su albacea mayor, Prado y Colón de Carvajal, y es la clave del arco de un razonamiento según el cual todos los Reyes de la media luna se sienten inseguros porque pertenecen a otra época, son sátrapas cuasi medievales que no han pasado bajo el arco voltaico de una democracia parlamentaria, de modo que conviene a esos Reyes la existencia de monarquías europeas, monarquías que aúnan tradición y modernidad y son a la vez coartada y espejo en el que mirarse. Pero buena parte de esas monarquías están más tiesas que la mojama, razón por la cual los 'hermanos' ricos estaban obligados a aportar su óbolo para facilitar una consolidación que a todos convenía".

"Lo que Prado —según Cacho— planteaba, en suma, era una especie de 'derrama' entre los riquísimos reyes del petróleo, demanda a la que la monarquía saudí, que se sepa, respondió favorablemente con la concesión de un crédito por importe de 100 millones de dólares (unos 10.000 millones de pesetas, grosso modo), a pagar en diez años y sin intereses".

El pase del cepillo por los 'hermanos' de las monarquías árabes produjo, andando el tiempo, algunas escenas propias de los hermanos Marx o del cine de Berlanga.

"Estaba claro que la familia real saudí le estaba haciendo al Rey de España un regalo no inferior al principal de ese crédito, puesto que, con los tipos de interés entonces vigentes, bastaba con colocar esos 10.000 millones en un banco para doblar, como poco, esa cifra al cabo de los diez años pactados.

Pero Prado, que como peticionario se desempeñaba con gran brillantez y habilidad, en cambio como inversor se demostró un desastre, porque, en lugar de administrar prudentemente esa suma que por sí misma podía convertir al Rey de España en un hombre muy rico, decidió invertirla en negocios que resultaron ruinosos (entre otros, en el proyecto urbanístico de Jerez Castillo de los Garciagos). El administrador real se vio obligado a contarle al Rey que había perdido buena parte de los 10.000 millones prestados por el rey Fahd, o ésa fue la especie que se propagó a los cuatro vientos, de modo que transcurrieron los diez años y la Casa Real se encontró con la desagradable sorpresa de tener que devolver 100 millones de dólares que no tenía. O tal decía.

Y es que los saudíes, en contra de lo que Prado hubiera podido pensar, estaban decididos a recuperar su dinero. De la tarea de reclamar la devolución del principal quedó encargado un hermano del rey Fahd, con espléndida casa en la Costa del Sol. Ocurrió entonces que el príncipe saudí llamó un día desde Marbella, pleno mes de agosto, finales de los ochenta, anunciando su intención de acudir a almorzar con los Reyes a Palma de Mallorca, donde a la sazón se encontraban de vacaciones.

La iniciativa produjo una enorme conmoción en Marivent, donde, a toque de corneta, se presentaron Manuel Prado y el supuesto príncipe Tchokotua. Reunión de pastores sobre una pradera de nervios y conciliábulos. El interés de Palacio por cumplimentar adecuadamente al príncipe saudí era obvio. Había que recibirlo con todos los honores y despedirlo de igual modo, aunque sin un duro, de modo que era absolutamente necesario que volviera contento a Marbella.

Pero entonces ocurrió algo que nadie había previsto, una divertida equivocación más propia de sainete teatral que de protocolo real. Porque, a la hora prevista para el aterrizaje del jet privado del saudí en el aeropuerto militar de Palma, allí estaba Prado y todo su séquito con la mejor sonrisa puesta a pie de pista, sonrisa que se fue transformando en cara de sorpresa cuando comenzaron a descender los pasajeros sin que apareciera una sola chilaba, y que se convirtió en gesto de horror al comprobar que entre quienes caminaban a su encuentro, en pleno sol, no se encontraba el hermano del rey Fahd ni Cristo que lo fundó. Se trataba de gente importante, sí, nada menos que los duques de York, que llegaban a Palma invitados a pasar unos días con los Reyes de España.

¡Un lío memorable! Manolo Prado, horrorizado, salió corriendo hacia el aeropuerto civil de Palma, pero cuando llegó el morito, tras comprobar que nadie había acudido a recibirlo, ya había levantado el vuelo partiendo de regreso a Marbella y muy enfadado ante la falta de cortesía de sus anfitriones palmesanos.

¡Se armó la de Dios es Cristo! Muebles y sillas de época pagaron aquel día el pato del enfado real, que es la forma que suele utilizar el Monarca para descargar su adrenalina cuando está enfadado. El Rey, consternado, llamó rápidamente al príncipe saudí para presentarle sus disculpas, y volvió a hacerlo varias veces a lo largo del día para rogarle encarecidamente que viajara de nuevo a Palma al día siguiente, donde tendría el honor de almorzar con él.

Por fortuna, el hermano del rey Fahd accedió, de modo que el enfado regio se trocó en real y abierta alegría, y no tanto por lo agradable que resultó el almuerzo como por el hecho de que el de la chilaba 'nos ha dado cinco años más para devolver el dinero'.

Parece, sin embargo, que los cinco años transcurrieron sin que Prado lograra encontrar la lámpara de Aladino que le ayudara a devolver esos 10.000 millones. Hace apenas tres años, en el verano del 96, el eco de la llegada a Palma del representante de la familia real saudí reclamando el dinero inundó de nuevo Marivent con sus terroríficas connotaciones: '¡Qué viene el moro cabreado, y quiere cobrar!' era la frase que corría de boca en boca por Palacio. Nadie sabe a estas alturas si Prado ha devuelto esa suma".

Tal y como está descrita la historia, el lector, de seguro, sentirá la tentación de esbozar una sonrisa como si se tratara de una película de enredo. Resulta notoriamente hilarante. El lector, también, puede llegar a la conclusión de que no está implicado en ella, de que es algo que sucede en las alturas, al margen de su interés y su vida cotidiana. Sin embargo, la reacción lógica debería ser la de sentir vergüenza e indignación. En la interpretación más benigna, nos encontramos ante el Jefe del Estado español en la desmerecida función de sablista y estafador. Eso afecta a la dignidad nacional. En la menos benigna, pero más obvia, más pegada a la realidad, la principal autoridad de España, quien encarna la institución que, supuestamente, simboliza la unidad nacional, es un moroso de la petromonarquía saudí, la impulsora del integrismo islámico, la financiadora y difusora del wahabismo suní.

Quien debe a alguien, en mayor o menor medida está condicionado, depende del prestamista, está sometido a él y a sus intereses. Siendo el Jefe del Estado el dependiente, su sumisión no es estrictamente personal, sino que afecta a su representatividad, a su influencia en la política exterior; daña a toda la nación, merma sustancialmente la soberanía nacional. Ya no estamos en el terreno de la estafa, entre personas privadas, sino en el de la lisa y llana traición a la Patria.

Ninguna nación puede admitir que los timoneles de su Estado estén al servicio de potencias extranjeras. Esa situación representa tal merma en la capacidad de maniobra de la soberanía nacional que no puede tolerarse.

De hecho, la monarquía saudí ha hecho algunas inversiones 'ideológicas' en España, de la mano de Juan Carlos. En 1976, 18 países musulmanes con representación diplomática en España firmaron un acuerdo para erigir una mezquita en Madrid. Sin embargo, el proyecto quedó postergado 11 años, hasta que el rey Fahd de Arabia Saudí aportó la financiación necesaria (2.000 millones de pesetas) para ejecutar la construcción. Tras cinco años de obras, el 21 de septiembre de 1992, el monarca saudí y Juan Carlos de Borbón inauguraron el edificio. El conjunto de la mezquita de la M-30 (su fachada oeste da a dicha circunvalación de la capital) consta de 12.000 metros cuadrados distribuidos en seis plantas, cuenta, además de la mezquita, con un colegio o madrasa, biblioteca, dos salas de exposiciones, un museo, un auditorio, un gimnasio, las viviendas del director y del imam, un restaurante y una cafetería.

Toda la fachada del complejo es de mármol blanco. La mezquita de la M-30 es el centro de difusión del integrismo islámico por toda España, el mayor foco del wahabismo. Pasados unos años, el 11 de marzo de 2.004, sería el lugar alrededor del cual se irían formando y ahormando, los terroristas islámicos que perpetraron la masacre de los trenes de Atocha, con el terrible balance de 192 muertos. Y nunca se ha puesto coto alguno a la difusión en España del wahabismo que representa un gravísimo peligro en el momento actual.

El campo de negocios del tándem Prado-Borbón ha sido, ciertamente, amplio, de máximo nivel y sin que falte el lucrativo del tráfico de armas. "Desde los primeros negocios —escribe Cacho— de carne con Argentina, que fracasaron prematuramente, hasta la más boyante intermediación en la compraventa de petróleo y de armas en Latinoamérica y en los países árabes, Prado se movió con gran habilidad en el mundo económico internacional. Una de sus sociedades más emblemáticas era el holding Trébol, en la que también participaba el príncipe Zourab Tchokotua. Este príncipe de origen georgiano, también era íntimo amigo de don Juan Carlos desde que coincidieron en un colegio suizo. A la sociedad Trébol se incorporó posteriormente el rey Simeón de Bulgaria".

Conviene insistir en lo obvio: la unidad de negocio Manuel Prado y Juan Carlos de Borbón. Ello ayuda a poner en su contexto el grave escándalo KIO, con otra petromonarquía de por medio, en este caso la de Kuwait. "El escándalo –relata Jesús Cacho- tuvo su origen en la invasión de Kuwait por el ejército de Sadam Hussein, lo que motivó la intervención americana y británica para expulsar a los invasores iraquíes e instalar de nuevo a la familia Al Sabah al frente del emirato. Sólo entonces se supo que, además de los pozos de petróleo, habían ardido casi 55.000 millones de pesetas de las cuentas que la Kuwait Investment Office (KIO) mantenía en su filial española, el Grupo Torras, cantidad que se utilizó, en buena parte, para el pago de favores políticos en pro de la liberación del emirato.

"Los pagos se 'justificaron' en Kuwait por la necesidad de que, durante la llamada 'Tormenta del Desierto', la aviación norteamericana pudiera disponer a su antojo de las bases aéreas españolas de Rota y Torrejón, para lo que era preciso 'untar' a los políticos.

Javier de la Rosa, que dependía de la cúpula de KIO en Londres, habría actuado como 'pagador' de lo que, sin duda, constituye una de las más monumentales estafas de todos los tiempos. Alguien habría engañado a la familia Al Sabah en el exilio haciendo creer a sus miembros que el Rey de España disponía de la facultad de autorizar la utilización de las bases por los norteamericanos, facultad que en última instancia corresponde al Gobierno y al Parlamento.

Cuando, tras la retirada iraquí, una nueva rama (en un muy peculiar sistema de alternancia) de los Al Sabah se instaló en el emirato, pronto se descubrió el engaño o, en todo caso, la radical desmesura de los pagos. El paso siguiente consistió en querellarse en Londres y Madrid contra los responsables de KIO, su presidente, Fahad Mohamed Al Sabah, miembro de la familia reinante, su primer ejecutivo, Fouad Khaled Jaffar, y el propio De la Rosa en España".

De la Rosa ha reconocido en declaración jurada ante la Corte de Londres haber entregado a Manuel Prado hasta 160 millones de dólares en tres pagos de 80, 20 y 60 millones, aunque otras fuentes elevan la cifra final a 200 millones (unos 30.000 millones de pesetas. Parece evidente que hasta los 55.000 totales media un buen trecho que han debido saltarse a la torera los propios mandamases de KIO, tanto en Londres como en Madrid (…) La única verdad irrefutable en este caso reside en el hecho de que Manuel Prado y Colón de Carvajal reconoció ante el juez Moreiras haber cobrado, vía Javier de la Rosa, efectivamente 100 millones de dólares de KIO, cobro que pretendió justificar como el pago de dictámenes y trabajos de asesoría por él realizados para el catalán".

La historia de la estafa tuvo escenas, de nuevo, rocambolescas. "La decisión de los Al Sabah de reclamar en los tribunales la devolución del dinero desaparecido llevó a Manuel Prado a un estado cercano al paroxismo. Entre las iniciativas emprendidas, a cual más alocada, ninguna tan temeraria como las más de seis horas de conversación telefónica que, desde España y en distintas llamadas, mantuvo con el emirato y que terminaron, en forma de cintas grabadas, en manos del propio Javier de la Rosa, quien, fiel a su estilo, las hizo circular por medio mundo. Manolo Prado ha pasado por este caso como elefante por cacharrería. Y todo por no devolver el dinero, que hubiera sido lo más inteligente a par que justo.

Obsesionado por salvarse de la quema, el sevillano viajó a Kuwait y estableció una fluida relación telefónica con el emirato para intentar convencer a su Gobierno del riesgo que implicaba la aparición de su nombre entre los 'cobradores'. En concreto, pedía una carta oficial en la cual quedara constancia expresa de que él no había recibido dinero alguno.

El estrambote del caso, de acuerdo con la versión extendida por el propio De la Rosa, lo pusieron los propios kuwaitíes, probablemente un grupo opositor a la familia reinante, entrando en contacto con el catalán y ofreciéndole unas cintas grabadas con las conversaciones de Prado, con la promesa de sacarle del pleito de Londres a cambio de que les facilitara toda la información de que dispusiera sobre los Al Sabah. Fue así como el famoso JR comenzó a recibir semanalmente su ración de cinta con la inconfundible voz de Manuel Prado hablando en francés, y también en castellano, con gente como el ministro Belloch, porque, para enfatizar su importancia, grababa las conversaciones 'interiores' que le parecían interesantes para pasárselas a continuación a los kuwaitíes, que, a su vez, le grababan a él, para terminar el recorrido en De la Rosa.

Con el desparpajo que le caracteriza, Prado no deja títere con cabeza. Tratando de salvarse por su cuenta, se sirve del Rey llamándolo 'mon patron', 'mon ami le patron', 'sa majesté', 'il connais tout…' Prodigio de discreción, detalla la existencia de unas cuentas comprometedoras en Liechtenstein, cuya numeración (letras y números) cita; dice que el Gobierno está al corriente; considera que el prestigio del Rey en la sociedad española ha quedado afectado por culpa del escándalo de Mario Conde, hasta el punto de que no podría aguantar otro golpe similar, etc".

Vienen luego las propuestas de Luis María Anson, el monárquico oficial, de que abdicara Juan Carlos en su hijo y de que Manuel Prado pusiera tierra de por medio, marchándose a Suiza. "Javier de la Rosa ofreció las cintas al Rey. Lo hizo a través de Paco Sitges, pero el Monarca, tras parlamentar largo y tendido con su amigo, se negó en redondo a escucharlas. Muy preocupado, lo que hizo el Rey fue pedir al príncipe Felipe que escribiera una carta dirigida al príncipe heredero de Kuwait, de sesenta y siete años, aludiendo a la necesidad de que 'arreglar las cosas entre nuestros dos pueblos hermanos…', misiva de la que, al parecer, dio cuenta la televisión kuwaití".

Quizás el lector no ha recalado en que se trata de una estafa en la que hay una guerra de por medio, en la que muere gente, en la que soldados entregan su vida, en la que soldados españoles estuvieron de misión en el Golfo, mientras en las alturas se hace negocio con su sufrimiento, sin atender a escrúpulos morales. También el lector puede darse cuenta de que es una historia, en lo fundamental, hurtada a los españoles. Las cintas de marras nunca fueron filtradas, nunca se dieron a conocer a la opinión pública, lo que indica el bajo nivel de libertad de expresión existente en España, sobre todo, cuando están la monarquía y Juan Carlos de por medio.

La cuestión es que la corrupción tiene siempre consecuencias. No sólo económicas, aunque ya los españoles saben en sus propias carnes, en sus propios sueldos los funcionarios, en sus pensiones, los jubilados, en su paro, más de cinco millones de trabajadores, que el montante de lo sustraído, de una manera u otra, siempre termina pagándolo el contribuyente. La corrupción tiene otro efecto letal: condiciona la política, degenera a la democracia, establece zonas opacas que pudren al cuerpo social. Es notorio que nuestra política exterior con las petromonarquías, con Marruecos, con los países árabes, está condicionada con estos supuestos negocios presuntamente corruptos de Manuel Prado-Juan Carlos de Borbón."

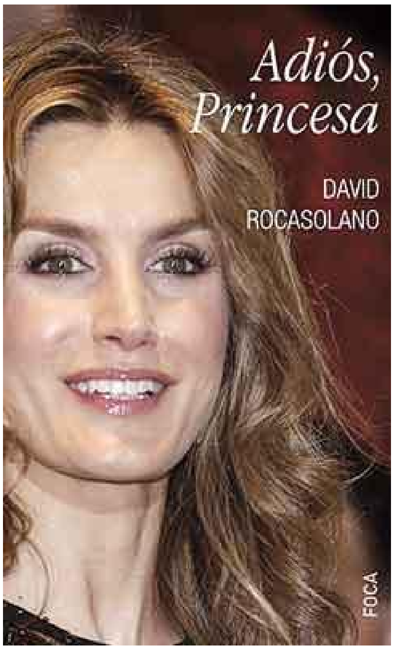
DAVID ROCASOLANO: «ADIOS, PRINCESA»: CONTRA LA LEY DEL SILENCIO MAFIOSO



En la literatura española no existe tradición de "memorias", "diarios", ni "confesiones", porque la familia —esa institución donde se cultivan todos los crímenes y todas las aberraciones bajo la ley de la omertà— secuestra conciencias y convicciones e impone su espeluznante hipocresía.

David Rocasolano, primo hermano de Letizia Ortíz, ha escrito unas memorias en las que no le ha hecho la cirugía estética a la familia real española, ni a su propia familia: pecado mafioso donde los haya:

"El rey no respeta nada ni a nadie. El rey es un maleducado. El rey pasa de todo. He leído y escuchado en muchos sitios que Juan Carlos mantiene una relación poco cordial con Letizia. Que se llevan mal, en resumen. Yo no lo percibí nunca así. El trato que el rey le dispensa a Letizia es parecido al que le ofrece a Sofía, a sus hijos o a sus nietos. En las numerosas ocasiones en las que los he observado, jamás he visto de Juan Carlos un gesto de cariño o afecto hacia su hijo. Ni hacia nadie. Juan Carlos trata a todo el mundo por igual, no debe ser clasista, con una indiferencia y un desdén tan palpables que impresionan. Como si estuviera por encima del bien, del mal y de nosotros. Como una deidad a un insecto".(1)

"Uno de los mitos más divertidos que ha aireado la prensa lacaya sobre mi prima es el de la voraz lectora. Mi prima no ha leído jamás otra cosa que periódicos, algún bestseller tipo Grisham o los libros que le obligaron a leer en el colegio y en la facultad. Durante el tiempo que yo trabajé en una conocida firma editorial, era frecuente que le regalara algún clásico ruso, recuerdo Guerra y Paz, o alguna reedición lujosa de literatura americana. Digo lujosa porque yo era consciente de que el libro iba a ir directamente como adorno a una estantería, ya que a Letizia jamás la iba a arrebatar el impulso de leerlo".(1)

"Era un día de primeros de septiembre de 2003 cuando Letizia me llamó. Aquella vez no hubo rodeos ni cordialidades. Sencillamente, me dijo: David, tienes que venir a casa. Necesito hablar contigo de un asunto importante. Y no puede ser por teléfono (...) Así que cogí el coche de inmediato y me dirigí a la Casa del Príncipe. La ceremonia de petición de mano se anunciaría para el primero de noviembre, apenas dos meses después (...) Felipe y Letizia me recibieron en el gran salón de la planta baja (...) Estaban nerviosos y se les notaba". "Tengo que contarte una cosa, David", dijo Letizia según Rocasolano, "una cosa que nos puede afectar a Felipe y a mí muy seriamente (...)Si lo que te voy a contar se llega a saber, es muy probable que esto no siga adelante. Y necesito tu ayuda. Mira. Hará un año que tuve una intervención quirúrgica en una clínica (...) Tuve un aborto voluntario hace un año en la clínica Dator de Madrid (...) Si esto lo sabe la madre de Felipe, la boda es inviable (...) Quiero que vayas a la clínica y limpies todos los papeles que hay allí". (2)

Y esto es lo que la Princesa de Asturias dice públicamente:

"Yo creo que un ser, cualquier ser que te mande Dios, debe ser respetado. Si a mí mañana me hacen una amniocentesis y descubren que mi niño está mal, es que Dios quiere que ese niño venga así al mundo. Yo no lo dudaría. Lo tendría".

En cualquier país decente, un ciudadano que sepa que un alto cargo ha mentido, ha delinquido mediante perjurio para poder realizar una boda religiosa sacrílega —según los parámetros de la Iglesia Católica quien se somete a un aborto queda automáticamente excomulgada— está obligado ética y legalmente a denunciarlo. En la putrefacta España, los periodistas y los comentaristas, sospechan todo lo peor de quien, como Ramón Akal, el editor, y David Rocasolano, el autor, rompen la ley mafiosa de la omertà.

Por cierto, los principales medios de comunicación patrios no hablarán del libro de David Rocasolano: Adiós, Princesa (Foca, 2013) por pleitesía y vasallaje, siguiendo la costumbre de ocultar la mierda regia hasta que desborda las alcantarillas del Estado.**

Casi todas las bodas católicas que tienen lugar en España son sacrílegas, porque los contrayentes no creen ni en ese sacramento ni siquiera en Dios. El aborto es un derecho que nos ha costado mucho conseguir y no debiera utilizarse como arma arrojadiza.
La monarquía es una institución detestable, desde luego, y sobre todo este rey vendido a EEUU y corrupto.
La actitud de David Rocasolano me parece tan lamentable como su prosa. Está a juego con la familia de Letizia, sacando dinero como sea y aprovechando las oportunidades más bajas. Véanse la actitud de la madre y los exámenes copiados, la familia paterna con el asunto de la casa de la abuela y la estafa de la tía, etc, etc.
Un miembro más de la pandilla basura.
Hay mejores métodos para atacar la monarquía, por ejemplo, algunas noticias que aparecen en la columna de la derecha y las críticas que aquí mismo se publican, con mucho brío y más duras que las lamentables frases del primo abogado que tanto esperaba de su parentesco real.
De acuerdo con la descripción de la familia en general. Buena prueba de ello, estas familias reales y plebeyas, y tantas otras, probablemente también las nuestras, aunque de otra manera.
Lo intenté pero no me ha salido un haiku. Lo siento. Ni tampoco una guillotina, lo cual siento todavía más.

Sobre los católicos de conveniencia hay dos corrientes de pensamiento, y yo sigo la que defiende el redactor-jefe de Alimaña News http://gatopardo.blogia.com/2008/013001-alimana-news-a-favor-de-los-actos-de-fervor-del-nacional-catolicismo.php

También hay dos corrientes de pensamiento respecto a los "pentiti" que abandonan la mafia y denuncian a la "famiglia": yo soy de la escuela de Giovanni Falcone, que los consideraba imprescindibles benefactores de la justicia a los que trataba con el debido respeto.

Por lo demás, querida, no sé quién te habrá dicho que esa moda de andar soliviantada y rezumando indignación favorece y da prestancia; por el contrario, estropea el cutis, agarrota el rictus, y provoca gases.

Y cuidado donde pones la guillotina, que deja manchas indelebles en el parquet.

De nada.

Gatopardo ¿te encuentras bien?¿"soliviantada y rezumando indignación"? ¿tú o yo? De verdad que, en este caso, el asunto me produce bastante indiferencia. Y en serio que había pensado en un haiku pero era muy muy tarde y la cabeza no me daba para más. Como ahora, que me voy hacia el sofá a tumbarme un rato.

Creo sinceramente que atacar a una familia o a una mujer por un aborto no es lo más acertado. No conozco a ninguna mujer que se sienta orgullosa del suyo (quizá lo de orgullosa no sea la palabra adecuada, pero en este momento no se me ocurre otra). Por otro lado, el asunto ya fue aireado y publicado en su momento, justo antes que se casara, por lo que no entiendo la importancia que se le está dando. Tampoco creo que importe demasiado lo que lee o deja de leer una persona, por mucho que la prensa rosa intente que así sea.
Pienso que con esas cosas, de típico escándalo rosa, le estamos dando a la corona más valor del que tiene. Aparte de que tampoco estamos seguros que el escritor sea imparcial, al menos no lo parece.
A esta monarquía hay que combatirla con otras razones, no por la presunta antipatía del monarca (que me extraña), por lo que cuesta o porque Leticia tuviera un desliz con mal final, sino por algo más profundo y de principios.
A mi modo de ver sería terrible que la monarquía española cayera por algo tan trivial y no por lo que representa.

Cuando trato de imaginar qué piensa y puede decir el clásico indocumentado que, antes de leer un libro o ver una película, ya opina y dictamina con tal de colocar sus cuatro melonadas ultra-mega-progres, me vengo a buscar tus intervenciones en comentarios.

Nene: Por mí, Letizia y todas las que van de puritanas ojalá abortaran siempre; pero luego que no diga públicamente que ella, aunque le digan que viene tarado el nene, Borbón perdido, lo tendría porque así lo quiere Dios, que es el discurso de toda esta panda de falsas.

Hay que sacar del armario a los que públicamente se declaran antiabortistas y luego, abortan cuando les sale del coño, que para eso está la Ley que ellos quieren cargarse.

Y que caiga la monarquía porque no tienen honor, ni ética, y son una pura perversión no es trivial, hermoso mío. Que le pregunten a los sans-culottes...

LA FRASE

Voy a confesar algo que no suelo contar sobre mi odio a la verborrea, a la redundancia, a la perífrasis, a repetir con algunas variaciones lo mismo, y a tratar de explicar al lector todo, todo, todo, sin dejar que averigüe el origen de las conclusiones que el autor cree imprescindible hacernos saber, y por qué desconfío de cualquier texto que caiga en estos excesos.

En mi familia hay un extraño rito cuando cumplimos los siete años, una especie de prueba de iniciación que todos debemos superar, para poder hablar en la mesa, discutir con los adultos, escribir nuestras cartas personales, y otros privilegios por el estilo: se trata de bordar a punto diablo un pañito de 30x40 cm. con una frase.

La maldita aguja pinchaba de los dos lados, el dedal se deslizaba continuamente; el hilo, fuera largo o corto, se atascaba y enredaba misteriosamente, y había que cortar y volver a enhebrar. Aquel bordado se me hizo eterno, y llegué a obsesionarme, imaginando variaciones para abreviarlo. Pasé gran parte de mi infancia, tarde tras tarde, hasta acabarlo. El premio es que nunca más tendría que bordar, y sólo soñaba con alcanzar aquel paraíso sin hilo ni aguja ni bastidor. Llegó el día en que rematé el último hilo suelto en el envés. Era un bordado mugriento, y tal cual fue enmarcado, y mi madre me dijo lo consabido:

—Algún día me agradecerás que te haya obligado a hacerlo para que nadie te la dé con queso.

Mi madre guardó mi labor junto a las de mis hermanos, envuelta en papel de seda azul para que no se amarilleara con la luz, y durante muchos años no lo volví a ver, pero siguió obsesionándome aquella frase del maldito bordado, con sus letras y crucecitas.

Al independizarnos, cada uno recibió su bordado enmarcado como única herencia. Nuestros descendientes también han pasado esa prueba iniciática , pero a ellos les hemos dejado escoger entre bordarla y vaciarla en madera o en piedra, siempre y cuando se respeten las dimensiones, y, en este momento, uno de mis nietos atruena con el cincel y la maza, porque ha decidido que sea una frase lapidaria.

Ahora, mi bordado está colgado frente a mí, más mugriento que nunca, y en algo parecido al punto de cruz está la frase:

"Quien necesite más de quinientas palabras para decir lo que piensa es que no lo ha pensado bien o miente."

Al menos, la vida de Claire Goll parece interesante.
No creo que Abreu escriba sobre erotismo, que dicen que es una cosa fina y, por lo tanto, necesitaría, al menos, un vocabulario rico. Yo creo que pretende provocar con cierto humor. Si comparamos ese texto con los artículos de reflexión publicados en periódicos o revistas universitarias, Abreu tiene muchas más ideas, creo. O, por lo menos, tiene una, que no es poco. De todas formas, estoy de acuerdo con que se pida un examen y permiso de componer haikus a cualquiera que publique. Como medida de precaución. Es más, milito por el folio en blanco.

JUZGADO DE INSTRUCCIÓN NUMERO TRES

PALMA DE MALLORCA

AUTO

En Palma a tres de abril de dos mil trece.

Dada cuenta, por presentados los anteriores escritos por las Representaciones Procesales de Don Miguel Tejeiro Losada y de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, de Don Diego Torres Pérez, de Doña Ana María Tejeiro Losada, de Virtual Strategies S.L., de Nóos Consultoria Estratégica S.L., de la Fundación Deporte, Cultura e Integración Social, de Shiriaimasu S.L. y de Intuit Strategy Innovation Lab S.L., de los que se dará traslado al Ministerio Fiscal y partes personadas, únanse a la Pieza Separada de su razón y, visto el estado que mantiene, y

ANTECEDENTES DE HECHO

PRIMERO.- Que en fecha cinco de marzo de 2.012 recayó Auto que, entre otros pronunciamientos, contenía el que literalmente decía: "1° Se desestima la solicitud de que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia sea citada para que comparezca ante este Juzgado a prestar declaración en calidad de imputada en la presente causa, formulada por la Representación Procesal del Sindicato del Colectivo Público "Manos Limpias" en fecha 15 de febrero del presente año."

SEGUNDO.- Que con posterioridad se han practicados numerosas diligencias y aportada abundante documentación con el contenido que obra en la presente Pieza Separada cuyo volumen junto con los Anexos que le afectan asciende en este momento a algo más de 42.000 folios.

FUNDAMENTOS JURÍDICOS

PRIMERO.- En la citada resolución expresamente se hacía constar que "conviene dejar bien claro que nada más lejos del ámbito de la presente resolución que emitir un Juicio de probabilidad con pretensiones de permanencia sobre la responsabilidad que haya podido o no contraer Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia en relación con las actividades realizadas por su marido Don Ignacio Urdangarín Liebaert que son objeto de investigación en la presente Pieza Separada.

Lo que se ha de resolver sólo tiene vigencia en este momento, con los datos con los que ahora se cuenta y a los solos fines de analizar la procedencia de la solicitud formulada por el Sindicato del Colectivo Público "Manos Limpias" "para que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia sea citada ante este Juzgado al objeto de prestar declaración en calidad de imputada."

Quería esto decir que, aunque tal mención no era procesalmente obligada, se trató de dejar bien claro que el rechazo de la postulada imputación de Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia era puramente circunstancial en razón a la insuficiencia en ese momento de datos objetivos que la posibilitaran y sin prejuzgar cualquier otra resolución de signo radicalmente distinto que el futuro de la instrucción pudiera deparar.

SEGUNDO.- Se concordara que durante el año transcurrido desde entonces este Juzgado no ha escatimado esfuerzos tendentes tanto a confirmar como a descartar la intervención de aquellas personas que ya habían declarado en calidad de imputadas, en su caso alcance y grado de participación que hubieran podido tener y circunstancias concurrentes, como con la finalidad de hacer acopio de datos suficientes para valorar si procedía o no hacerlas extensivas a otras personas.

En esa labor han sido interrogados imputados y testigos, que pudieran tener razón de ciencia al respecto, por la intervención que hubieran podido apreciar en Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia con ocasión de las distintas contrataciones públicas, el ejercicio de funciones ejecutivas reales como Vocal de la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada o en función de su participación al 50 % en la entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L. de la que era Secretaria.

El resultado que se ha obtenido ha sido hasta fechas muy recientes tan escaso que no ha representado cambio alguno en las argumentaciones que se tuvieron en cuenta en el Auto de cinco de marzo de 2.012 y ha sido por ello que, a pesar de la extrañeza y suspicacia que determinadas situaciones de hecho pudieran provocar y a las que más adelante se hará referencia, al no venir aseguradas objetivamente desaconsejaron a este instructor acordar la citación en calidad de imputada de Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia sin que se haya planteado en ningún momento su convocatoria en calidad de testigo ya que la intervención que de ella pudiera supuestamente predicarse nunca autorizaría a declarar bajo juramento o promesa de decir una verdad que hipotéticamente pudiera incriminarla, que es la esencia de tal acto. Secundariamente escasa utilidad representaría para la causa acordar su declaración como testigo ya que, como miembro de la Familia Real, estaría exenta de concurrir a un hipotético llamamiento judicial como testigo podiendo facilitar su versión por escrito a tenor del articulo 412.1 de la Ley de Enjuiciamiento Criminal y, como cónyuge del Sr. Urdangarín que ya había prestado declaración en calidad de imputado, ni tan siquiera por escrito estaría obligada a hacerlo de conformidad a la previsión contenida en el artículo 416.1 del mismo Texto Legal y, para el supuesto de que accediera a ello, su testimonio estaría seriamente limitado por un cauce procedimental que impide plantear preguntas al socaire de las respuestas y con ello muy compleja la observancia del principio de contradicción, y comprensiblemente mediatizado por el parentesco.

Los recelos que coloquialmente pudieran generarse en función del matrimonio de Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia con Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert, en razón de ser copartícipe con él en un 50 % en la entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L. y Secretaria de la misma, y a raíz dc ostentar hasta un determinado momento el cargo de Vocal de la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, por muy asumibles que pudieran ser en el ámbito de las meras suposiciones, carecían por sí solos y sin refuerzo añadido de virtualidad suficiente para convocarla a prestar declaración en calidad de imputada, única modalidad en que cabría hacerla, al igual que tampoco existían datos objetivos suficientes para la llamada en calidad de imputado de Don Luis Carlos García Revenga, y en ese criterio se hubiera mantenido esteJuzgado de no ser por al reciente advenimiento de los datos que se dirán, TERCERO.- Todos cuantos han depuesto sobre ello han coincidido en que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia no asistía a reunión alguna de la Junta Directiva, que nunca expresó su criterio sobre las distintas contrataciones públicas e incluso privadas de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, menos aún adoptó decisión alguna al respecto o contribuyó con su voto a que otros la adoptaran y tan aparentemente pasiva actitud era extrapolable a rol que desempeñaba en la entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L. de la que era Secretaria y partícipe por mitad junto a su marido.

La pregunta que se hace obligada es la de por qué, si el cargo de Vocal de la Junta Directiva no era según el artículo 22 de sus Estatutos necesario para la válida constitución de aquélla ni para su correcto funcionamiento —no se olvide— como órgano colegiado de gobierno y dirección, fue nombrada Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia precisamente para no ejercerlo.

Puede inducir la respuesta el dato de que en la misma Junta de Dirección aparecía otra persona en situación no exactamente igual pero sí muy parecida, que era Don Luis Carlos García Revenga. Se dice que no era exactamente igual porque, al contrario que el cargo de Vocal, el de Tesorero sí que era estatutariamente obligado, pero se dice que la situación era similar porque el Sr. García Revenga niega, y el testimonio de diversas personas ha avalado tal negativa, haber tenido absolutameme nada que ver con las cuentas de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada de las que ya se encargaba el contable, Don Marco Antonio Tejeiro Losada, de tal manera que nunca llevó a cabo actividad alguna que guardara la menor relación con las arcas de la Asociación, y al que también es trasladable la misma pregunta del por qué se nombra a alguien para el cargo de Tesorero cuando quien realmente lo ejerce es persona distinta y tal estado de cosas tiene lugar con la aquiescencia de todos.

En la Vocal y en el Tesorero concurre una nota común y es que el nombre de sus titulares viene acompañado en la primera con su tratamiento como "S. A. R. La Infanta" y en el segundo con el cargo de "Asesor de la Casa de S. M. El Rey", cargo este ultimo que nadie consideró necesario consignar en la certificación de la Asamblea que le nombró, pero que sí estimaron necesario explicitarlo en la redacción de un folleto con el que la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada se presentaría ante sus potenciales clientes.

Hasta tal punto Don Luis Carlos García Revenga estimó importante que figurara en ese folleto su relación con la Casa Real que corrigió la mención previa de "Secretario de Sus Altezas Reales Las Infantas", que era el cometido que le estaba en concreto asignado, por el de "Asesor de la Casa de S. M. El Rey" que en su nombramiento de 14 de enero de 1.997 fígura en los siguientes términos: "Ministerio: Casa de S. M. El Rey. Centro Directivo: Casa de S. M. El Rey. Puesto de Trabajo: Vocal Asesor".

Al objeto de conocer el funcionamiento interno de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, por Auto de 8 de marzo del presente año se requirió a quien era y es su Secretario, Don Miguel Tejeiro Losada, para que, entre otros extremos, aportara el acta completa de la Asamblea General Extraordinaria supuestamente celebrada el día 23 de Septiembre de 2.001 en la que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia y Don Luis Carlos García Revenga fueron nombrados, respectivamente, Vocal y Tesorero de la Junta Directiva, así como toda la documentación que se anexionó, el acta anterior a la que aquélla hace referencia, las actas de las Asambleas Generales Extraordinarias supuestamente celebradas el 19 de Octubre de 2.004 y 20 de Marzo de 2.006, ésta última de formal cese de la Junta Directiva y nombramiento de la que habría de sustituirla, así como certificación sobre cuantas Juntas o Asambleas, ordinarias o extraordinarias, distintos de las ya mencionadas, tuvieran lugar desde el 23 de Septiembre de 2.003 hasta el 20 de Marzo de 2.006 en la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada. personas que acudían a las mismas, y lugar de celebración, aportando toda la documentación de la que dispusiera en ese sentido.

La respuesta dada ha sido la de que "Nuestro representado, Don Miguel Tejeiro Losada. fue nombrado para el cargo de Secretario de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada en fecha 23 de Septiembre de 2003 y asimismo nuevamente en fecha 20 de Marzo de 2006, al procederse a la renovación de la composición de la Junta Directiva. El nombramiento de nuestro representado se realizó con la única finalidad de colmar la composición orgánica de la Junta Directiva, de conformidad con lo dispuesto en los Estatutos. Llegado el momento de tener que firmar las Actas de las Asambleas Generales Extraordinarias, o de tener que firmar los Certificados correspondientes, las mismas le eran remitidas a nuestro representado por mensajero desde el Instituto Nóos, las cuáles devolvía debidamente firmadas por el mismo conducto a la dirección del Instinto Nóos. De tal modo el Sr. Tejeiro no puede dar cuenta sobre los detalles por los que es requerido relativos a las Asambleas Generales extraordinarias de fechas 23 de Septiembre de 2003, 19 de Octubre de 2004 ni de 20 de Marzo de 2006, en ninguno de los aspectos relativos a lugar de celebración de las mismas, miembros intervinientes, documentación anexionada y documentos en los que consten las firmas de los mismos".

Esta ausencia perceptiva no le impide decir que, "pese a que el Sr. Tejeiro no era convocado a la celebración de las Asambleas Generales ello únicamente significa que no puede dar cuenta de las circunstancias en que se produjeron, mas en ningún caso debe llevar a concluir que las mismas no se produjeran efectivamente, aún menos que el contenido material de las certificaciones que suscribió altere mendazmente los efectos jurídicos que el documento está llamado a cumplir en el tráfico. Nuestro representado firmaba las Actas y los Certificados en la creencia y convicción, que aún mantiene, de que los mismos reflejaban la voluntad real y efectiva de la Junta Directiva y que se plasmaba en los documentos que le eran enviados para firma. En este punto debemos significar que el Sr Tejeiro no conoce personalmente a Don Carlos Luis García Revenga a quién no ha visto jamás, por lo que no puede adverar la firma de aquél que consta en el Acta de la Asamblea de fecha 20 de Marzo de 2006.

Así pues, todo parece indicar que estaba consensuado que la única función de Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia y Don Luis Carlos García Revenga era la de una utilitarista figuración en la medida en que sus nombramientos por los responsables de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada no lo fueron en atención a sus capacidades pues que, por mucho que les sobraran, ningunas estaban llamados a desplegar, ni se dice que de hecho las desplegaran en el seno de la Junta Directiva del Instituto en sus calidades de Vocal y Tesorero.

Pues bien, si ésta no fue la motivación resulta difícil imaginar otra que no fuera que, al igual que Don Diego Torres Pérez y Don Miguel Tejeiro Losada hacían valer legítimamente en esa carta de presentación sus méritos académicos como exponente de su autoridad y solvencia científica, se buscaba que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia y Don Luis Carlos García Revenga hicieran lo propio con su tratamiento real y cargo, respectivamente, con la pretensión de aparentar ante empresas privadas e Instituciones Públicas que todas las operaciones que la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada abordaba eran conocidas y gozaban del respaldo de la Casa de S. M. El Rey, y ello se conjugaría a la perfección con que los Convenios del Illes Balears Forum se gestaran en el Palacio de Marivent de Palma como así se acabó reconociendo, que Don Diego Torres Pérez afirme categóricamente que los del Valencia Summit lo fueran en el Palacio de la Zarzuela entre él y el Sr. Urdangarín, de una parte, y, de otra, Don Francisco Enrique Camps Ortiz y Doña Maria Rita Barberá Nolla, aunque éste dato esté por confirmarse, y que se haga constar en el currículum de Don Iñaki Urdangarín. obrante al folio 11.419 de la Pieza, de cara a promocíonar económicamente su imagen, como estado civil el de "Casado con S. A. R. La Infanta Doña Cristina en Barcelona en 1997" cuando de haberlo estado con otra persona tal dato sería irrelevante. Cierto que, siendo su matrimonio con una Infanta de España un dato notorio, no precisaba de su explicitación pero hay una gran diferencia en actuar al margen de ella que con su expresa y aparentemente activa intervención en el órgano colegiado de gobierno de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada y con la aportación de su propio patrimonio en la entidad Aizoon S.L. que le facturaba, de la que a su vez era Secretaria, y a la que parece ser que se le cargaban despensas personales. La afirmación hecha por Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert de que involucrar a su esposa en la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada lo fue porque quería ofrecer a sus interlocutores la mayor transparencia sobre la constitución de aquélla, por muy legítima que sea en el ejercicio de su derecho a manifestar lo que estime conveniente, no es fácilmente entendible.

CUARTO.- Parece que está fuera de discusión que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia y Don Luis Carlos García Revenga prestaron su consentimiento a que se usaran sus nombres, tratamiento y cargo e incluso aquélla a ser copartícipe de la entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L. pues que no cabe imaginar que pudiera hacerse de otro modo pero, aun dándolo como cierto, ello no convertiría sin más esa intervención en delictiva en la medida en que, en beneficio de la duda, no cabria suponer que quienes a esa creación de apariencia se prestaron conocieran en el momento de sus consentidos nombramientos o durante la vigencia de los mismos el desviado uso que de ellos personas allegadas pudieran hacer. Es por ello que este Juzgado no se decidió a citar a Don Luís Carlos García Revenga en calidad de imputado hasta que arribaron a la causa determinados documentos de los que podría supuestamente desprenderse que aquél conocía el uso que Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert iba a dar y estaba dando a su cargo de Vocal Asesor de la Casa de S. M. El Rey, silenciando que su cometido era el de Secretario de Sus Altezas Reales Las Infantas, para que facilitara las explicaciones que creyera conveniente.

QUINTO.- A partir de la declaración de Don Diego Torres Pérez y de los numerosos correos electrónicos que aportó en su curso, y después de escuchar la versión dada por Don Luis Carlos García Revenga, surgen una serie de indicios que hacen dudar que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia desconociera la aplicación que su esposo diera a su mención como Vocal de la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada y a su participación en la mercantil Aizoon S.L. y que conviene despejar en cualquiera de los sentidos antes de finalizar la instrucción de esta Pieza Separada pues que hacerlo dejando que la incógnita se perpetué sería un cierre en falso en descrédito de la máxima de que la justicia es igual para todos y una clara contradicción a la práctica cotidiana de los juzgados y tribunales que en casos similares es muy escasamente probable que prescindieran del trámite.

Tales indicios pueden resumirse en:

1º Obra a los folios 11.146 y ss. de la presente Pieza lo que parece ser una misiva en la que Don Iñaki Urdangarín agradece a un tercero la búsqueda de una razón social para una nueva empresa que focaliza en Nóos, muestra su frustración por su situación profesional en aquélla para la que en aquél entonces prestaba sus servicios, plasma su interés por instalarse por su cuenta y aspira a compensar en breve los 35 millones de las entonces pesetas que dejaría de percibir. Tal misiva está fechada al 11 de diciembre de 2002 y en ella ya se anuncia como pieza clave de futuro a Don Diego Torres Pérez y a su entorno.

A partir de aquí se inicia una carrera que cuenta como hitos destacables los siguientes:

—La compra el 24 de diciembre de 2002 de la totalidad de las participaciones de la entidad mercantil Araujuzón S.L. por parte de Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert y Don Diego Torres Pérez.

—El 23 de enero de 2003 el cambio de su denominación por la de Nóos ConsuItoria Estratégica S.L.

—El 11 de febrero de 2003 la constitución de la entidad Aizoon S.L. al 50% por Don lñaki Urdangarín Liebaert y Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia —El 18 de julio de 2003 la modificación de los Estatutos de la Asociación Instituto de Investigación Aplicada que pasa a denominarse Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada.

—El 23 de septiembre de 2003 la designación de la nueva Junta Directiva, que queda constituida de la siguiente manera: Presidente, Don Iñaki Urdangarín, Vicepresidente Don Diego Torres, Secretario General Don Miguel Tejeiro, Tesorero Don Carlos García Revenga y Vocal, S.A.R. La Infanta Doña Cristina.

Tal secuencia no se advierte como coyunturalmente improvisada en cada tránsito sino que más bien parece obedecer a un previo y común diseño del que son autores Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert y Don Diego Torres Pérez y que, según se dice en la aludida epístola, cuenta con el conocimiento y apoyo de la esposa del primero y de amigos comunes.

2º Don Luis Carlos García Revenga es Secretario Personal de Sus Altezas Reales Las Infantas y obligado por ello a una función de tutela o, cuando menos, de permanente asesoramiento personal e institucional de éstas, actividad por la que viene siendo retribuido con cargo a los Presupuestos Generales del Estado. Pues bien, si tal como revelan los correos que se le exhibieron y cuya autenticidad no puso en duda en el curso de su declaración, Don Luis Carlos Garcia Revenga parecía conocer los actividades que estaba llevando a cabo la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, en parte luego traspasadas a la Fundación Deporte, Cultura e Integración Social, tanto en el ámbito privado como en la esfera pública, aunque no necesariamente hasta el detalle ni que necesariamente se lucrara con ellas, no se acaba de entender que cuando menos no participara a Doña Cristina de Borbón que su esposo estaba obteniendo un trato privilegiado, que en el primero de los ámbitos podría traducirse en una indeseable correspondencia y en el segundo en la liberación del sometimiento a las normas que regían las contrataciones públicas, y que en los dos ámbitos era fácilmente deducíble que ello podría deberse a las vinculaciones de ambos con la Casa de S. M. El Rey.

3º Si, como afirma el Sr. Revenga, éste no participó a S. M El Rey su nombramiento como Tesorero de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, aparte de que carece de explicación que no lo hiciera, deviene sin sentido que Doña Cristina de Borbón y su marido no se cuestionaran tal omisión o la suplieran en la medida en que mantener el dato en secreto se aviene mal con lo que debiera ser una espontánea y natural actitud de comunicación.

4º Para el hipotético supuesto de que Doña Cristina de Borbón y Grecia desconociera y tampoco pudiera adivinar con qué finalidad fueron Don Luís Carlos García Revenga y ella misma insertados en la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada en tanto no tenían asignado cometido real alguno, si S. M EI Rey, a tenor de lo que se expondrá, acabó por saberlo y de ahí su admonición, no se acaba de entender que su hija con un conocimiento mucho más directo y real y con el asesoramiento compartido de Don Luis Carlos García Revenga no llegara a enterarse y de propia iniciativa no hubiera decidido desvincularse formal y efectivamente de la Asociación.

Se hace alusión a S. M. El Rey pues que mal puede en buena lógica admitirse que Don José Manuel Romero Moreno actuara a sus espaldas cuando "ordena, recomienda o aconseja" a su yerno que se abstenga de determinados comportamientos, tampoco que no sea objeto de discusión su legitimidsd para tal proceder, menos aún que cuantas personas los escucharon directamente de boca del Sr. Romero los dieran como procedentes de S. M. El Rey, menos aún que como tales los siguieran conceptuando en el momento de sus declaraciones, y menos todavía que, cuando menos en apariencia, fueran acatados por su destinatario. Por encima de tales razones hay una de superior peso y es la de por qué razón iba Don José Manuel Romero Moreno a asumir una carga y responsabilidad que no le correspondían respecto de personas tan estrechamente vinculadas a S. M. El Rey como eran su hija y yerno sin contar con su anuencia.

5º Sobre la base de lo anterior, existen versiones matizadamente distintas sobre cuál fue el exacto contenido de la recomendación que supuestamente S. M. El Rey trasmitiera a su yerno a través de Don José Manuel Romero Moreno, pero sea cual fuere la que resulte objetivada, es lo cierto que todas tienen en común un reproche hacia las actividades de aquél en relación con la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada y una "insinuación" de apartamiento de los órganos de gobierno de la misma o de cualquier otro ente que le sustituyera, que en este caso fue la Fundación Deporte, Cultura e Integración Social.

No es fácil asimilar que Don Luis Carlos García Revenga afirmara desconocer el mensaje que al respecto supuestamente ordenara, autorizara o consintiera transmitir S. M. El Rey ya que tal desconocimiento sólo podría encontrar sustento en una absoluta falta de comunicación con su procedencia, también con el mensajero, asimismo con el receptor, también con la hija del primero y esposa del tercero, asimismo con Don Diego Torres Pérez y por supuesto, estructurado sobre una incomprensible falta de curiosidad en conocer por qué en un momento determinado se le pide su dimisión y la de S. A. R La Infanta a la que asesora, desinterés al parecer compartido por ésta. Sobre esta argumentación y acorde con su función de Secretario de S. A. R La Infanta, obligado estaba a comentar con ésta las razones más plausibles de la decisión real y su alcance de presente y de cara al futuro.

6º En este nuevo estado de cosas cobran importancia argumentaciones que por sí solas se descartaron por insuficientes en tiempo anterior, y así, con independencia de lo ya expuesto, no se acaba de entender que S. M. El Rey no comentara con su hija las críticas o recomendaciones que había hecho llegar o proyectaba hacer a su marido e incluso consensuara con ella su alcance y el compromiso, expreso o tácito, de que de alguna manera velara por su cumplimiento lo que le debería haber llevado a Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia a la conclusión de que las recomendaciones de su padre no se estaban siguiendo y cuestionar al respecto la actitud de su marido.

8º Aunque no delictivas por su degradación a infracciones laborales y fiscales, también en este nuevo contexto cobran ahora mayor significado supuestas actitudes, según se dice directamente protagonizadas por Doña Cristina de Borbón y Grecia, tales como las relatadas por testigos de contratar empleados del hogar en situación irregular en España anunciándoles que se les pagarían sus salarlos en dinero fiscalmente opaco para luego acabar siendo contratados por la entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L. coparticipada por el matrimonio, lo que revela que no es de descartar su conocimiento de que aquélla estaba siendo utilizada a fines ilícitos, entre ellos el que se verá a continuación.

9º Aunque los delitos contra la Hacienda Pública han sido por el momento predicados sólo respecto de Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert y Don Diego Torres Pérez, no puede ignorarse que ingresos del primero como miembro o asesor de Consejos de Administración de distintas empresas fueron objeto de facturación por Aizoon S.L., entidad que en la generalidad de los casos era totalmente desconocida por las empresas contratantes en el momento de la contratación del Sr. Urdangarín y en ningún caso determinante de éstas, de tal manera que el acceso de Aizoon S.L. a las distintas relaciones jurídicas sólo se produce por indicación de aquél quien por conveniencia fiscal decide que sea tal entidad, coparticipada por mitad por Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia, la que facture sus servicios.

10º Recientemente se han incorporado a la causa correos electrónicos y entre ellos uno que figura al Folio 11.508 de la Causa en el que Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert participa a Don Diego Torres Pérez determinada intervención que la esposa del primero ha tenido y otra que habría de tener al parecer en relación con un proyecto de vela y que conviene aclarar si no ha podido extenderse a otros ámbitos.

11º En este contexto Don Diego Torres Pérez, aún después de admitir no sentirse comparativamente agraviado por el hecho de la imputación de su esposa y que, en cambio, Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia no haya seguido la misma suerte, afirmó categóricamente que la segunda tenía en la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada el mismo conocimiento e intervención que todos los demás y tal aseveración, lejos de interpretarse como un acto de desviación de responsabilidad ya que ninguna se admite, puede y debe sin forzamiento entenderse como que si alguna cupiere habría de ser compartida por todos. En la misma tesitura su esposa, Doña Ana María Tejeiro Losada, de manera más solapada pero no menos significativa dijo con meridiana claridad que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia no había sido citada "porque es quien es" y esta suposición, hecha al entender de este proveyente por quien es persona versada en el funcionamiento de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada y del entramado societario que en torno al mismo giraba, puede sin torcimiento interpretarse como que el distinto trato sólo puede obedecer a su posicíonamíento institucional y no a un sustancial diferente grado de participación en los hechos.

12° Aunque por sí solo no sea un dato concluyente, difícilmente puede estructurarse que Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert actuara de espaldas a su esposa cuando la negociación, o un hito relevante de la misma, de los Convenios Illes Balears Forum tuvo lugar en el Palacio de Marivent de esta Ciudad y se dice que los del Valencia Summit en el Palacio de la Zarzuela aunque este último dato no haya sido confirmado ni desvirtuado todavía.

13° A la misma conclusión puede llegarse cuando Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert facilita como propia a tercera persona la cuenta de ahorros en la que su esposa figura como autorizada para que en ella se actualicen determinadas operaciones.

14° Aunque no sea dato exclusivamente determinante de la presente resolución, no puede desconocerse la muy reciente venida a la causa de determinados correos electrónicos en los que Don lñaki Urdangarín Liebaert parece consultar con su esposa cuál de las dos versiones de una "comunicación de Nóos" habría de enviar "para no sacar ampollas". También supuestamente y desconociendo el criterio que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia evacuara al respecto, dicha comunicación es cursada a un gran número de personas. No es descabellado pensar que una consulta en la que no se facilita una mçinima información sobre su contenido fuerza a deducir que aquélla ya se poseería por su destinataria.

SEXTO.- Anticipadamente se concuerda con quienes legítimamente serán críticos con la presente resolución que se es consciente que cada uno de los anteriores indicios, en sí mismos y aisladamente considerados, carece de peso suficiente para sustentar una imputación, pero de su valoración en conjunto se está en el caso de entender que, si bien no existen evidentes indicios racionales de que Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia interviniera activa y decididamente en la gestión cotidiana de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada y entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L., sí que existen suficientes de que no precisaba hacerlo pues que bastaba con que prestara su consentimiento a que su parentesco con S. M. El Rey fuera utilizado por su marido y por Don Diego Torres Pérez, junto con el cargo que ostentaba Don Luis Carlos García Revenga, a sabiendas de que lo era para propiciar un trato generoso por parte de empresas privadas y tan pródigo como privilegiado de las Administraciones Públicas que, en atención a ello, prescindían de los cauces y controles administrativos que eran de rigor, disfrutando junto con su marido de los beneficios obtenidos. Es más que dudoso que las empresas e Instituciones Públicas se hubieran aquietado tan pacificamente a las proposiciones que Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert y Don Diego Torres Pérez les hacían llegar sin contar con el aparente y consensuado refuerzo de la Casa de S. M. El Rey que intencionadamente se hacía desprender de que en la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada figuraran los nombres de Doña Cristina de Borbón y Grecia y Don Luis Carlos García Revenga con la expresa mención del tratamiento de la primera y del cargo del segundo lo que. mediando el consentimiento y conocimiento de presente y de futuro, podría ser calificado como un supuesto de cooperación necesaria a los delitos supuestamente cometidos por Don Iñaki Urdangarín Liebaert y Don Diego Torres Pérez, previsto en el artículo 28 del Código Penal o, cuando menos, de complicidad del artículo siguiente.

Sobre tales indicios deviene inevitable que Doña Cristina de Borbón y Grecia preste declaración al objeto de, si ese fuere el caso, se despeje cualquier duda pues que, hallándonos en la recta final de la instrucción, no parece procedente que ésta se ultime gravitando la más mínima sombra de sospecha sobre la intervención que aquélla haya podido tener y, si fuere otra la valoración que su versión arrojara, se depuren las responsabilidades que procedan pero quede bien claro que su convocatoria no prejuzga en absoluto actuaciones procesales ulteriores de tal manera que queda absolutamente incólume todo el abanico de opciones procesales legalmemc previsto desde la de su anticipado sobreseimiento hasta la de abrir el cauce para posibilitar al Ministerio Fiscal, Acusación Particular y Popular que formulen sus reproches penales y a los Actores Civiles sus pretensiones civiles.

Si los aludidos indicios abocarán a uno u otro resultado es algo que no cabe aventurar en este momento, pero sí que tienen virtualidad suficiente para que, al igual que se ha hecho con los restantes componentes de la Junta Directiva de la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada, sea convocada Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia al objeto de hacer posible que, en calidad de imputada precisamente en garantía de sus derechos, asistida de Letrado y con instrucción de aquéllos, facilite las explicaciones que tenga por conveniente, declaración que pretendidamente versará sobre su intervención en la referida asociación y entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L., manejo y destino de los fondos derivados de las mismas y las cuestiones que razonablemente se desprendan.

SÉPTIMO.- Viene a colación la sentencia Nº 717/2009, de 17 de junio, dictada por la Sala Segunda del Tribunal Supremo en un caso llevado hasta sus últimas consecuencias punitivas, lo que de momento dista de acontecer en el presente, cuando, respaldando el criterio del Tribunal de Apelación, que hacía suyas las conclusiones del Jurado, dice: "En este control casacional comprobamos que las argumentaciones del Tribunal de Apelación para rechazar idénticas denuncias que las ahora efectuadas en esta sede casacional son serias, contundentes y conducen a un juicio de certeza sobre el conocimiento y consentimiento de la recurrente y su colaboración al éxito de la empresa criminal del marido más allá de toda duda razonable, que es como se sobe el canon de certeza de toda sentencia condenatoria. La recurrante era titular de la cuenta bancaria donde se ingresaban las cantidades y su marido era apoderado. Como titular de la cuenta tuvo que conocer los ingresos sin justificación que la misma registraba, asi como las operaciones que efectuaba su esposo. La inferencia de que el mantenimiento de su marido como apoderado de la cuenta, lo fue porque estaba al corriente y consentía esta situación es conclusión de toda razonabilidad. "

OCTAVO.- Igual que este mismo Juzgado ha decidido en casos anteriores bien por motivos de compromisos previamente contraídos por los Srs. Letrados personados o por razones de seguridad en la medida en que se hace imprescindible el montaje de un alto dispositivo policial incompatible con el normal desenvolvimiento de un día laborable en el edificio de los Juzgados, se está en el caso de hacer de nuevo uso de las previsiones del art. 201 de la Ley de Enjuiciamiento Criminal cuando dice que "todos los días y horas del año serán hábiles para la instrucción de las causas criminales, sin necesidad de habilitación especial".

Por lo anteriormente expuesto,

DISPONGO;

1º Recibir declaración en calidad de imputada, asistida de Letrado y con instrucción de sus derechos, a Doña Cristina Federica de Borbón y Grecia, declaración que pretendidamente versará sobre su intervención on la Asociación Instituto Nóos de Investigación Aplicada y entidad mercantil Aizoon S.L., manejo y destino de los fondos obtenidos a través de las mismas y las que se deriven, señalándose para tal acto las 10 horas del día veintisiete del presente mes en la sede de este Juzgado de Instrucción.

2° Visto el volumen que ha alcanzado el presente Tomo ábrase el XXX que se encabezará con testimonio de la parte dispositiva de la presente resolución.

Esta resolución no es firme y frente a ella cabe recurso de REFORMA a interponer en el plazo de tres días y/o de APELACIÓN para ante la Ilma. Audiencia Provincial en el de cinco.

COMISIÓN CIUDADANA DE DERECHOS HUMANOS: SOBRE EL MITO DE LA HIPERACTIVIDAD Y EL DÉFICIT DE ATENCIÓN EN NIÑOS: NEGOCIO REDONDO

La Comisión Ciudadana de Derechos Humanos, en su página web publica:

En este enlace podrás encontrar el reciente informe que hemos elaborado para el Comité de Derechos de los Niños de Naciones Unidas. Tras las investigaciones necesarias, hemos documentado que el aumento de niños drogados con psicoestimulantes ha sido vertiginoso en los últimos 7-8 años en algunas regiones, habiéndose multiplicado el gasto de seguridad social de dicha región por 100. Tras estudiar nuestro informe, el 1 de Octubre Naciones Unidas publicó sus conclusiones*, diciendo al gobierno español "estamos preocupados por el gran aumento de niños con TDAH que están siendo tratados con drogas psicoestimulantes" y recomendando al Gobierno "examinar el problema de la sobre medicación de estos niños y buscar vías alternativas desde la perspectiva educativa y no farmacológica". El informe completo se llama "Riesgo creciente de la infancia en España debido al mal diagnóstico y uso de Psico-fármacos" y lo puedes leer* aquí*.*

Donde, entre otras cosas dice:

Prolifera el Mal Diagnóstico y drogado con psicoestimulantes

El fármaco psicoestimulante utilizado para controlar el nivel de atención o actividad, metilfenidato (que en España se vende bajo los nombres de Rubifen®, Omozin®, Medikinet® y Concerta®) no curan la condición y no existe ninguna evidencia conclusiva de que mejora la función social o habilidades educacionales.

La razón principal para el uso de dichos fármacos es para producir unos efectos a corto plazo en la atención y actividad del niño. Estos fármacos psicoestimulantes están listados como sustancias controladas bajo el Schedule II de la Convención sobre Substancias Psicotrópicas de 1971 de las Naciones Unidas, porque constituyen un riesgo sustancial para la salud pública. Tienen poco para moderar la utilidad terapéutica (sin efecto en el comportamiento a largo plazo según los estudios científicos como el realizado por el Ministerio de Salud en Australia) y un gran potencial de adicción.

Es un hecho que mientras que la medicina establecida trata la enfermedad, la psiquiatría trata con "trastornos". En la ausencia de una causa o fisiología conocida, un grupo de síntomas y señales – observadas en muchos pacientes diferentes – se etiqueta como trastorno o síndrome. El psiquiatra Joseph Glenmullen de la Universidad de Harvard dice queen psiquiatría "todos sus diagnósticos son meramente síndromes [o trastornos], grupos de síntomas que se presume que están relacionados, no enfermedades". Muchos de los síntomas utilizados en el diagnóstico de niños (con TDAH) son comunes a la vida diaria.

Los síntomas del TDAH– el trastorno de conducta que más se diagnostica comúnmente– tal y como se enlista en el manual de diagnóstico DSM-IV de la Asociación Psiquiátrica Americana, incluye: "no prestar atención suficiente a los detalles o cometer errores por descuido en las tareas escolares; sucio y descuidado; experimentar dificultades para mantener la atención en actividades laborales o lúdicas; no parece estar escuchando; no completa las tareas escolares u otros deberes, se mueve de forma nerviosa; se retuerce en la silla; se levanta de la silla en clase o en otras situaciones en las que se espera que permanezca sentado; exceso de correr o saltar; tiene dificultades para jugar y a menudo 'está en marcha', habla excesivamente, interrumpe las conversaciones de otros"

Y avisan:

Los peligrosos fármacos psicotrópicos para la depresión, estrés, ansiedad, hiperactividad y TDAH alimentan una industria psiquiátrica de 235 mil millones de Euros sin una sola cura y con un alto coste en vidas humanas, matando más de 61.000 personas cada año y dañando a muchísimas más. Si necesitas ayuda, infórmate a conciencia antes de destrozar tu vida o la de uno de los tuyos con estos peligrosos tratamientos que alteran la mente. ¡Consigue más información aquí!

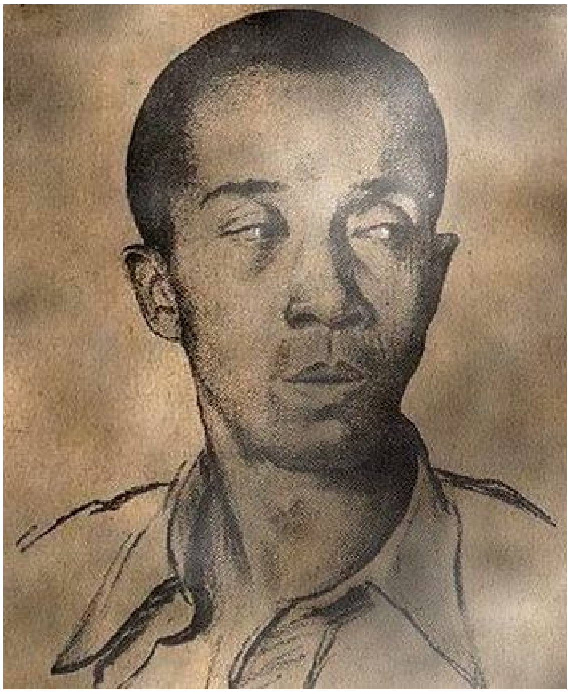
ROMANCE DE MARQUILLOS



29 MARQUILLOS

El traidor era Marquitos, todos le llaman traidor,
por dormir con su señora,
  ha matado a su señor;
cuando cayó muerto en tierra,
  el chapeo le quitó.
—Abre puertas, Catalina, ábrelas, mi lindo amor.
—No te las abriré, Marcos,
  no está en casa mi señor.

—Tu señor quedaba preso allá dentro de Aragón, vengo en busca de dinero,
   por deshacer la prisión;
si no lo quieres creer, su chapeo traigo yo.—
Catalina, como diestra,
   sus puertas trancó mejor;
Marquitos, como valiente,
   al suelo se las tiró.
Se fue de cámara en cámara,
   a Catalina no halló;
ya la viera estar llorando en un alto corredor.
—¿Por qué lloras, Catalina, por qué lloras, lindo amor?
—Lloro por el mi marido, que me lo matasteis vos.
—No me enojes, Catalina, no haga lo mismo con vos.—
La mandara hacer la cena, ya se la hizo y cenó;
la mandara hacer la cama
   y con ella se acostó.
Otro día, de mañana,
   Catalina madrugó:
—Subiráste en aquel alto,
   aquel alto mirador
y allí verás las tus tierras de que ahora serás señor
y verás a tus criados si trabajaban o no;
allí verás la truchita
   cómo llamaba al salmón
y allí verás la paloma que reclama al perdigón.—
Catalina, como diestra,
   al mar hondo lo tiró.
Al cabo de nueve meses ya Catalina parió:
pensó de traer hija hembra
   y trajo un hijo varón.
Llamara curas y frailes,
   rico bautizo le armó.
Otro día, de mañana,
   subió al alto corredor, allí cogiera su niño
   y al mar hondo lo tiró.
—¡Ahí vayas tú, mi hijo, vayas con mi bendición;
no quiero que quede casta de aquel gran falso traidor!

La versión aquí editada sigue, fundamentalmente, el texto recitado el año 1975, estando en su telar, por Carolina Geijo Alonso, de 84 años, que lo aprendió de su abuela, en el pueblo maragato de Val de San Lorenzo, León. Antes de que Antonio Cid editara y estudiara esta versión, sólo constaba en el Archivo del Romancero la perduración del romance de "Marquillos" en la tradición catalana de los siglos XIX y XX, especialmente en regiones muy conservadoras, entre ellas Alguer, el enclave catalano-hablante de la isla de Cerdeña. En la tradición judeo-española de Oriente solamente se conservaba, en el siglo XIX, una serie de versos de "Marquillos" incrustados entre otros procedentes de "Bernal Francés".

El romance tuvo ya una versión impresa (con una glosa), divulgada por un Pliego suelto, en el siglo XVI, que fue reproducida (prescindiendo de la glosa) por la Tercera parte de la Silva de Romances, impresa en Zaragoza en 1551, y por Joan de Timoneda en su Rosa de romances en Valencia, 1573. De acuerdo con las exigencias morales de la literatura escrita de aquellos tiempos, el glosador (hemos de suponer) introdujo en la fábula el retoque de que la dama consiguiera aplazar el disfrute de su cuerpo por el traidor hasta rayar el sol, haciendo así posible que ella lo asesine mientras duerme. Evidentemente, la tradición oral llegada hasta los siglos XIX y XX conserva mejor la trama del prototipo del romance al no conocer tal arreglo. El acuerdo entre la tradición maragata y la catalana, frente al texto impreso del siglo XVI, no dejan lugar a la duda. Sólo la versión de Val de San Lorenzo continúa el romance con el sacrificio del hijo del traidor; pero, siendo este episodio propio de una rama de la tradición, la maragata, frente a otra rama de la tradición, la catalana, el testimonio de esa rama, la de lengua castellana, es de igual peso que el de todas las versiones en lengua catalana juntas, y la ideología en que se sustenta el comportamiento de la madre, tras haber sido forzada por el asesino de su marido, es más fácil que haya sido erradicada en el curso de la transmisión del romance en el ámbito cultural catalán después de la Edad Media, que incorporada al romance por la abuela de Carolina Geijo o por una predecesora en la cadena de transmisores orales maragatos de los últimos siglos.

IÑIGO DOMÍNGUEZ, CORRESPONSAL EN ROMA

 Íñigo Domínguez (corresponsal en Roma de El Correo):

"Llevo en Roma desde 2001, como la odisea. Es decir, tiempo suficiente para darse cuenta de que no conoceré jamás Italia. Es un país tan popular por sus tópicos que en realidad es totalmente desconocido, y tienen engañado a todo el mundo. Espero poder transmitir la idea.

El periodismo, como a cualquier periodista un poco espabilado, a veces no me convence demasiado, pero se hace lo que se puede, no sé hacer otra cosa y siempre es mejor que trabajar.

El objetivo indisimulado de este blog es descojonarse, para qué nos vamos a engañar. Para las cosas serias ya está el periódico. Si fuera corresponsal en Ulan Bator lo intentaría, pero vivo en Italia. Otro propósito es referir hechos graves que ocurren en este bendito país y que no caben en el periódico, porque ya ni son noticia. Pero no hay que asustarse, en Italia, como decía Ennio Flaiano, «la situación es grave, pero no seria».

Una última pretensión es elogiar y divulgar el cine italiano, así, porque sí, porque es la pera y ya no lo ponen en la tele. Los niños no saben quién es Mastroianni, y eso es terrible.

Otra cosa que debe quedar clara es que no podré por menos que expresar algunas opiniones, pero como decía el inspector Harry Callahan, por algo llamado 'el Sucio', «las opiniones son como el culo, todo el mundo tiene una»

Para los que creemos que Italia ha sido y es el laboratorio donde se han fabricado todos los crímenes de Estado y todas las necedades políticas y de opinión que el resto de Europa aplica ahora como si fuera el Vinaigre des Quatre Voleurs, el blog de Íñigo Domínguez es imprescindible: no pretende ser un salvador de la humanidad, describe chanchullos y corruptelas sin moralizar, dosifica la sabiduría y la frescura en la exacta proporción, intercala escenas del mejor cine italiano, que aunque se empeñen los estetas, no es el de Visconti, y su sarcasmo rezuma humor e inteligencia; pero sobre todo: escribe maravillosamente bien y sabe que tomarse en serio es de mala educación.

De nada, ya saben que me gusta ser útil.

ESTROFAS DE PIE QUEBRADO AL REY QUEBRADO DE UN PAÍS EN QUIEBRA

A Moncho Corrochano, y a los talentudos de Cangrejo Rojo

Antes que la abuela acabe, sentadica en su sillón, el jersey
Le ocurrira otro desclave, que nos costará un riñón,
a este rey.

En contra de la leyenda, lo que mató a Don Rodrigo
no eran sierpes.
Que le comió su facienda,
por mucha afición al higo, un tal Herpes.

Las razones de galenos que la columna anda mal, son etéreas.
Es causa venida a menos de la enfermedad real las venéreas

El lavarse sólo en Pascuas y entretener a Corinna es error, que pica como las ascuas

y estropicia la minina del Señor.

Láveselo, Majestad,
(se lo dice el pueblo llano) con Lagarto.
Y si elige otra beldad (porque es usted campechano), con esparto.

Y aprenda con humildad de otra testa coronada, también golfo,
que alegra su santidad
y ahora tiene su morada en Castel Gandolfo.

Agradecida respuesta, me ha costado pero ahí va. Titulamos "La Quiebra", por redundar en el tema principal...

Por ser rey y por ser viejo, cuarto y mitad de pendejo,
y Borbón,

el monarca se ha caído mientras le sacaba el brillo un pendón

con nombre de mandarina, ropa interior argentina,
y teutón.

Y lanza Maese Cabra con su afilada palabra jabalinas...

Que son motivos fatales de enfermedades reales las "corinnas"...

¡Que su testa venerada podría quedarse ajada por la higiene!

¡Señor de un País en Quiebra!
¿No hallará una mala piedra de jabón, para limpiarse la minga después de darle a la ninfa, si se aviene,

su ración?

RIPIOS AL OCTAVO CUMPLEAÑOS DE GATOPARDO (CON RETRASO)

Gatopardo ya cumplió ocho, con mofa y con parsimonia
y siempre me lo reprocho:
y es cosa que me endemonia:
nos falta pasarle un mocho.

Que aquí nadie se desloma, que nos tocamos el nardo
y nos tomamos a broma parecer mininos pardos
a vueltas con el idioma.

Todo nos importa un guano:
el Borbón nos estomaga,
y en tocante a su saga

los vamos a hacer botsuanos que allí quien la hace la paga.

Este mundo sería un gozo si a todos los hijosdalgo los tiráramos a un pozo y al que se libre por algo:
pan y agua y calabozo.

List of german firms that used prisoners from concentration camps for slave labor.

Source: Catalogue of Camps and Prisons in Germany and the German-Occupied Territories, published in July 1949 by the International Tracing Service (ITS)

(1) "Si es indecente sacar beneficios de los muertos, es más indecente el cambalache con los culpables:

Hace unos días, cotejando la lista de las 2.500 empresas alemanas que habían utilizado prisioneros como mano de obra esclava, lo que se conoce como Catalogue of Camps and Prisons in Germany and the German-Occupied Territories, published in July 1949 by the International Tracing Service (ITS), descubrí que el American Jewish Committee y la Jewish Virtual Library habían decidido eliminar de la lista de empresas nazis, aquellas que habían accedido a dar una compensación económica por sus crímenes.

"Those companies that join the compensation fund will be taken off the list and put in the column of member companies of the fund. So far, we have been able to remove 47 companies on our list that have voluntarily joined the compensation fund."

No sé qué ley humana o divina les ha dado a estas organizaciones la autoridad para representar a las víctimas: judíos, gitanos, comunistas, anarquistas, enfermos y homosexuales; para otorgar el perdón de los pecados o para reescribir la historia. Pero mercachifles de la muerte como éstos, sobran."

Eliah Meyer, del artículo ROLF Y HANS GÜNTHER, LOS CÓMPLICES DE ADOLF EICHMANN QUE LA CIA PROTEGIÓ, fragmento de "Smog in the eyes": Informes inclasificables del espionaje inglés.

Imagen de portada: desfile de antorchas conmemorando el tercer año de Hitler y los nazis en el poder.

LUDWIG LOSBICHLER: MARCHANTE DE ARTE Y AGENTE DE LA GESTAPO (2)

"Una de las bromas que gasta la Historia es descubrir que descendemos de asesinos y gentes sin honor" (Anónimo)

En los documentos desclasificados hoy conservados en los National Archives de Washington procedentes de la OMGUS (Office of Military Government for Germany (US)) y de los servicios de inteligencia británico, se halla la información que cubre los años 1945 y 1946 de Ludwig Losbichler.

I. Desde enero de 1945, permaneció retenido en el Balneario de Caldas de Malavella, junto a otros destacados miembros de la jerarquía nazi, entre los que había criminales de guerra y traficantes de arte y oro expoliados. Losbichler figura en la lista prioritaria de nazis cuya entrega reclama Gran Bretaña y Estados Unidos al gobierno español:

Doc. 1. Carta del First Secretary Avery F. Peterson, de la Embajada de Estados Unidos en Londres, de fecha 23 de junio de 1945, transmitiendo la lista de prisioneros nazis, elaborada por el Foreign Office, para ser repatriados e interrogados en Alemania por los aliados. En el documento se explica la letra que va delante de cada prisionero y que indica su importancia y peligrosidad:

A. Oficiales de los servicios de inteligencia alemán (1) y personal de la Embajada Alemana que han colaborado con éstos.

B. Agentes del GIS y colaboradores cuyas actividades han sido probadas.

C. Alemanes indeseables que han comerciado ílicitamente.

D. Propagandistas nazis; miembros del Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei (NSDAP); sospechosos de trabajar para el GIS; personal y empleados de la embajada de los que no hay evidencia de espionaje; contactos y familiares de oficiales del GIS.

from the Embassy at London, England.

Ludwig LOSBICHLER,
(Translation from German).

3 Paintings (Spanish Master) Francisco Domingo Francisco Pradilla
A. Larraga

Deposed in the German General Consulate at Barcelona and guarded there during my internment in Caldas de Malavella.

This 3 paintings are my full property and have been defrauded in the German General Consulate at Barcelona. Denuntion has been made by myself by certificated letter from Caldas de Malavella to the JEFE SUPERIOR DE POLICIA in BARCELONA, since the investigations have given any result in spite of the fact that the probably criminal has been indicated.

The responsible for my property was: Consul Geiger, Emil personally and the German General Consulate juridico.

This 3 paintings have for me a value of 20,000.- Swiss Francs or 50,000-Pesetas.

LUDWIG LOSBICHLER - repatriated from Spain (an Austrian national). Has a business in Spanish Morocco in his own name - value 180,000 pesetas.

PAUL GEORG FIDRMUC has his own business in Hamburg in his own name. In 1931 he joined up with Camille Frank and also later with a Spaniard called Brucker. The company is called G. Brucker Traus Ltda., Lisbon, of which Fidrmuc owns 35%; Frank, who is an Austrian, 25% and Brücker 40%.

LES FILS D'ALFRED TRAUS, Brussels, of which Fidrmuc owns 15% and the rest is owned by Brücker and his brother-in-law, Traus. Fidrmuc has a safe in the Banco Pinto Sotto Mayo in Lisbon.

On the 6th February 1946 there were still 3,016 cases of Portugese sardines in Bilbao free port. They had been sold for 1,650,000 esc. by G. Brucker Traus, to R. Engler & Co., Zurich in May 1944.

HANS TICHAUER. His half-brother, who is a German Jew, is partner in the firm in Dublin O'Dwyer & Tichauer.

WERNER ROLF EDWIN RODOLFP SCHNITZER. acted as buyer for Einhardt, Madrid, after working for the German firm KATZENSTEIN in Spain (? Madrid).

HANS THOMSEN. Chief of the Nazi Party in Spain.

NSDAP a/c cleared.

NSV a/c balance 1,800,000 pesetas, this a/c operated by Herman Lautenschleger.

H.J. and SAF a/cs cleared.
No Sonderkontos or concealed funds.

Thomsen avers in a very matter of fact manner that his political ideas have hardly changed at all, and, as a result had he knowledge of concealed assets he would certainly never admit it. Therefore the above negative information is useless.

HANS HERMANN RUDOLF MEINKE - went in 1926 to Spain for Robert M. Slomann Jnr. of Hamburg. From April 1937 to March 1939 worked for HISMA, then went to Morocco for Sofindus as procurist in the Bergwerk Companhia Minera Mauretania S.A. August 1942 went to Irun with Transportes Marianne. Went to Portbou, Tetuan and Valencia also for Sofindus.

ALFRED HANS FRANK KLAEBISCH. His father was partner in the firm of A.G. Meukow & Cie. in Cognac with Englishman named Sheppard. During last war Sheppard took over whole company.
In October 1943 Klaebisch on instructions of the German Government bought his father's share in Meukow i.e. 68% of the capital and 40% of the trade marks. Down payment of 1,350,000 francs (from a total of 6,000,000). This purchase was back-dated to June 1941 and the money paid into Sheppard's account in France. Klaebisch has already drawn from this company 2,000,000 francs and his partner a friend of the family Harold Butler, is a Frenchman.

III. Conexiones de Losbichler con el ejército español, independentistas marroquíes, agentes de los servicios de inteligencia alemanes y traficantes de expolios:

Mohamed Wazzani (Muhammad al-Wazzani, Muhammad Hassan al-Wazzani, Mohammed Hassan alOuezzani, Ibrahim al-Wazzani, Mohamed Brahim Wazzani, Brahim Wazzani, Wasani). Independentista marroquí, cuando Marruecos era protectorado francés, era, junto con Allal al-Fasi, jefe de las células de la zawiya del CAM (Comité d'Action Marocaine) en Fez, durante los años 30. El grupo buscó apoyos en España durante la República (2), que, como Franco hizo después, alentó todo movimiento que debilitara el poder francés en la zona. Wazzani fue detenido por las autoridades francesas en noviembre de 1936. En marzo de 1937 el CAM fue declarado ilegal. El grupo se reconstituyó un mes más tarde con el nombre de Parti National y de este nació el Parti Démocratique Constitutionnel, liderado por Wazzani.

Al-Wazzani recibió pleno apoyo del gobierno de Franco, especialmente del general

Mizzian y de Serrano-Suñer. Durante la Segunda Guerra Mundial actuó como agente de la SD nazi en Tánger, Marruecos Español y Ceuta y Melilla. Era uno de los traficantes de oro, plata y arte expoliado más importantes de la zona.

Sus jefes alemanes eran Otto Albert Wiedemann, oficial de la Abwehr II (sabotaje) en Tánger, de la RSHA IV (Gestapo) y de las SS, y el cónsul alemán en Tetuán Herbert Georg Richter.

Wazzani, segun los informes de la OSS de 1945 (Doc. 15) intentó abrir en Madrid una galeria de arte marroquí junto con su socio Kaled Raisuni, familiar del Pasha de Larache. Los contactos que tenía para trabajar en Madrid eran: Mustafa ben Hadj Abdelkader ben Lamine (orfebre de oro y plata); Ahmed ben Mohamed Dibak Soussi (orfebre de oro y plata); Melam Behi Soussi (orfebre de oro y plata); Leon Sabbah (judío marroquí, orfebre de oro y plata) y Felix Ayad Levy Bencheton (judío marroquí, orfebre de oro y plata) (3)

Safehaven Report

Subject: Moroccan Art Works Shop in Madrid

According to an OSS report dated February 7, 1945, classified D 3, Brahim WAZZANI, who is a German agent, and his partner Ka'ed RAISUNI, a relative of the Pasha of Larache, are reported to have completed their arrangements to establish a Moroccan Art Works shop in Madrid. (Brahim Wazzani is still in touch with RICHTER and WIEDEMANN who are also active German agents.)

The following people are said to have been contracted by Wazzani and Kaled Raisuni to work in Madrid:

(a) Si Mustapha ben Hadj Abdelkader ben Lamine - about 20 years old. Gold and silversmith.

(b) Si Ahmed ben Mohamed Dibak Soussi -- about 26 years old. Gold and silversmith. This Moor was at one time employed as a chaouch at the German Consulate, Tangier.

(c) Melam Behi Soussi - about 45 years old. Gold and silversmith.

(d) Leon Sabbah (Moroccan Jew). About 28 years old. Gold and silversmith.

(e) Felix Ayad Levy Bencheton (Moroccan Jew). About 19 years old. Gold and silversmith.

Leather workers and weavers and those versed in native arts and crafts are now being recruited. All in all, some 31 men and women will be employed in the enterprise.

The family of LANGANHEIM, including Adolf Langenheim (P.L.) are old-time Moroccan residents, and are known to the Moors as "Boucharta", residing at Tetuan, Spanish Morocco. This family is reported to have invested 1,000,000 Spanish pesetas (approximately $50,000) in the Moroccan Art Works shop in Madrid. Adolf Langenheim has long been included in the British List of German agents to be expelled from Tangier and Spanish Morocco under the British-Spanish agreement of May 1944. Adolf Langenheim actually left this area on February 6, 1945.

Mohamed Nadjier (Mohammed Nadir) fue el jefe, desde 1937 el PUM o Parti de l'Unité Marocain. Para escapar al control de las autoridades francesas, Nadir se refugió en Tánger y en territorios del Marruecos español.

Ben Mohamed Mizzian (Mohammed al-Mizzian, Ben Mizzian, Muhammad bin Amziyyan,Béni Ensar Mohammed ben Mizzian). Es el conocido como "el general moro de Franco". En 1945, Mizzian fue ascendido a General de División. Militar de carrera, fue uno de los primeros militares sublevados durante la Guerra Civil Española donde la magnitud de sus atrocidades contra la población civil y los prisioneros le granjeó el agradecimiento vitalicio de Franco y el apodo de "el general exterminador".

Las tropas de regulares a su mando, además del asesinato, practicaban el saqueo sistemático de las zonas conquistadas. En 1956, Mizzian adquirió la nacionalidad marroquí y se encargó de reorganizar el ejército del rey Mohamed V con los mismos patrones de barbarie que había utilizado desde la guerra del RIF. El documento que editamos es el primero que muestra las relaciones de Mizzian con traficantes del expolio nazi. Este criminal de guerra, que ha gozado de trato de favor entre las autoridades militares y académicas españolas, recibió su último homenaje por parte del gobierno español en 2006, cuando el presidente Rodríguez Zapatero envió a Beni Ensar a una nutrida representación diplomática y militar en la inauguración del Museo Mariscal Mizzian. (4).

Al investigar el papel de este sujeto en el tráfico de arte y bienes expoliados no hay que olvidar a su padre Chaib Ben Mohamed Mizzian (Mizzian ben Mohamed ben Kasen), Secretario de la Comunidad Musulmana de Melilla, caid de la cabila de Mazuza, y a su hermano Ahmed ben Mizzian ben Kasen.

IV. Los únicos cuadros que Losbichler declara poseer son obras de Francisco Domingo, Francisco Pradilla y Andrés Larraga, pintores españoles de finales del XIX. Estas obras, según declaración firmada del declarante , las entregó en custodia al Vicecónsul Aleman en Barcelona Emil Geiger (5) Fueron, al parecer, robadas y Losbichler presentó denuncia desde Caldas de Malavella. (Vid. supra Doc. 3)

V. El 15 de febrero de 1946, Losbichler ya está interno en Camp 76, según documento 5. En Asperg, los nazis detenidos eran interrogados por las secciones de economía y contrainteligencia de los americanos. Al parecer, los británicos no transmitieron a los estadounidenses la información de contrainteligencia que tenían sobre Losbichler que identificaba a éste como agente de la Gestapo, al servicio de Bartl y que publiqué en la primera parte de este estudio.

Subject: Transmitting British reports sent to Germany for briefing in interrogation of Germans repatriated from Spain.

The Honorable,
The Secretary of State,
Washington, D.C.

Sir,

I have the honor to refer to Embassy's Safehaven Despatch No.29,195, April 8, and to enclose (as Enclosure No. 1) copies of a report sent to Germany by the Economic Warfare Department, Foreign Office, containing information taken from their files on Germans who were repatriated from Spain by air on January 29, February 8, 12 and 25, 1946. This information was sent for the purpose of briefing British interrogators who are questioning these persons in Germany.

I also enclose (as Enclosures 2 and 3) similar information from the same source on certain Germans who were repatriated from Spain on the Highland Monarch.

Respectfully yours,
For the Ambassador,

Robert P. Chalker,
Second Secretary of Embassy.

Enclosures: 3 as stated above.

En 1949, un traficante y agente del Abwehr, Hans Brandes (7) identifica a Oboril como matón de Gottfried Paul-Taboschat (8), otro agente del Abwehr, traficante y encargado de blanquear dinero nazi. El documento forma parte de las investigaciones del OMGUS y de los servicios secretos británicos sobre los fondos que escondían en España agentes nazis y su posible utilización en la creación de una red clandestina de espionaje. Se investigan 100.000 pts. de la Abwher que Brandes dice haber entregado a Taboschat (9). Vid. Docs. 12 y 13:

Subject: Gottfried Paul-Tabuschad, at present Barcelona.

In reply to Mr. Paul's (Tabuschad) statement concerning the 100,000.- Pesetas I hereby beg to give the following declaration:

As desired I confirm today again the several statements I made to representatives of the American Military Government in this matter. Mr. Paul (Tabuschad) claims to have handed to me in 1944 private money in the amount of 100,000.- Pesetas, which I was to deposit on his behalf in Switzerland. In fact said 100,000.- Pesetas were money of the "Abwehrkasse" which were intended to serve as a fund for the so-called R-Organization on the Iberian Peninsuala, as I learned later on. This statement was proved by a wireless-message of the "Zentralabwehrkasse" at Madrid, of which Mr. Franzbach was the manager, by which I was requested to hand over the 100,000.- Pesetas missing in the "Abwehrkasse". I believe that Mr. Franzbach is at present staying in Germany and should be able to testify accordingly. The former Officer of the Abwehrstelle in Lisbon, Dr. Schreiber, who can at present be reached in Munich, Hotel "Schottenhammel", witnessed the repayment of the 100,000.- Pesetas to the "Abwehrkasse" in Lisbon. I do not recall the name of the official in charge of that cash-office. Dr. Schreiber will be in a position to concur on this point. I neither converted these 100,000.- Pesetas into another currency nor removed them from Portugal nor deposited them anywhere.

To my mind any comment on Mr. Paul's assertions is superfluous as the value of his report can be measured by the statement that I, at the time in question, had a sister living in Switzerland who had a bank account there. I have only one sister who is 15 years of age now. She was then approximately ten years old and did not stay in Switzerland at that time. Only a younger brother, who at present is also staying in Germany, and was 14 or 15 years old at the time in question, attending a school, was the only relative of mine living in Switzerland. I never had a bank account of my own in Switzerland nor do I have one today. The only bank account I ever held abroad was with the Portugese Bank "Banco Pinto Sotto Mayer". On this account is still deposited a small amount of Escudos, which I reported on form MGAX (1).

I am prepared to render a declaration in lieu of oath that in 1944 I had negotiated with Mr. Hoffmann sen. in the Bank Hoffmann & Co., Zurich, of which he was the owner, on Mr. Paul's (Tabuschad) behalf concerning the account he (Paul) held with said bank. It has not come to my knowledge under what name Paul held this account. The purpose of the negotiations with Mr. Hoffmann Sen. was to forward to Mr. Paul in Barcelona a statement of the latter's account giving the balance to his credit. Hoffmann Sen. promised to make out such a statement. I do not know whether or not he sent this statement of account to Barcelona. The fact is that Paul had then held moneys with said bank. Also the statement of Paul that I am personally holding an account at the Bank Hoffmann & Co., Zurich, is not true. I never intended to nor did I open such an account.

I should like to add that Mr. Paul lately addressed to me some letters in which he tried by way of extortion to obtain from me a certain amount of Swiss Francs. He threatened me with publications in the press concerning a "previous activity" of mine, and also with an action through the Public Prosecutor's office. I left all these letters unanswered. Some 5 or 6 weeks ago, a confidential man of Mr. Paul's named Oboril, an Austrian national, made his appearance coming from London and allegedly working with British Military Government. He brought me a proposition by Mr. Paul according to which I was to pay him (Oboril) a certain amount of DM so that the 100,000.- Pesetas matter be liquidated. I rejected this demand. Mr. Oboril told me that Mr. Paul is active in the British Secret Service in Spain and that he has far reaching connections in London which were liable to bring severe damage to me. This was his last threat which I left also unheeded.

I did not inform Mr. Paul or Mr. Oboril of the transactions in Lisbon 1945, as to my mind a return of Official or State's moneys was involved which were no longer Mr. Paul's nor Mr. Oboril's business.

DOC. 12 y 13: General Records Pertaining to External Assets Investigations, compiled 1948 - 1950, documenting the period 1939 - 1950. Category: Abweur*.* (Abweur* es un error de los NARA por Abwehr.)

Ludwig Losbichler en los años veinte del siglo XX

Conclusiones:

La documentación descubierta revela que Ludwig Losbichler era un agente de la Gestapo considerado por los aliados lo bastante peligroso para incluirlo en sus primeras listas de búsqueda y captura (10). Losbichler tiene interes para dos secciones: la económica (que forma parte de la Operación Safehaven) porque es un traficante de bienes expoliados, y para la sección de contrainteligencia, por sus relaciones con autoridades y agentes de la SD, la Abwehr, el ejército español y los partidos nacionalistas marroquíes.

Losbichler mantenía negocios con uno de los generales más cercanos a Franco, Ben Mizzian, lo que explica su libertad de acción en toda la zona. Asimismo tenía intereses económicos comunes con dos líderes independentistas marroquíes y agentes de los servicios de inteligencia nazis, Wazzani y Nadir. Estas tres figuras adquirieron más poder en los años 50 y 60 (Mizzian llegó a ser Ministro de Defensa marroquí) y por tanto garantizaron un área de tráfico ilegal impune.

Las relaciones de Losbichler con agentes nazis continúa mucho después de terminada la segunda guerra mundial. Recordemos que, en 1956, dio el nombre de Antón Oboril a Seligmann como contacto y amigo de confianza. En los documentos que edito se demuestra que Oboril era agente de la SD integrante del grupo de oficiales nazis y delincuentes, que tenían como misión crear la estructura económica de apoyo a intereses nazis en España, Portugal y Norte de África.

En la primera parte de este estudio, mostré cómo la "legalización" de la "Colección Losbichler" se hizo gracias al respaldo y autorización del Ministro de Asuntos Exteriores español Alberto Martín-Artajo para que los cuadros de este traficante se incluyeran en la exposición internacional Mostra dei Primitivi Mediterranei de 1952 y cómo Losbichler intermedió para vender patrimonio artístico español que intentaba sustraer otra de las grandes figuras del régimen de Franco: el Cardenal Pla i Daniel.

¿Por que ha pasado desapercibido Ludwig Losbichler? El caso no es nada raro. Losbichler escapó a una indagación porque nadie lo investigo. Vivió y se movió en unos países (España, Marruecos, Suiza, Alemania) que ofrecían condiciones inmejorables para desarrollar su actividad. Los relatos novelescos de las ratslines o de la captura de Adolf Eichmann ocultaron una realidad más inquietante y desoladora de la Guerra Fría: los nazis nunca se fueron. Volvieron a la policía, a las universidades, a los hospitales, al gobierno y a los servicios de inteligencia de Alemania y de los Aliados. Reinhard Gehlen no pagó sus crímenes en el patíbulo de Nuremberg: terminó dirigiendo el BND y murió condecorado por sus servicios a la patria y al anticomunismo. En la misma época en que Losbichler lanzó internacionalmente su colección, Otto Skorzeny, con el conocimiento de Adenauer, estaba negociando con Franco, el General Vigón, Hans Hoffmann y el P. Conrado de Hamburgo (Konrad Simonsen Mackey) la creación de una Legión Alemana y Norteamericana para eliminar comunistas. Diplomáticos españoles falsificaron visados y documentaciones para estos criminales. El Cónsul español Jorge Spottorno (11) proporcionó a Skorzeny pasaporte falso cuando aún estaba en busca y captura en Francia y el gobierno español ofreció Madrid para que mantuviera conversaciones con Romano Mussolini y elementos de la red Gladio. Spottorno es el diplomático encargado de tratar con las autoridades aliadas sobre la restitución de arte expoliado. Pues ya sabemos lo que valía su firma.

En el tráfico de arte expoliado, como en el de la droga o armas, no hay individuos sueltos y sin control. Actúan dentro de una jerarquía criminal cuyos más altos escalafones son ocupados por políticos o mafiosos. Descubrir a un traficante o un delito no tiene importancia si no investigamos la organización legal o ilegal que le ha dado cobertura, sea facilitando permisos, lugares de expolio o marchamo académico. Esto es una perogrullada que entiende cualquier investigador de la policía, pero aún no les ha entrado en la cabeza a los historiadores que no se apartan de los tópicos no sea que tengan que trabajar en los archivos o manchar los blasones de algunas familías de tronío.

NOTAS

(1) La sigla GIS (German Intelligence Services) corresponde a la alemana SD Sicherheitsdienst sección de inteligencia de las SS.

(2) Algún historiador desnortado ha incluido a Wazzani en la lista de combatientes defensores de la II República Española. La melonada pertenece a la misma propaganda historiógrafica que pretende justificar la entusiasta colaboración de España y los Países Arabes, (especialmente movimientos independentistas) con la Alemania Nazi explicándola en términos de neutralidad o pragmatismo político. Vid. ‘Izz al-Arab, La izquierda española y Muhammad al-Hasan al-Wazzani 1931-1936; Salvador Bofarull, Combatientes árabes por la República Española 1936-1939 o Rocío Velasco, Las aspiraciones del nacionalismo marroquí en el marco de la Segunda Guerra Mundial:Un pragmatismo mal entendido.

(3) La colaboración de ciertos marchantes y traficantes judíos en el expolio nazi es un asunto tabú aún para los historiadores. Sólo así se puede explicar que expediente de los hermanos Moisés y Jacques Azerrod (Azerrad en ciertos documentos) haya desaparecido de todas las investigaciones sobre el tráfico de plata y oro robados por el Tercer Reich que pasaba por el Norte de África. Información sobre estos traficantes, encargados de fundir oro y plata robados puede verse en:

(5) Llamado "cónsul" por Losbichler. El cónsul General en Barcelona era Hans A. Kroll. Hans Kroll compartió prisión con Losbichler en Camp 76 y ambos estaban entre los primeros "obnoxious germans" repatriados. No parece un descuido inocente que Losbichler atribuyera la desaparición de los cuadros a Geiger. Hans Kroll fue uno de los muchos nazis reciclados por Konrad Adenauer. La transcripción de su interrogatorio en la preparación de los Juicios de Nuremberg puede verse en :

Reports, Interrogations, and Other Records Received from Various Allied Military Agencies, 1945-1948 Category:OCCPAC Interrogation Transcripts And Related Records. Record Name: Kroll, Hans, donde aporta detalles interesantes sobre las relaciones de los servicios de inteligencia alemán en España, contrabando, etc.

(6) La tarea de identicar criminales nazis sobrepasó a los aliados por el número de individuos que, de una forma u otra, respondían a esta clasificación. Se consideraron necesarios 12.000.000 de cuestionarios con 131 preguntas, pero no se realizó ni la décima parte. Estados Unidos fue el país que llevó a juicio a más criminales de la zona ocupada: 169.282 alemanes; La Unión Soviética encausó a 18,328; Francia a 17,353, y Gran Bretaña a 2,296.

Eugene Davidson, The Death & Life of Germany: An Account of the American Occupation (Columbia: University of Missouri Press, 1959), 127-129.

(7) Hans Brandes, como Paul Gottfried, es un caso típico de criminal profesional que desarrolla su carrera en los servicios secretos. La información británica sobre este individuo fue ocultada a la OMGUS por su relación con la muerte de Hans Jebsen "Artist", oficial del Abwehr y doble agente del MI5 controlado por Dusto Popov "Tricycle". Según el relato "oficial", Brandes engañó a Jebsen y se hizo pasar por proaliado, pero lo denunció a la Gestapo. La Gestapo lo secuestró y murió ejecutado en Flossenburg en 1944. Esta versión necesita una urgente revisión: se confunden al buen tuntún la Gestapo con la Abwher y se afirma con rotundidad la suerte de Jebsen, de la que no existe documento ni indicio alguno de su ejecución. Jebsen, como Tricycle, eran agentes con exceso de iniciativa, curiosidad y arrogancia, que pudieron suponer un peligro para la Operación Garbo y es lógico que Tomás Harris o el XX Committee estuvieran preocupados, pero creo que la suposición de que pensaron en algún momento en asesinarlo es una interpretación erronea del término liquidate (o el más coloquial bump off) usado por Liddell para indicar que se cerraba una operación o el trabajo con un agente. Los responsables de servicios secretos no van dejando "en scripto yaz esto" sus asesinatos.

Kim Philby no se dejó engañar por las patrañas de Hans Brandes, a quien consideró un gangster peligroso pero de poca monta. (Vid. Ben Macintyre, Double Cross: The True Story of The D-Day Spies, p. 248)

(8) Gottfried Paul Taboschat. Este individuo tiene que buscarse en los archivos como Paul Gottfried, Tabuschad, Taboschad. Paul, Gottfried y Pablo Gottfried. Ni él ni ninguno de los nazis que fueron interrogados corrigieron el error de los investigadores americanos y británicos. Gottfried Paul era el dueño real de dos empresas españolas creadas para lavar dinero nazi FECASA y AGLOMERA S.A (AGLOMESA en algunos documentos). Se le consideró mano derecha del encargado de los asuntos económicos de la Abwehr en España y Portugal, la

FABRICA ESPANOLA DE CORCHO S.A. (FECASA), Barcelona

NATURE OF BUSINESS   This firm is closely linked with AGLOMERA S.A. which was organized at the same tiem (1943) to sell the products manufactured by Fecasa.

CAPITAL   1,000,000 pts. (200 shares of 5000 pts. each).

OWNERSHIP   Prior to April 10, 1945 the shares of the company were in the name of Juan VINOLAS Marsal, 190 shares and Da. Mercedes BALET, 10 shares. The shares that appeared in Vinolas' name actually belonged to Pablo GOTTFRIED who was repatriated to Germany on February 25, 1946. On April 10, 1945 Vinolas sold 170 shares which were acquired as follows:

Marina ALVARGONZALES Prieto	40 shares
Maria Teresa PENDAS Gonzales	50 shares
Juan BLANCH Larroche	40 shares
Francisco RIBERA Gomez	40 shares

The remaining 20 shares held by Vinolas were sold on the 30th May, 1945, to Alfonso PENDAS Gonzales.

According to the statements made to the British Consulate General (its letter of September 25, 1946), the transfer of shares possibly was made to these people in repayment for loans outstanding. The Trusteeship has taken the attitude that the final transfer made in April 1945 was made by Gottfried to avoid the Spanish blocking law.

VALUATION OF GERMAN INTEREST   This concern apparently never paid its way and although it has certain assets left in the form of machinery the overall value is not large, say, 500,000 pts.

SUBJECT : Paul Gottfried. re TABU schad

We refer to your report dated 9th January 1947 concerning the above-named, who was repatriated from Spain.

We have now heard from London that, unfortunately for Gottfried (the name by which he was known in Spain) the nominal shareholders have confessed to acting as cloaks, and have handed over the shares in both companies to the Trusteeship. The two companies concerned are, of course, Fecasa S.A., and Aglomesa S.A., two Spanish concerns.

London quite naturally remark that, as Paul has now been proved to have been lying, they would not raise any objection if he was "given the works".

(9) El origen de esta pelea de truhanes está en el dinero que distribuyo Max Franzbach entre sus agentes en España para crear una red clandestina de resistencia, una vez que se hiciera formal la derrota alemana. El sucesor de Franzbach, Arnold Klambe Kleyenstuber reclamó el dinero a los agentes, pero desaparecieron 100.000 pts que bailaron entre Paul, el jefe de Oboril, y Brandes. El expediente Franzbach se halla en NARA M1270. Transcribed interrogation records relate to the prosecution of war criminals in proceedings at Nuernberg, 1945-47. OCCPAC Interrogation Transcripts And Related Records. Record Name: Franzbach, Max.

La declaración de Franzbach demuestra que España fue la segunda sede, después de Berlin, de los servicios de espionaje e inteligencia nazi. Entre otras historias, narra el soborno al diplomático estadounidense en Tánger Raleigh A. Gibson para que informara de la fecha del desembarco aliado en el sur de Francia:

"Shortly before the Allied invasion of Southern France in August 1944, the German Vice-consul Goering @ Goeritz*, Chief of Abw Abt III TANGIER, applied for a payment of 1.000.000 French francs to be made to the American Consul* Gibson (?), for which payment he obtained the approval of Zentrale Finanzen Berlin and of LEISSNER @ LENZ, who was Chief of KO Spain from 1940 to 1944 when KLEYENSTUBER succeded him. GIBSON was said to be employed by the American Consul to be in Tangier and was commisioned to find out for the German Abwehr the exact date of the planned Allied invasion of Southern France. He received an initial payment of 500.000 French francs, but since he was unable to supply the required information, GOERING broke all relations with him."

(10) El cierre del Consulado Alemán de Tánger fue una de las primeras medidas que exigieron Gran Bretaña y Estados Unidos a España, en sus negociaciones de 1944. Existieron varias listas de repatriación que se fueron elaborando conforme se conseguía información o se cotejaban expedientes de los distintos servicios de inteligencia. España hizo todo lo posible para proteger a los criminales nazis que se hallaban en territorio español o se refugiaban en él: facilitó documentación falsa, cuentas bancarias opacas, tráfico de sus robos y lugares donde esconderse. La importancia estratégica de Tánger no se limitaba a su posición geográfica sino que suponía un centro vital de sabotaje contra la flota aliada y un lugar donde se canalizaba y distribuía todo el tráfico de oro y arte expoliado con destino a España e Hispanoamérica. MARITATAS Y PERIFOLLOS CON CARGO A LOS PRESUPUESTOS GENERALES DEL ESTADO DE 2013 (1)

Las fundaciones, consorcios, entes públicos, federaciones, confederaciones, asociaciones sin ánimo de lucro, etc. son remansos fiscales que se transmutan en una mina casi inagotable por la jeta.

En la lista que he extraido de los Presupuestos Generales del Estado español de 2013, se detallan algunas subvenciones y ayudas sin contraprestación que valga la pena tener en cuenta, y no habrá ni un 1% de los beneficiarios que pudiera ganarse esa guita por propios merecimientos, trabajando.

Los que cobran la subvención para mejorar el sector de frutos de cáscara y de las algarrobas (7$_{1}$186.000,66 euros) y los que cobran para fomentar la apicultura (2$_{1}$800.000,00 euros), por citar dos ejemplos, no se han herniado trabajando los almendros, ni los avellanos ni los algarrobos, y como mucho, sobre abejas, les sonara lo de la abeja Maya... Me juego el café y el farias y un huevo.

¡El resto, somos una panda de panolis y pringaos!

Aquí tienen un muestreo. Otro día transcribiré más.

De nada. Ya saben que me gusta ser útil.

El Consorcio CELL necesita más de 16 millones de euros anuales para el mantenimiento del Laboratorio Sincrotrón, que se financia con la aportación de los Presupuestos Generales del Estado y los de la Generalitat de Catalunya, sin que haya en lontananza "socios" entre las empresas privadas y públicas que pudieran beneficiarse con las investigaciones que se muestren interesados en apoquinar algo de pasta.

En cualquier tierra de garbanzos, s una iniciativa de ese calado fuera gestionada sin otro apoyo que las arcas de Estado, se pondría en causa al equipo directivo y ejecutivo incapaz de recabar otras fuentes de financiación complementarias.

Véase otros laboratorios similares en el resto del mundo.

Entonces, ¿por qué subrayas el Consorcio para la construcción, equipamiento y explotación del Laboratorio Sincrotón?
No es el único subrayado que me choca, mientras que alguno de los que no lo están duelen a mi vista; pero, conociéndote, supongo que eso ya lo habrás analizado.

Cuando lo investigues, que lo harás, siempre y cuando tengas un familiar, amigo o conocido que sepa la legislación vigente para los "Consorcios", los informes del Tribunal de Cuentas que se han hecho sobre la gestión y administración de CELLS, sus acuerdos económicos con Henkel para investigar sobre detergentes, etc.

Así que esperaré tejiendo jerseys.

LA DERROTA Y LA RESISTENCIA DE FRANCIA (1939-1945) EN FOTOS

En toda familia numerosa hay un borde que hace la puñeta a los demás hermanos, y se caracteriza por rebordecerse aún más con los más pacíficos y pacientes. En Europa, ese papel le ha correspondido a Alemania sin discusión posible: ha desencadenado dos guerras en las que ha roto y pisoteado todos los tratados y acuerdos que había firmado, ha instaurado la eliminación de derechos humanos básicos, la tortura y el asesinato, sin hacer distingos entre civiles y militares y las Leyes de Guerra; y, en el siglo XX, ha creado tres veces un entramado societario en sectores de la industria bélica que tenían prohibidos, en paises cuyos dirigentes estuvieron en Babia, papando moscas, encantados de tener empresas e inversiones de gente de tan acrisolada seriedad en los negocios y rigor en las transacciones, independientemente de que con los hechos demuestren ser aliados de conveniencia, retorcidos, trapaceros, y poco de fiar.

Ahora estamos con el tercer intento alemán de rearme económico para despojar al resto de los paises de su entorno: sus bancos y sus fondos de pensiones son una sima sin fondo y sin solvencia, que tienen bula del FMI y del Banco Central Europeo y de la Comisión Europea. Y si no, que se valoren por lo que valen y no por lo que cuestan sus activos, que consisten en inversiones en deuda griega, española, portuguesa y bonos basura, que es como tener un tío en Graná o des châteaux en Espagne...

La derrota de Francia frente a Alemania, que la ocupó sin demasiado esfuerzo, en la II Guerra Mundial dio pie a la bajeza, la cobardía, y la traición por una parte importante de los dirigentes y ciudadanos franceses, que se convirtieron en aliados y auxiliares diligentes de sus verdugos; pero también dio pie en una parte de la población a la grandeza y al heroismo frente al enemigo, en defensa de los ideales de la República Francesa y contra la barbarie nazi.

En Picasa - Resistencia Francesa están las fotos que reproduzco en miniatura con mejor resolución y mayor tamaño a disposición de todos, puesto que forma parte de la Historia que nos atañe. Y que sería mejor no olvidar, porque —¡ojalá me equivoque!— Alemania, como tiene costumbre, no nos va a dejar que sigamos siendo los pazguatos bientencionados que nos gusta ser.

De nada, ya saben que me gusta ser útil.

Creo que la situación no puede compararse. El sistema, nos guste o no, funciona tal como los dirigentes o gobiernos, supuestamente democráticos, aceptaron en la famosa reunión del G20 (por cierto pasándose por el forro todas las normas que definen el liberalismo)
Es cierto, Islandia se medio desmarcó y nadie sabe si la cosa ha sido para bien o para mal, porque no tenemos dónde compararlo. Pero el asunto está en que nadie se plantó ante las exigencias de la banca o, mejor, del sistema, sea alemana, francesa, británica o norteamericana, incluida alguna española.
La deuda, el ahorro nórdico y el sobregasto latino, son otra cosa y depende de factores que escapan, a mi modo de ver, a dicho sistema.
Otra cosa es que lo aceptemos. A mí me repugna y no puedo con ello.

subordinados a EEUU y Alemania estamos empobreciéndonos. Pero algunos no quieren enterarse ni en paz ni en guerra. Muy buen artículo, Gatopardo, gracias, y muy buena respuesta de l'agüela.

NEXOS: FLORENCE CASSEZ: LA VERDAD SECUESTRADA

"El expediente del caso Florence Cassez, uno de los más célebres de la justicia mexicana reciente, consta de 13 tomos y millares de páginas. Nexos ha tenido acceso pleno a él. Héctor de Mauleón ha leído esos tomos en busca de la verdadera historia del caso con el propósito de reconstruir lo que sucedió. Luego de dos meses de lectura y relectura del expediente, abultado con declaraciones de testigos que dicen cosas distintas cada vez, luego de identificar testimonios clave olvidados o no tomados en cuenta por el juez en ninguna de las instancias, el relato que De Mauleón ha podido construir no es la crónica de un caso sino la metáfora perfecta de un pobre sistema de acusación judicial: un laberinto de fabricaciones.

Todo lo que el expediente dice puede ser verdad, salvo que mucho de lo que el expediente dice es contradictorio, y el conjunto, paso a paso, una verdad digna de sospecha o una mentira digna de indignación. Al final de la historia, los únicos hechos comprobables del expediente son la manipulación sistemática, la impunidad de origen en el trato de acusados y testigos, el manejo de los medios para construir versiones ad hoc.

De las siguientes páginas no espere nadie un relato de lo que sucedió. Espere sólo un juego de espejos de las verdades a medias y las mentiras sin testigos que genera el proceso de investigación y acusación vigente en México.

No podemos saber por vía de los expedientes judiciales que la acusan si Florence Cassez es culpable o inocente, si los secuestrados fueron efectivamente secuestrados y si dicen la verdad en su primera, en su segunda o en su tercera declaración; no podemos saber siquiera si existió la organización delictiva sobre la que está construido el caso, aunque es claro que la parte fundamental de esta banda se encuentra libre, que hubo víctimas, que hubo verdugos y que en muchos momentos los verdugos fueron los investigadores del caso, que operan en la opacidad, torturan, inducen declaraciones, alteran los hechos del momento y montan espectáculos para los medios.

Lo que sigue no es el relato de un secuestro y su investigación, sino el relato de una investigación que no conduce a la verdad del caso sino a la evidencia de su manipulación, es decir, de su secuestro."

Hallan en Escocia gigantesca colonia de coloridos moluscos

Jueves, 27 de diciembre de 2012

Un equipo de científicos descubrió una colonia de crustáceos de vivos colores en la costa oeste de Escocia, que se presume es la más grande del mundo en su tipo.

La colonia está formada por más de cien millones de Limaria hians (una especie de almeja) que han formado un arrecife de cerca de ocho kilómetros.

El molusco tiene en su interior numerosos tentáculos naranjas.

La almeja tiene en su interior numerosos filamentos de color naranja brillante, que se asoman entre las dos conchas de la almeja.

El arrecife puede llegar a albergar cientos de otras especies.

^ Arriba REPORTE UN ERROR

Este Tribunal de Faltas requiere a la autoridad competente para que detengan a los redactores y asesores científicos de la BBC por el artículo titulado "Hallan en Escocia gigantesca colonia de coloridos moluscos", como inductores y cooperadores necesarios en el atentado contra la identidad de moluscos, crustáceos, y de la especie Limaria hians, (Gmelin, 1791) Phylum Mollusca, Clase Bivalva, Subclase Pteromorphia, Orden Pterioida, Familia Limidae, Género Limaria, que se conoce familiarmente como almeja peluda, peinecillo y lima (en español); llima y petxineta (en catalán); gaping file shale (en inglés); lima ballerina (en italiano) feilenmuschel (en alemán), y lime (en francés), a la que describen como "una especie de almeja", "crustáceo" y "molusco" alternativamente.

Otrosí, requiere a la autoridad competente para que investigue y descubra a quien el el redactor jefe y el redactor de este artículo de padre desconocido, y los presente ante este Tribunal de Faltas, como reos de la pena de mitones hasta el codo, sin acceso a tiza, lápiz, pluma, bolígrafo, procesador de textos, o cualquier objeto que pudiera servirle para seguir desbaratando la Zoología.

Como pena accesoria se les condena a escribir mil veces:

"En lo único que se asemejan los moluscos y los crustáceos es en que son animalitos de Dios, y no maltratan a los redactores de la BBC."

Otrosí, han de ser procesados sus profesores por fraude contractual y mala praxis profesional, y el Ministerio de Educación de la pérfida Albión como responsable civil subsidiario por haberles causado esta grave incapacidad para redactar con propiedad.

LA MUGRE ACADÉMICA TRAS EL SUICIDIO DE AARON SWARTZ

La vida académica está pautada por la rutina, la mediocridad y las riñas por unos privilegios mezquinos, que huelen a rancio. Desde que la investigación pasó a formar parte de los complementos y pluses de las nóminas, los académicos han creido que es un coto de uso exclusivo, del que sólo tienen que dar cuenta a sus pares.

Lo normal es que, en el primer ejercicio de investigación "serio", la tesis doctoral, el futuro investigador haga un tocho de citas y puntualizaciones de punto repulgo erudito sin saber la diferencia epistemológica entre prueba y ejemplo o entre teorías constructivas y teorías de principios. Sea cual sea la disciplina o rama de saber hay dos constantes: el gusto por el lenguaje pomposo y la pertinaz afirmación de que, hasta el momento en que el doctorando y su ilustre director se han hecho cargo, la Humanidad, en su inmensa desidia, ha desatendido la toponimia de los pueblos del Sur de la Sierra de Jaen o la tipología de la soriasis atípica, en el siglo XIX, en el Alto Aragón...

Esta mili de pedantería dura varios años y deja secuelas de por vida. En unos años, donde el recluta tendría que tranquilizar las hormonas tumbando trigos y retozando, la cultura, el conocimiento y la investigación se pervierten en su esencial fin de mecanismo de sobrevivencia y disfrute y degeneran en sintomas neuróticos de inseguridad e impotencia. Tras el ilustre personajillo que se indigna por el periclitable destino del futuro de subjuntivo, se esconde un imbécil con los sesos fritos por la bombilla de 40 W y con problemas glandulares.

La saña con que los investigadores académicos se aferran a Su Tema, y sus derechos de autor,   sólo es comprensible en términos de compulsión obsesiva incapacitante. En los años que median entre tesis y cátedras, que pueden ser fácilmente dos decenios, el sujeto parte la tesis en 140 intervenciones en congresos, 43 conferencias, varias monografías e infinitos apuntes para el alumnado, donde repite y regurgita de manera implacable las mismas tonterías año tras año. Los que nos llegan a las cátedras son pelmazos gilipollas que no han cotejado con el original ni un sólo documento de los que hablan, ni se han molestado en comprobar en los libros otra cosa que el índice, a ver si los citan.

Estos majaderos campanudos han desarrollado, en algún punto de su sistema límbico, un gusto por el dinero y las raterias que es digno de que conste en los anales de la picaresca. Regalitos de editoriales y empresas informáticas, cursos de verano, subvenciones injustificables, circuitos de amiguismo en contratación de servicios, congresos perfectamente sustituibles por correos electrónicos con artículo adjunto, son algunas de las trapacerías que constituyen la vida académica y la investigación en nuestras universidades. Un nido de gran importancia, porque avala y da marchamo científico a todo lo anterior, es el de las publicaciones y la defensa de los derechos de autor. Las publicaciones son un negocio con editoriales subvencionadas, están gestionadas sin profesionalidad ni en cuanto a contenidos ni en cuanto a forma. Hay cientos de publicaciones cuyo único fin es recoger Actas de congresos años después de su celebración y miles que son centones de resúmenes. Toda esta farfolla tiene que ser comprada por bibliotecas e instituciones estatales, al igual que los manuales que escriben los tienen que comprar los alumnos, si quieren salir con bien de la asignatura.

Por tanto, la lucha por los derechos de autor no es tanto una defensa de autoría, que nadie les niega, ni una reivindicación laboral, sino la obstinación en seguir siendo una élite sin función social, sin productividad y sin capacidad de trabajo.

Hay blogs en internet que han realizado una labor de investigación y difusión cultural infinitamente superior a departamentos enteros de nuestras facultades. Tras ellos hay gente de toda condición y pelaje. Son plagiados y sólo reaccionan con algún comentario jocoso. Los que los plagian suelen poner los siete candados de la propiedad intelectual a su copia. Son los mismos que arrugaban el morro cuando nació Wikipedia y que ahora la fusilan sin contención y sin citarla.

Es el mismo espíritu miserable que encontré en Dakota, en un grupo de roulottes carcomidas por el tiempo y la mugre, en medio de la nada, y cuyos orgullosos propietarios amenazaban: "Propiedad Privada: Respuesta armada."

Contra ese cerrilismo sin paliativos, estéril, caduco, Aaron Swartz, como tantos otros, reivindicó el libre acceso a la investigación y el conocimiento de público dominio, porque es ahí donde se juega el futuro de la cultura universal.

Ninguno de los enemigos de la libre transmisión de la cultura ha producido ni creado en toda su puñetera existencia nada más que detritus mal digeridos, perfectamente prescindibles, porque les falta lo primordial: curiosidad, generosidad y amor al conocimiento.

¡Y además, son tan imperdonablemente feos!...
